One Plaint Before Washington Board

WASHINGTON—Only one arbitration case has so far been filed in this area under the consent decree.

The case was brought to the board by an exhibitor almost as soon as the local agency opened for business. Formal papers, however, have not yet been filed, and the board refused to make any information public regarding the matter until it is officially before it.

Upon the filing of the formal demand for arbitration and the form acknowledging the complainant's willingness to abide by the arbitration award, notices will be sent to the party or parties named in the complaint and opportunity will be afforded interested parties to announce their desire to intervene. It is not expected that the case will be heard until late this month.

Jones and Benton Set Up Atlanta Booking Office

ATLANTA—George M. Jones and L. D. V. Benton have opened offices here as Jones & Benton for the exclusive purpose of booking pictures for independent exhibitors under the decree. There is no intention to handle the buying for any theatres, states Jones who points out exhibitors can make use of the office when in town for whatever their needs may require.

Jones has been active along Filmrow for approximately 20 years, working with major and independent exchanges. He has already contacted various exchanges on his idea and the reaction has been favorable, he says.

Reports the office would be set up as a form of buying combine are strenuously denied by Jones. However, he will make every effort to attend all trade screenings to report them to his accounts.

25 of 37 Eligibles at Equipment Convention

CHICAGO—Of the 37 independent dealers eligible for membership, representatives of 25 are attending the three-day second annual convention of Independent Equipment Dealers Protective Ass'n at the Congress here, according to Harry Graham, Denver, chairman. Election of officers for the first time is scheduled to be held Monday. Manufacturers have been invited to attend and some have put in an appearance.

Gabe Yorke May Join 20th-Fox Exploitation

NEW YORK—Gabe Yorke, now in the west handling "Land of Liberty," is reported joining 20th-Fox's exploitation staff here under Rodney Bush. He is due within the next week or so with his first assignment "Tobacco Road," for which an extensive campaign is planned.

Ask Majors to Purchase Canadian War Bonds

TORONTO—American distributors operating in Canada have been asked to purchase $1,000,000 of Canadian war bonds with eight of the majors to invest $100,000 each, the balance to be made up by the independents, such as Republic, Monogram, PRC, Alliance and others.

Canada has no restrictions on remittances, although it is pointed out in Britain last year half of the $35,000,000 was frozen, while in Australia 50 per cent of the $6,200,000 film revenue was permitted to leave the country. In Canada the gross revenue of film exchanges in recent years has averaged more than $10,000,000 per year and the excess revenue for export has averaged $6,000,000 for each of the past four years.

The inference is that unless American companies cooperate in the purchase of war bonds, restrictions may be imposed on remittances.

Remittance Hearings To Be Held Monday

NEW YORK—Arbitration hearings on allocation of the new British remittance plan, scheduled for last Wednesday, have been postponed until Monday at the Bar Association Building. Sam Cohen of the M-G-M legal staff will present his company's arguments, while Joseph H. Hazen, Warner attorney and aide to Harry M. Warner, will represent the other seven major distributors.

Milton J. Handler, Columbia University law professor, will be the impartial arbiter. M-G-M is protesting the allocation set up by the Hays group, holding its share of the remittances should be based on the plan originally adopted by the British government and not on gross business.

It is understood all of the companies have received a share of the new remittances, some as high as half of 75 per cent of the original allocation.

Shortly after the hearings, Arthur M. Loew, head of M-G-M foreign activities, will leave for the coast. He recently stated he was planning a trip to Australia which may follow after his Hollywood arrival.

Eddie Hyman Named Aide To Sam Dembow jr.

NEW YORK—Eddie Hyman, for many years identified with the Century circuit here and later with Prudential Playhouses, has been named assistant to Sam Dembow jr. and Leonard Goldenson of the Paramount theatre department at the home office. Hyman for the past six months has been buyer for United Detroit Theatres and assistant to Earl J. Hudson. He takes over his new duties March 1.

Another change is the shifting of Harry Royster, whom Hyman succeeds, to the post of operating head of Netco theatres upstate with headquarters in Poughkeepsie. Royster succeeds George Walsh who resigned over a year ago. He will make his office with Harold Greenberg, booker, effective March 1, also.

Assessment Value on Criterion Boosted

NEW YORK—While numerous theatre and theatre buildings have been reduced in assessment values by the tax commission, the Criterion and its accompanying structure has been upped $25,000 to a value of $6,725,000. Notable reductions are the Paramount by $625,000 for a new total evaluation of $11,225,000. Loew's State has been reduced $250,000 for a new estimate of $3,850,000.

The Music Hall and RKO Building are listed jointly at $11,700,000, which apparently is the same as last year.

Other valuations for Manhattan are: Palace, $1,275,000; Mayfair, $1,750,000; Roxy, $4,000,000; Ziegfeld, $1,000,000; New Amsterdam, $920,000; Times-Apollo, $1,365,000; Astor, $1,700,000; Globe, $1,050,000; Strand, $3,200,000; Gaiety, $2,150,000; Rivoli $1,600,000; Capitol, $2,300,000; Hollywood, $1,125,000; Lincoln Square, $985,000; Rialto, $2,825,000.

In the Bronx, Loew's Grand is valued at $975,000, and the same circuit's Paradise, $1,300,000. RKO's Fordham is assessed at $815,000, while Skouras' Valentine is listed at $600,000.

In Brooklyn, the following are in the higher brackets: Fox, $3,800,000; St. George, $187,000; Loew's Kings, $1,080,000; Loew's Metropolitan, $992,000; Loew's Melba, $410,000; Star, $410,000; Tivoli, $380,000; Oxford, $110,000; RKO's Albee, $1,700,000; Paramount theatre and building, $3,070,000; Strand, $525,000; Majestic $250,000.

In Queens, where the Eastern Studios are located, the property is down for a valuation of $715,000. The RKO Madison is listed at $629,000; Keith's Flushing, $770,000; Loew's Valencia, $1,060,000; RKO Alden, $430,000; Merrick, Jamaica, $875,000.

In Richmond, the St. George theatre and building, $590,000, and the Paramount, operated by Si Fabian, $350,000.

Illness Puts Off Hearings Between SPG and Majors

NEW YORK—Due to the illness of the NLRB's trial examiner, Dan Baker, hearings between the Screen Publicists Guild and representatives of six majors have been put off until February 11. To date there have been seven sessions between the SPG and majors, excepting Warner and M-G-M, the latter two having been granted adjournments until a later date. Most of the conferences have been over whether non-salaried artists, such as free-lancers, are eligible for the collective bargaining unit for which the SPG is seeking recognition.

O'Connor Again Heads Catholic Fund Drive

NEW YORK—For the third consecutive year, John J. O'Connor, vice-president of the RKO circuit, has been named chairman of the Archbishop's Committee for the Laity for 1941 appeal in the motion picture and entertainment industry.

Urges 2-Way Campaign To Return Trade Health

By LEONARD WEISBERG

NEW YORK—In what a number of executives consider to be the most important address before Ampa this season, Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner theatres, urged publicity men (1) "to create a public state of mind toward motion pictures which would enable us within the near future to advance admission prices at least to the 1929-30 level, and (2) "to build good will for the industry as an institution."

These were Bernhard's concise conclusions after observing the "friendly feeling" the public has felt toward theatres "is being dissipated." In connection with price tilts, he warned against periodic increases for "big attractions."

The public, he said, is presently paying an average of 75 cents per admission as compared with $1 about 10 years ago. An impediment toward raising scales, especially in the lower brackets, is the current defense tax, he added, "but despite that fact we must, to protect the financial structure of our business, get additional nickels, pennies and dimes wherever we can in a general raise of admissions . . . not an occasional increase on big attractions."

Hits Price Juggling

Bernhard declared he is against these advanced price attractions because "if this up-and-down price policy continues, and it will grow because every company will think that it has a picture that is far superior to the ordinary and prices should be raised, in no time the public will become price-conscious to a dangerous degree.

"Our customers," he declared, "will look upon prices as a trademark of quality. Unconsciously you will be telling the public that when the price goes up it is a good picture; when the price remains stationary it is not so good. Keep up the juggling of prices," he warned, "and you will shift emphasis from entertainment to price, and when the public is guided by price, the advertising man's job becomes less important." Bernhard at this point said, "I should assume that advertising men would throw the weight of their influence against the juggling of admission prices."

He was particularly outspoken in his criticism of those forces which are robbing the industry of public good will, which, he observed, "we are now in danger of losing.

"That good will is more precious than ever because of the competition which has grown up since motion pictures became the great mass entertainment . . . We don't play outstanding attractions 52 weeks in the year in a weekly change house, and surely less in a two or three change double feature house in the neighborhoods. Our steady patronage comes from the good will which keeps the people coming to the theatre during the weeks and days when we don't have major attractions. They come because they have a friendly feeling toward the theatres which we must not lose."

Bernhard gave as his opinion that "no other business" is subject to such a constant barrage of criticism from people in all walks of life, "including a United States senator," which he termed "unfair and unjust."

"No other merchandise, no other commodity that the American people buy is discounted in advance of being put on sale by the very newspapers and magazines that we support with millions of dollars of advertising every year. Before customers ever get a chance to read our advertising, commentators from Hollywood have already told them whether, in the individual opinion of that commentator, the picture is good, bad or indifferent.

"Wrong View" by Critics

"As soon as a man or woman begins to write about motion pictures," Bernhard continued, "they immediately forget that the industry is an entertainment factory, and that the men who run that industry are in the business of manufacturing entertainment to please the largest number of people." Critics are inclined to think of films as an "art," he added, while patrons are only interested in entertainment.

Among other forms of discreditable publicity are unpleasant gossip, imagined scandals and "subtle" but destructive criticism carried by fan magazines, Bernhard said. Observing he "would like to read more often of some of the good work our industry is doing," he added: "Anything printed in the papers which makes Hollywood discreditable, and the people who work there undesirable, destroys good will and encourages people to lose the instinct to say, 'Let's go to a movie'."

Bernhard indicated he has little patience with those who regard only big pictures as a cure of all the industry's evils. He said he is in accord to a certain degree with value of especially important product, "but if we had to live on outstanding pictures alone this business could not survive. It is the average pictures, and I am not talking for the benefit of the smaller companies, which constitute our bread and butter," he declared. "Good pictures—meaning smash pictures—are just dessert, and the kind of dessert that is not served often enough. Only a national movie habit, the faithful patronage of millions of paying for the average movie, as well as the smash hit, keeps us in business."

Hinting that average pictures are to play a more important role than ever, the circuit head declared:

"I see picture after picture with entertainment value as good as that of pictures containing magic names, pictures which occupy a great percentage of our screens, but do not gross enough money. It is these pictures which require and should receive the concentrated attention of every advertising man and every manager who is a showman.

"With the loss of foreign revenue how do we, as exhibitors, know how long Hollywood can continue to pay the tremendous salaries to those magic names? It is because of pictures with lesser names, but high entertainment quality, that I, as one exhibitor, am ready to say, 'Mr. Producer, we will help you build up new names.' And that is your job, a tough one, I admit. I just present to you the failure to sell enough tickets for these pictures, but not in the spirit of hostile criticism because I am sympathetic to all your difficulties."

Bernhard was introduced by Mort Blumenstock, eastern Warner director of advertising and publicity. Among those from the home office who took bows, were Paul Lazarus, Carl Leserman, Clayton Bond, Sam Schneider, Harry Goldberg and Ed Schreiber. Attendance was over 250.

Together in Spotting Main Feature First

NEW YORK—The RKO and Loew's metropolitan circuits are toe-to-toe in the new plan of presenting the main feature before the associate film in a switch of policy in order to get the important unit of double bills before late audiences between 9 and 9:30 p. m.

RKO started it on September 26 in sort of an experiment at nine houses. Loew's followed suit by presenting a well advertised "Nine O'clock Plan" at 31 houses Thursday. RKO opened the idea at one more house the same evening and on February 12 will bring it to 23 more units. The score now stands: Loew's, 31 out of 71 houses; RKO—as of February 12—33 out of 46 houses.

RKO Staggers Programs

However, RKO is not rigid in its changeover. About half the units will stagger the programs so that the main film of the last show goes on at 9 p. m., while the other half starts at 9:30. Loew's is set at 9 p. m., but may change the Sunday programs in a few weeks so that the top film may start at 9:30.

The RKO houses that will be on the 9 p. m. schedule are: Greenpoint, Prospect, Shore Road, Bushwick, Park, Marble Hill, 81st Street, Hamilton, Flushing, Pelham, Castle Hill, New Rochelle, Royal, Roosevelt, White Plains, 125th Street and Alhambra. Those on the 9:30 schedule are: Tilyou, Kenmore, Dyker, Madison, Republic, Strand and Columbia, Far Rockaway, 58th Street, 86th Street, Fordham, Franklin, Regent, Chester, Richmond Hill, Coliseum and 23rd Street.

Although independent chains in competitive zones with the two major circuits have taken no steps to indicate they will follow, it is known they are watching the situation to see if there is any merit to the new plan.

Extra Weekend Shows Held for "Fantasia"

NEW YORK—Extra morning shows Saturday and Sunday with admissions scaled at half price for persons under 16, have been inaugurated at the Broadway where "Fantasia" is on display. The plan was adopted, according to Walt Disney offices, at the request of student and teacher groups. Next Tuesday, the 1,000,000th patron will be entertained by the theatre, as a special attraction.

And They All Tell Stories of Their Kin

New York—Joe Hornstein's equipment office at the Film Center boasts of the following employes: Al Lyons, brother of Leonard, famous syndicated columnist whose theatrical pot pourri appears daily in the New York "Post;" Jerry Thomas, son of Harry H., local branch manager for Monogram, and Seymour Seider, son of Isador of Prudential Playhouses.

Lest we forget, Hornstein's two sons also are engaged in the same office.

Seeks Return Proskauer Payment to Loew's

NEW YORK—Ruth L. Kirby, owner of 10 common shares of Loew's, has filed an action against the directors seeking to have them return to the company's treasury $100,000 which was paid to former Judge Joseph M. Proskauer for his services in defending them and the company in the minority stockholders' suit in 1939. Her contention is that the directors, and not the company, should have paid this sum to the former jurist.

On March 31, 1939, Supreme Court Judge Louis A. Valente ruled for the plaintiffs in the amount of $527,802, but at the same time cleared all directors of any mismanagement charges, holding the errors were in the method of bookkeeping and did not reflect on any of the individual defendants.

Paramount Starting on Construction Program

HOLLYWOOD—To accommodate a heavy production schedule, Paramount has launched a construction program at its Marathon Street studio, the new buildings to include three modern sound stages and a power house. At the same time the company reiterated its intention of constructing an entirely new, $15,000,000 studio on property in West Los Angeles, a project which has been temporarily deferred because of unsettled world conditions.

The three new stages will provide 55,000 additional square feet of interior space. The power house will increase the studio's electrical capacity from 23,000 to more than 40,000 amperes. To make way for the new units, the electrical dock, sheet-metal stage and a standing set will have to be dismantled. First of the new stages is to be ready within four months, with the entire project to be completed in six months.

Osa Johnson Weds

NEW YORK—Osa Johnson, whose latest film is "I Married Adventure," took unto herself a second venture in marriage this week when she married her manager, Clark H. Getts, at the city hall. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony at the Waldorf. Her first husband was Martin Johnson, killed in an airplane crash a few years ago.

Assign Elliott Nugent

HOLLYWOOD—Elliott Nugent will direct "Nothing But the Truth," Bob Hope-Paulette Goddard co-starrer, for Paramount.

Government Door Not Shut On Ascap Settlement

Negro Pickets Force "Nation" Withdrawal

NEW YORK—Picketing by Negroes in protest to the showing of the picture compelled Sam Cummins to pull "Birth of a Nation" from the Ambassador the day after it opened.

Similar demonstrations at the Thalia, on upper Broadway, and at an independent house in South Orange also forced cancellations shortly after opening.

Dembow Back on Job

NEW YORK—Sam Dembow jr., Paramount circuit executive, returns to his desk Monday after being confined to his home for several weeks due to an injury sustained when he was hit by an automobile while stepping off a sidewalk in the Times Square district.

REVIEW FLASHES

MAD DOCTOR, THE (Para't)—In most situations this will prove a celluloid problem child. The film is too long to function as supporting fare and is not sufficiently meritorious to grace the upper half of the bill except in the most unimportant program arrangements. Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew, John Howard. Director: Tim Whelan.

MEET THE CHUMP (Univ)—If squirrels bought theatre tickets, this would undoubtedly smash all boxoffice records because it is nuttier than a 30-cent drugstore sundae. The amount of human patronage it will attract, however, is problematical. Had not the designation been overworked, it might be classified as a screwball comedy, taking up where all others left off. It is reasonably funny in spots and should serve satisfactorily where mirthful support material is desired. Ken Goldsmith produced; Edward Cline directed.

MONSTER AND THE GIRL, THE (Para't)—While this cannot hope for universal patronage or acclaim, it should find takers in profitable number among the horror fans for whom it will be a treat sufficient to sate the appetites of the most avid chill-seekers. Stuart Heisler directed.

ROAD SHOW (UA)—The action starts in a nut house and gets nuttier every foot of the way. There have been plenty of screwball comedies about allegedly sane people, but this is the first one in which the leading characters are admitted screwballs. There's no limit to the number of laughs it will furnish the customers who like their humor in its broadest vein. Properly merchandised, the feature should pay its way handsomely. Hal Roach produced and directed.

WASHINGTON—Filing of the government's criminal proceedings against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers in the federal district court at Milwaukee will not close the doors of the department of justice to the music organization should it still desire to frame up a consent decree, according to Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold.

As filed in Milwaukee, the information charging Ascap with being an unlawful combination in restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law contended, among other things, that the fees for licenses to commercial users of Ascap music are fixed arbitrarily by the society to all commercial users, and the society has discriminated as to both price and terms among various commercial users of music so that some users have received more favorable treatment than others who are similarly situated.

In the consent decree ending the case against Broadcast Music, Inc., the new organization agreed not to discriminate in either price or terms among the users of copyrighted music and to offer BMI compositions for performance to all users of the same class on equal terms and conditions, with licenses on a pay-when-you-play basis, on either a per-piece or per-program schedule.

Department of justice officials said this provision would be of value to exhibitors using copyrighted music, and that a similar provision would be incorporated in any settlement made with Ascap.

"In plain language," Arnold said in commenting on the suit, "Ascap is charged with exploiting composers by preventing them from selling their music except on terms dictated by a self-perpetuating board of directors. That board has the power arbitrarily to determine on what basis various members of Ascap shall share in the royalties from Ascap compositions.

"In addition to discriminating against composers, Ascap has been using its monopoly power to charge the users of music for songs they do not play. By this method, anyone who does not belong to Ascap is excluded from the market. These practices we consider not only illegal but unjustifiable on any ground of fair dealing.

"Our proceeding is aimed only to compel Ascap to stop such practices. Therefore, the department will continue to hold the door open to proposals from Ascap which will eliminate these abuses. It does not desire to prevent Ascap from protecting the copyright privileges of its members."

The filing of the suit revealed openly what has long been reported the government's aim—the reorganization of Ascap's internal management and policies to eliminate the "self-perpetuating board of directors" of which complaint was made.

New RKO Official

NEW YORK—William J. Merrill, vice-president and treasurer of RKO Corp., has been elected a vice-president of RKO Radio Pictures.

Rebuttal in Flynn's Suit of Publisher

NEW YORK—Court news of the week found the most important development being a rebuttal by Harcourt, Brace, Quinn and Boden, publishers, and Constancia de la Mora, authoress, to Errol Flynn's $2,000,000 libel suit in which actor claimed Miss de la Mora's book, "In Place of Splendor," used the suffering of the Spanish people during the Civil war to gain publicity for himself. The defendants pleaded an affirmative defense holding Flynn was supposedly wounded at the front while he was miles away from action, and cited stories carried by the American news services at the time to prove what was said in the book was true and not libel.

Application of Clara Dellar and Robert Louis Shayon to reopen an examination before trial of Samuel Goldwyn in connection with a $1,000,000 suit against the producer, Eddie Cantor and United Artists has been denied by federal judge Murray Hulbert. Suit claims the plaintiff's play, "Oh Shah," was plagiarised in "Roman Scandals."

Settle "Hired Wife" Suit

Producers Laboratories discontinued and settled out of court an action against Universal, Universal Film Exchanges, Big "U" Film Corp., and the Roxy Theatre. The action claimed Universal's "Hired Wife" was an infringement of the title of its picture, "A Hired Wife." An injunction, accounting of profits and damages had been sought.

20th-Fox, answering a suit by Eleanor Harris, authoress of the original on which "Brigham Young" was based, claimed Miss Harris was not entitled to more screen credit than she received, due to the fact she sold the story to 20th-Fox for $1,000, and was employed to work on the screen play at $75 weekly. The authoress seeks damages of $50,000, claiming Louis Bromfield was given screen credit while all she received was "story research" mention. She will be examined before trial in federal court by the film company.

Suit of Katherine Moog against Warner started trial in the federal court. Action seeks $75,000 damages for alleged libel in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy." Plaintiff claims the part played by Lya Lys in the film was meant to represent her.

Max Weingarten and Michael M. Wyngate lost a plea for temporary injunction pending trial against Eureka Productions' distribution of "Ecstasy," but Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente ordered start of trial of the action for next week. The plaintiffs claim to have acquired the second five-year rights to the film in America from the producers. Also that Eureka's rights expired in October, 1939. Damages of $100,000 are sought for failure to turn over prints and negatives. Defendant claims it still owns the rights. Other defendants are Samuel Cummins, Rose Chatkin, and Jacques Koerpal.

Russell Goldman has filed a supreme court action against Harry Gordon and Samuel K. Lackoff claiming the defendants, employes of his during 1938-40, failed to turn over a patent developed while in his employ for a projection machine. He seeks to have defendants turn it over. A counter action for $10,000 damages has been filed stating the defendants had been promised a one-third interest in anything they developed and that Goldman is seeking to deprive them of the interest.

Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy, refusing to dismiss Leonard Goldstein's $25,000 suit against Mervyn LeRoy, declared that triable issues exist. Action claims LeRoy persuaded Goldstein to drop a suit against Kenny Baker and to turn over the actor's managerial contract to him, promising compensation which was not forthcoming. The producer claims Goldstein had no agent's license when he signed Baker.

Indict Three for Illegal Trafficking in Films

NEW YORK—The U. S. attorney's office has handed up a sealed indictment charging three men with illegal traffic in films and stating the defendants rented stolen or surreptitiously acquired pictures to sell to churches, schools and charitable institutions which were under the impression the defendants had leased them legally. Defendants are Louis Colasuono, known as L. D. Colson, heading Colson Motion Picture Service, Bronx; Antonio Cardillo, his alleged partner, and Sol Jaffe, a photographic technician and head of Movielab Film Labs. of 1600 Broadway.

Films involved are M-G-M's "Ben Hur," 20th Century Fox's "The Littlest Rebel" and "A Connecticut Yankee," Warner Bros.' "Dinky," and Sunray Films, Inc.'s "The Little Flower of Jesus." Defendants are accused of having acquired 35mm prints and reduced them to 16mm, which were then sold. Under the indictment they can be fined $11,000 and sentenced to three years each.

The investigation came about as a result of protests from major film companies who complained that many prints were being stolen. Over 50,000 prints are exhibited daily in 17,000 theatres. This is the first case of its kind in the history of Southern District of N. Y.

Million by Fleischer for "Mr. Bug Goes to Town"

NEW YORK—The Max Fleischer studio in Miami is working on what Paramount, the cartoonist's distributor, is pleased to characterize as the "first solidly dramatic modern story of today in feature length cartoon form." It is supposed to be a $1,000,000 production and the story is "Mr. Bug Goes to Town." It is for fall release. The story is an original depicting the fight for life by a community of little people who live in a weedy patch of earth 45 inches from Broadway. The story will be told from the insects' point of view, with humans appearing only as the insects see them.

Parry "Kane" Questions

NEW YORK—"Citizen Kane" will be released by RKO on February 28, according to current plans. Questions relating to the picture are met with a blank gaze at the home office.

Nearly Million to Operate Archives

WASHINGTON—Funds aggregating $993,340 are provided for operation of the National Archives during the coming fiscal year in the first appropriation bill to be taken up by Congress.

The appropriation was for the full amount recommended by the budget, and an increase of $60,480 over that for the current fiscal year.

Testifying before the House appropriations committee on the activities of the National Archives, R. D. W. Connor, archivist, reported that during the last fiscal year a total of 2,272,000 feet of motion picture film was deposited, giving a total of 4,352,000 feet.

While 3,800,000 feet of this total came from government agencies, 522,000 feet was acquired from private sources, much of it in the form of news reels, Connor explained. Included in the pictures received was the March of Time film, "The Ramparts We Watch," a great deal of which was composed of films in the custody of the Archives.

Aid Defense Commission

The films now on deposit are serving an important practical purpose, the archivist revealed, the National Defense Advisory Commission being interested in films of the World War period and calling for an average of five showings a week of such pictures.

One of the most important problems confronting the Archives is the preservation of pictures, Connor said. About 85 per cent of the film received is on nitrate base, which constitutes a fire hazard and has a comparatively short life—about 25 years for the average picture. The Archives is anxious to transfer these pictures to acetate base film, particularly as the vault capacity for nitrate film is practically exhausted and new vaults will have to be provided if acetate film cannot be used.

Need to Duplicate

Connor explained that it will also be necessary to duplicate much film which now is in bad condition. Some of the pictures cannot be projected because of deterioration. At the same time, the Archives have much negative film of which copies must be made before it can be projected.

At the present time an optical printer is being made, which will cost about $4,500 as compared with $15,000 if bought in the open market, and a step printer will be made this year, so that the work of copying films can be started in the near future.

To Make Yiddish Films

HOLLYWOOD—Louis Weiss and Sam Rosen have formed Hollywood Yiddish Film Corp. and will produce four features. The first will star Moishe Oysher and shooting will start in February. Release of the initial effort is expected to coincide with the Passover holidays.

RKO Sells Parkway

NEW YORK—RKO has sold the Parkway, Mt. Vernon, to an independent exhibitor.

Report Goldwyn Joins Warner

New York—Following settlement of the suit against UA and the sale of his stock for a reported $300,000 to David Selznick, Samuel Goldwyn is reported joining Warner in an independent production setup similar to that of Frank Capra. James Mulvey is expected to continue representing Goldwyn at the UA headquarters until his films have been liquidated. George Z. Medalie, Goldwyn's counsel, left Thursday by plane for Hollywood to wash up the suit and probably to confer with Harry Warner. Goldwyn's "Westerner" deal with Warner fell through because of the UA releasing contract.

United Artists and Goldwyn issued the following statement in Hollywood, Friday, confirming settlement of the suit: "Negotiations today have been completed between Samuel Goldwyn and United Artists, whereby United Artists has granted Mr. Goldwyn his immediate release from his United Artists distributing contract. United Artists has also arranged for the purchase of Mr. Goldwyn's stock in the United Artists Distributing Corp. Mr. Goldwyn's suit against United Artists will be immediately withdrawn."

"Barbara" and Shaw Occupying Pascal

NEW YORK—George Bernard Shaw's dramatization of "Major Barbara" by Gabriel Pascal for UA release is, in Pascal's own words, symbolic of the "new English spirit of solidarity and brotherhood" crystallizing the "one family" force that has been manifested since the war.

Pascal arrived from London aboard the Exeter with a print of the film, which stars Wendy Hiller of "Pygmalion" renown. He expects to remain about two months, during which he will go to Hollywood for further consideration of producing there. In any event, he declared, he will return to England after the film's premiere and if conditions permit will produce "Doctor's Dilemma." He also has scheduled in "Devil's Disciple" and "Saint Joan," but whether he will produce the latter two in England or Hollywood depends upon the war.

The Hungarian-born producer was munificent in his praise of Shaw, whose vitality he pictured as being consumed almost wholly with his desire to understand picture problems. In this connection Pascal revealed the famous author is writing an original story with a locale "near Panama" for a film. Pascal is authority for Shaw's "concession" that the "picture medium is the greatest medium of art today. He adores pictures today; sees the future in it, because it touches the people."

Holdovers, the Champs In Broadway Runs

Kudos to Holdovers at Philadelphia First Runs

PHILADELPHIA—Holdovers dominated the picture of downtown business last week, with ticket machines clicking merrily at most of the houses. Improvement in weather, slackening of the cold and grippe epidemic, helped bring the customers out. "Gone With the Wind" continued like a cyclone at the Stanley. The Karlton stepped out of its second-run class temporarily to run "The Lady With Red Hair" first run, because of lack of other facilities.

"Scattergood Baines" Debut at Montpelier

MONTPELIER, VT.—RKO will hold the world premiere of "Scattergood Baines" here next Thursday at the Capitol and which will be attended by Gov. William H. Wills. Guy Kibbee, who stars in the film, arrives from the coast Monday en route to the New England city for the opening.

NEW YORK — While the business on Broadway wasn't anything to get excited about, it is important because virtually all of it went into holdovers and that means less "nut" to worry about. The newcomers are at the Criterion, Music Hall, Roxy and Strand.

The staying power of "The Philadelphia Story" at the Music Hall, which wound up six record-breaking weeks Wednesday was just short of miraculous. The last stanza at about $82,000 was just under a fifth week of $85,000. "Story" played to more than 850,000 persons and outdistanced "Rebecca," the only other film to go six weeks at the theatre, by a sizeable margin in this respect, as well as in money.

"Gone With the Wind," playing a repeat engagement at the Capitol at about half the admission scale that obtained when it played the house a year ago is going great guns to hit over $42,000 in its second week, which is terrific after an opening seven days at $53,000.

The Roxy turned in a handsome $40,000 in its second week of "Tall, Dark and Handsome," a figure few expected it would reach. The Paramount, with a grand benefit sendoff for "Virginia," chalked up a profitable $58,000, which means holdover. The rest is just average.

Virginia MPTO Elects Officers in Capital

WASHINGTON—MPTO of Virginia gathered here last Monday at the Shoreham Hotel for their annual midwinter convention, to discuss current problems of the industry and elect officers for the year.

They were welcomed to the city by Richmond B. Keech, corporation counsel for the District of Columbia. Principal speaker was Colonel Robert Barton, counsel for the association, who explained the consent decree and urged that exhibitors give it a fair trial.

President William F. Crockett in his initial talk disclosed that the MPTOA is still hopeful of some cancellation concessions from distributors operating under the consent decree. As a possible minimum concession, Crockett mentioned 50 per cent of the rental of one feature in each block of five. He urged, also that the members give the decree a fair trial.

Ed Kuykendall, president of the MPTOA, was also present and spoke briefly mentioning that there was a possibility of a change in the minimum on the defense tax.

Next Meeting in June

All officers of the association were reelected, which included, in addition to Crockett, Benjamin T. Pitts, vice-president; Harold Wood, secretary, and Sam Bendheim jr., treasurer. New members of the board of directors are: Carter Barron, Washington; Charles Denmead, West Point; Sydney Bowden and Jack Katz, Norfolk, and R. H. Bolling, Norton.

The directors voted to hold the midsummer convention at Hotel Chamberlin, Old Point, in June.

At the banquet and ball which concluded the meeting, Crockett was presented with a brief case and traveling bag, Ben Pitts making the presentation speech. Carter Barron acted as toastmaster and introduced the special guests which included Senator Byrd, former Congressman Colgate W. Darden, Congressmen Dave Satterfield and Willis Bland, and State Senators Aubrey Weaver and W. F. Fuller.

Among those who attended the meeting were:

Planning to "Teach" Board of Appeals

NEW YORK—Expressing the view that the ITOA feels "very keenly" over the appointment of personnel to the arbitration appeals board that is wholly non-conversant with exhibitor problems, Harry Brandt, president, following a meeting at the Hotel Astor, informed BOXOFFICE his organization "will immediately file every conceivable type of arbitration case permitted under the decree."

Brandt's concern over the AAA appeals board personnel was expressed this way: "We feel men with some knowledge of exhibitor problems should be on it. Why take on three men who have to be taught the business? It's a far-fetched idea, but as long as that's the way it's going to be, we will try our best to make it work."

The ITOA president is of the opinion the efficacy of the industry's new arbitration system will not be proven until it has tussled with all types of complaints. For that reason, ITOA members will file a batch of diversified cases and will have the benefit of ITOA attorneys at hearings. In the latter connection, Brandt declared the attorneys will represent members in cases only where precedents are involved.

Reminded that the AAA does not recognize precedents and that each complaint is tried on its own merits, Brandt replied: "We feel precedents mean something. They always have meant something in this business even if the AAA doesn't feel that way."

Enthusiastic response to the ITOA's eighth annual dinner-dance at the Hotel Astor on March 1 was reported by David Weinstock, chairman of the arrangements committee.

Jean Hersholt, who celebrates his 35th anniversary next month as a screen personality, departed for the coast Friday after an extended vacation in the east.

Anti-Discrimination Bill Introduced in Albany

ALBANY—An anti-discrimination bill has been reintroduced by Assemblyman Daniel Burrows, representing a Harlem district. The measure calls for suspension or revocation of licenses in places of amusement, public accommodation or resorts where the licensees do not make available to all persons equal accommodations and privileges, subject only to the conditions and limitations established by law and applicable to everyone alike.

Violators would be charged with a misdemeanor and the bill calls for a fine of from $50 to $500.

Dividend Action Waits

NEW YORK—No action has been taken by the board of RKO of Delaware on the preferred dividend at its meeting January 31. As of that date dividends accumulated and unpaid on such stock amounted to $6 a share.

Cherry Valley Dark

ALBANY—The Cherry Valley Theatre, Cherry Valley, is closed. Bob Jenner, who operates the New Hollywood in Frankfort, was its most recent lessee.

PHILADELPHIA

WILLIAM GOLDMAN announces in letters to exchanges that he plans to start using films at the Erlanger with the new buying season. Pointing out the house used to run RKO pictures, he stresses its value as a downtown first run . . . "Fantasia" was screened for the press at the Aldine . . . Jimmy Jones, long the orchestra leader at the Fays, and, during the summer, at Steel Pier, died suddenly.

Nate Milgram planned a 10th wedding anniversary at the Showmen's Club Saturday night . . . Bill Fishman, who used to be a checking expert for several exchanges, is the papa of a boy . . . Florence Averell, the girl-in-the-outer-office at Metro, left for Miami Beach, Friday. Dot Burrison, whose desk is on the other side of the exchange, got the same urge, and plans to leave this week . . . Boss Bob Lynch is taking things easy at Miami . . . Nick Lloyd Metro's Southern New Jersey salesman, is reported leaving to take a job in the booming machine tool industry, and Lou Formato, former Warnerite, is said to be ready to walk into his shoes.

Joe Conway, Egyptian, has taken over the Boulevard from Joe Hebrew, the street reports . . . Murray Diamond and Lou Foxman are distributing a new game, "Lucky 13" . . . The trade is eager to get a look at William Elliot, newly appointed secretary of the local arbitration setup. He didn't show up last week, although he contracted for offices at 1420 Walnut St. The room numbers: 1305 to 1307. They'll probably be familiar numbers to exhibitors and exchange men before long . . . Morris Phillips, former owner of the Upsal, is new manager of William Goldman's Band Box.

It was a birthday party, with all the trimmings, for Oscar Neufeld at the Showmen's Club Wednesday. He was billed as "The Mayor of Vine Street" . . . Charlie Dutkin paid his first visit to the street since he took that up-state job with Dave Segal . . . This unpredictable world: Variety and Showmen's Clubs gave Cecil Felt a big sendoff into the army, and then the khaki-suited physicians, giving him a last-minute once-over, found fault with some item or other and sent him back to civil life. Maybe it was too much party.

Morris Wax has taken over the Lincoln, but hasn't announced policy yet. Previously he denied reports he would run it as a burlesker . . . Metro's "Flight Command," got a first-class preview at the Navy Yard, before Rear Admiral A. E. Watson, commandant, his staff, and a bunch of critics who felt a bit out of place among all the uniforms . . . Dick Kirsh, Aldine, Wilmington, got Catholic youth organizations to promote a model plane contest to boost "Give Us Wings."

Sandra Lydell, vaudeville dancer, is suing the Fay's management for $5,000 damages on the charge they used her picture (showing her rather undraped) to promote shows in which other girls, and not she, appeared. It was "embarrassment" and "great humiliation," she asserts, naming, as defendants, Edward Sherman, president of the corporation; Sam Stiefel, secretary; Allan Heldcraft, treasurer, and Sid Stanley, manager. Common Pleas Court Judge James C. Crumlish issued a temporary injunction against use of her pictures.

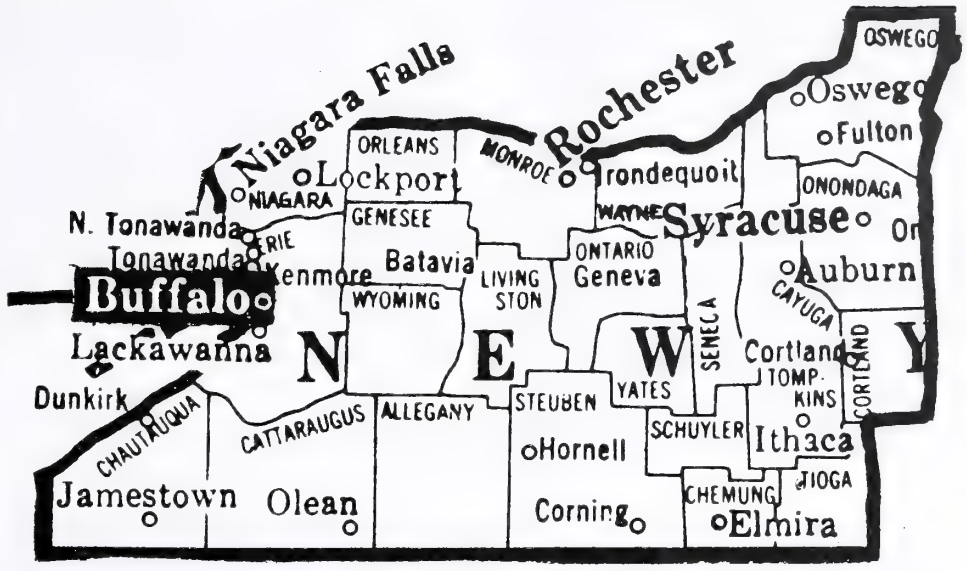
ALBANY—A movement to organize a Bookers' Club is on foot here. It would be a social organization.

BUFFALO



WE ARE pleased to welcome a newcomer to Buffalo's Filmrow. He is John Finley, newly appointed manager of Dipson's Twentieth Century Theatre, replacing Dick Kemper, who is now in Florida. John first started in the business for Skouras Bros. in 1929 in St. Louis. Then he worked for Harris in Pittsburgh. He joined the Dipson chain in 1936 in Wheeling, W. Va., where he hired Don Harpole, ex-manager of Dipson's Bailey in Buffalo. He was later transferred to Bradford, Pa., and managed the New Bradford for two and a half years and last week was brought to Buffalo.

Gene Gorman, also of the Century, is going to New York for a few days before leaving for camp . . . Don Baecher, same theatre, is contemplating starting a training class soon for ushers for local Dipson theatres . . . Report has it that when Dick Kemper returns to Buffalo, he will be made district manager for the Dipson's Buffalo chain . . . Edward Spitznagel, who for 27 years served as credit manager for the Jacob Dold Packing Co., is the choice of the American Arbitration Ass'n to serve as clerk of the Tribunal for the Buffalo district. His offices are in the Chamber of Commerce Building. Spitznagel was schooled in the central offices of AAA in New York before returning to Buffalo. Anyone wishing to contact him, call Wa 3277.

James F. Phillips, junior executive at Shea's Hippodrome, had a story published in the recent edition of the Canisius Quarterly, published by the local college which is attended by most of the younger members of theatredom . . . Stan Mittlefehldt, service manager of Shea Theatres, is now wearing a "tux" in the evenings and a business suit afternoons . . . According to reports issued by George A. Mason, manager of Shea's Great Lakes, over 100,000 patrons have witnessed the popular showing of "Gone With the Wind," which is being moved to the Hippodrome where John Carr is manager . . . Await "Citizen Kane" Decision by Schaefer

Spokesmen for RKO Radio locally were expecting, at mid-week, that the controversy between Publisher William Randolph Hearst and Orson Welles, producer-director-writer-star of "Citizen Kane," made for RKO Radio release, would be cleared away definitely in New York by President George Schaefer and the company's board of directors before Schaefer entrained for the coast. Schaefer was due in Hollywood over the weekend.

Company attaches here were predicting Schaefer and the directorate would decide to let the film go into release in its present form, as per schedule, although Hearst representatives had threatened court action on the allegation that many sequences in "Citizen Kane" closely parallel the publisher's own career.

Despite reports to the contrary, the ban on RKO Radio news and publicity in the Hearst press throughout the country has not been lifted, studio officials here asserted. They declared there have been a few scattered instances where publicity and news on current RKO Radio product has found its way into some of the Hearst papers, but explained this was handled by the advertising and publicity departments of various RKO and other theatres screening the company's product and which are advertisers in the Hearst newspapers. As to general news and publicity concerning the company, and emanating therefrom, however, none of it has appeared in Hearst-controlled media.

Welles and his general aide, Herb Drake, have been in New York for the past week conferring with Schaefer and other RKO Radio executives on the situation. Meantime it was reported a print of "Citizen Kane" had been dispatched to Hearst's home at San Simeon for a special screening to be witnessed by the publisher.

United Artists—"Niagara Falls."

Republic—"Alibi at Midnight."

"Community Sing" Finale For "Strawberry Blonde"

Reaction of sneak-preview audiences to an old-time song, "The Band Played On," as used in Warner's "The Strawberry Blonde," has caused the studio to include a novel "community sing" finale to the picture, which stars James Cagney, Olivia de Havilland and Rita Hayworth. Old time "song cards" will be inserted just before the fadeout, with the words of the song printed, so the audience can join with the principal characters in singing it.

In Recognition of Hits—

David O. Selznick appeared on Cecil B. DeMille's Lux Theatre radio program February 3 to receive from the Paramount producer and radio impresario another accolade hailing the maker of "Gone With the Wind" and "Rebecca" for his sustained record, established during the past nine years, as a producer with a "special consistency of high competence." Here DeMille (left) hands the award to Selznick. Judith Anderson and Ronald Colman, who starred in the radio version of "Rebecca" on the Lux show on which Selznick appeared, look on.

Freeman's Illness Delays Meeting of Producers

The annual meeting of the producers association, scheduled for February 4, with election of officers for the coming year as the principal topic of business, has been postponed temporarily because of the illness of Y. Frank Freeman, association president, ordered to bed by his doctors with influenza. Hays office attaches reported a new date for the session would be set as soon as Freeman had recovered.

Expected in from New York this week was Will H. Hays, MPPDA president, who will spend several weeks in the film colony conferring with association members here. He is scheduled to be one of the speakers at the election meeting.

It's Bennet's Birthday—

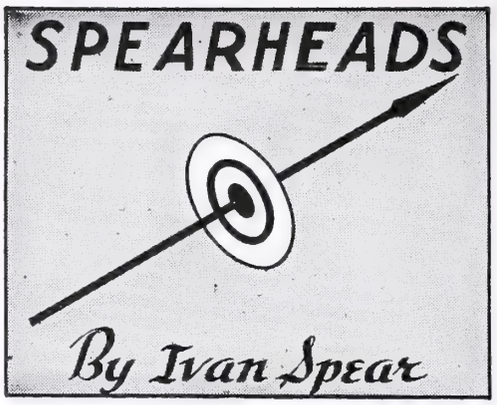
Paramount Launches a Construction Program



To accommodate a projected heavy production schedule, Paramount has launched a construction program at its Marathon Street studio, the new buildings to include three modern sound stages and a power house. At the same time the company reiterated its intention of constructing an entirely new, $15,000,000 studio on property in West Los Angeles, a project which has been temporarily deferred because of unsettled world conditions.

The three new stages will provide 55,000 additional square feet of interior space. The power house will increase the studio's electrical capacity from 23,000 to more than 40,000 amperes. To make way for the new units, the electrical dock, sheet-metal stage and a standing set will have to be dismantled. First of the new stages is to be ready within four months, with the entire project to be completed in six months.

A Board Director Visits—

First-hand information on production progress at Paramount was obtained by Ed Weisl (left), member of the board of directors, when he visited the Hollywood plant from New York recently. Here he is introduced to Madeleine Carroll on the "One Night in Lisbon" set by Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations.

UNEASY lies the head that wears a crown . . .

Which ancient observation—probably misquoted — apparently maintains even when applied merely to the royalty in the realm of freelance pressagentry. And it explains why the publicity proletariat has been enjoying a field day while verbally gunning for Russell Birdwell. The guillotine watchers seem to think that King Birdwell has his neck out as a result of certain phases of the publicity on Howard Hughes; his current production, "The Outlaw;" and his new star discovery, 19-year-old Jane Russell.

The shooting began when Pic, weekly magazine, printed in a recent issue four pages about Miss Russell, which layout attracted quick lightning because it emphasized in both word and pictures her youth and her voluptuousness. The cavilers' case was briefed by Louella O. Parsons, who termed the Russell photographs "disgusting," "indecent," and "suggestive." LOP chided the Hays office for having permitted the photographs to be released and alleged that the "League of Decency is up in arms—and rightly so."

The broadside of rebuke brought the following statement from Birdwell:

"All of the stills used by my office on the Howard Hughes' production 'The Outlaw' have been approved by Simmon Levy of the Hays office.

"As everyone should know, however, no publicity organization—or any other organization for that matter—has any control of the great American press—or the right to even question this free press—which fortunately is free to print whatever it wishes without submitting their photographs or stories to the Hays office—or any other office, other than their own editorial sanctums.

"My company will be the last ever to demand or even suggest any censorship—from the Hays office or any other body—on the rights of magazines, newspapers or any other members of the American free press."

One thing the critics seem to have overlooked is the fact that just a week or two previously, Life also devoted two pages to the Hughes find, which Birdwell-planted layout in that publication described and pictured her as the talented, sweet, unspoiled and charming miss she undoubtedly is.

Admitting that the shots in Pic which emphasized voluptuousness were unfortunate, unflattering and in bad taste, how much of the blame can be fairly laid at Birdwell's door is a matter of personal opinion. It is this department's view that his biggest mistake was in broadcasting a statement, ill-advised and illogical, which could serve only to recognize and emphasize the criticisms and innuendoes to which he is being subjected.

Whether or not the celebrated Birdwellian touch went astray in this instance, let it not be forgotten that he did manage to garner two of the most desirable publicity breaks for his client's picture. One cannot go to bat for his accounts as often as Birdwell does without hitting a foul once in a while. Which might be a thought worthy of consideration by his competitive critics who play very safe by seldom facing the pitcher.

Darryl Zanuck, in Sun Valley, won a silver "sun and ski" pin for zipping down the River Run in one minute, 43 and 3/10 seconds.

Some of that speed should have been applied to "Chad Hanna" and "Hudson's Bay."

RKO Radio has designed a new trademark which will soon grace that company's releases, supplanting the 12-year-old "dot-dash" single radio tower. A dramatic cloud effect, plus two modern streamlined towers, will highlight the new label.

Production cost can be saved by referring to Perry Lieber's department for the "cloud effect."

Heads of Hollywood studios' foreign departments are cooperating in the collection of binoculars requested by M-G-M's office in London to be distributed by the British government to "roof-top watchers" of air raids.

Which is a worthy cause, but they might save a few for the exhibitors—to watch for the cash customers.

Super, Syncopation, Supine

With the elite among Hollywood's reviewers basking in Florida sunshine (Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, please ignore) as guests on Universal's "Back Street" junket, the stay-at-homes experienced another meager preview week, the highlight of which was 20th Century-Fox's "Western Union."

Showmen are hereby advised that this one is the kind of action entertainment that should be a "must" item on everybody's motion picture theatre budget. Relating the stringing of the first transcontinental telegraph line, it boasts a screenplay by Robert Carson, adapted from Zane Grey's story, which so adeptly spins a yarn of hardship, adventure and romance that the film must be rated one of the all-time superest of the super-westerns. The Harry Joe Brown production is close to perfection as a piece of red-blooded, he-man showmanship. Not a penny was spared to endow it with the sweep and spectacle which have become such a necessary adjunct to epics dealing with the winning of the west. Fritz Lang's direction keeps things moving at a gallop all the way; while Technicolor photography was never used to better advantage than in capturing the natural beauties of the western plains, mountains and forests, against which natural backgrounds the film was unfurled. Among a shrewdly selected and competent cast Randolph Scott manages to take the acting honors. Virginia Gilmore is the only feminine personality accorded a role in the feature.

Another bright spot was supplied by "You're the One," Gene Markey's Paramount feature, which should more than satisfy the fans who have dumped carloads of nickels into the juke boxes to hear Wee Bonnie Baker and Orrin Tucker's orchestra. It is their first, and an entirely satisfactory, film appearance, Tucker in particular emerging as a surprisingly competent actor with personality and a singing voice. Jerry Colonna enlivens the proceedings considerably with his standardly amusing brand of screwball comedy. Markey, who not only produced but wrote the vehicle, supplied it with the kind of ingredients to please most audiences; the very slight plot provides ample opportunity for the staging of five musical numbers by LeRoy Prinz. Ralph Murphy handled the directorial reins with competence.

Rounding out the quartette were Paramount's "The Mad Doctor" and an E. B. Derr production for Producers Releasing Corporation, "Secret Evidence."

The former will prove a celluloid problem child in most situations. It is too long to serve as supporting fare and not good enough to grace the upper half of the bill save in the most unimportant program arrangements. Starting out as a chiller, it veers to the fields of psychiatry, then settles down to a routine of unmysterious, endless and useless murders. The story, as concocted by Howard J. Green, must shoulder the blame for the feature's frailties—and they are legion. An apparently hard-working cast headed by Basil Rathbone, and equally diligent direction by Tim Whelan, apparently were unable to surmount the plot's multitudinous vagaries. George Arthur receives a dubious production credit.

The latter entry, a melodrama with a courtroom background, is sufficiently entertaining to earn its way in the neighborhood and action houses, and again serves to demonstrate how well Producer Derr can squeeze the utmost out of every budget dollar. Light as to drawing power, the cast nevertheless turns in satisfactory performances; particularly effective are Marjorie Reynolds and Charles Quigley in the leads. Brenda Kline supplied the script from an original story by Edward Bennett. William Nigh accounted for a neat job of direction.

War Department Film Needs Swiftly Met

An unflagging pace is being maintained in the production of the series of short films for use by the war department in the training of Uncle Sam's new draft army. Now before the cameras under supervision of the Academy Research Council is the second in the group, on the subject of personal hygiene. It is being made at 20th Century-Fox under the personal guidance of Darryl F. Zanuck, Research Council chairman and a lieutenant-colonel in the U. S. Army Signal Corps' photographic division.

Irving Pichel is directing, with Edward Ebele as unit manager, B. F. McEveety as assistant director, Virgil Miller at the camera, A. Von Kirbach handling sound, Lou Creber as art director and Fred Sersen in charge of technical effects. William Ulman jr. wrote the script. The Research Council is being assisted by Lieut.-Col. Harold V. Raycroft of the Medical Corps and Capt. Charles S. Stodter of the Signal Corps. Films will not be made available for release to the general public.

The Warner studio is the first to meet its quota in the motion picture industry's phase of the Greek War Relief campaign. Samuel Goldwyn, chairman of the industry's permanent charities committee, was so informed via a wire from Jack L. and Harry M. Warner. The war relief fund was also expected to swell considerably following the February 8 benefit broadcast staged at Grauman's Chinese, and in which scores of film names were scheduled to participate.

Next for Sherman

Producer Harry Sherman's next feature western for Paramount will be "The Parson of Panamint." This will be followed by two Hopalong Cassidy sagebrushers, "Secret of the Wasteland" and "Contraband Cargo." J. Benton Cheney is scripting all three.

New RKO Trademark

A new RKO trademark will soon be seen on the screen, supplanting the 12-year-old "dot-dash" single radio tower effect. New preface will have two modern, streamlined radio towers, a dramatic cloud effect and a special musical introduction.

Seeking Recruits ➡

In an effort to gain recruits for the U. S. Army Signal Corps photographic unit, the Academy Research Council and its chairman, Darryl F. Zanuck, have prepared posters similar to the above and which are now on display in prominent locations around the studios and other spots where motion picture workers congregate. Men who volunteer will not be called upon to serve except in case of national emergency, Zanuck emphasizes.

For Our National Defense Program

THE UNITED STATES ARMY

Will require men experienced in still and sound motion picture production for service in event of emergency.

The basic enlisted organization of the G. H. Q. Signal Corps Photographic Unit is now in process of formation. We want to create a list of qualified men who will simply express their willingness to serve in this motion picture organization in case of complete mobilization of the United States Army.

Those who have reached their 18th birthday and those who have not yet reached their 45th birthday will be eligible to join this organization.

This presents an opportunity for men in the motion picture industry to serve, in emergency, in the branch for which they are best qualified.

THOSE INTERESTED MAY REGISTER BY WRITING THE Research Council

Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences

File Labor Charge Against Disney

Walt Disney Productions, Inc., is charged with unfair labor practices by the Screen Cartoonists Guild in a complaint filed by the latter organization with the national labor relations board.

The complaint is aimed principally at the Federation of Screen Cartoonists, representing Disney employes which the SCG contends is a "company union," and through which, it is alleged, efforts of the SCG to organize its own unit in the studio have been "dominated and interfered with." The SCG has the support of the American Federation of Labor in its fight against Disney, with Aubrey Blair, Hollywood organizer for the AFL, asserting that if Disney does not agree to bargain with the SCG, "steps will be taken" to place the company's product on unfair lists throughout the United States and Canada. The NLRB is expected to set a hearing date within 90 days. Meantime Disney spokesmen point out that the Federation of Screen Cartoonists has been officially recognized by the NLRB as the exclusive and official bargaining unit for cartoonists employed at the studio.

Other Activity

The SCG, which holds a charter within the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, scheduled a mass meeting February 6 to discuss the Disney battle. Dorothy Parker and Donald Ogden Stewart were scheduled to be the principal speakers.

SCG also has an NLRB petition on file seeking certification as bargaining representative for employes of Walter Lantz Productions, a cartoon studio.

Scarcity of work for extras has caused Central Casting Corp. to inaugurate a retrenchment move in which two casting directors have been given 30-day leaves of absence. A rotating plan will be employed to keep two employes off the payroll for 30-day periods, but with none losing his job permanently. Decision was announced shortly after sponsors of a movement whereby extras were to picket Central, charging some casting directors with discriminating against certain players, canceled the plan indefinitely. Meantime the Screen Actors Guild-producer standing committee resumed its discussion of a plan whereby so-called "casual" extras are to be eliminated from the industry in an effort to alleviate the current distressing employment problem.

Class A members of the Screen Actors Guild are strongly urged, in a letter directed to them by the board of directors, to refuse any and all offers to appear on radio shows at payment below the usual standard of compensation, and declares it intends to enforce a rule adopted sometime ago prohibiting members from giving free radio performances or accepting compensation below the usual standard. Particular reference is made to the efforts of a "widely known columnist" to seek Guild approval of plans for a new radio show, which the SAG has refused to approve, and has instructed its members to refuse to appear on the program "unless such refusal jeopardizes their contractual relationships with their employing producers."

Screen Office Employes Guild held a general membership meeting to determine whether or not negotiations for a closed shop should be launched with the individual studios. Producers thus far have refused to negotiate an industry-wide contract.

The Screen Readers Guild, in a membership meeting, voted to ask wage increases for readers employed outside the studios, who are SRG members but do not, under existing conditions, come under terms of the SRG's producer contract.

The Screen Writers Guild's proposal to license all talent agents representing film scriveners was discussed at a meeting of the Artists Managers Guild. The SWG project is similar in scope to the franchise agreement reached between the AMG and the Screen Actors Guild more than a year ago.

Members of the Affiliated Property Craftsmen Local 44, IATSE, are seeking revisions in their contract with the producers, and have opened negotiations with Pat Casey, Hays office labor contact, seeking a minimum six-hour call, improved working conditions and wage increases.

Disney Reports 4-Month Net Profit of $140,000

A net profit of $140,000 was shown during the first four months of the fiscal year by Walt Disney Productions, Inc., stockholders were informed at their annual meeting here. This figure includes all charges except income taxes, while all income from "Pinocchio" and "Fantasia" were applied to reducing the film carrying value.

Walt Disney, Roy Disney, Gunther Lessing, George E. Morris and Jonathan Lovelace were re-elected to the board of directors. Walt Disney was re-elected president, with Roy Disney as executive vice-president; Gunther Lessing, vice-president; George E. Morris, secretary-treasurer; Oliver B. Johnston, assistant secretary-treasurer, and Franklin Waldheim, assistant secretary.

Walt Disney announced the production program calls for completion and release of three additional features during 1941. These include "The Reluctant Dragon," "Bambi," and "Dumbo, the Flying Elephant." A new short subject, "How to Ride a Horse," is also scheduled.

Silence Publicity Guns At Least Temporarily

Those giant publicity guns which have, with few respites during the past year or more, been firing salvos in all directions in the form of lavish out-of-town premiere and preview junkets to call attention to the film colony's new product have been, at least temporarily, silenced. Indications are the exploitation artillerymen are taking time out to replenish their supply of ammunition, with a renewal of the cannonade expected momentarily.

Last of the current crop of premieres was that of 20th Century-Fox's "Western Union" at the Roxy Theatre in New York, February 6. Robert Young, featured in the cast, made a personal appearance. Film's debut had been delayed a week from its originally scheduled January 30 opening because the playing time of "Tall, Dark and Handsome" in the house was extended an extra stanza.

Universal's "Back Street" made its bow in Miami, February 4, attended from Hollywood by Matty Fox, production aide to Cliff Work; Producer Bruce Manning, Scenarist Felix Jackson and Director Robert Stevenson. Deanna Durbin was the only star in attendance.

LeBaron Will Make His Own Pictures

William LeBaron has resigned his post as managing director of Paramount production and will formulate an independent unit to make pictures of his own exclusively for Paramount. He has held the post since 1936.

When Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations, came to Hollywood, LeBaron agreed to remain in the position he had been occupying for two more years. That two-year period is now up, and his request that he be relieved of his post in order to give his time and attention to fewer pictures was granted. LeBaron will launch his new independent unit about May 1, first embarking on a vacation.

Successor to LeBaron is B. G. DeSylva, an associate producer at the studio for the past several months, according to an announcement by Freeman.

DeSylva, a motion picture producer since 1929, worked for Fox Films, RKO Radio and Universal, then returned to Broadway to stage three smash hits which are currently running there.

Wage Restoration at RKO

Reflecting the opinion of at least one motion picture executive that business is definitely on the upswing and that continued improvement may be expected, George J. Schaefer, president of RKO Radio, has ordered restoration of all salary cuts instituted in October, 1939, and which affected every company employe earning $5,000 or more annually. News of the restored wage cuts preceded Schaefer to the coast, being received here by J. J. Nolan from Schaefer while the latter was still in New York. Schaefer made no comment in explanation of the move.

Max Golden, who has been a member of 20th Century-Fox's production staff for the past year, has resigned to become production manager for the Edward Small unit. He replaces Val Paul, who resigned some time ago.

John Litel has checked off the Warner lot to freelance after five years at the studio as a character player. He is now on loan to M-G-M in "The Trial of Mary Dugan" as his last commitment.

M-G-M has signed Milton Beecher as assistant to Kenneth McKenna, scenario chieftain, replacing David Mathews.

Jack Cohn, Montague, Arrive at Columbia

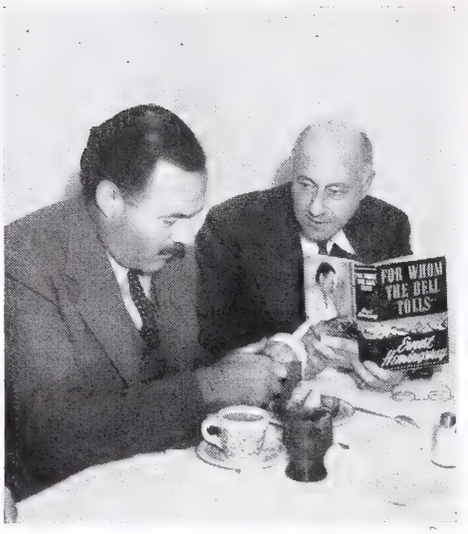
Topics pertaining to the current and future production outlook, possible changes in the sales setup because of the consent decree, although the company is not a signatory to that agreement, and other matters brought Jack Cohn, Columbia vice-president, and A. Montague, general sales manager, here from New York. Accompanied by Mrs. Cohn and Mrs. Montague, they plan to remain several weeks, conferring with President Harry Cohn and other studio executives, and also vacationing.

To set details of the release of "That Uncertain Feeling," the Ernst Lubitsch production made in association with Sol Lesser for United Artists release, Louis Hyman, in charge of distribution for the Lesser-Lubitsch unit, has checked out for New York. Hyman will confer with UA officials on plans for the world premiere, probably to be held in New York.

Also heading east was Edwin Weisl, member of Paramount's board of directors, who spent a few days here checking on production progress at the studio. He accompanied Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations, to Hollywood after both attended the recent testimonial dinner for President Barney Balaban in Chicago.

Briggs a Visitor

In for an indefinite stay is O. Henry Briggs, president of Producers Releasing Corp. He was guest of honor at a "red apple" reception given by George R. Batcheller jr., newly appointed PRC production supervisor, and attended by PRC's local staff and some 400 of Briggs' personal friends. Producer Jed Buell served as master of ceremonies. Briggs is here principally to check on progress being made in the expansion program he authorized before leaving New York.



After several delays, George J. Schaefer, president of RKO Radio, was expected in from New York to embark upon production and budget huddles and check over product now in work or completed and awaiting early release.

John Coyle Joins PRC Production Roster

Further expansion of Producers Releasing Corp.'s production roster has been made with the addition of John T. Coyle to the staff. Coyle has been assigned to produce "Federal Fugitives," rolling shortly, from a script being prepared by Martin Mooney. The new PRC producer has been affiliated at various times with Pathe, Mascot and Republic, and most recently with Cathedral Pictures. PRC has also announced conclusion of a deal whereby it will distribute a series of eight two-reel subjects embracing various phases of American history, produced by Max and Arthur Alexander for the Academic Film Co.

Larry Darmour

Next serial to be produced by Larry Darmour for Columbia release, rolling about February 15, will be "The Spider Returns." Starring Warren Hull, it will be directed by James C. Horne. It is a sequel to Darmour's "The Spider," made for Columbia three years ago.

A Mutual Interest—

When Ernest Hemingway, author of the best-selling "For Whom the Bell Tolls," was feted at Paramount during a recent visit, he and Cecil B. DeMille immediately plunged into a discussion of the forthcoming production of his book, to be undertaken by Paramount.

Harry Sherman

Harry Sherman has announced the next three films he will produce for Paramount release. First to go will be "Parson of Panamint," from a Peter B. Kyne original. Following will be "Secret of the Wastelands" and "Contraband Cargo," both Hopalong Cassidy westerns starring Bill Boyd.

William Hawks

William Hawks' United Productions will roll "My Life With Caroline," starring Ronald Colman, February 10 with Lewis Milestone directing. It is destined for an RKO Radio release.

REVIEW FLASHES

MAD DOCTOR, THE (Para't)—In most situations this will prove a celluloid problem child. The film is too long to function as supporting fare and is not sufficiently meritorious to grace the upper half of the bill except in the most unimportant program arrangements. Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew, John Howard. Director: Tim Whelan.

MONSTER AND THE GIRL, THE (Para't)—While this cannot hope for universal patronage or acclaim, it should find takers in profitable number among the horror fans for whom it will be a treat sufficient to sate the appetites of the most avid chill-seekers. Stuart Heisler directed.

ROAD SHOW (UA)—The action starts in a nut house and gets nuttier every foot of the way. There have been plenty of screwball comedies about allegedly sane people, but this is the first one in which the leading characters are admitted screwballs. There's no limit to the number of laughs it will furnish the customers who like their humor in its broadest vein. Properly merchandised, the feature should pay its way handsomely. Hal Roach produced and directed.

Product Assurances Follow UA Huddle

Announcements coming out of two weeks of executive huddles attended by such United Artists executives as Murray Silverstone, Arthur W. Kelly, Charles Schwartz and Monroe W. Greenthal have impaled on the lance of hard facts the rumors of a possible UA product shortage which railbirds have been circulating as the result of an implied producers' "sit-down strike."

Greenthal has completed his revision of UA's advertising department alignment with the appointment of George Glass as western publicity - advertising contact. Glass, vice-president of Russell Birdwell and Associates, relinquishes that position to begin his new duties February 10. Glass had been with Selznick International in that company's publicity-advertising department for three years before joining Birdwell.

$5,000,000 Small Program

Developments which indicate that plenty of UA product will be forthcoming during the next several months include:

A disclosure that Edward Small is launching a $5,000,000 production program for UA. In divulging these plans, Small added that within a week or so he will begin active production on two of the five pictures he is preparing to make and deliver during 1941. These include "The Corsican Brothers," scripted by George Bruce; "My Official Wife," by Ernest Vajda; "Sabotage," "She Was a Working Girl" and a fifth untitled vehicle of a topical nature. Small thus rescinds an earlier announcement that the shutdown of his unit would continue throughout the summer.

Previously Walter Wanger purchased "Sundown," a novel by Barre Lyndon, and engaged the author to work on the screenplay, indicating production would start shortly. Before that time it was reported Wanger probably would not resume production until August.

Another encouraging factor is David O. Selznick's activity in the preparation of "Jane Eyre," from the Charlotte Bronte novel, as the first in a group of three he will deliver to UA this season. Too, Richard A. Rowland is preparing "The Battle of Britain" as the initialer in a batch of three he is set to produce for UA during the year.

Termer for Raoul Walsh

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has signed Director Raoul Walsh for another term. His next will be "Danger Zone," a Mark Hellinger production to star George Raft.

'Flight Command' Top L. A. Day and Dater

LOS ANGELES—Top hit of the week in a day-date engagement at Loew's State and Grauman's Chinese theatres was "Flight Command," coupled in a dual bill with "Michael Shayne, Private Detective." Strongly entrenched in second place was "High Sierra," teamed with "She Couldn't Say No," at Warner's Downtown and Hollywood theatres, which made a strong enough showing to be held over for a second week. Only extended run otherwise was "Cheers for Miss Bishop," which carded a normal second stanza at the Four Star and is being held for a third.

First Runs Notch Up a Fair Week in Seattle

SEATTLE—Among the regular theatres business was nothing to rave about. The Moore featuring Richard Crooks for one evening did a slam-bang business having to place a couple of hundred chairs on the stage to handle the mob. "Kitty Foyle" now on its first week at the Fifth Avenue takes top honors for the week. Other first run and holdover attractions doing just medium business.

SALT LAKE CITY—John Rugar of Park City, Utah, is the new president of Intermountain Theatres Ass'n for 1941. Other officers include George Smith of Magna, vice-president; and Beverly S. Clendenin, Salt Lake City, general counsel, secretary-treasurer.

On the board of directors are John Rugar, George Smith, J. J. Gillette of Tooele, Utah; I. H. Harris, Burley, Idaho; E. H. Steele, Nephi, Utah; Paul DeMordaunt, Blackfoot, Idaho; and Walter Hull, Ely, Nevada.

Role for Jeanette's Sister

HOLLYWOOD—Marie Blake, a sister of Jeanette MacDonald, has been handed a supporting role in "Caught in the Draft," Bob Hope starrer for Paramount.

Seattle Prepares For "Blackout"

Seattle—This city will be the first town of major importance to experience a "blackout." Test will be made March 7 at 10:30 in the evening. Some 7,000 men will patrol the streets while planes will zoom overhead. Theatres will continue with their performances but all marquees and fronts will be in total darkness. Whole affair will be broadcast.

No Complaints Filed As Yet in L. A.

LOS ANGELES—Insofar as this territory has always been considered an exhibition storm center, industry attaches will be surprised by the disclosure by William H. Elliott, clerk of the Los Angeles tribunal of the American Arbitration Association, that no cases have been filed with his office as yet. Arbitration proceedings were authorized to be officially opened February 1, on which date they were initiated in a number of distribution centers.

Furthermore, Elliott informed BOXOFFICE, even were a case to be filed immediately it would be unlikely a hearing could be arranged in less than 25 or 30 days because of the machinery which must be set in motion. Hence he anticipates it will be at least a month before any hearing date is definitely scheduled. To date, Elliott added, no steps have been taken even to name the panel of arbiters.

The AAA clerk here expressed surprise at the total lack of cases filed with him thus far, but indicated he expected plenty of interest to be displayed in the near future by showmen with real or fancied grievances which they may submit for arbitration under terms of the consent decree.

Portland Exhibitors and Richey Get Together

PORTLAND—H. M. Richey, director of exhibitor relations for Metro, was in town for goodwill talks last week. Lou Amacher, local Metro exchange manager, arranged a luncheon for Richey and a number of local exhibitors, including Al Finke, Mose Mesher, Herb Sabottka, Roy Brown, Joe Warren, Joe Gamble, O. J. Miller, Al Forman, William Graeper sr., Jesse Jones, M. W. Mattecheck, Bill Ripley, Joe Sorodka, Bob White and Sam Whitesides.

Among things discussed were methods of interchanging proven ideas on picture presentation and exploitation which, it was pointed out, would prove to the advantage of both the exhibitor and the exchange.

Monahan in Charge of Seattle Arbitration

SEATTLE—Joseph J. Monahan, newly appointed representative of the American Arbitration Ass'n for the Seattle exchange district, has opened offices on the fifth floor of the Marion Building. Office hours from Monday to Friday will be 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. with only a half day Saturday.

Monahan, in the role of tribunal clerk, will sit through all arbitration cases called for under the consent decree. Appeals must be brought to his attention.

"GWTW" Into Four Star For Popular Engagement

LOS ANGELES—"Gone With the Wind" will open its first popular-priced engagement in this territory at the Four Star February 12.

Praise Rose Keane in "As You Desire Me"

KANSAS CITY—"As You Desire Me," the Resident Theatre's production of Luigi Pirandello's play, is running a second week in its performance here which has attracted capacity crowds. Rose Keane, guest star and former Kansas City girl, is accredited as the reason for the play's exceptional success.

Of her performance Landon Laird, drama critic of the Kansas City Star, said:

"It is a pity that Rose Keane comes back to Kansas City so seldom to display her talents. Her undeniable acting ability has been known to this city since the days when she played 'The Deluge' and other attractions for the Kansas City Theatre. In New York she has developed from a better-than-average 'home talent' player into a person who would fit into a Theatre Guild production. Miss Keane never looked so attractive as she does now, and we never have seen her play a part so well. She makes 'As You Desire Me' a success by her own efforts."

Paramount in L. A. Is Playing a Horror Duo

LOS ANGELES—A dual horror bill is playing the Paramount, coupled with a "spook" stage show. On the screen are Paramount's "The Mad Doctor," starring Basil Rathbone, and "The Monster and the Girl," with Ellen Drew.

SEATTLE

THIS TOWN is keeping its eye on Olympia while the new gang of legislators are convening. The former mayor of Seattle, Art Langlie, is now governor and one might say he is a Republican ship on Democratic waters. Efforts of the new crop may kill the Washington blue law and give back beer parlors on Sundays. According to the real blue law, if one wanted to get real nasty, they could close theatres, stop baseball games, horse-racing and any other "annoyance," as they term it. Joe Roberts, editor of the Amusement Guide, and a representative, offered a five-dollar poll tax bill that drew hot editorials on the front pages of dailies. Drumheller of Spokane has asked that liquor be allowed in hotels, resorts, boats and trains in the state. The present law finds the state owning the liquor stores and only private clubs allowed to serve their members by a script system. If Sunday beer and the liquor bill should pass, local show-shops will take a worse beating than they are now despite the betterment in working conditions. Most beer parlors have small dance floors and offer entertainment which makes tough opposition.

This is getting to be a "sneak" preview town. Following up on the RKO idea at the Fifth, the Orpheum in conjunction with Universal, advertised one and sent out invites. Picture shown was "Buck Privates," and the surprised audience howled at the antics of Abbott & Costello. Tommy McLeod of the Universal publicity department aided the idea and is now staying over for the campaign on "Back Street." Is this something new? When a sneak preview is held in a theatre the invited exhibitor from out-of-town is asked to pay tax on the invite at the boxoffice. When previews are held on Filmrow, there is no charge but there was some squeaks fol-

SALT LAKE

THE OLYMPUS THEATRE at Holladay, just out of Salt Lake City, has been completely renovated and renamed the Holladay. It reopened under the management of Joseph Lawrence, who operates the Southeast, Murray, Rialto and State theatres.

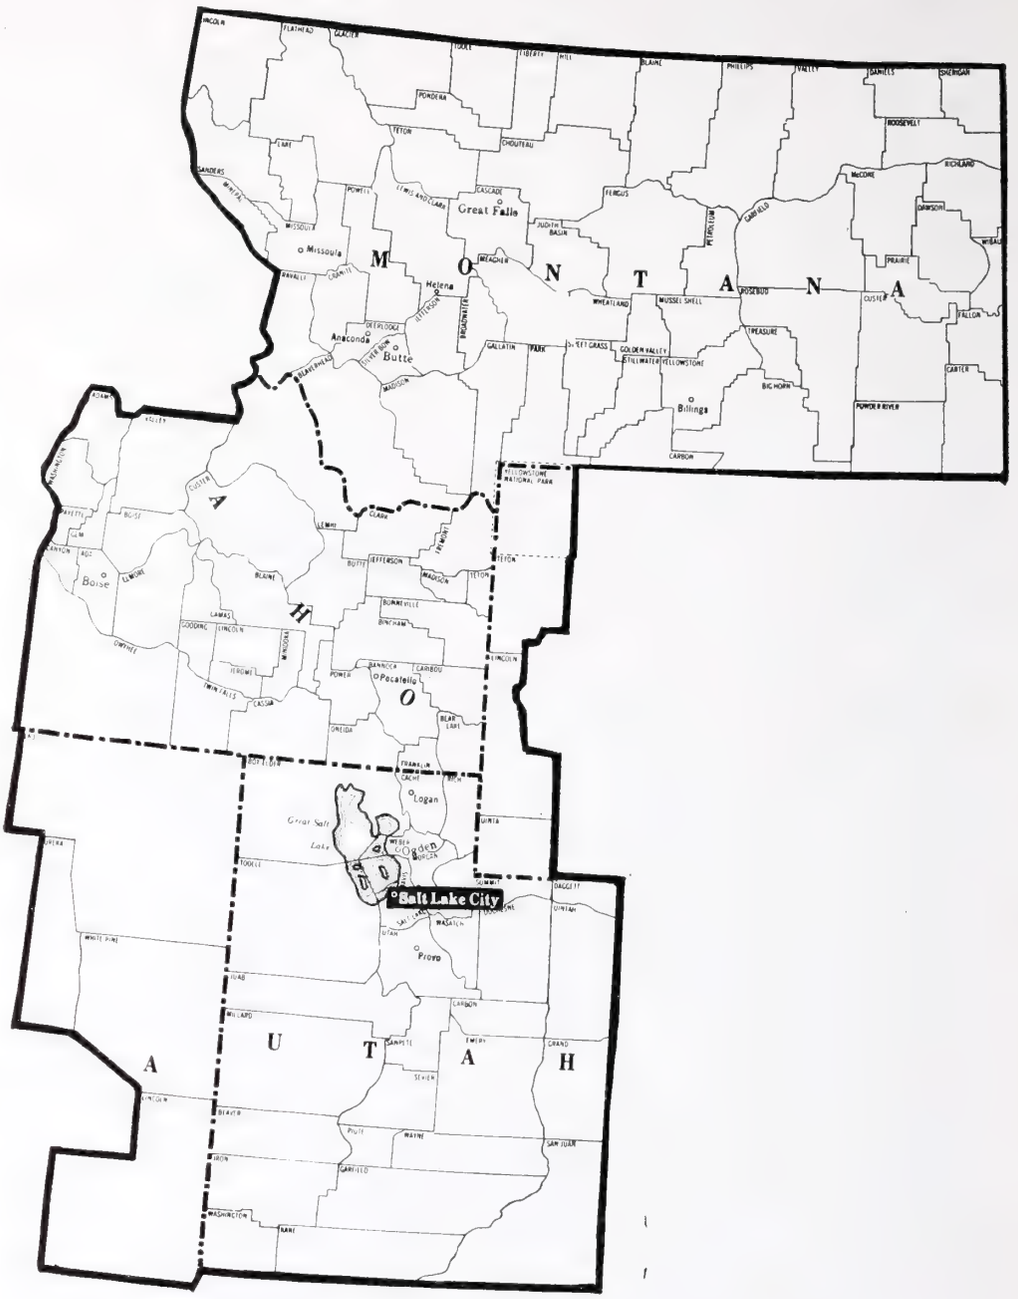
Construction of the new Wasatch Theatre at Heber, Utah, is under way by the Intermountain Theatre Supply of Salt Lake City, successful bidders. Bliss Titus is owner and manager.

The newly inaugurated policy at the local Victory, offering a first run picture with a second run, is packing them in. "North West Mounted Police" is a holdover as one of the first offerings of this new policy . . . "The Westerner" is in its second week at the Studio after a successful week at Ray Hendry's Centre; both Intermountain houses.

A belated "Christmas Party" was held at the Rialto, due to the prevalence of colds up until now, and so more than 500 newsboys were entertained by the picture "Little Men" and given refreshments. Members of Operators' Local No. 250 donated their services for the show. The postponement was at the request of the board of health.

George D. Pyper, manager for many years of the old Salt Lake Theatre, will discuss "Old Utah Theatre Days" here at the Exchange Club shortly.

Joe Madsen, office manager for United Artists, reports the Arthur W. Kelly Sales Drive nicely under way here with all of the boys having been in to a sales meeting a few days ago, which meeting was also attended by UA's new division manager, J. S. Abrose, who came here from the east, and is in charge of Salt Lake, Denver and Omaha.



George Cloward, manager for Ross Federal Service here, reports conditions throughout the territory look promising. He is just in from Idaho and leaves for Southern Utah right away . . . Sam Gardner left the local M-G-M offices this week for a trip into Montana. M-G-M's new release, "Come Live With Me," was previewed a few days ago . . . "Buck" Wade of Universal is back from a successful trip in the territory.

Columbia's district supervisor, Bob Hill, is coming to Salt Lake from Denver for a few days this week, Bill Seib reports . . . RKO Office Manager E. S. Winward disclosed that after a sales conference held at the local exchange a few days ago, Manager H. C. Fuller left for Montana; Al Mabey for Utah; Giff Davisen for Idaho; Al Shepherd for Montana, and the new addition to the sales force, Norman Sprowl, for Montana, also.

Delivery of motion picture equipment costing $331.85 to the Salt Lake county fire department at Murray, Utah, assures a series of lecture and pictures for county schools.

Another company has pitched camp at Sun Valley, Idaho, to film background scenes for M-G-M's production "A Woman's Face."

Several Colorado Bills Focus on Industry

DENVER—A half dozen bills affecting theatres have been introduced in the Colorado legislature. All of them have been introduced by title with the body to be filled in if and when they are reported out. The bills would provide for a film censorship board, annual tax on theatre seats, license for operating a theatre, amusement tax, tax on sale and rental of films and would require a licensed operator where 16mm films are shown publicly. Another bill would declare bank and gift nights lotteries. Three bills, patterned after the Washington, Montana and Nebraska bills, would be applied to Ascap, and another would require the licensing of authors, composers and publishers of music, both vocal and instrumental.

Gibralter Enterprises Directorate Convenes

DENVER—A special meeting of the directors of Gibralter Enterprises was held in the Denver headquarters, with the principal matters under discussion being the consent decree, arbitration and war relief. Those attending were Chas. R. Gilmour, E. J. Schulte, W. H. Ostenberg, E. John Greer, E. W. Ward, T. F. Murphy and Everett Cole.

All directors returned to their homes after the meeting excepting Mr. and Mrs. Ward, who flew to Albuquerque to attend a mining convention. Schulte plans to leave early this month for Arizona and the coast to spend several months. Mr. and Mrs. Ostenberg also leave soon for a cruise to Panama, returning in April.

Extend Irving Cummings

HOLLYWOOD—Director Irving Cummings has been held for another term by 20th-Fox. His next assignment will be "Belle Starr."

DENVER

JACK BOCK, Gibralter booker, was taken to Mercy Hospital with a streptococcic infection. His condition is serious . . . Arthur Bratton is now the manager of the Ovid, Ovid, Colo., which house he has leased from the former manager, H. H. Homer.

The Denver branch of National Screen Service is determined to be in the money in the present $16,000 "Par" sales, date and collection drive. Derek Sydney, manager, says the force is working hard on the drive, and asks the cooperation of exhibitors in the territory.

A thousand candy bars, valued at $30, constituted the loot at the Santa Fe Theatre, for burglars who broke in.

Fox is remodeling the Rialto at Walsenburg, Colo., spending about $20,000 on the job. The place will be given new seats, a new front and a general working over.

Frank Culp, manager of the Tabor, is in the hospital for an operation.

lowing the sneak preview. Seems the federal law says tax must be collected for any seat occupied in a place where a charge is made. Article 3 of the new consent decree says that all exhibitors must be given the chance to look at all pictures before buying. Might kill the sneak preview idea. Hope not. Audience reaction is a great barometer for the life or death of a picture.

The March of Dimes wound up in a blaze of glory here. Three "birthday balls" the same night with that English gal, Gracie Fields, appearing at all three. The formal dance was held in the Olympic Hotel, the Movie Ball at the Trianon, and the old-timers did their stuff at the Senator Ballroom. The film gang helped to swell the dimes here. An auction was held of such articles as the silk turban Linda Darnell wore in "Daytime Wife," Gene Autry's autographed ten-gallon hat worn in "Melody Ranch," "Lionel Barrymore's coat from "Dr. Kildare," a ring worn by Sidney Toler of Charlie Chan fame, and many other items. Yes folks, Seattle went over the top, thanks to you . . . To raise funds to help defray expenses of the convention to be held here next June, the Musicians Union, Local 493, will hold a jam session in the near future at the Moore Theatre. Thirty-five musicians will work free during the swing concert.

Bill Roberts, the singing star of "College Rhythm," the "Texans" and "Big Broadcast of 1939," along with his band have opened a long-term engagement at the Olympic Hotel . . . George Blair, the one and only of the Rendezvous, announces he has taken over the cafe himself so all complaints should be directed to him (adv). For the past few months, George leased the "eating part" of his store to other people and it did not pan out as planned . . . Sir Thomas Beecham, the new conductor of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra, has added a chorus of 100 voices to the organization. This is going to make a terrific attraction when the season opens for this type of entertainment . . . Jim Hone, executive secretary for the Independent Theatre Owners, who has been spending the last few weeks in Olympia, suddenly planed out for Los Angeles and expects to be back within a week . . . Pete Higgins to Los Angeles where he was called by the passing of his dad . . . Superior Judge Ernest Card of Tacoma, in ruling on demurrers, paved the way for the trial of radio station KIRO's $100,000 libel suit against the Tacoma chamber of commerce and T. A. Stevenson, manager, but eliminated the chamber directors as defendants. The suit was brought last summer by KIRO charging that statements concerning it appearing in the Tacoma Progress, publication of the chamber, were libelous.

Mike Newman, publicity ace for Columbia, in town to do his chores on "This Thing Called Love" . . . Cecelia Schultz of the Moore did a grand business with the one-night appearance of Richard Crooks. Not only was the house jammed, but over 350 people were seated on the stage behind the singer. Maybe the radio does help at times . . . Herndon Edmonds, local Fox manager, has taken off for a visit of eastern Washington along with Archie Holt of the sales staff . . . Word from Ford Bratcher that he is doing nicely with another state right picture and playing around Boston . . . Events happen quick at times. Bob Sellers was offered a nice spot with an equipment house. Bob and a couple of chums drove to Vancouver, Canada, for a visit before taking the job. While there, the boys took the notion to join the Canadian Air Force. Bob, expert pilot, was made an instructor. His first trip up the plane crashed. They buried Bob in Portland, his home town. All this happened within two weeks.

Gordon Craddock (of the Portland "Tillie" fame), who has been getting well in San Antonio, Tex., writes he will be back at his desk as branch manager for Universal in Indianapolis some time in March. Good luck, Gordon . . . Harry Blatt arriving on the Row with a new car . . . Bill Keating, who for the past few years has been connected with the Paramount-Publix Theatres, is now handling the Colonial here for Sterling Theatres . . . Bill Duggan jr., manager of the Monogram office, doing a ten-day trip over the state . . . Carl Walker, in charge of Warner theatres on the coast, making the rounds of theatres in Oregon and Washington and taking time out to say "hello" to his friends on the Row . . . Morrie Segel, branch manager; Glen Haviland, Ward Pennington, Max Hadfield and B. B. George of the local Paramount office, all to Portland for meeting with Louis Phillips of the Paramount legal department in New York. The discussing was on the consent decree.

Dorothy Holland, Marjorie Cromwell and Norma Acteson all back on the job after the forced absence . . . E. M. Saunders, western sales manager for Metro, here from New York for a few days . . . Willard Coughlan, manager of the Hollywood in Portland for Fox-Evergreen, in town over the weekend . . . Ned Edris of Hamrick-Edris Theatres in Tacoma has named William Tibbetts manager of the Temple there and has transferred Theodore Kintz to the same town's Blue Mouse . . . H. Flaig here from Chicago arranging for the forthcoming appearance of "Dr. I. Q." at the Orpheum . . . Bruce Forbes, son of Doug and Mrs. Forbes, in the hospital recovering from pneumonia . . . Historic Fort Nisqually, restored recently by the Young Men's Business Club of Tacoma, will figure in newsreel shots when the National Guard, with considerable ceremony, will enact a scene from the fort's past history. A replica of the original Hudson's Bay Co. charter will be presented to the fort.

Junior and Dorothy Mercy and their three sons, Frederick, Richard and Michael, out to the ranch for the weekend . . . Fred Hansen, in charge of buying and booking for Port Gamble, in town for a few days . . . John von Herberg hosting a family dinner in honor of the birthday of his daughter, Charlotte Durham . . . Felix Jenkins of the Fox legal department in New York here for a visit with Herndon Edmonds and to advise on the consent decree . . . Wilma McNutt, former secretary to Vic Gauntlett and recently a San Francisco resident, writes she is in Phoenix, Ariz., taking a vacation with her mother and dad . . . The Hal Daiglers are also in Phoenix taking time out. Hal is in charge of theatre operation for B. F. Shearer . . . "Popcorn" Smith back in town after his visit to Kansas City and way points . . . Joe Danz of the Embassy has gone wrong, or maybe it was the influence of a film salesman. Joe was seen smoking a cigarette in company with an exchange manager. This was his first puff since the days when it was daring to sneak a smoke behind the barn.

Mercedes Harvey, chief accountant for Universal, confined to her home by illness . . . The gang around the Northwest Film Club talking of the injury to Vera Steadman and recalling many of the stars of silent days. Larry Semon, Ford Sterling, Ham and Bud, John Bunny and Flora Finch and many others were talked about and the final ending was that "all agreed that comedy features with good old hokum gags that keep the audience in stitches would help to solve part of the boxoffice problem" . . . The von Herbergs have named their new son, Jensen von Herberg, which not only honors Herberg's partner, Jensen of Portland, but also will "individualize" the pioneer firm . . . Marc Bowman, former theatre press agent and newspaper man, in town for a couple of days, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Vic Keedy of the Burien Theatre. Mrs. Bowman accompanied her hubby, who now is with a leading radio station in Portland . . . Roy Peacock getting a long distance call from Montana and rushing to get the material out by airmail . . . Jim Root, doing his stuff behind the bar at Film Club, being recognized by friends from Hollywood. Mike Newman remembered him from the Swing Club; likewise did Dorothy (Dunbar) Lawson . . . J. T. Sheffield off for a couple of visits to Butte and way points.

Apart in Seattle on Safety Proposals

SEATTLE—Before a full house, the city council public safety committee listened to men in the industry on proposals for amending the city fire hazards relating to theatres.

Theatre owners and the film operators' union differed on what should be placed in the ordinance. The union withdrew earlier proposals that better ventilation and accommodations for the operators be required, proposed that six months' experience at full-time work be required to obtain a city license to handle the latest equipment in the booth, and asked that the fire chief continue to have exclusive power to grant the licenses.

The theatre owners, through Attorney Warren Brown, objected to the six months provision as "unnecessary" and suggested the health department rather than the fire department give annual physical examinations to the operators.

The council committee did not take final action but the conference will resume some time next week.

S' FRANCISCO

CHARLIE SCHLAIFER back in town after a short vacation in Palm Springs and Hollywood. While in the film capital Charlie witnessed rushes of some of the films to play the United Artists here and he reports a big season ahead for his house. Schlaifer has been receiving the plaudits of exhibitor and producer alike for his creation, "U. A. Charley" and the type of exploitation "U. A. Charley" is used to decorate.

Susanna Foster and Dolly Loehr in town boosting Paramount's forthcoming "Hard Boiled Canary." This was the girls' first stop on a transcontinental tour . . . Margaret Quigley left the B. F. Shearer office this week to devote all her time to being a wife . . . Everett Howell has moved into his new home in Porterville . . . Barney Rose to Chicago for the Universal sales meeting . . . "Here Is Ireland" has moved to the Larkin after five weeks at the Clay . . . Jesse Lasky in town for a visit.

Ed Stelzrieve has taken over the Home Theatre in Folsom from the Moore Estate. Ed will begin operation on the 14th . . . Chan Carpenter reports that his independent booking service is meeting with approval of the trade and that he has contracted to handle several houses . . . Fine weather has been the order for the past two weeks but the boxoffice on weekends has not been so good because of the exodus to the snow country and to warmer climes down the Peninsula.

Ingrid Bergman planed into town for a conference with Ernest Hemingway about the female lead in "For Whom the Bell Tolls." Hemingway issued the statement that Miss Bergman would be ideal as Maria and hope it could be arranged. Mr. H. also cast his vote for Gary Cooper as Robert Jordan before he and Mrs. Hemingway shipped out for China.

Inez Fox took over the secretary's desk at Columbia vacated when Barbara Cohen left. Janice Cole takes Miss Fox's post at RKO . . . D. L. McNerny will leave his branch manager's position at United Artists in the near future . . . Universal screened "Back Street" for circuit heads Tuesday . . . Charley Feldman from the Universal exchange in Los Angeles, a visitor . . . Republic is preparing for the big James R. Grainger date and sales drive which starts early in March.

Morris Ott, assistant to Gerald Hardy in Fresno, got himself married this week . . . P. H. Allen has remodeled his Grand Theatre in Tracy. The house got a complete going over including a set of doors that were conceived by Allen . . . Bill Cornwall is back on the job in Merced after an illness . . . The Row is wondering about the delay on the opening of Ed Levy's new theatre in Dinubia. Rumors are flying fast and furious as to whether Ed will be the owner when the house does open . . . Louis B. Mayer came to town to meet a horse. In this case it was Mayer's importation from Australia.

Carl Scott has moved to a larger office at Columbia. It seems Carl needs more room to handle his city salesman's orders . . . Ed Nelson is now in Universal's ad sales department . . . The Embassy has contracted for Metro and UA product for subsequent runs. This gives the house all the major product . . . J. H. McIntyre visiting RKO on one of his regular jaunts . . . "Kitty Foyle" started its third week at the Gate while "This Thing Called Love" ended a four-week run . . . Harry Walsh off to the Salinas territory on Pacific Premium business.

Gordon Allen, Monogram salesman, underwent an appendectomy this week and is getting along fine . . . Warner previewed "Strawberry Blonde" Monday . . . Monogram starts its "Lucky Seven" playdate drive on the 22nd.

The Paramount has been getting some good free publicity by building up the local girl angle on "Tall, Dark and Handsome." Virginia Gilmore is the San Franciscan who has the femme lead . . . Booking on the Row: Joe Huff, Sierra, Stockton; Emma Moore and John Moore, Moore's, Lincoln; Bill Cook, State, Winnemucca; Charles Gray, Newman, Gustine.

Will Sue to Abolish Dual Ascap Fees

LOS ANGELES—The Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners will wage battle against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers in an attempt to rid showmen of the dual charge they must now pay for screening films containing Ascap music. A suit will be filed soon in federal court here.

Decision to war against Ascap followed a study of the situation by Albert J. Law, PCCITO counsel, spokesmen for the organization declare. Robert H. Poole, general secretary, explained the PCCITO is not interested in Ascap's battle with the networks, but is concerned only with the situation wherein exhibitors are forced to pay scoring charges to distributors on films containing Ascap music, and then are compelled to pay another charge to Ascap for screening the film.

It is understood a majority of PCCITO members favor a fight against Ascap. As yet, however, organization attaches have had nothing to say officially as to just what sentiments individual members of the group may entertain.

Monogram Contest to Find "Miss Arkansas"

Monogram will conduct a state-wide beauty and talent contest to find a "Miss Arkansas" from February 15 to April 1. State officials, newspaper publishers and circuit and independent theatres will cooperate and the winner will be awarded the feminine lead in a forthcoming Tex Ritter musical western.

PORTLAND

B W. ARDELL, branch supervisor for Altec in Seattle, stopped in at the Portland office on his way home from Denver. The local boys, Dan O'Brien and L. K. Brisbane, are about fully recovered from their Christmas rush when they had four sound installations on the same day—the Vista Theatre, the Gaiety, B. F. Shearer's screening room and Howard Mapes screening room. They're tapering off now with Jesse Jones' Roseway and Bill Ripley's theatres.

A. F. Cummings, chief statistician, and William Brenner, head of the checking system, both of Metro's home office staff, arrived Sunday and will spend a few days at the local exchange.

Pete Higgins, United Artists branch manager in Seattle, passed through on his way to L. A. to attend the funeral of his father . . . Agnes MacRae celebrated her birthday with a party at the home of her mother.

Gus Berliner, assistant manager of the Paramount Theatre, took the leap February 1, and Miss Ardyth Shephard of Salem, became Mrs. Gus Berliner.

Two location site men, one for Paramount and the other for Warner, stopped over in Portland and took time out to look over Ralph Wood's lobby displays at the Circle Theatre . . . Mr. Lamson of National Carbon Company was a recent visitor at the TUSCO offices.

Bess Erskine, senior member (in point of service) of Filmrow's inspection department, has retired from active work and will concentrate on keeping her lovely home spick and span . . . Pearl Anderson is a new addition to the Columbia staff, having taken over an inspection table there a few days ago . . . Ethel Olson, Metro telephone girl, became Mrs. Albert Anderson on February 1.

Among visitors were Kenneth Piercy, Prineville; Ray Strumbo, Salem; Al Adolph, Salem; Ray Henderson, Albany; Sam Whitesides, Corvallis, and Bob Veness, Mill City . . . Alex "Doc" Singelow, one of the old timers in local film circles and for the past three years salesman for UA in Denver, replaced Jack O'Bryan, recently transferred to Los Angeles, as salesman in the Portland office.

A group of film men gave a dinner in honor of state representative Robert S. Farrell jr., formerly associated with the Rivoli in Portland . . . The local Republic office is awaiting the visit of J. R. Grainger, president of that organization, about the middle of February.

J. P. Nelson, local tribunal clerk for the motion picture tribunal of the American Arbitration Association, comes to the office with a high rating in his past endeavors. He has been credit man and banker in his past business associations.

Roy Rogers, cowboy star, stopped over in Mill City on his way to a fishing hole. Bob Veness, local theatreman, says Rogers was impressed with Oregon and expressed a desire to make more trips into the state.

BOXOFFICE Barometer for 1941

It's the TOPS in Service to ALL of the Industry!

The splendid informative and interesting editorial content of BAROMETER makes it a "desk" and not a "bookshelf" publication. It has a year-through, almost daily utility value to our entire circulation in every branch of the industry. It is the only annual publication issued by a tradepaper—local or national—which covers the field, being the only annual publication reaching the entire industry and paralleling BOXOFFICE's wide circulation.

Not only does BAROMETER do a thorough job of coverage on product for the past year, but also on the physical phase of the theatre—inside and out. Besides there's a very good look into what is coming for the year ahead.

BIGGER and BETTER THAN EVER

Out This Month

Gather Support to Whip 'Fast' Time

MILWAUKEE—Exhibitors are securing the support of other interested groups in their opposition to the Murray bill in the state senate, which would permit municipalities to adopt daylight saving time if they so desired.

Those who have already gone on record against the bill include the Milwaukee Gardeners' Ass'n, the Milwaukee Co-operative Milk Producers, the Wisconsin Association of Stage Employes and Projectionists, the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, the Madison Milk Producers' Ass'n, the ITPA of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, Saxe Amusement Management, Inc., Warner Bros., Standard Theatres, the Equity Co-operative Livestock Sales Association and the Central Labor Union.

Principal proponent of the measure is the State Medical Society of Wisconsin, which is being supported in its stand by the Wisconsin Association of Independent Unions and the Independent Association of Golden Guernsey Employes.

Both sides aired their views on the measure at a public hearing February 6 before the state and local government committee of the senate in Madison.

L. F. Gran, general manager, Standard Theatres, one of the leaders of the opposition, has declared that if the measure is enacted it will mean that many theatres will be forced to close because of lack of patronage.

Jim Levine Joins Disney As Midwest Area Head

CHICAGO—Jim Levine, for 13 years with Paramount and Publix in the distribution and exhibition field, has been appointed district manager for the middle western area for Walt Disney and will make his headquarters here. Though he is currently making his temporary offices at the Sherman Hotel, Levine told BOXOFFICE that he plans on opening permanent offices shortly either in the Ashland Block Building, or the Garrick Theatre Building.

Levine said that although five local theatres were under consideration for "Fantasia," none had been definitely chosen. It is known that three of the houses are the Grand Opera House, legit located in the Loop and operated by the Schuberts; Wood's, operated by S&S, which played "Gone With the Wind" for a record-breaking Chicago run and the Apollo, B&K house.

Here to do advance work for "Fantasia," are Miss Toni Spitzer, who handled publicity for the Disney film in New York, and Ben Atwell, advance man. Atwell has been in Chicago in the past working on "Pinocchio," and on the special package of Disney hits which included "Snow White," "Three Little Pigs," "Ugly Duckling," and a "Donald Duck" short.

"Bucket" for Schaefer

HOLLYWOOD—Armand Schaefer will direct "Jason, the Bucket" for Republic. Stuart Palmer is scripting from a story by Frances Cockrell.

Swelling the Fund—

A personal contribution to the Greek War Relief Fund is handed the Hon. Demetrios Benetatos, consul general of Greece in Chicago, by John Balaban, secretary of B&K in Chicago. The occasion was the midwestern meeting of the Greek War Relief Assn. Looking on, left to right, are: John L. Manta, owner of the Thalia and Milo theatres, and chairman of the relief association's Illinois division; James E. Coston, zone manager for Warner Theatres; Balaban; Benetatos; Spyros Skouras, national president of the association and in charge of its $10,000,000 fund drive; Van A. Nomikos, national vice-chairman, and head of Ahepa (American Hellenic Educational Progressive Assn.), and Harry A. Reckas, regional director of the midwestern states for the G. W. R. A. and also president of the Halsted Theatre Co., Inc.

Censorship, Licensing Committee Proposed

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Creation of a film censoring committee in Illinois is provided in a bill submitted to the Illinois legislature last week by Rep. Clinton Searle of Rock Island, Ill.

The measure, first legislation to be introduced involving the industry, authorizes appointment of a committee of three persons to be known as the Illinois motion picture licensing committee.

Power would be given the committee to censor all moving pictures and license their exhibition. Violation of the law would carry a penalty of $200 fine or one year's prison sentence or both.

The committee would be empowered to issue license permits on pictures which are not obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, sacrilegious or of such character tending to corrupt morals or incite crime.

For the service of previewing films, the committee would levy a fee of $3 for each 1,000 feet of film or fraction thereof and an additional $2 for each copy of the film submitted for approval. The committee would be empowered to revoke any license within five days and no refunds would be permitted under such revocation.

The bill is similar to the New York censor law enacted in 1927.

Plan Legislation Against Triples

St. Louis—Counsel for the Better Films Council here is preparing proposed bills against triple-feature shows for presentation to the state legislature and to the St. Louis board of aldermen. A similar measure may be submitted to the Illinois general assembly.

Says U. S. Frowns on Chicago Lease Plan

CHICAGO—From reliable sources, BOXOFFICE has learned that the department of justice has written to the Metropolis Corp., New York, saying that the department would consider it an illegal act if Metropolis leased the Oriental here to Balaban and Katz.

The Oriental is being operated by Jones, Linick and Schaeffer, which is leasing the house from the 32 W. Randolph St. Corp. The Metropolis Corp. is lessor to the 32 W. Randolph St. Corporation.

Explaining the legal situation to BOXOFFICE recently, Morris G. Leonard, counsel in charge of the real estate department for B&K said: "It has been erroneously reported in other tradepapers that the offer to lease the theatre to B&K was made by the 32 W. Randolph Street Corp. That is not true. The offer was made by the underlying lessee, the Metropolis Corp., who is the underlying lessee of the Levi Mayer and the John R. Thompson estates. The latter's lease, we are advised, is impaired becauses of the default in rental by the present tenant."

Aaron Jones jr. of Jones, Linick and Schaeffer, though admitting his circuit is in arrears on rental to the 32 W. Randolph Street Corp., said recently that his company now is operating the house, and intends to continue under the terms of a 30-year lease with 32 W. Randolph Street Corp.

Buy "Panama Hattie"

HOLLYWOOD—Metro has acquired "Panama Hattie," a musical comedy by Herbert Fields and B. G. DeSylva. Arthur Freed will produce with Ann Sothern, Eleanor Powell and Shirley Temple heading the cast.

ST. LOUIS

THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE, which has been playing burlesque shows under the direction of H. K. Minsky of New York, was scheduled to close its doors after the last performance Thursday, February 6. Minsky has returned to New York. The closing notice came as a surprise as apparently the theatre had been enjoying good business. The town now has but one burley house, the Garrick.

Packages of medical supplies will be the admission fee to the special motion picture program to be given at Fanchon & Marco's Fox, Missouri and St. Louis theatres the morning of Saturday, February 8. The proceeds will be sent to the Royal Northern Hospital near London, England, the St. Louis Bundles for Britain organization, sponsor of the show, has announced. This hospital was bombed in recent raids. Under the arrangements the Fox will be filled first. Then the Missouri will be used and if necessary, the St. Louis will put on the same show. Combined these houses seat about 14,000.

Mrs. Mary Friedland, mother of Bess Schulter, who operates the Columbia and is also interested in the Avalon, Powhattan and Roxy theatres, died here last week. A son, Al Friedland, is an officer of Local No. 143.

Anne Gwynne, St. Louis girl, seems to be doing very nicely out in Hollywood. In her next picture "Nice Girl," she will work with Deanna Durbin under the Universal banner. She is a native of Waco, Tex. . . . Patrons of the Ambassador Theatre were asked to write RKO as to how they liked "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." Cards for the convenience of the customers were passed out by the theatre.

Harris P. Wolfberg, district manager for M-G-M, is headquartering at the local exchange . . . "Gone With the Wind" at pop prices has been held over another week at Loew's.

Theatres on South Broadway in St. Louis and in Lemay on Highway 61 are much interested in the report from Washington that the Jefferson Barracks on the Mississippi River south of St. Louis is to house a 10,000*-man capacity induction camp for the army's air corps . . . James Arthur, attorney for the Fanchon & Marco interests here, has been spending several days in Hollywood looking over the F&M operations there.*

Patrons at the Fox Theatre were more or less surprised when a customer arose in her seat and exclaimed loudly: "Why, there's George Hoffman!" And so it was, only George was billed as George Hayward in the player lineup for "Santa Fe." The exclaimer was Mrs. Francis Curley who formerly coached George at the Lindell School for Thespians.

The second annual Southwest Sportsmen's Show opens a nine-day run at the Municipal Auditorium on February 8. It provided tough competition for local motion picture theatres last year.

"The King of Kings" was shown in the sanctuary of Friedens Evangelical and Reformed Church, January 31.

Reel Fellows Play Host to Over 500

CHICAGO—More than 500 film people from Chicago and the surrounding territory attended the first annual dinner-dance of the Reel Fellows Club held in the Peacock Room of the Congress Hotel, January 31.

The affair marked the inauguration of the newly-elected officers of the recently formed club, which is Chicago's first organization of film salesmen. The one sad note of the affair was the absence of President William E. Weinschenker, Universal, who was unable to attend because of the sudden illness of his wife. All the other officers were present at the inauguration. They were: E. L. Goldberg, Paramount, vice-president; Robert Funk, treasurer; A. W. Van Dyke, 20th-Fox, secretary, and Percy Barr, National Screen, sergeant-at-arms.

WILLIAM E. WEINSCHENKER

Chairman of the dinner-dance committee was Frank Flaherty; co-chairmen were: Harry Goldman, Irving Joseph, Charles Lindau and Frank Ishmael.

Highlight of the evening was the conga and rhumba dances in which the guests participated. Another "highlight," and one which elicited much favorable comment, was the fact there were no speeches.

Willie Shore, Chicago's popular comedian, headed the all-star cast of top-notch night-club talent which entertained the guests. Music was furnished by Lou Diamond and his orchestra.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Eckhardt, 20th-Fox, and party; Mr. and Mrs. Manny Gottlieb, Universal, and party; Mr. and Mrs. Sid Rose, Warner Bros., and party; Mr. and Mrs. Irving Mandel, Republic, and party; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lorch, Republic, and party; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kaufman, B&K, and party; Mr. and Mrs. Lou Reinheimer, and party; Mort Goldberg, G. C. S. circuit; Julius Goodman and Carl Goodman, Goodman, Goodman & Harrison; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Trinz and party; Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wolf; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Benesch and party; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar, Mrs. L. and Dr. David Brotman.

An unusually large number of out-of-town and downstate exhibitors attended. Among them were: Mr. and Mrs. Les Hainline, Macomb, Ill. and party; Mr. and Mrs. George Kerasotes, Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lamb, Oregon, Ill.; Mr. Ed Harris, Peoria; Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Szold, Peoria; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hurt and Mr. and Mrs. Abe Klein of the Alger circuit, Peru, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Gus Marchesi and party, Marchesi circuit, Amboy, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kirkheart and party, Lincoln, Ill.; Mr. Harry Upton and daughter, Polo, Ill.; Mr. Dominick Frisina and daughter, Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bennis, Freeport, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. W. Weece, Galva, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Phelps, Canton, Ill.

A Glittering Debut For "Fantasia"

CHICAGO—The Chicago opening of Walt Disney's "Fantasia" at the B&K Apollo February 19 will be a glittering social affair with the women's board of Grant Hospital sponsoring the premiere.

Mrs. Henry Bartholomay is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Vice-Chairmen of Mrs. Bartholomay's committee are Mrs. George T. Henneberry and Mrs. Clarence T. Seipp. The society premiere will follow the press preview scheduled for the Apollo February 18.

A clever advertising campaign is being conducted in Chicago papers in connection with "Fantasia." Opening ads in Sunday papers on February 2 were reprints of ads appearing in New York papers. No Chicago theatre or starting date was mentioned. Instead, comments from leading New York critics were played up.

To facilitate the selling of "Fantasia" in Chicago, Walt Disney has established offices here in the Garrick Theatre Bldg., with Jim Levine, for 13 years with Paramount and Publix in the distribution and exhibition field, in charge. Levine has been made district manager for the midwestern area. Working with him are Toni Spitzer, who handled the publicity campaign for "Fantasia" in New York, and Bob Montgomery, who resigned from the publicity department of Essaness Theatres, Chicago, to join the Disney office as assistant to Miss Spitzer in the handling of advertising and exploitation for the symphonic feature.

Here in Chicago to supervise the installation of the special "Fantasound" equipment at the Apollo is E. J. (Dusty) Dustin, sound engineer for RCA. Dustin said that he plans on having 60 speakers in the Apollo—30 on stage and 30 in the auditorium. In order to expedite the installation of the special equipment, it is planned to close the Apollo from February 9 until the opening, February 19.

It is planned to give two daily performances, seven days a week, with prices at $1.65 top. Prices for the special society premiere, February 19, will probably be $5.00, $3.00 and $2.50.

Some of the B&K personnel working with the Disney people in Chicago are Walter Immerman, Bill Hollander and Sam Sobel. The latter is manager of the Apollo.

Keegan Joining UDT as Assistant to Hudson

CHICAGO—Jack Keegan, associated with Warner Bros. distribution department for 16 years, more recently as district manager in charge of operations in Wisconsin, will leave February 14 to become assistant to Earl J. Hudson of the United Detroit Theatres.

Keegan leaves the Warner circuit after completing a five-week period of concentrated effort on the improvement of operations in the Racine, Wis. theatres where, according to James Coston, zone manager, his efforts have resulted in increased business.

"Philadelphia Story" Dominant in Chicago

CHICAGO—Top grosser in the loop is Metro's "The Philadelphia Story" which opened big on January 22, and has continued doing terrific business ever since at the United Artists Theatre. Still bringing in the customers is RKO's "Kitty Foyle" which started its fifth week at the Palace on Wednesday, January 29. Business generally throughout the loop is above average, even though grosses on Sunday, January 26 fell way off because of a blizzard.

Detail for week ended January 30:

(Average is 100)

Apollo—Comrade X (M-G-M) 125
Did good business here in its fourth loop week, after three weeks at the United Artists.

Chicago—Second Chorus (Para't), plus stage show 115

Garrick—Santa Fe Trail (FN) 125
Had good third loop week at Garrick after two big weeks at the Chicago.

Oriental—Ellery Queen, Master Detective (Col).125
All-star stage show headed by Larry Adler, Mitzi Green, and Milton Watson helped boost business here.

Palace—Kitty Foyle (RKO); Saint in Palm Springs (RKO) 150
Big fifth week started January 29.

Roosevelt—Hudson's Bay (20th-Fox) 90

State-Lake—A Night at Earl Carroll's (Para't).110
Though picture had fairly good local reviews, it was Cab Calloway's orchestra on stage that really brought in the customers.

United Artists—Philadelphia Story (M-G-M)..175
Loop's top grosser. Looks like it's in for lengthy run here.

Stage Show Helps 'Maisie' To Top in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE—In a week of reasonable plumpness, due in some measure to reasonably decent weather, "Maisie Was a Lady" and Ray Noble's orchestra rated highest favor at Fox's Wisconsin at hiked admissions. "Kitty Foyle" and "Let's Make Music" fared equally well at the Warner considering the difference of 10 cents between admission tops of both houses.

Detail for week ending January 30:

(Average is 100)

Palace—This Thing Called Love (Col); Ellery Queen, Master Detective (Col).....120

Riverside—San Francisco Docks (Univ), plus Marcus' Continental Revue on stage.....125

Strand—Arizona (Col); Tall, Dark and Handsome (20th-Fox) 100

Warner—Kitty Foyle (RKO); Let's Make Music (RKO) 165

Wisconsin—Maisie Was a Lady (M-G-M), plus Ray Noble on stage 180

Indianapolis First Runs Have Storm to Battle

INDIANAPOLIS—With the year's worst snow storm, later freezing to ice, even "Kitty Foyle" and "Thief of Bagdad" did little more than average business. Percentages as follows:

(Average is 100)

Alamo—Wildcat From Tucson (Col); Friendly Neighbors (Rep) 60

Circle—Kitty Foyle (RKO); Remedy for Riches (RKO) 120

Indiana—High Sierra (FN); Give Us Wings (Univ) 80

Loew's—Thief of Bagdad (UA); Nobody's Children (Col) 120

Lyric—Barnyard Follies (Rep), plus Ezra Buzzington and other acts on stage 95

Hold Alice Faye

HOLLYWOOD—Alice Faye's 20th-Fox contract has been extended for a year.

Mature Rating for Seven by Council

CHICAGO—In films reviewed for the period from January 4 to the 25th inclusive, the Better Films Council of Chicago lists 11 in the family category, with seven classified in the mature group. Mrs. Richard M. McClure is president of the council, with Mrs. Charles R. Holton, vice-president and chairman of the previewing committee.

In the family group are: "Charlie Chan in the Wax Museum," 20th-Fox; "County Hospital," Laurel & Hardy; "The Face Behind the Mask," Films-Alliance; "Give Me a Sailor," Paramount; "Here Comes the Navy," Warner Bros.; "Lilac Domino," SR; "Round-Up Time in Texas," Republic; "Santa Fe Trail," First National; "The Singing Dude," Warner Bros.; "Sky Murder," M-G-M; "Under Western Stars," Republic.

In the mature classification are: "After Mein Kampf," Melwyn-Crystal Pictures; "Behind the News," Republic; "Beware, Spooks!," Columbia; "Comrade X," M-G-M; "Kitty Foyle," RKO; "The Saint in Palm Springs," RKO; "Schubert's Serenade," SR.

Pictures given best send-offs were: "Santa Fe Trail" and "Kitty Foyle." Commenting on the former, the council report said: "This 'must-see' film graphically shows the growth of bitter feeling over the question of slavery between the north and south . . . Raymond Massey's John Brown is a masterpiece, and the direction and work of supporting players outstanding."

Commenting on "Kitty Foyle," the report stated: "Previewers are highly enthusiastic in their praise of Ginger Rogers' characterization, Sam Wood's direction, the supporting cast, and the film as a whole."

: Bally Field Day :

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Springfield theatre fans had a picnic all in the same week what with three separate theatre promotion ideas in progress at the same time.

Red headed women from 16 to 60 merely by registering at a booth placed near the city square received complimentary tickets to see Miriam Hopkins in "The Lady With Red Hair" at the Roxy. This idea nearly backfired when 400 of the flame-tressed gals turned out, but all thoroughly enjoyed the show. The women also received discounts on purchases at several of the local stores.

The Orpheum, in cooperation with a local newspaper, conducted a contest to determine the outstanding "Springfield Story" told in 25 words or less in connection with the showing of "The Philadelphia Story."

A "Miss Anniversary" hunt was staged by the Orpheum in connection with the anniversary showing of "Gone With the Wind." Contestants submitted photographs. Honors went to Miss Maxine Cowan, Petersburg, Ill., who was presented to the public on the Orpheum stage prior to the first showing of "Gone With the Wind."

More Giveaways in Milwaukee County

MILWAUKEE—The number of houses offering giveaways in Milwaukee county has shown an increase in recent weeks with Fox and Warner-Saxe among those joining the parade. Currently more than 30 theatres are handing out some sort of giveaway in the county at least one night a week with many of them following the policy twice a week. The giveaway policy is flourishing the heaviest on Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Even in Greendale, the government's model village, the Greendale Theatre is offering "come-ons" three nights a week. The house offers 12 baskets of groceries on Tuesday nights and free dinnerware on Thursday and Friday nights.

Either vaudeville or amateur shows are being spotted in a number of houses. A program of vaudeville is being presented each Sunday night at the Colonial and Hollywood, independent neighborhood houses, who play the same bill of one show at each theatre. Fox's World amateur shows on Sunday nights while the circuit's Riviera and Plaza offer this type of entertainment on Monday nights and its Zenith on Saturday nights.

Warner-Saxe's Granada also presents amateur shows on Saturday night and the Hollywood and Colonial, Parkway and National offer this form of entertainment on Friday nights. The latter is also a Warner-Saxe house. These flesh programs are reported to help perk up business somewhat in several of the spots around town.

Variety Polio Project Triumph for Rosenthal

ST. LOUIS—The announcement last week that the St. Louis Variety Club has undertaken to provide funds for a $250,000 building for the Midwest Polio Association, the association being adopted as the special charity of the club during the next five years, culminated successfully the personal efforts of Barney Rosenthal, well known local film exchange man, on behalf of the victims of infantile paralysis.

Barney, through his connection with the Variety Club and by his personal efforts, has long been interested in the Polio movement. About a year ago, speaking at the dinner that was in the nature of a celebration of the successful 1940 campaign to raise funds for the sufferers from this disease, he expressed the hope that it would be possible to provide a special building to provide needed facilities for the rehabilitation of its victims. He indicated that it might be possible to obtain the support of the Variety Club and others in the industry.

Later when he broached the subject to Harry C. Arthur jr., chief executive here for the Fanchon & Marco interests and now Chief Barker of the St. Louis Tent, Barney found a whole-hearted supporter for the idea. The final result was the five-year program to raise funds for the $250,000 building.

SPRINGFIELD

SEVERAL of the Fox-Lincoln staff, including Ernest Denk, doorman; Orville Keirs, chief of service; Ray Coe, assistant manager, and Bill Meyer and James Smarjesse, ushers, found the tobogganing fine at the country club after the theatre closed. They had the hill all to themselves.

"Gone With the Wind" opened with a bang at the Orpheum Theatre, showing to capacity throughout the week. W. B. Potts, supervisor of Metro checking, and C. A. Oetzel, M-G-M representative, were on hand throughout the week . . . Local exhibitors are hoping that the banning of all money punchboards in Sangamon county by States' Attorney Alfred H. Greening will result in increased theatre attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kerasotes attended the "Reel Fellows" shindig in Chicago. Kerasotes is general manager of the Kerasotes chain . . . Harris Silverberg and Herbert Washburn, branch managers from Chicago and St. Louis of the National Screen Co., called at the Kerasotes office during the week.

Chris Bendsen, manufacturer of theatre marquees, was making his business rounds in Springfield . . . Whenever Max Tschauder, manager of the Roxy, isn't to be found, he's likely exercising his new bowling ball at one of the local alleys.

M. E. Berman, manager of the Orpheum, was awarded the grand prize at a banquet in Chicago in the Great-States, Balaban & Katz managers drive, for being high man in Illinois and Indiana circuit theatres.

During the "Mile o' Dimes" drive, M. E. Berman and Charles Brown of the Orpheum rigged up a booth inaugurating dime pitching. Anyone who could pitch two dimes consecutively into the cup was awarded a ticket to "The Philadelphia Story."

Chicago Arbitration Offices Are Open

CHICAGO—Offices for the Chicago arbitration board which will function under the American Arbitration Association, have been opened in the Rookery Building, at 209 S. LaSalle Street, with John F. Sullivan, an attorney, recently appointed clerk, in charge. Temporary headquarters are in Room 576, with permanent headquarters to be set up in Room 519. Latter offices are expected to be ready by March 1. Telephone number is Central 9755.

Opened on schedule on February 1, the Chicago office to date has received no complaints from exhibitors.

John F. Sullivan, the Chicago clerk, is 33 years old and a native Chicagoan. He is married and has two boys, John, age eight, and Terence, age three. He was educated at Loyola University and John Marshall Law School, both Chicago schools, and received his LL.B. degree from the latter institution in 1936.

Prior to his AAA affiliation, he was with the law firm of Orr, Sullivan and Ricks (formerly Cook, Sullivan and Ricks), for the past 12 years. For the past three and one-half years, he was an assistant attorney. He started with the law firm as legal stenographer in 1929, becoming a private secretary to Boetius H. Sullivan, one of the partners, in 1933, and in 1937, became an assistant attorney. Sullivan is a member of the Chicago Bar Association.

Organize in Indianapolis To Aid Defense Program

INDIANAPOLIS—In order to facilitate and systematize the industry's contribution to the national defense program, the following committee has been formed:

Marc J. Wolf, chairman, Theatrical Managers, Inc., whose headquarters will be in Indianapolis; William Connors, Great States Theatres, Marion; Oscar Fine, Premier Theatres, Evansville; Roy Harrold, Princess, Rushville, and president of Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, and Alex Manta, Indiana-Illinois Theatres, East Chicago.

It is the purpose of the committee to act as a clearing house for all matters pertaining to theatres and their part in the defense program.

MILWAUKEE

EJ WEISFELDT is back at his job as managing director of the Riverside after a siege of the flu and other complications . . . Joseph Rosenfield, manager of the Modjeska, tendered a farewell party at the house for Peter and Ronald Piotrowski, two lively entertainers who have left for Hollywood.

Ervin Koenigsreiter, manager of the Greendale, has been elected general manager of all Greendale Co-op enterprises for the ensuing year . . . Nelson Eddy and Spencer Tracy are on Gov. Julius P. Heil's list to receive a gift of Wisconsin cheese monthly for the next two years. Eddy was also recently named a colonel on Governor Heil's staff.

Vogue at Kenosha is now offering bargain days on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays with all seats selling for a dime . . . Plans are under way for the renovation of Warner's Majestic in Sheboygan.

Showmen Help Sponsor Aid to Britain Rally

ST. LOUIS—Among the St. Louis motion picture folk included on the Committee of 100 that sponsored the rally for American Aid to Great Britain at the Municipal Auditorium January 31 were Joseph C. Ansell, Louis K. Ansell, Edward B. Arthur, Harry C. Arthur jr., James H. Arthur, C. B. Nelson, and G. L. Weigand. The Ansells are connected with the Ansell Brothers Circuit, while the others are in the local Fanchon & Marco organization.

"Wind" Unrivalled In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY—"Gone With the Wind" dominated the field last week with full houses at matinees several days, and not many seats vacant at the night shows. More people were handled the first week than during the first week of the primary engagement a year ago. The price was reduced, but, at 40 cents-56 cents, was higher than regular Midland schedules. Other first run houses did business around or below average. Weather was bad at the start of the week's runs, but mild—though wet—during most of the week, and not encouraging to theatre-going.

"Gone With the Wind" started on its second week January 31. "Santa Fe Trail" and "She Couldn't Say No," after a fair first week's business at the Orpheum, continued there.

Detail for week ending January 31:

Esquire—Tall, Dark and Handsome (20th-Fox) 70
Midland—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M) 250
Newman—Second Chorus (Para't) 105
Orpheum—Santa Fe Trail (FN); She Couldn't Say No (FN) 95
Tower—Six Lessons From Madame La Zonga (Univ), plus stage show 70
Uptown—Tall, Dark and Handsome (20th-Fox) 75

"Comrade X" on Dual Bill Omaha's Top Attraction

OMAHA—Exhibitors thankful for warm, mild weather with the mercury and grosses both on the upward swing. Heavy snows first part of week hurt some, however.

Top-notcher was the duo of "Comrade X" and "Haunted Honeymoon" at the Omaha, placing a broad smile on Manager Don Allen's face. Next in line was "Maisie Was a Lady" at the Orpheum, in a stage-screen policy at tilted prices. Stage had Andrews Sisters, Three Stooges and Joe Venuti's orchestra, and Ted Emerson, Tri-States press agent, landed the best publicity in many years on a stage-screen bill.

"Arizona" and "Always a Bride" suffered from the competition in a second week at the Brandeis.

Detail for the week ending February 1:

Brandeis—Arizona (Col); Always a Bride (FN), 2nd wk. 90
Omaha—Comrade X (M-G-M); Haunted Honeymoon (M-G-M) 150
Orpheum—Maisie Was a Lady (M-G-M) 100
Stage show featuring Andrews Sisters, Three Stooges and Joe Venuti's orchestra at increased prices.

"Second Chorus" Plus Stage Doubles Par

MINNEAPOLIS—With the Andrews Sisters, Joe Venuti and his orchestra and the Three Stooges topping a stage bill and "Second Chorus" on the screen, the Orpheum had a terrific show and did deservedly sensational business. In its second week at the State, "Philadelphia Story" also continued to click in big-league fashion. "Screwballs of 1941" proved the Minnesota's best stage show since the theatre's reopening, but suffered from the tough opposition.

Detail for week ended February 1:

Aster—One Night in Tropics (Univ); Case of the Black Parrot (FN) 95
Century—Son of Monte Cristo (UA) 90
Gopher—Bank Dick (Univ) 90
Minnesota—Melody Ranch (Rep), stage show .. 70
Orpheum—Second Chorus (Para't), big stage show 200
State—Philadelphia Story (M-G-M) 100
World—Pink Domino (SR) 70

Will Ask Circuit To Join Campaign

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesota Amusement, the territory's principal circuit, and film distributors here will be asked to join Northwest Allied States in a big campaign to win the public back to the theatres. This was decided upon at a dinner meeting of Twin City members this week.

Eddie Ruben is working out details of a big advertising campaign to give boxoffices the proper stimulus. It contemplates selling the public the idea that Hollywood is functioning better than ever, that the average quality of films today is the highest in the industry's history and that men and women can obtain more for their entertainment dollar now in film theatres than anywhere else.

In line with this there would be a large-scale newspaper and billboard advertising campaign, house to house propaganda work, etc., backed up by a succession of a half-dozen or more of the best releases available in every theatre throughout the territory.

"If we can enlighten the public and make it realize that pictures today are better than ever before, on the average, our boxoffice troubles will be ended," declares Ruben.

Directs "Jane Eyre"

HOLLYWOOD—Robert Stevenson will direct "Jane Eyre" for David O. Selznick. UA will release the filmization of the Charlotte Bronte novel.

Des Moines First Run Average Is Under Par

DES MOINES—Business over the week-end apparently was nothing to write home about, despite fair weather. A little left-over snow and ice which affected local patrons not at all, but may have kept a handful of out-of-town trade away, can hardly be listed as a factor at the box-office.

Detail for week ended February 1:

Des Moines—Thief of Bagdad (UA); The Bank Dick (Univ) 75
Orpheum—Santa Fe Trail (FN); Dreaming Out Loud (RKO) 110
Paramount—Trail of the Vigilantes (Univ); Honeymoon for Three (WB) 70

LINCOLN—The count is four against the industry in the Nebraska legislature now.

Late bill arrivals into the law-mill are one asking divorcement of distributor-producer partnerships with exhibitors, and the other an assessment of five cents per square foot of showing space on all billboards, money to go for relief.

Already accounted for are two bills. The first, a so-called "luxury tax" measure puts a one cent tax on each 10 cents worth of an article, be it theatre ticket, cosmetics, cigarettes, or other non-necessities. The other is aimed at distributors, asking $1,000 annual license fee, plus $1 a reel for each one distributed in the state.

Man behind the gun on these bills is Sen. E. M. Neubauer, of Orleans, Neb., and the divorcement and distributor licensing enactments were sought by him in the 1939 session, but both folded up, without support, when argued in committee hearings. They died in 1939 without reappearing on the floor.

The billboard tax is an indirect slap, but it's understood, as in all such matters, that the tax will be passed on to consumers, a great many of whom are theatre-producer advertisers. On each annual contract for boards, this would raise the annual rental about $14 a board and become a factor to think about in outdoor advertising.

May Cost $300,000

It is conservatively estimated by showmen that, aside from the divorcement ill, the other three might easily cost the industry in one way or another, about $250,000 to $300,000 a year in Nebraska. The distributor licensing and the billboard share of this would be small, but the penny tax for each 10 cents or fraction of each ticket would mount up heavily. What the distributors and producers would lose in Nebraska via a cleavage from exhibitor operations is not available for estimate but would be large.

Hardest hit by divorcement would be the A. H. Blank-Tri-States theatres, with holdings in Omaha, Grand Island, Hastings and Fairbury, as a Paramount partner. J. H. Cooper's 50-percenting with Paramount in Lincoln would feel it, and a few scattered theatres owned by Fox-Midwest and Fox-Intermountain would also have to be sold to new owners.

This is the first year in many that the industry has had no lobbyist at the state house. In past years, Bob Livingston, of the independent Capitol, associated with County Attorney Max G. Towle, has handled the job and batted 1000 every session.

Only hope for the amusement business at this time, in a rising surge of sentiment among legislators to crack the trade and hard, is that Gov. Dwight Griswold has said he'll veto any and all attempts to saddle anybody in Nebraska with new taxes.

Optimistic Attitude Growing for Decree

DES MOINES—Both exchange men and independent exhibitors in this section seem to have a favorable and hopeful attitude regarding the consent decree.

Most of them seem to feel that the new order of five-block booking will improve the business throughout as well as the product. Although many of them were reluctant to speak for the record, off-record they say they believe the decree will give the film industry the shot-in-the-arm it needs now to combat competition from other types of entertainment, and will automatically weed out inefficient personnel, from the talent on the screen to the salesmen in the territory.

The consensus seems to be that the business as a whole has reached a point similar to that of the industry prior to the advent of sound, which provided the stimulus to bring the public back into the theatre at that time.

Cooperation on Decree Is Branton's Stand

DES MOINES—The following statement by G. Ralph Branton, general manager of Tri-States Theatre Corp., is typical of the spirit with which even exhibitors originally opposing it are greeting the consent decree:

"Now that we have the consent decree, there is absolutely no question in our minds but that we must be completely co-operative and make a genuine effort to make it work. If the decree is the answer to any of the ills of the industry, we want to give it a chance to function and prove its worth; if it is not, its failure will be as obvious as its possible success. Our job now is to do everything in our power to cooperate with the government and the film industry to observe the consent decree."

Byron Pulis, Arbitration Board Sec'y in Omaha

OMAHA—Byron E. Pulis is the full-time secretary of the arbitration board that will function for Nebraska and western Iowa. Names of the arbitrators will be announced soon, he told BOXOFFICE.

Pulis, who was formerly with the Canadian Pacific Railroad in Omaha for 11 years, is headquartered at 1015 Woodmen of the World Building. His office will be open from 9 to 5 daily and from 9 to 1 p. m. on Saturdays. Questions about the board's operation should be addressed to him.

Bandits Get $1,000

MINNEAPOLIS—The entire weekend $1,000 receipts of the Franklin Theatre, an independent neighborhood house owned by the Frank-Woempner circuit, were stolen by two armed bandits. The bandits slugged and held up Fred Berg who just had picked the money up for counting and deposit.

KANSAS CITY

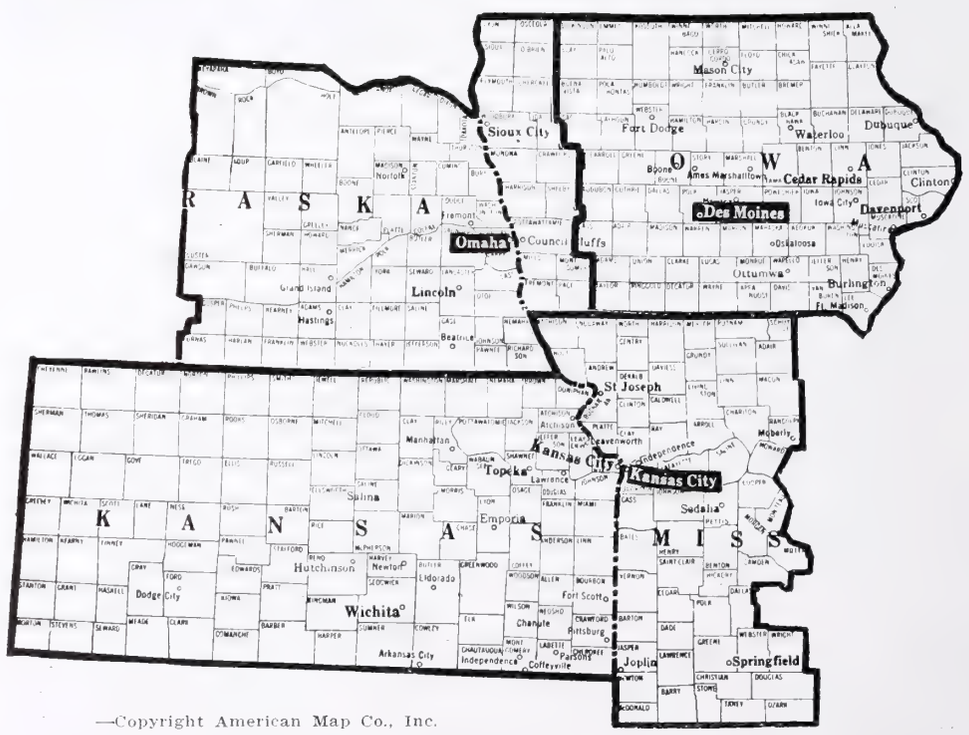
GEORGE SMITH, recently appointed western division sales manager, Paramount, made an official visit to Kansas City Friday, January 31 . . . J. W. Grantham, New Baxter, Baxter Springs, Kas., is leaving on an extensive vacation, through Old Mexico.

John Egli, Hickory, St. Joseph, Mo., was on the Row, where he had not been seen for a long time. But—"everybody knows him," "nobody would ever forget him," it was said. He stopped off just to say "hello" and "goodbye" on his way to Florida and Cuba for a vacation.

Vernon Smith is a new booker at M-G-M; transferred from the Minneapolis office . . . Johnny Kloppenstein, who with his brother operates the Aladdin, Mound City, Kas., is reported recovered from an attack of the flu.

A. A. Schubart, manager of exchange operations for RKO, visited the local exchange, on his way to Dallas from a field representatives' meeting in Chicago. With him was Johnny Wangberg, formerly of the Kansas City office, now an auditor for RKO.

J. W. Shreve, manager, National Theatre Supply Co., leaves shortly for his annual business trip to New York . . . C. W. Gano, office manager, National Theatre Supply Co., called to reserve service, has left for his post of duty near Washington, D. C. He is a second lieutenant.



Glen W. Dickinson, remodeling the Dickinson, 50 Highway, Mission, Kas., has bought equipment from L. J. Kimbriel, Missouri Theatre Supply Co. From the same source, got sound and other equipment for the Ritz, Topeka, Kas., a colored house, which Dickinson recently bought and is remodeling.

Ray Richardson, Strand, Mt. Vernon, Mo., is sporting a new Oldsmobile; and the story is told on him that he was not aware that he had bought an "8"!

On the Row—Frank Weary, Paris, Richmond, Mo.; Bill Huston, Kansas and Crawford, Wichita, Kas.; Frank Cassil, Rialto, St. Joseph, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ghosen, Uptown, Sedalia, Mo.; Gene Newbold, Temple, Yates Center, Kas.; Louis Griefe and son Frederick, Windsor, Windsor, Mo.; J. Ward Spielman, Gem, Baldwin, Kas.; Jim Whitted, Weston, Weston, Mo.; Hank Doering, People's, Garnett, Kas.

C. C. McCollister, Nomar, Wichita, entering the roadshow business, has taken on "Souls in Pawn" to present as he

Arbitration Districts: Des Moines, Kansas City, Omaha

The area for Des Moines, supervised by R. Bruce Wilson from offices in the Walnut Bldg., embraces all of Iowa except for the counties of Lyon, Osceola, Sioux, O'Brien, Plymouth, Cherokee, Woodbury, Ida, Monona, Crawford, Harrison, Shelby, Pottawattomie, Mills, Montgomery, Fremont and Page.

The Omaha board includes these 17 Iowa counties just mentioned, plus all Nebraska counties east of the western boundaries of the counties of Keyapaha, Brown, Blaine, Custer, Dawson, Gosper and Furnas.

The Kansas City board, located in the Waltower Bldg., under John H. Brink, takes in the whole state of Kansas and all counties in Missouri west of the eastern boundaries of Schuyler, Adair, Macon, Randolph, Howard, Cooper, Monteall, Miller, Camden, Dallas, Wright, Douglas and Ozark.

Arbitration Districts . . . Minneapolis

passes through Iowa and Nebraska with his Neon sound truck . . . Paul Hannon is booker at RKO Kansas City office, succeeding Leon Abrams who resigned last week.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Snitz (he's booker at Columbia) were reported doing well at noon February 4. She's in Menorah Hospital where a boy was born to her. Asked for an official statement, Gene said: "It's a lot easier booking pictures than having babies."

News of the death of Abe W. Riegelman spread on the Row where he had been well known. He had been salesman for 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. in southern Iowa for 14 years, his headquarters and home at Des Moines. A son, Dr. Ralph Riegelman, lives in Des Moines; one brother, Alfred, lives in Kansas City.

Catching up on the illnesses—pleasantly scarcer—C. D. Whitney, shipping clerk, National Theatre Supply Co., is reported getting along fine after his appendix operation.

"In the H. J. Griffith family"—Elmer Wald, formerly assistant at the Ritz, Chillicothe, Mo., is now that at the Kansan, Parsons, Kas., replacing Howard Stribling, who goes to the Paola, Paola, Kas., as manager and Sippi Ferguson's assistant . . . Jack Jeffrey, formerly of Paola, Kas., is assistant to John Sanders, Junction, Junction City, Kas. . . . R. V. McGinnis has taken up his duties at the Carlton, Manhattan, Kas. . . . Vernon Watkins has come from Oklahoma City to join the booking department.

Draft Allied Bill Against Decree

MINNEAPOLIS—Work on drafting Northwest Allied's anti-consent decree bill is proceeding at meetings of the organization's legislative committee. Its presentation to the state legislature will await the return of President E. L. Peaslee and Harold Field, the committee chairman, from the east and south, respectively, according to announcement by Fred Strom, executive secretary.

The bill gradually is being whipped into shape with special consideration being given to the matter of constitutionality of the various provisions, Strom explains. Northwest Allied is determined that any law passed by the legislature would be surely upheld in the courts.

Clauses in the bill will provide that film companies must offer their entire season's product to exhibitors, the same as at present, instead of selling it in blocks of five accordling to consent decree provisions. The companies also would be required to grant exhibitors a minimum of 20 per cent cancellation privilege and films objectionable on moral, religious or racial grounds could be excluded. Forced buying of shorts would be prohibited, too.

Peaslee is expected back from Washington next week while Field probably will end a vacation in the south within a month. This will leave plenty of time to push the measure through the state legislature, Strom believes. Organization heads are confident the bill will become a law.

The Board Is Ready, But No Customers

MINNEAPOLIS—Although two Minneapolis independent exhibitors have announced that they're going to arbitration in quest of "relief" for product difficulties, Sheldon M. Ostroot, arbitrator for the territory, said that no complaints had been filed with him during the first three days that the consent decree provision was operative.

Ostroot has offices at 215 McKnight Building here where briefs may be filed. Thus far, he says, he has received only one inquiry—from a South Dakota exhibitor who wished to know if the arbitration for theatre owners in his state takes place in Minneapolis.

Weisfeldt Awaits Chance

In Minneapolis last week, E. J. Weisfeldt, Minnesota Theatre managing director, announced that he would resort to arbitration in an effort to obtain major product for his showhouse. All of this major product now is sewed up for the local loop by the Minnesota Amusement Co.—Mort H. Singer pool.

We'll go to the arbitration board as soon as we get properly organized," said Weisfeldt. "The illness of our house manager here has held us up in getting our case together."

Weisfeldt expressed that the Minneapolis "situation" can be "licked." The fact that the Aster, a Minnesota Amusement Company—Mort H. Singer, uses up from two to four "B" and lower classification pictures a week on double feature bills at 15c admission to 5 p. m. and 28c thereafter is what will crack the set-up here open, in his opinion.

"We don't want a lot of big 'A' pictures," explained Mr. Weisfeldt. "We'd be satisfied with a fair apportionment of the lesser major releases. But we won't stand idly by and be left entirely out in the cold."

Berger Will Seek "Rights"

Supporting the Minnesota Amusement position, however, local film men have pointed out that there is no overbuying by the circuit, that the Aster policy was established several years before the Weisfeldt interests entered the field here and that the latter were well aware of the product line-up in Minneapolis when they entered this field.

Bennie Berger is another independent exhibitor who has announced his intention to go before the arbitration board to learn if he has any "rights" at his loop sure-seater World Theatre where he has been unable to obtain major screen product. Because of his picture difficulties he says he now is forced to use reissues at the World. Berger, however, is vacationing now in Florida and the start of his case undoubtedly will await his return to Minneapolis.

The members of the arbitration board along with Mr. Ostroot will be chosen from a list of 25 Minneapolis business men.

Adapting Own Original

HOLLYWOOD—Barre Lyndon is adapting "Sundown," his own original, for Walter Wanger.

DES MOINES

FLEA CIRCUS: Howard and Hazel Dunn proudly announce that Patty can now sit up, shake hands, and bounce a balloon on her nose six times without missing—and she's only six months old! These wire-haired terriers must be a smart-alec breed . . . Bill Lansburg thinks he ought to be exempted so he can support his wire-haired pup, Tex, but if Tex is as smart as Bill says, Tex ought to be supporting Bill.

The next time the Stan Mayers and the Harry Hiersteiners come to the Colonade a-calling, there's gonna be trouble if they don't ring the Clayton buzzer . . . the A. H. Blanks are in Hollywood, Florida, again . . . they'll be back in about three weeks . . . Next time you're in Art Stolte's office up at Tri-States, take a look at those very artistic pix hanging on the south wall . . . they show some Canadian spots on the lake, as well as Art (in Silhouette) and an aquaplane.

Loretta Morris is the Tri-States tello-girl whose name always slips our mind . . . this time we wrote it down on paper and when we got home couldn't figure out for two hours who it was . . . Loretta is the girl who says she usta-was-but-isn't-anymore. DD was out getting her hair done. Harry Holdsberg was so engrossed in a note he was reading that he missed a couple of dirty cracks about himself . . . now he'll never know.

The gent sitting behind us at the Des Moines who warned us against talking in the theatre the other night was Chuck Iles . . . Chuck was showing the little woman a good time by taking her to the pictures . . . Mrs. Chuck says the McKinneys will be back home from their southern exposure by the time you read this.

Paul Shadford, Des Moines Theatre projectionist, can take a great big bow for his little gel, Virginia, who's new over at Central States . . . she seems to be a bright child and worthy to take Phyllis Cunningham's place at the Central States greetin' desk . . . Phyllis has been moved back into the bull pen . . . a dangerous place to be, Phyllis, with that pretty red hair. Edith Cohen, the pretty little brunette who used to smile at the customers who came in to see Stan Mayer at Fox, is now putting Ray Blank's syllables down on paper.

Paul Walsh got settled back in DM off the road just in time. February 4 a little boy with a red face and needing a suit of clothes came to live with the Walshes . . . Cannonball Lee tells us they call him that because he pitched a nifty game of ball for the film boys once . . . and we always thought it had something to do with that deserted look on the top of his head.

When Harry Warren left the Balaban meeting in Chicago, January 24, he went on to Cuba where he seems to be cruising around a bit . . . he's going to Panama and then home via New Orleans . . . Iola Lehman and Dora Middlesworth just hauled in from California where they are said to have spent a little time with the glamour boys . . . incidentally, one of the first cracks BOXOFFICE made when she started handling this column several years ago, seems to be sticking in a few craws even yet . . . It seems that the Central States force still resent our statement that Tri-States girls are the prettiest . . . sorry, lassies, but we've taken a second look and while you're certainly no slouches, them Tri-States babies got class!

Tri-States is trying it again—a first run at a suburban house . . . This time it's "Night Train," a British picture without a name to sell it, but one that from our screening room seat made "Foreign Correspondent" a panty-waist. The public allegedly has been waiting with bated breath for the appearance this weekend of the "Hard-Boiled Canary" kidlets, Susanna Foster and Dolly Loehr . . . But the big interest in the film and news biz is the fact that the popular Cliff Lewis, ex-publicity chief for Paramount, will be acting as herdsman.

Emil Franke made the 300-odd DM Smiths conscious of their distinction by getting 20 couples to review "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" for the R&T . . . Also on the Orpheum sector—Clark Allen is in the market for a mathematics textbook . . . Tom Gorman neglected to look us up last time he was in . . . If he does that again we're gonna publish the picture of the Orpheum now lying dormant on our desk . . . It was taken when some of the lights weren't working and it reads, politely: "PHEU."

Jean Post says that bird rumor isn't true, and we're inclined to think that Jean's in a position to know . . . Bert Thomas says he got that callous on the end of his forefinger from booking Columbia pix . . . other versions are rampant . . . Did we tell you that Evelyn Rosen is back in town as Max Facter's secretary at Pioneer? . . . Mel Goodman's Louella is convalescing with the flu.

Universal had a party Friday up at Lou Levy's apartment to say au revoir to Loretta Dieling (transferred to Univ. in Washington, D. C.) and bonjour to Jerry Slutzky, new booker from Indianapolis . . . Loretta received one of those cute little apartment irons . . . Cleo Current will

LINCOLN

THAT man who ran with $5 in his hand to the courthouse, and arrived breathlessly at the motor vehicle license department window just as it was being closed, January 31, was Bob Huffman. He waits and worries everybody until the very last minute of the last legal day his old auto plates can be used.

The film business now refers to former celluloid salesmen Hymie Novitsky and Joe Rosenberg as the "princes of perfume." They're busy putting the Connie Bennett line in Iowa and Nebraska theatres. Their motto: "If your business smells—it might as well smell GOOD."

Bob Livingston, of the Capitol Theatre and the capitol building, got the surprise of his life at the latter when he was discussing the Sen. E. M. Neubauer bill which asks annual distributor licensing at $1,000, and $1 a reel tax on distributed film. He thought it was due to fold by the wayside as it had in 1939, but finds a big number of the legislators this time believing it has merit.

Foresight: When Bob Huffman hired Roy Anderson around the theatres as an usher and handyman, the full import was not realized until a few days ago. Anderson, though young, is a golf pro in the summer time, and Huffman, although he doesn't look it, would rather play golf than eat.

It appears that Sonja Henie's Nebraska appearance in Omaha will find her previewing what's apt to happen shortly to her husband. Ft. Crook's 3rd Infantry battalion of some 1,400 men is going to be reviewed by her. If his low draft number hasn't been called yet, her husband Dan Topping, will be with her on the reviewing stand with post commander Lt. Col. K. M. Still. Jack Burnett, her press agent, set it with the army.

Sympathetic reaction: Did you know that Howard Federer, in Lincoln, and Hedy Lamarr, in Hollywood, came down with the flu the same day?

Stork stuff: Chuck Miller, program director of KFAB-KFOR, is due for papahood in April . . . R. H. Pauley, who runs the Turnpike Casino, local dancery, and is very much a friend of Theatrerow, drew a brand new daughter, Linda Lea, a 6-pounder, the other day. Well aware of BOXOFFICE's service, he even called the Lincoln correspondent during the waiting period and asked if she'd come to the hospital and keep him company as he paced the corridor . . . Leland Mischnick, who used to be on theatre jobs here, now in Omaha, has a tough time beating down the rumors started by Sol Yeager that he's facing fatherhood again.

Salute to Shiller: Now that the Grand Island Independent has bought radio station KMMJ there, Harry Shiller, the theatreman, will find his newspaper friendships won't do him any harm . . . From Hollywood: When Mrs. Barney Oldfield started her radio broadcast series about pictures for the Lincoln Theatres Corp., Mary Anderson, who remembered a conversation two weeks earlier when the premiere of "Cheers for Miss Bishop" was on, sent a wire of best wishes.

Rumor: Eddie Shafton, the Omaha Variety clubber, is fronting for gals, 30 and over, trying to get them army hostess jobs. In what department of the Variety Club's many enterprises does that fall?

replace Loretta. Jerry's young son is now out of the hospital and the Slutzky furniture has arrived in DM and been deposited at 1172 Harding Road.

You didn't know that Izzie Sokoloff who handles AAI and NSA for Lou Patz in Omaha is our DM Carl Sokoloff's brother, either, did you? Bob Fridley was working hard and all alone the other eve when we stopped up at National Screen the other eve . . . That pretty little blonde with Jean Post at the West End was his wife . . . The Kappler quads (Paul, Bill, Frances, Dick) were reduced to triplets the night we saw them, because Dick (who isn't married) was confined at home with marital trouble!

Kennie Weldon is now a student booker at Metro, they tell us . . . Bud Moran went to Davenport February 4; Mel Evidon went February 5; say, what is this? Get Jack Kennedy to tell you about the story of the little brown barrel he brought from Mexico . . . and we recommend the story with interpolations by Lois. Joe Garrison was in from Kaycee and Otto Siegal dropped around from Omaha. Did you ever lamp that red and green suit of Elmer Tilton's? Did you know that there's a minister's wife on the Row? She's Dolores Maine, and she works for Lou Patz at National Screen . . . Dolores took Grace Simons' job when Grace stepped over into the big shoes Harry Peter Franz vacated.

Spot for Connie Boswell

HOLLYWOOD—Connie Boswell has been signed for a singing spot in Paramount's "Kiss the Boys Goodbye."

Projectionist Involved in Minny Theatre Robbery

MINNEAPOLIS—Louis Cowan, Chateau Theatre projectionist, was apprehended by the police and, according to them, confessed that he was the "finger man" and one of the three participants involved in the $800 robbery of the weekend receipts of the Chateau and Franklin theatres, independent neighborhood houses.

The two theatres are part of the W. R. Frank circuit. Fred Berg, an accountant, collects their receipts. After picking up the money from the two boxoffices on January 13, he was forced at the point of a gun into an alley and slugged by the two men who fled with the money.

A tip to the police led to the arrest of a 23-year-old bandit who incriminated Cowan, who allegedly admitted he had put the "finger" on Berg and, while two of the trio attacked Berg, sat in the car in which the getaway was made.

Omaha Trade Is Allen's Guest at 'Smith' Preview

OMAHA—About 60 exhibitors and newspapermen from Omaha and the surrounding territory were guests of C. W. (Ching) Allen, RKO branch manager, at a sneak preview of "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" at the Brandeis. It was the first event of its kind held at the Brandeis since it joined the Singer circuit seven years ago.

Arrangements were completed by Bill Scholl, RKO press agent, and Allen. A cocktail party at one of the local hotels followed the preview.

Attractive Program Outlined by Variety

KANSAS CITY—The new administration of the Variety Club of Kansas City, announced recently, got under way promptly. Jerry Zigmond, chief barker, with the board of directors and chairmen of committees, held a successful session the other day, the outcome of which was a fine program, including some changes from the routine of the past few years. For one thing, four big affairs will be distributed through the year. First will come an event in the club rooms, around the first of March. Then comes the notable outdoor event, latter part of June: the "Days of '49," with the golf tournament and picnic. Advanced to October from late November when it has usually been held, will be the film ball. Then, just before Christmas, the bowling tournament.

Social Schedule

The social schedule provides for a resumption of parties in the club rooms every other Friday, for members, their families and guests.

Regular business meetings, evenings, with dinner, are noted for the first Monday of each month. On some other Mondays, one a month if not more, there will be luncheon meetings, with speakers. The evening monthly dinner meetings will be for members only; the public is to be welcomed to the luncheon affairs.

Iowa Not Untouched By Defense Outlay

DES MOINES—Though business in general, including film exhibitors, has been lamenting the failure of the national defense program to hit Iowa with the same force it has some other sectors, contract statistics show the state is not entirely devoid of benefits.

Biggest boom as a result of Uncle Sam's spending is expected at Burlington where a shell loading plant is being built. A total of $44,273,384 is being spent there, and the city of 26,000 is expected to have a population of 40,000 within a few months.

Central States, with three houses under supervision of L. J. Wegener in the town, has a toe-hold on the theatre situation in what looks like a boom center.

Throughout the rest of the state, defense orders total $30,432,311. These range from orders for machine-tooled parts for machine gun units to helmet linings, canvas covers for scabbards and even nozzles for gasoline cans.

Transfer of the army's 7th Corps area training camp from Lineville, Ia., to Rolla, Mo., doesn't leave Iowa entirely out of the picture. Two Des Moines firms have combined forces to fill an order for heating ducts to be used in the camp's heating system.

Des Moines firms currently have government defense contracts totaling more than $750,000, with more expected.

Prices Are Going Up!

Must Pay Federal Tax On Student Tickets

MINNEAPOLIS—It's settled finally and probably permanently that the territory's exhibitors must collect a three-cent admission tax on special student 20-cent admissions. The U. S. bureau of internal revenue has disregarded the exhibitors' protests in making the ruling. Instructions to collect the tax have gone out from Northwest Allied here, following a conference in Washington between President E. L. Peaslee and department heads.

A large number of theatres in the territory are affected by the ruling and exhiitors fear they'll suffer at the boxoffice. The houses in question charge the 20-cent admission, instead of the regular 28-cent price, for young people between 12 and 18 who aren't eligible for the kiddies' dime admissions. It is felt that many of these young people, who attend school or are otherwise unemployed, can't afford the 28-cent adult price and the reduced price bridges the gap between children and adults.

It is held by the internal revenue department that the "student" admissions are actually "reduced" adult admissions and, therefore, taxable in the same amount as the adult 25-cent tickets.

A number of exceptions to the "reduced admissions" tax are specified in the ruling. These include bona fide employes of the management, municipal officers on official business, a child under the age of 12 and other persons whose admission to the place is required for the performance of some duty. Also, if there's a 20-cent section of seats apart and separate from the 25-cent section and such section is available to adults, too.

Sets Five Screenings in Two Weeks for "Liberty"

LINCOLN—Two screenings of "Land of Liberty" one week, and three the next, was Gabe Yorke's record in Nebraska. First two were in Omaha and Lincoln, and he followed up in Grand Island, Hastings and Columbus. He now starts west.

Best turnout for the all-industry flicker, for which, as a Hays office representative, he's fronting, was in Lincoln.

Praise Rose Keane in "As You Desire Me"

KANSAS CITY—"As You Desire Me," the Resident Theatre's production of Luigi Pirandello's play, is running a second week in its performance here which has attracted capacity crowds. Rose Keane, guest star and former Kansas City girl, is accredited as the reason for the play's exceptional success.

Of her performance Landon Laird, drama critic of the Kansas City Star, said:

"It is a pity that Rose Keane comes back to Kansas City so seldom to display her talents. Her undeniable acting ability has been known to this city since the days when she played 'The Deluge' and other attractions for the Kansas City Theatre. In New York she has developed from a better-than-average 'home talent' player into a person who would fit into a Theatre Guild production. Miss Keane never looked so attractive as she does now, and we never have seen her play a part so well. She makes 'As You Desire Me' a success by her own efforts."

Film on Scandinavian War

DES MOINES—Sound motion pictures of war in the Scandinavian countries were shown recently at the Des Moines Gospel Temple. The Rev. Jens Petersen of Oslo, Norway, brought the film here under auspices of the Des Moines Scandinavian churches.

Bad Weather Keeps None From 'GWTW'

KANSAS CITY—"Gone With the Wind," among its other records, may have set a new sort here in its first week. Saturday, January 25, was the second day of this engagement. The weather prediction was "snow and colder." The day turned out to be one of the worst of the year for traffic, because of snow and slush. But—shortly after 8 a. m. Manager John McManus noticing the fast increasing line, put two cashiers at the windows. There were two cashiers at all times selling tickets, from 8:17 a. m. until 6 p. m., and they worked fast. The continuance of this stream of people after noon was the more striking in that the snow made motoring and walking difficult, and reports of traffic accidents multiplied. Evidently those who were eager to see the picture did not give any thought to whether or not they would have trouble getting home.

There were numerous instances reported of people who had seen it a year ago, going this time too.

Pilots "Lewis and Clark"

HOLLYWOOD—Kenneth Macgowan will produce "Lewis and Clark," story of the pioneers of the northwest, for 20th-Fox. Randolph Scott and Dean Jagger will top the cast.

.....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn— By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

BUD's the boss at New Hampton, now. Since Harry Hermann went back to Warner's and film peddling and Central States partnered into his Fireman's Hall at New Hampton, Bud's blossomed into a manager—yeah, Mrs. Harry Hermann's running the show.

Faye West was scheduled to be met at the airport by Dapper Don Tuesday noon . . . The Wests started the year right with a western trip. Don had to return to his Central States chores after a couple of weeks, but Faye used up another fortnight of winter before winging back to her West Des Moines Lyric.

Traveling around is another travel rumor. This time it's M. L. Dickson whose Colonial and Temple at Mt. Pleasant are operating so smoothly that M. L. is looking up timetables to California.

Renewed activity at the statehouse brings John R. Schales, the big legislature man from the Tripoli Theatre at Tripoli, in to visit pals along the DM Row.

Certainly we ducked when we heard Charlie Ricker was hitting the exchanges. The Iowa Theatre exhib from Buffalo Center used to fly the mail and he can still show you a slow roll if you're hungry . . . Our student pilot permits don't even allow us to tip our hats to guys like that.

The sailfish can sail again. Life is in tune for the tuna. The bars are down for the barracuda. Why? Joe's back!

Ike Walton, alias City Manager Gerbrach of the Central States houses in Ames, hove in from the Gulf stream with tall tales (you've been reading 'em) but no fish. Four of the piscatorial tribesmen are being stuffed and mounted down in Florida, though, and when they arrive, don't fail to stop in at Joe's office in the Collegian Theatre. You'll see finwavers prettier than the moonbeams dancing on Biscayne Bay, and bigger than the stories they inspired.

Joe visited his home office in Des Moines Monday, happy as the lark from which he'd just returned, but he confessed to & Co. sotto voce that marlin (or the lack of them) marred his trip. Don't be surprised if he corrects that situation off the west coast of Mexico next summer.

No matter how fast you whiz through Cresco, you can't miss the new marquee F. C. Ingram hooked to his Cresco Theatre . . . But you have to stop in Monona and go inside the Plaza to note how Don Wolf has clarified visibility there. No more zero-zero for him.

Another remodeler is Lee Henry, who's face-lifting his Stuart Theatre at Stuart . . . Lee was around Tuesday to inform the world he'd have the job done by Easter which is—lessee—April (gosh) 13!

It was the Washington Theatre at Davenport, but now it's the Time. It was the property of Harry Savereide but now it belongs to Jack Meyer. It was open, but now it's closed—for remodeling. And it will be reopened about March 1—with SRO business, Jack and Harry hoped during a DM trip last week.

We only hope Mike stands pat—on that invitation to stop and see him at Anita . . . We'll be out sometime to gobble popcorn and bandy words with as much of a clatter as Brother Don can raise with a can of film in front of your Anita house at 1 a. m., Mr. Roth.

If we hadn't resolved not to mention Ed Mason of the Osage Theatre in Osage this issue, we'd tell you his story about starting a traffic jam in Des Moines with a motor boat. But if we mention Ed too much, everybody'll start thinking we've got a grudge against him. (Editor's note: Well?)

Steer Clear of Fight for Minnesota Product

MINNEAPOLIS—The stage employes' union had nothing to do with the action of the Central Labor Union, the central body of all American Federation of Labor unions here, in going on record to help the 4,000-seat independently operated Minnesota Theatre obtain major film product. William Donnelly, the stage employes' business agent, says he wasn't present at the meeting and that his union is "neutral" in the fight over pictures and not taking sides.

The Minnesota allegedly isn't able to buy major releases because practically all of them are tied up by the Minnesota Amusement and Mort H. Singer pool.

In its resolution, the Central Labor Union asked for "an investigation by the authorities" of alleged "unfair trade practices." There also was a proposal for a mass meeting at the Auditorium to bring the matter forcibly to the attention of the proper authorities.

Ask Cooperation on Price Time Shift

MINNEAPOLIS—S. G. Lebedoff has been named chairman of a Northwest Allied committee to call upon the independently operated Minnesota to try to persuade that showhouse to "cooperate" in the matter of a uniform time for changing from matinee to night prices.

The Minnesota upset the applecart here by extending matinee prices to 6 p. m. in the face of the fact that for the past number of years there has been an unwritten agreement downtown and in the neighborhoods to change from the afternoon to evening scale one hour earlier, or 5 p. m. All houses have been living up to that unwritten agreement.

It is hoped that the Minnesota Amusement Co. can be made to see that it is disrupting the local situation and can be made to see the light, explains Lebedoff.

OMAHA

A SALUTE to Walt Bradley, Moon, Neligh, Neb., who held a President's Birthday Show at his theatre for the benefit of crippled children. Tickets sold for 50 cents each and every cent will go to charity. Walt dug down in his pocket and paid all operating expenses of the theatre, including film rental, himself. Walt's son is now at the hospital at Warm Springs, Ga.

Flash! Bill Youngclaus, well-known Nebraska exhibitor, and Mrs. Youngclaus are infanticipating. We're told they want a boy and if it is a boy they'll name him "Eddie." That's a tip, Bill, as to the source of this story! . . . Charlie Prokop, former exhibitor at Wahoo, Neb., and one of the veterans in the business, has been having heart trouble but is much improved, we're glad to report . . . Nate Bragg has closed the theatre at Guide Rock, Neb.

Phil Lannon, exhibitor at West Point, Neb., gets this week's honor award for the best gag. Phil closed his Nebraska Theatre for two months, January and February. The sign on the front reads, "The Dark Secret, with no light, no heat, no comedy, no drama. A two-month engagement" . . . Oscar Johnson will open his new Oil City at Falls City, Neb., on February 21 and a lot of filmites are expected to attend.

Hymie Novitsky, owner of the Filmrow cafe known as Hayes Coffee Shop, won't listen to his own advice. For days he cautioned exhibitors and filmites about jaywalking across the street to the Loyal Hotel, because of a current traffic drive. "Walk around to the intersection," says Hymie. In a hurry one day to get to the hotel barber shop, Hymie jaywalked. It cost him a $2.50 fine!

Now that Gene Blazer's home has been taken apart and put back together, the next thing on the Omaha Variety Club's social calendar is a Valentine Party on February 16, to be held at the club rooms. Last week's party was a huge success. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Georgia Rasley, exhibitor at O'Neill, Neb., and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Shire from Lincoln . . . Harold Schoonover, Aurora, Neb., was on Davenport Street.

John Metzger, exhibitor at Beaver City, Neb., has been reappointed chairman of the county fair board. The event has always been a big affair under Exhibitor Metzger's direction . . . Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas, exhibitors and apple-growers at Brownville, Neb., have left for six weeks on the west coast . . . Ike Rubin, Paramount peddler, had a birthday last week.

Mrs. Henry Howes, formerly Esther Anderson, came to Omaha the day after Charlie Williams was stricken and stayed until after the funeral. She worked for Charlie when the MPTO of Nebraska and western Iowa had an office here and later worked in the RKO exchange. Now she lives in Harrisonville, Mo. . . . Sam Burrus, Crete, Neb.; R. W. Brown, Neola, Ia., and Howard Brookings, Avoca, Ia., were among exhibitors in Omaha for the Williams funeral.

Boom Business Still Holds in Cleveland

CLEVELAND—Boom times have hit the local first runs since the beginning of the year, but this past week was the biggest since 1941 made its bow. Kay Kyser at the RKO Palace and "GWTW" in its second week at Loew's State, scrambled for top honors, with "Kitty Foyle" in its third week and "This Thing Called Love" making enviable showings. Kay Kyser didn't quite hit the record he established two years ago at the Palace, but he had 'em coming in in droves. Long boxoffice lines continued for a second week at Loew's State where "GWTW" continued to do sensational business and continued in first place throughout the country. It moves to the Stillman for a third consecutive week downtown at popular prices.

Weather was average for winter, with some snow. Hanna Theatre drew only moderate attendance for "Ladies in Retirement" starring Flora Robson and Philip Merivale. Special month-end department store sales brought hordes of people to the shopping centers, to the profit of the theatres.

Cincinnati First Runs KO'd by Weather

CINCINNATI—Sleet, ice and bad weather over the weekend proved the knockout for the Queen City shows, and Saturday and Sunday business was at its lowest. Improved conditions during the week didn't help business which continued to drag. The new week opened with some improvement and better weather promises a return of good boxoffice. The holdovers managed a better showing than the new features.

Pittsburgh First Run Crown to "GWTW"

PITTSBURGH—Pittsburgh's David O. Selnick's epic "Gone With the Wind," in its "popular priced" engagement here, after being successfully road-showed for ten weeks a year ago in the Warner, easily led the field here where it was exhibited four times daily in Loew's Penn. Despite bitter winter weather, thousands of theatregoers stood for hours awaiting entrance, and a Penn Avenue exit was used for admittance at the "breaks" of the show. "GWTW" brought additional business to other theatres too when many of those who could not be accommodated turned toward a different show shop. It was held over, of course, and was then booked to be moved over to the Warner. Columbia's "This Thing Called Love," which won a grand newspaper "nod" for adults, turned in one of the best grosses in the history of the Senator. "Thief of Bagdad" made a good showing in the Warner after a successful engagement in Loew's Penn, and was then moved over to the Ritz. Singer's Midgets of 1941 on the stage of the Stanley and "You'll Find Out" on the screen was under average, and Universal's "Invisible Woman" and the same company's "Where Did You Get That Girl" fared badly at the Fulton.

Holdovers Do Better Than Newcomers in Detroit

DETROIT—Local business downtown continued in the doldrums, as the flu took a heavier toll of Detroiters over the past week. Theatres have begun to be heavily hit, after discounting the earlier drops in attendance.

Lack of strong new attractions on first run screens was one important factor, with a fair number of pictures holding over, but little new that could draw the cash customers in paying quantities. Managers generally have come to agree that a good b. o. picture is essential, regardless of weather or health conditions, and expect the continuing low grosses when they are not available. The holdover films, incidentally, seemed to be drawing the best trade.

Army Unit Set

DETROIT—A 1,000-seat theatre, erected by the Army at Fort Custer near Battle Creek, will shortly be ready to open.

3 Bills Affecting Trade Pending in Michigan

By H. F. REVES

DETROIT—Theatres will be adversely affected by at least three bills now before the legislature, a checkup indicates. None of the bills introduced is directed primarily at theatres or the amusement industry, but several, general in intent, will have important effects on theatres if passed.

First of these is House Bill No. 15, which would require a state license for contracting or journeymen electricians, and which provides that "any work involved in servicing, repairing, etc., of theatrical equipment, such as motion picture projection equipment, stereopticans, floodlights, spotlights, and other stage equipment" must be done or supervised by a contractor or operating engineer licensed under the act. Operators would have to become licensed electricians under the proposed amendment, while emergency repairs, such as on a burned-out transformer, would have to be made by a regular contracting electrician, and the operator would have to close the show in such a case instead of making his own repairs as at present.

This bill, aimed primarily to cover the general electrical field, is not needed in theatres, and an amendment completely excluding theatres is proposed by the operators' union and by exhibitor representatives, led by Cooperative Theatres of Michigan.

Senate Bill 44 proposes a $16-a-week minimum compensation for women and girls wherever employed, and makes no provision for part-time workers.

Senate Bill 59 would allow Bingo games to be conducted by churches and veterans and fraternal organizations.

Crowding First Runs, But Snub Subsequents

CLEVELAND—Local exhibitors want to know why first-run houses are drawing such big attendance with corresponding rise in grosses, while subsequent runs report the bottom has dropped out of their business.

The flu epidemic has no doubt hit outlying houses harder than downtowns because children go to neighborhood houses almost exclusively.

Some in local theatre circles also point out thousands of re-employed people are now attending downtown houses for the first time in many years and deserting the neighborhoods which they have been patronizing because of the lower admission scales.

Named for F. D. R.

PITTSBURGH—January 30, which happens to be President Roosevelt's natal day, was a great day for Jack Adams, doorman at the Roosevelt Theatre here. For on that day he became the father of a 7½ pound boy. The new arrival has appropriately been named F. D. R. John Adams jr.

Organize in Detroit to Meet Local Problems

DETROIT—A new exhibitor organization is taking shape here as Theatre Owners, Inc., after several weeks of quiet preparatory work. The new body now includes most of the larger circuits and exhibitors of the city including practically all first and second run houses.

The purpose of the organization is to provide local exhibitors with one central meeting place from which to approach common problems. Under the setup, exhibitors will be able to meet and go over any local problems as they arise.

"It will be a common organization representing all theatre operators in Detroit in all matters affecting the industry as a whole," a spokesman for the new body says. "The problems of individual theatres or circuits will not be considered in any case, but only those problems which affect all theatres equally."

Membership will be restricted to theatres within Detroit. Suburban houses of member organizations will not be represented. Thus, it is pointed out, the organization will be solely engaged with local problems.

Civic matters in which the trade participates, such as charity drives, will also be handled through the organization.

William Henry Gallagher, prominent Detroit attorney, has been named president, and Ray Meurer, attorney for UDT, is executive secretary of the body.

Arbitration Board Set in Auto City

DETROIT—Detroit's arbitration system under the consent decree officially got under way on Saturday, with opening of offices at 861-863 Penobscot Building by I. H. Yackness, clerk of the local tribunal. Offices were temporarily across the hall for the first two or three days while redecorating was in progress.

The setup provides a reception room where a secretary will be stationed, private office for the clerk, and a commodious hearing room which will have a large table with chairs for those immediately concerned in the case being heard, together with folding chairs for spectators. It is planned to have accommodations for about 50 persons.

Yackness had received no complaints or indications of intention to file any up to Tuesday. He states the office is ready to handle all complaints and that procedure is outlined in the rules of arbitration supplementary to the consent decree which may be secured in pamphlet form from the tribunal office. (This was also published in BOXOFFICE, Nov. 30, 1940). Telephone number of the tribunal office is Cherry 6560.

Hearing in Detroit on Proposed Sign Law

DETROIT—A new hearing on Detroit's projected sign ordinance affecting theatres was set for Thursday by the city council. The projected ordinance would ban red flashing or intermittent signs unless they are some 22 feet above sidewalk level. The city now has a new traffic engineer, and his views on the situation are expected to be presented at the hearing.

Johnny Finley to Buffalo

WHEELING, W. VA.—Johnny Finley has been moved to Buffalo from the Vic here, to manage a neighborhood house.

Impractical to Buy As Unit—Buermele

DETROIT—Buying as a unit under the consent decree might work an injustice on individual members of Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, Carl R. Buermele, general manager, said following a study of the statement issued by 20th-Fox on booking cooperatives.

Buermele said that Co-Op had never bought as a unit, and that special considerations of different member houses made such a policy "impractical or impossible."

"If we bought pictures for all houses as a unit," he points out, "we might force some of our member-exhibitors to buy pictures that they didn't want for their particular houses."

Co-Op, incidentally, usually signs with practically every major distributor, or, as last year, with only one major left out, in order to cover the houses in its membership, so that no one house could possibly use all product signed up by the organization as a whole.

Bank Night Ruled Lottery In Washington, O., Court

WASHINGTON C. H., OHIO—In a decision handed down by Common Pleas Judge H. M. Rankin, Bank Night as conducted at Hoy Simons' Fayette Theatre was declared to be a lottery. Action had been delayed for several months awaiting a decision by the Ohio supreme court on the Troy Amusement Co. case, but the high tribunal did not rule on the legality of the game. On January 15 the suit was reopened when the theatre filed a demurrer to prevent city police from interfering with the game, and it was on this petition that the court ruled.

Judge Rankin held that the chief of police could seize the equipment, but it was not to be destroyed. City Manager Edwin Ducey said that, unless the operation of Bank Night was discontinued voluntarily, action would be taken to stop it.

UDT and W&W Will Operate Royal

DETROIT—The Royal, largest of Detroit's several new theatres of recent years, opened Friday. The house will be operated jointly by Detroit's two largest theatre circuits—United Detroit Theatres, which is a Paramount affiliate, and Wisper and Wetsman Theatres, independent circuit which is the largest unit in Cooperative Theatres of Michigan.

The Royal is a second run of 2,500 seats. Booking will be handled independently of either W&W or UDT regular bookings, although physical handling, for convenience, will go through existing facilities.

The house was set to open on December 27, and tickets were actually sold to some hundreds of a crowd estimated at 3,000 to 4,000 when it was announced the house would not open because of refusal of the management to accede to IATSE demands to employ a stagehand. This resulted in a decision of Roger M. Kennedy, IA vice-president, to order the operators out late that afternoon. The management contended that since there was no stage show, there was no room for employment of a stagehand. The union, on the other hand, contended there was sufficient maintenance work within the stagehands' jurisdiction to justify employing one man.

The situation remained at a standstill until the compromise settlement this past week following conferences between Kennedy and Earl J. Hudson, UDT president. Details of the settlement were covered in a joint statement issued by Hudson and Kennedy following the final conference:

"Through a readjustment of the maintenance of UDT, which owns a 50 per cent interest in the Royal, such maintenance work found to be necessary at the Royal and which is properly within the jurisdiction of the Stagehands' Union, will be handled by a member of that union who is employed as a regular staff member of the UDT maintenance department."

John Harris Signs Autry For the Rodeo Season

PITTSBURGH—Gene Autry has signed a contract with John H. Harris, local theatrical and sports magnate, whereby the Republic star will earn more than $100,000 during the rodeo season of March and April.

Harris, as president of the Arena Managers' Ass'n, stated that the popular cowboy will make appearances in ten or possibly a dozen cities. Autry flew from California to New York to meet Harris and conclude the deal. Republic's production schedule is being reshuffled to give Gene this leave of absence but the Autry films will not be late in release.

Autry has made various public appearances here at theatres and at the "International Rodeo." His last appearance here at the rodeo was a record-breaker, and last October when the Republic star stopped at the county airport en route to New York with "Champ," his horse, he was greeted by 5,000 fans.

Reunion—

Pictured together after many long years are the pioneers who popularized motion pictures in the Pittsburgh area. Richard A. Rowland and James B. Clark. Yes, Rowland & Clark. Their theatres, operated as one of the first important independent circuits, were absolute tops during their many years of service. The younger generation may not stir at the mention of Rowland & Clark but the oldtimers will clip this picture from BOXOFFICE for their memory book. The happy reunion came about last week when "Dick" Rowland returned to his home town to offer a trade screening of his new production for United Artists release, "Cheers for Miss Bishop."

Subsequents' Price Juggling Worries

DETROIT—Admission prices in Detroit, which have gone unchanged generally for a year aside from adjustments when the Michigan and Fox put in stage shows last summer and the general addition of the defense tax, are again in the limelight.

At present, focus of attention is on the subsequent runs, right down to typical last-run houses around the 15-cent level. Typical of the situation was the move of the Esquire sometime back of dropping admissions in this big new house to 15 cents, apparently because of inability to get better run preference in a competitive situation.

Disturbed by Trend

With plenty of local exhibitors thinking that prices should be raised as soon as business recovers enough to permit adjustment to rising costs of living, local industry leaders have become disturbed over threats to the existing price setup at the lower price levels.

"Some theatre interests have been taking over several small houses and operating for prices as low as five and ten cent admissions through special coupon arrangements," Carl R. Buermele, general manager of Cooperative Theatres of Michiman, says.

Although declining to name specifically houses mentioned, Buermele continues, "This price reduction is distinctly contrary to the policy of leading exhibitors, including Cooperative. We feel here, on the contrary, that a raise is called for."

Newsreel House in Cleveland Bows

CLEVELAND—Event of the week was the opening of the new 488-seat Telenews on lower Euclid Avenue by Herbert Scheftel, president of the Cleveland Newsreel Theatre Co.

Two elaborate previews preceded the formal turning over of the theatre to the public on Saturday. Members of the press, civic officials, representatives of the chamber of commerce, and other important groups, were entertained Wednesday at a cocktail party in the elaborate lounge located on the lower floor of the theatre, then were taken on an inspection tour of the house. A trade preview of both the theatre and films was held at two performances Friday night, one at 8 o'clock, the other at 9.

The Telenews was built at a cost of $200,000. Furnishings of the lounge, including a permanent modern art display, are said to have cost $25,000. The paintings—the work of leading moderns—will be changed periodically, according to Scheftel.

Admission scale is set at 28 cents, tax included, for adults at all performances and children 10 cents.

Shows consisting of specially edited newsreels and shorts of a factual nature will be confined to an hour. Programs will change weekly on Friday.

Scheftel will remain in Cleveland for several weeks to see his project properly launched. Publicity is in the hands of Elmer Wiener and Irving Ruben, formerly with Warner Bros., has been named house manager.

Other Telenews units are now being operated in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. Another is about to be built in Detroit.

Endorses Telenews' One-Hour Programs

CLEVELAND—The Cleveland Cinema Club, in its most recent bulletin, officially endorses the new Telenews, which confines its program to one hour of short subjects including newsreel, travel pictures and factual subjects.

The bulletin states that the club has long urged a short reel theatre because (a) many people genuinely like a varied program of short subjects, including the latest newsreels, (b) fine shorts deserve featured advertising and library exploitation, (c) such a program is more suitable for children than the standard ones.

Warner Club's Annual Party Held in Canton

CANTON, OHIO—Annual Warner Club party was held January 26 at a night club, with more than 40 members and guests in attendance. An informal program of entertainment and a buffet supper followed the dancing. Manager William Harwell of the Ohio Theatre, entertained with several guitar numbers. Among the guests were George A. Delis, district manager for Interstate Theatres, with headquarters here; Ralph Russell, assistant manager of the Palace; R. Jay Myers jr., and others.

Adjourn Midwest Suit to March 4

DETROIT—The suit of Midwest Theatres against Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, one of several theatrical suits now before local courts, was postponed on Monday for four weeks until March 4 because of pressure of other court business.

The companion suit of Jacob Schreiber, former owner of the houses now constituting the Midwest circuit, against Midwest Theatres, was postponed until March 18 by Judge Ira W. Jayne, presiding judge of the Wayne county circuit court. A trial judge has not yet been assigned to this case.

Both suits came up last week on the same day but in different courts, and presented a slight problem for attorneys and principals until the dual postponements.

Wheeler Was Just Too Much for Her

PITTSBURGH—Pressure groups in the industry are an old story to Florence Fisher Parry, who conducts the "I Dare Say" column in the Pittsburgh Press. On occasion, they have received her relatively mild attention, but Sen. Burton K. Wheeler's attack on the industry for producing "war propaganda" pictures was just too much. So she let herself go this way in stating the industry's case:

"I don't know where the movie industry draws its patience from! It has been the scapegoat for political, religious, artistic, international, civic and every-other-kind-of-persecution ever since it was born. It has spent more wealth, employed more people, circulated more money, furnished more pleasure, occupied more real estate, created more magazines, paid for more newspaper advertising, engaged more reader interest, encouraged more style trends, benefited more women by making them beauty conscious (hence health conscious), educated more children (yes EDUCATED them: the movies are the greatest supplementary education the public schools have today); increased more general knowledge, paid more taxes, solved more social problems by providing cheap entertainment, fostered more talent along every creative line, paid higher wages and salaries, developed more talent than any other one institution, industry or art on earth.

"Yet it is buffeted about in Congress at every pretext, pilloried by every 'investigation' body; it is ridiculed, defamed, belittled, misrepresented, insulted; it is attacked, censured, censored, maligned . . .

"Why? Why? Why make the movies the scapegoat?"

Condemn Drinking Scenes And War Glorification

COLUMBUS—The glorification of war and drinking scenes in films were condemned at the Ohio pastors' convention here. In a report approved at the final session, the pastors pointed out, however, that they were not handing down a blanket indictment of pictures.

S. army and will be called into service by mid-March . . . Tom Anas, a Filmrow booker the other day, reported that the flu epidemic has petered out and that Hancock county (W. Va.) theatres are open for business after having been closed for four days and operating for a week and a half with children not admitted . . . Steve Broidy visited here for several days last week for the first time as Monogram general sales manager. The well-known Boston film man and Mark Goldman, local Monogram manager, conferred on product and grosses.

Local educators, civic leaders and representatives of the various patriotic and service organizations attended a special preview of "Land of Liberty" last Monday evening at Loew's screening room. The Fulton feature is receiving the cooperation of newspapers and at least one radio station. AMPTO of W. Pa., by resolution, has approved "Land of Liberty" and has urged all theatres to cooperate in every way with M-G-M in the exhibition of this feature . . . Mrs. Ada C. Morgan, 77, mother-in-law of Kaspar Monahan, Press drama editor, died in Shadyside Hospital of pneumonia.

The new UA drive is being featured in Abe Weiner's office with a horse race board, which will spot the various branch exchanges with entries and which will indicate weekly progress. The Pittsburgh horse is on the outside line . . . Nixon relighted for the week of February 3 with "Tobacco Road" with John Barton in its "positively farewell tour of champion long run play." Billy House and Eddie Garr will be featured in "Hellzapoppin" the week of February 10.

Alvin Seiler has closed his Filmrow theatre supply house and is again operating at his original headquarters, the Seiler building, Greensburg, Pa. . . . Miss Meercy Braff of the M-G-M exchange is co-chairman of the "Frenesi Frolic" to be given February 10 in the El Chico restaurant by the Pittsburgh Council of Jewish Juniors.

He has a lot of new statistics on popcorn grosses which are startling . . . Dave Barnholtz has been writing "letters to the editor" appearing in the Press . . . Rose Schoss, former Filmrow employe, has returned to the celluloid colony and is on duty at the RKO exchange.

Finishing touches were being put on the new Urban, East McKeesport, this week for N. A. Malanos . . . Minnie Bishoff has resigned her office duties at the RKO exchange and she is now employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania . . . C. J. Latta is vacationing in California . . . Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Church of Mannington, W. Va., were Filmrow bookers this week, reporting that they had closed the Burt and were operating only the Mannington. This was Mrs. Church's first visit in several months. She is entirely well again after an illness.

Fred J. Herrington, AMPTO secretary, was in Harrisburg checking up on the legislative situation. He was present when Gov. Arthur H. James informed the general assembly that his budget for the 1941-1943 fiscal period will put the state's finances in balance for the first time since the depression. Emergency taxes, which at one time included a state theatre admission tax but which has been eliminated for several years, will be continued. It was through the efforts of the AMPTO that the state admission levy was discontinued. Herrington has been grabbing all the new legislative bills as they are introduced and he has been busy visiting members of the House and Senate.

LOUISVILLE

UNIVERSAL sneak previewed "Buck Privates" at the Strand, to a well pleased audience.

All exhibitors in the Louisville area (and elsewhere, we presume) were gifted this week with a specially designed plaster ash tray exploiting a forthcoming "Million Dollar Serial."

The Irving Theatre at Indianapolis has been purchased by William Rosenthal, operator of the Vogue here. Charles Doades continues as manager of the Irving, which is a de luxe neighborhood house.

Sammy Weinburg, who operates the Crescent and Shelmar theatres here, is confined to the hospital after an appendicitis operation. He is recovering nicely . . . A. B. McCoy of the Strand reports that thieves broke into his theatre over the weekend and tried to open a safe. Their attempts were unsuccessful, however.

Legislative scene: House Bill 125, introduced by Ford of Fulton county (Republican) would bring theatres in which televised pictures are shown under the state building code.

Lester Rosenfeld, Dunbar, W. Va., exhibitor, is planning a new theatre there to be known as the Welcome. He has commissioned the local F&Y Theatre Division to draw the plans for the 600-seat, $50,000 project. Rosenfeld also has the Best in Kanawaka City.

Peter Mikalarias, 56, Dies In Connellsville, Pa.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA.—Peter L. Mikalarias, 56, veteran exhibitor, died here last week. He had been failing in health for some time and had been bedfast for three months. For three years he had been practically blind.

Mikalarias for many years was a partner of Gust Marakas in exhibition here. Born in Greece, Mikalarias came to this country in 1899; he sold flowers in Philadelphia and two years later he joined a carnival with his own candy concession. Later he entered the candy business in Harrisburg and Lancaster. His first experience in the theatre industry was in Lancaster. In 1905 he opened a confectionery in Cumberland, and shortly thereafter he came to Connellsville.

Surviving are a brother, John Mikalarias, of Connellsville, a sister, two half-brothers and a half-sister, all residing in Greece. Burial was in Green Ridge Memorial Park at Pennsville.

Henry S. Koppin Services Are Held in Detroit

DETROIT—Funeral services were held Tuesday for Henry S. Koppin, who died in Toledo. He founded the Woodward Theatre Co. about a quarter century ago, and developed it until he operated 26 houses, the largest circuit ever operated under one control in this city. At the time, his brother, George Koppin, also had a string of about ten houses.

The deceased is survived by his widow and three other children, including Calvin, for whom the theatre of that name in Dearborn was named.

Boston AAA Office Has "Customers"

Boston—Requests for arbitration already are up before Henry de la Morandiere, in charge of the Boston headquarters for the American Arbitration Ass'n. When the offices opened Saturday in the Chamber of Commerce Building, a number of New England theatremen were waiting for proper blank forms to enter their requests.

Bills Would Legalize Betting, Lotteries

HARTFORD—Legalization of hore-race betting in Connecticut under both bookmaking and pari-mutuel systems, and establishment of a state lottery are proposed in bills introduced in the general assembly by Rep. Edward Segar, Democrat of Colchester.

The Colchester legislator declared that his pari-mutuel bill would be modeled after one which, although unsuccessful, gained considerable support at the 1939 session of the assembly. His measure legalizing bookmaking establishments would be similiar to one now pending in the New York state legislature, he said.

Lotteries and horse-race betting take large amounts of money out of Connecticut, Segar asserts, and he believes it would be to the interests of Connecticut taxpayers to divert some of this money to the state treasury through legislation.

Eight M&P Managers Back With Balaban Medals

BOSTON—Eight M&P Theatres Corp. managers now are sporting silver medallions awarded them at the Balaban Dinner in Chicago which they attended as respective district prize winners in the local Barney Balaban Drive.

Those with the medals include Jack Goodwin of the Metropolitan in Boston, George Moffit of the State in East Milton, Al Hamilton of the Empress in South Norwalk, William Hartnett of the Embassy in Waltham, James Dempsey of the Paramount in Lynn, Morris Simms of the Olympia in New Bedford, Harry Botwick of the State in Portland, and C. J. Russell jr., city manager in Bangor.

Bally Job for Storin

HARTFORD—Ed Carroll, operator of the Riverside Amusement Park, announces the appointment of Harry Storin, formerly associated with theatres in this area, as publicity director of that situation.

Valenti Succeeds Frank

HARTFORD—Frank Valenti, usher at the Loew's Poli here, has been appointed chief of service, succeeding Jules Frank, resigned.

Show Only Mild Interest In Pending Legislation

NEW HAVEN—Thus far exhibitors as a whole are evidencing only slight interest in the current legislative bills at Hartford, and heated public hearings at the last session on two-men-in-a-booth and Bingo will probably not be repeated. Since defeat in the 1937 session of new state tax on amusements, nothing further has been proposed on this score, although exhibitors feared such a bill.

One senate Bingo bill has already been filed, however, and is referred to the judiciary committee as S. B. 60. It reads: "The selectmen of any town, the mayor and aldermen, or common council of any city, or the warden or burgesses of any borough, in which town, city or borough the playing of Bingo has been authorized in accordance with Section 155e of the 1939 supplement to the General Statutes, may, upon application, permit Bingo to be played after the hour of 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon on Sundays."

The 1939 session of the legislature made it legal for towns to approve Bingo-playing, but by and for the benefit of civic, religious and other organizations of a similar nature only. Exhibitors opposed this discrimination, but were unsuccessful, and have since complained of the competition of Bingo. Representative Faulkner has also introduced a bill calling for creation of a commission to regulate and control Bingo in the state.

Anti-Discrimination Bill

Alienage, race or color discrimination is prohibited in Senate Bill 18, also referred to the judiciary committee. The bill states that all persons are entitled to full and equal accommodations in every place of public accommodation, resort, or amusement, and specifically names inns, hotels, restaurants, railroad cars, street cars, theatres, motion picture .houses, amusement and recreation buildings or parks. A maximum fine of $100 or imprisonment for 30 days or both are provided for violation, as well as liability to the aggrieved person of from $200 to $350.

Of interest to all corporations is S. B. 2 for the finance committee, which, if passed, would affect state corporation tax payment. Section 1 of this bill provides: "In arriving at net income as defined in Sec. 417c, whether or not the tax paid is taxable under the federal corporation net income tax, there shall be deducted from gross income all items deductible under the federal corporation net income tax law effective and in force on the last day of the income year, except (1) federal taxes on income or profits, losses of prior years, interest received from federal, state and local government securities, and specific exemptions, if any such deductions shall be allowed by the federal government, and (2) interest . . . paid during the income year."

An Ascap Measure

S. B. 70 states that each person who shall employ a minor under 18 years of age must obtain a certificate from the board of education stating the age of such minor, and that such certificate must be kept on file for inspection.

H. B. 132 provides a $20,000 appropriation for improvement and maintenance of recreational facilities at the Paugnut State Forest.

H. B. 90 concerns radio advertising of alcoholic liquors, and is thus far the only radio legislation filed. It provides that no permittee shall sell, offer for sale, or dispense any brand of alcoholic liquor which has been advertised over any radio broadcasting station since July 1, 1941. A year's suspension of permit is the fine advocated

A new bill has been filed at Hartford which would oblige Ascap to pay a license fee for the use of Connecticut radio and orchestras. The bill has been laughingly branded radio's attempt to continue foisting BMI's "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair" on the "long-suffering" radio audience.

Claims Distributor Forced Hiked Price

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.—Nathan E. Goldstein, president of Western Massachusetts Theatres, declared here following a conference with Mayor C. J. O'Connor concerning protests of increased prices at the Calvin during the showing of Paramount's "North West Mounted Police," that neither the Calvin nor any other house in his organization had any say in the matter of increasing prices for the picture, and that his contract with the distributing company made higher prices mandatory.

A strong protest was lodged with the mayor by Alderman Francis P. O'Donnell, who claimed that raising prices for special features, especially on Sunday, worked a hardship on the working man who usually had only that day with his family for rest and recreation. The alderman urged that theatres who raise prices on Sunday be subjected to commensurately stiffer license fees.

800-Seat Theatre Being Designed for Concord

BOSTON—Plans have been drawn up by Robb & Little, local architects, for a proposed new theatre in Concord. Although motion pictures occasionally have been shown in the town, zoning authorities there have in the past excluded a modern motion picture house.

Julius Meyer, associated in the deal to put up a new $50,000 house on Main Street, indicates that the theatre will seat about 800 and will be put into operation late this year.

Limitations Issue Will Be Heard in Momand Case

BOSTON—A hearing before a Master upon the issue of the Statute of Limitations has been ordered by the local U. S. District Court in the local anti-trust suits brought by George S. Ryan against major film interests in behalf of Loretta L. Momand and A. B. Momand. Ryan also is representing the plaintiffs in anti-trust actions in Oklahoma.

Federal Judge Hugh D. McClellan ruled: "Enough has been said to indicate that at sometime the issues raised by the Statute of Limitations must be considered, and that they can be determined upon much less evidence than would be involved in a trial of the whole case . . . According, it is ordered that the case be treated separately upon the issue of the Statute of Limitations, and the filing of objections to and the answering of the interrogatories propounded by the plaintiff to the defendants is to await the trial of this issue."

The Momand anti-trust actions, seeking triple damages, contain the plaintiff's motion that recites that the applicable statute is that of Massachusetts which, allegedly, provides a period of six years in this type of case.

Reference to Gov't Suit

The Court explained, "During the past ten years, a number of suits have been begun, either civil or criminal, by the United States Government against the motion picture industry. The plaintiff asserts that these have the effect of tolling the Statute of Limitations . . . whether or not they have such effect depends upon whether or not the present suit involves any 'private right of action arising upon said laws and passed in whole or in part on any matter complained of in said suit of proceedings.' No attempt can here be made to express any view as to whether some or all the items of damages alleged are barred because the determination of these questions depends in part on matters of evidence."

The Federal Court decided on a plaintiff's motion for the production of documents, to reserve determination of that motion until the preliminary issue of the Statute of Limitations shall be decided in the Court.

Decision on defendants' obligations to plaintiff's interrogatories was also reserved.

In both cases, the plaintiff's motion to strike and to require admission or denial of facts, stated in the request for admission of facts, was denied by Judge McClellan.

"This does not mean, of course," the Court added, "that a response may not be stricken as containing scandalous matter or for a like reason."

The defendants' responses, he also said, "were to constitute sworn statements which 'deny specifically the matters of which an admission is requested or setting forth in detail the reasons why he (they) cannot truthfully either admit or deny these matters,' for they do not. If they do, the facts are not admitted, and the defendants by the virtue of Rule 37 (c) may have to pay the plaintiff's reasonable expenses of their proof."

Friends in Tribute To Morris Joseph

NEW HAVEN—A large, enthusiastic group of friends made in long years of association on Meadow Street, as well as in the city and state at large, gathered to wish "Dean" Morris Joseph good health and a happy respite from his almost 29 years in the film industry at Ceriani's Restaurant Monday.

As a farewell token to the retiring Universal manager, the guests at the luncheon presented a portable typewriter with the hope that he would use it to keep in touch with the district from his new home in Miami Beach.

Harry F. Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager, m.c. par excellence, made the presentation. In charge of the luncheon were Max Tabackman, Samuel Seletsky, and Herman M. Levy.

Joseph, who was influential in having New Haven established as the only exchange center between Boston and New York, and has seen the growth of the territory and trained many of its important figures, said on leaving:

"I am happy to leave, and yet my happiness is intermingled with sadness and regret. I've spent the greatest part of my life here, and during that period I've made a great many friends and well-wishers. I hate particularly to leave Meadow Street, where I enjoyed my long record of coping with the Connecticut exhibitors. When I say 'cope,' that's saying something, because the Connecticut exhibitors are undoubtedly the smartest in the United States."

Joined "U" in 1912

Joseph's first connection with Universal was in May, 1912, when he was employed at the "U" exchange in Springfield. In 1914, with Springfield closed as an exchange center, Joseph was established in the New Haven Universal exchange as manager. His move to Meadow Street was followed by location of other exchanges on the Street, which is now the pulse of the Connecticut film industry.

Joseph's friends gave him a gala testimonial dinner at the Taft on the occasion of his 20th anniversary as Universal manager here; on his 25th he was host to hundreds of friends at a cocktail party at the Universal offices. He hopes his retirement on a pension by the Universal company will "serve as a precedent in the industry." He is succeeded here by John Pavone, who also has a long record of service in film distribution in New Haven.

BOSTON

AL SHEEHAN, manager of the Colonial in Boston, has been seriously ill . . . Phil Engel of Warner was in town . . . Norman Poretsky of Wholesome Film was on the sick list . . . James Grainger, Monogram executive, was in.

Joseph and Max Levenson celebrated the third anniversary of the Brookline in the Boston suburb. John Markle tied in on several promotions for the event.

Phillip Lavine, general manager of the Ralph Snider circuit, was out of town on business . . . Nate Yamins, Fall River exhibitor, is in Florida . . . Roy E. Heffner, Bank Night assignee, was in Kansas City last week . . . Lou Newmann, new Trans Lux manager, and Spencer Rudnick, his assistant, have been working up a number of new publicity promotions.

Al Winston, former Trans Lux manager, is reportedly connected with the Ralph Snider circuit . . . Boston film critics accepted Universal invitations to be the distributor's guests for one week in Miami and, incidentally, to preview "Back Street" there . . . Ralph Snider, circuit head, is in Florida.

Marty Glazer, advertising manager for the Paramount and Fenway, sank his teeth into two more first-runs this week when "Honeymoon for Three" and "Behind the News" hit the twin houses which generally play behind the Metropolitan . . . Dorothy Gish and Louis Calhern are still in town with "Life With Father" which has set up a new local theatrical record by going into its 19th week.

Ray Read, Heywood-Wakefield executive, is back at the home office following an extended business trip . . . Moroni Olsen, Hollywood star, is conducting a new course in the Technique of Motion Picture Acting at the Leland Powers School of the Theatre locally. One classroom has been for the use as a motion picture studio and the classes are conducted exactly as the work is done in Hollywood, according to Olsen . . . Ralph Austrian of RCA was here last week.

Jack Goodwin, manager of the Metropolitan, and his entire staff will handle the house during the 12 performances of the Metropolitan Opera Company, beginning March 27 and ending April 5 . . . Merton Carr, former Vermont exhibitor, is reportedly taking it easy at his Randolph home in the Green Mountain state.

Marie Doherty of Keith's Memorial is engaged . . . Jack Granara, RKO publicist locally, has set a fencing tournament to exploit "Son of Monte Cristo." He has also arranged for a father and son night when the feature hits Keith's Memorial . . . Granara has tied in with I. J. Fox, furriers, as a part of his campaign on "Hudson's Bay."

Clarence Finn, president of the Press Photographers Association in Boston, has announced that the organization's annual dinner-dance will be held April 14 at the Versailles Club . . . Leonard Kraska, Fine Arts house manager, disposed of over 600 souvenir programs during the run of "Here Is Ireland" at the theatre.

AID Moves to Expand Film Buying Survey

BOSTON—Arthur K. Howard, new National Allied recording secretary and a member of the Allied Information Department, commenced lining up of the AID educational campaign last week immediately upon his return from the Allied confab in Washington. Howard stated that the aim of the new drive will be to bring information from more exhibitors under the scope of the survey, making the latter more comprehensive.

Local organizations, rather than Allied States Association itself, will support AID in the future, inasmuch as it is felt that with the buying season extended to 52 weeks of every year, the information handed out by the body is of much greater importance than it has been heretofore.

Double-Your-Money Deal For Cinema Club Dance

BOSTON—Anyone soberly not considering the Boston Cinema Club Fifth Annual Dinner Dance, the best ever sponsored by the local film fraternity, Vice-President Bill Cuddy stated last week, will be given double his admission fee.

Working to make the March 16 affair at the Cocoanut Grove the top of all times, are such Cinema Club members as Charles Wilson of Republic, Tom Fermoyle of M&P, Abe Barry of Columbia, Larry Herman of the Snider circuit, Charles Repec of M-G-M, and Dave Grover and Harry Smith of RKO.

Defense Orders For $9,743,000

Russell With Poli Chain 22 Years

NEW HAVEN—For Robert E. Russell, manager of the Loew-Poli, Valentine Day has a special significance. It marks the 22nd anniversary of his association with the Poli chain as auditor for the entire circuit and right-hand man to the late Sylvester Z. Poli, auditor for subsequent regimes, and manager of the "A" house here.

In the World War, Russell served in the Navy commissary dept. It was after the Armistice that he became associated with Poli, colorful pioneer in film exhibition in Connecticut and founder of the present Loew-Poli string of houses. In a short time he took over all the Poli finances, both business and personal.

In the series of mergers, changes, and reorganizations which subsequently involved the theatres and their personnel, Russell remained as valuable employe to all operators. Under Harry F. Shaw and the Loew regime, he was first auditor and in charge of maintenance and upkeep of all 15 houses. In October, 1936, he took on the management of the 3,000-seat Loew-Poli Theatre in New Haven, and with his thorough business background and knowledge of the Elm City, has become outstandingly successful in this role as well.

Levine Opens Exchange On Meadow Street

NEW HAVEN—I. Levine, for many years on the distributing end on Filmrow here, has opened an office on Meadow St., operating as Inter-State Film Co., for the distribution of Northeastern, Imperial and Select attractions. The new product is to include two-reel Chaplins, and two-reel Shirley Temple comedies, as well as a horror duo, "Face in the Window" and "Torso Murder Case." Levine was local manager of Grand National.

Four Newsreels Covering Local Event to Bridgton

BOSTON—When four newsreels came out last week Wednesday with shots of the "Biggest Bob-sled in the World," made in Bridgton, Maine, where C. F. Millett, operator of the State is chairman of a winter carnival, Herbert Higgins, independent booker handling Millett's film schedules, rushed through arrangements with the four distributors and rushed prints of all the reels on the 12:30 train for Bridgton. Millett collected plenty of additional coin because of the timeliness.

Flesh for Two Years

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The E. M. Loew's Court Square here celebrated its second anniversary of vaudeville by offering Georgie Mae and an augmented stage show to patrons. NEW HAVEN

DEPARTURE of "Dean" Morris Joseph for permanent residence in the south after a long illness evoked many reminiscences on "the good old days" and the old timers . . . Joseph would have celebrated his 26th anniversary as Universal manager here in May . . . Bob Russell, who celebrates his 22nd anniversary with the Poli houses on Valentine Day, recalls Joseph as one of the first film notables he knew in the district along with Bill Scully and Lester Tobias . . . At his 20th anniversary dinner at the Taft, Joseph was still being kidded about his "Foolish Wives" deal . . . On his 23rd, he told us ". . . I can definitely feel that dark clouds usually do have their silver linings," and looked forward to entertaining his friends on his 25th . . . This he did at a gala cocktail party at the "U" offices, with a film of himself and Mike Tomasino showing the inside dope on contract-signing, as extra entertainment.

William C. deMille, Hollywood producer, speaking at the New Haven Open Forum in the First Methodist Church here, pleaded for freedom of the motion picture, as well as freedom of the press . . . He said that pictures, like plays, show the public what it is thinking, and help formulate the ideas it already has taken up; that pictures do not introduce new ideas or propaganda, or if they try these things, they fail . . . Oscar Doob of the Loew's home office came up to the Poli division office to talk about "So Ends Our Night," going into the Poli houses in New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport and Meriden February 13. Present were Harry F. Shaw, Bob Russell, Jack Simon, Matt Saunders, Lou Cohen and Joe Samartano. An extensive campaign was outlined. Also David L. Loew and Albert Lewin, producers of the picture, were honor guests at a special press luncheon in anticipation of the opening at the Hotel Taft Wednesday. Professor Allardyce Nicoll, head of the Yale University department of drama, and Dr. William Lyon Phelps were other notables present. Lewin was interviewed from the Taft over station WELI, and later spoke to the Yale Drama students on motion picture production. Harry Shaw, Lou Wechsler, Lou Brown and Bob Russell officiated. Lewin produced "Spawn of the North" and "Zaza"; Loew, "Wide Open Faces," "The Gladiator" and "Flirting with Fate."

Flue and other germs continue to swell the sick list . . . Morris Rosenthal, Majestic manager, Bridgeport, laid up with a strep throat . . . Lou Brown, Loew-Poli publicity chief, was out for several days . . . Harry Rose of the Globe, Bridgeport, is a patient at Bridgeport City Hospital as a result of a kidney ailment . . . Tim O'Toole, Columbia manager, and Earl Wright, 20th-Fox, just back after serious grippe attacks . . . Sid Lax, Columbia shipper, also got the bug for a few days . . . Lee Alderman, Warner contract clerk, recuperating from an operation at Grace Hospital while Katherine Bolton temporarily relieves her at the office . . . Helen Platt, Warner inspectress, out ill with an infected jaw shortly after receiving the sad news of her brother, Tom Gannon's sudden death . . . Harold Eskin a district visitor for the first time in two months after an illness in Florida . . . Mrs. Sam Badamo, wife of the College manager, another grippe patient . . . Also Morris Mendlesohn, wife of the Loew-Poli attorney . . . Bob Munzner, College assistant manager, forced to take short leave of absence . . . Morey Goldstein, new Metro manager, insists those black glasses aren't hiding something he got peeping through a keyhole, or in any altercation with an exhibitor.

Film bowling tournament at the end of the season is the plan of the committee, and the boys are shaping up . . . Loew-Poli ushers, captained by Frank Manente, are still undefeated . . . Next game scheduled is Al Pickus' Stratford team vs. Columbia at the Roger Sherman alleys . . . 20th-Fox beat Warner, Ben Simon, Sam Germaine, Sal Popolizio, Domenick Somma and Lou Wechsler playing for the former, and Larry Germaine, Bob Eliano, Budd Bachus, Morris Weinstein and Lester Saratus, for the latter . . . Although Columbia won two games out of three, a total pin fall of 1,552 against 1,527 won the recent match with a Paramount-exhibition team. Tim O'Toole, Ben Lourie, Edward Canelli, Al Parizer and Al Pickus played for Columbia against Edward Ruff, Henry Germaine, Lou Schaefer, Herman M. Levy and Billy Burke.

Local B-41 of exchange employes met for the first official 1941 meeting at the Hotel Garde Monday, with Samuel Zipkin of Universal presiding . . . Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut held a regular meeting Tuesday and reported only routine business . . . Thomas Fitzsimmons, attorney, has been registered as lobbyist for the stagehands' and operators' unions at the Hartford legislature . . . Loew-Poli ushers are dancing again, celebrating Valentine Day with their favorite girl friends at Seven Gables Inn, Milford. Committee in charge includes Marshall Blevins, Jerry DeLise, Arthur DeFrank and John Santillo. Harry F. Shaw will be guest of honor and what else but m.c. . . . Also honor guests are Lou Brown, Bob Russell, Nat Rubin, Sam Badamo and Bill Reisinger . . . Burning question is which celebrity Nat Rubin will escort . . . Bernhart E. Hoffman of the Warner Theatre department has been re-elected to the board of the Jewish Family Service . . . Dick Cohen, book premium and theatre program distributor, is father of a 7 pound 12 ounce boy, Peter Irwin, born at Grace Hospital.

Bob Bergin, former student assistant at the Elm Street, Worcester, has been promoted to assistant, succeeding Max Nesvetsky, who is now assistant manager of of the Poli, Worcester.

"Fantasia" Consensus Is All to the Good

BOSTON—"Fantasia" opened an extended roadshow run at the Majestic here last week before a society, intelligentsia, and run-of-the-mill audience under the joint sponsorship of the New England Town Hall and the Institute of Modern Art. Although critics differed on their comments, the only reaction at the boxoffice was an ever-increasing avalanche of advance orders. The opening got more front page space than usual as many newspapers sent film, music, editorial, and fashion writers to cover the event.

Alexander Williams, music critic for the Herald, wrote: "The whole thing has been handled with what amounts to a touch of genius," but it remained for another music critic, Warren Storey Smith of the Post, to give the film its heaviest and perhaps most obscure knocks.

"Blot on Disney"

Smith called it "a blot on Mr. Disney's artistic escutcheon," and added, "it is hard to condone Mr. Taylor's acquiescence and Mr. Stokowski's participation."

Wrote Smith: "A noble art, long secure in its place and position, is here forced to serve as the handmaiden of one that is still in the experimental stage, though applied in this instance with infinite ingenuity—and also with frequent lapses from good taste and with a superabundance of detail that often irritates and finally exhausts the one who would both see and hear. Moreover, in many cases the original intentions of the composers are treated with a sublime disregard."

As another paper explained it, "What sounds to the sordid soul like a drunken man beating his wife is to another like the roar of the mighty ocean beating on rocks."

The Herald, editorially, called Disney "a Walt Whitman of the screen" and added that Disney "has given sound and sight additional meaning . . . science has consorted with art, as mechanical accomplishments are almost as noticeable as the artistic.

"The orthodox furrowed the brow and raised the upper lip of trifle when Harvard, Yale and other institutions saw in Walt Disney far more than a funny draftsman with a roaming, entrancing fancy, and awarded him honorary degrees. These universities considered him a great creative, pioneering figure—just as many serious persons admire Fred Stone as a great clown or Charlie Chaplin as a truly superior artist. 'Fantasia' vindicates the judgment of the academic groups. Everything considered, what artistic development in the history of the stage surpasses it?"

"GWTW" Earns Third Week in New Haven

NEW HAVEN — The invisible flu germ made visible dents in business this week as it hit whole families and confined them to their homes. "GWTW," in its second week at the College, withstood all odds, however, and almost halved the first week's business at the "A" house on this picture. It will be held a third week. "Kitty Foyle" and the "Case of the Black Parrot" at the Roger Sherman also piled up good business. Other downtowns went under the line.

Detail for the week ended January 30:

College—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M), 2nd wk. 225
Loew-Poli—Chad Hanna (20th-Fox); Maisie Was a Lady (M-G-M) 80

Gordon, Lockwood Get The State in Calais

BOSTON—Louis Gordon and Arthur Lockwood, heads of the rapidly enlarging Gordon & Lockwood circuit, extend their holdings into northern Maine with the acquisition of the State in Calais from Charles Staples.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

SIX new bills have been introduced in the legislature proposing laws fixing minimum wage and maximum hour standards and otherwise governing the relationship between employes and employers.

Employes of the Crown and Strand theatres sent floral tributes to the funeral of John J. Young at St. Anne's Church in Manchester.

"Hoot" Gibson and his wife were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Bell at Reed's Ferry.

The Town Hall of the new model village of Hill, replacing a community of the same name wiped out in a flood control project, has been formally accepted by the board of selectmen.

NEW BRITAIN

NICK MARLAMES of the Roxy was to have returned this week from a St. Petersburg vacation . . . More than 1,800 persons, most of them children, attended a show at the local Strand for the benefit of infantile paralysis sufferers. Total proceeds of the show were approximately $190.

Pattie McMahon, manager of the State, is planning the construction of a new home . . . Peter Perakos, Palace owner, reports business pretty good of late . . . Al Ireland, Roxy doorman, is quite a winter sports enthusiast.

John S. P. Glackin, Arch Street; Phil Demas, Roxy; Pattie McMahon, State; and Peter Perakos, Palace, all were in New Haven last week on business.

Pin Newsreel Wrestling Clip on Censor's Floor

BOSTON—Scenes of wrestling, dancing and carrion were clipped from three of the 59 films licensed last week for Massachusetts Sunday showing by the State Bureau of Sunday Censorship.

A wrestling clip was excluded in its entirety from Loew's, Inc. News of the Day No. 237. Scenes showing dead horses were cut out of the first reel of "Poland Is Not Lost," while censors excluded third reel scenes of dead women lying on the ground. In M-G-M's "Wild Man of Borneo" fourth reel scenes showing girl dancing were given the shears.

Harry Smith in Charge of Legion Post Banquet

BOSTON—Harry P. Smith of RKO was chairman in charge of the successful Past Commanders and Ladies Night held by the Theatrical Post of American Legion at a film district nitery here Monday.

Among the former commanders honored at the well-attended affair were Dr. William Basch, William J. Cotty, Kenneth Forkey, Col. Joseph F. Gohn, Patrick F. Healey, Charles E. Heath, William H. McLaughlin and James H. Sheeran.

"Philadelphia Story" Is Put on "Adult" List

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The Springfield M. P. Council classifies "The Philadelphia Story" as a film for "adults only," in its latest analysis of product.

The following are listed for the family: "Honeymoon for Three," "High Sierra," "Kitty Foyle," "Victory," "Gone With the Wind," "Invisible Woman," "South to Karanga," "This Thing Called Love" and "Let's Make Music."

Charlie Brennan

HARTFORD—Charlie Brennan, manager of the local Loew's Poli about seven years ago, died recently in Walter Reid Hospital, Washington, D. C., according to word reaching here.

Interstate Settles With O. B. Bridges

DALLAS—The Interstate circuit has effected a settlement out of court in the O. B. Bridges anti-trust suit against it and the eight majors.

Terms of the settlement were not disclosed, but were described as "a figure satisfactory to Mr. Hoblitzelle and Mr. Bridges."

The Bridges suit had been pending for some time and was instituted by the independent exhibitor when he operated the Palace in Houston. It charged price fixing on the part of the circuit to the detriment of Bridges' operation.

The settlement winds up all pending damage suits against the circuit.

Hear Interstate Motion in Jorgenson Suit Monday

DALLAS—Hearing on Interstate's motion before Judge W. H. Atwell in federal court to have the jury verdict in the Jorgenson damage suit set aside in favor of an instructed verdict for the defendants, has been delayed until Monday. In case the instructed verdict is not realized, Interstate will ask for a new trial, it is believed.

Jorgenson recently was awarded $4,500 damages in a suit involving price restrictions and availability.

Robb & Rowley Transfer Two Operating Heads

DALLAS—Shifts of operating heads in two Robb & Rowley-United towns have just been made. Sam Stokes, after many years as manager in McAlester, Okla., goes to Corpus Christi where he will relieve Bruce Collins as city manager. Collins, it was said, will devote his time to R&R real estate in the boom city and will also look after personal holdings. He remains, however, as partner of the circuit in Corpus. To McAlester goes Alex Blue, formerly assistant to J. F. Jones in Palestine. Blue's place is filled by John Callahan, a brother of Dave Callahan, who is the R&R manager in Waxahachie.

Shorthose and Interstate Building in Paris, Tex.

PARIS, TEX.—W. F. Shorthose, local business man, is starting remodeling work on a new independent theatre here which he expects to open within the next few weeks. He secured a lease on the location a short time ago and has purchased equipment for it.

Last Monday, however, the Interstate circuit started remodeling of a store location they recently acquired which will make their fourth theatre here. The Shorthose show will make the total five.

Thurman Lumpkin Promoted

FORT WORTH, TEX.—Thurman Lumpkin, formerly of the Palace service staff here, has been named assistant manager of the Camp Bowie Theatre at Brownwood, Tex.

"Wind," "Hudson's Bay," "Arizona" Smashers

NEW ORLEANS—Decree or no decree, the public is tearing down the doors over the excellence of the films shown in all houses. "GWTW" came back to Loew's after a seven-and-a-half week run at more than top prices—but this time at 50 cents top and packed them in. It will go to the neighborhoods at a slight advance after the protection period. "The Philadelphia Story" is underlined. At the Orpheum, "Arizona" proved that Southerners go strong for the westerns. "This Thing Called Love" is being held for a third week at the Liberty, another Mort Singer theatre. Over at the Saenger, "Hudson's Bay" brought a touch of snow and ice, saved a new world and reunited two lovers to be followed by "Second Chorus," with "Victory" as a midnight show. Business has been good all over the city.

(Average is 100)

Globe—Bitter Sweet (M-G-M) 95
Liberty—That Thing Caled Love (Col), 2nd wk..100

Underwood and Ezell Sell Republic Texas Franchise

DALLAS—Republic Pictures Corp. of New York has purchased their Texas franchise from W. G. Underwood and C. C. Ezell, who thereby retire from distribution after being in that end of the game since its earliest days.

James R. Grainger, Republic president; J. E. McMahon, company attorney, and Frank Soule, special representative for Herbert Yates, were here several days at the Adolphus Hotel working on the deal which was finally closed Monday night.

Lloyd B. Rust, who continues as local Republic manager, said there would be no changes whatever in the Dallas branch in either personnel or service.

Underwood operated Specialty Film Co. here for many years. In June, 1935, he joined forces with Ezell and as a team they built up a prospering business. When Bank Night came along, they added vastly to their coffers.

Today they are devoting their full time to building drive-in theatres in Texas and to other theatre interests.

Isley Builds in Mineral Wells and Brownwood

DALLAS—Theatre activities of Phil R. Isley continue to attract attention here.

He started construction Monday on a 1,000-seater in Mineral Wells across the street from where Resort Amusement Co. (Robb & Rowley), have a new theatre under way. Isley also started construction Monday on a new theatre in Brownwood where he opened the new Plaza about 90 days ago. On February 6, he opened the new Bobby Walker in Abilene. The house was named for his grandson.

Hear Boyce House

WACO, TEX.—Boyce House, widely-read Texas newspaper columnist who served as technical director for M-G-M's "Boom Town," addressed the Junior Chamber of Commerce membership on the subject, "How I Took Hollywood by Storm." His speech was a humorous take-off on his experiences while in the film capital.

Desguin Installs Sound

PUNTA GORDA, FLA.—L. V. Desguin is installing RCA sound in his New Theatre.

Arbitration Office Open in Charlotte

CHARLOTTE — The arbitration tribunal serving the two Carolinas as provided by the consent decree governing industry relations is now open here at 1315 Liberty Life Building.

In charge is Joseph C. Wright who before assuming the duties was connected with the local office of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co. He also has been active in the junior chamber of commerce and other civic groups.

Arbitrators of complaints, Wright points out, will be chosen from fields outside the industry and announcement of appointees will be made within two weeks.

Would Legalize Betting On Horses in Arkansas

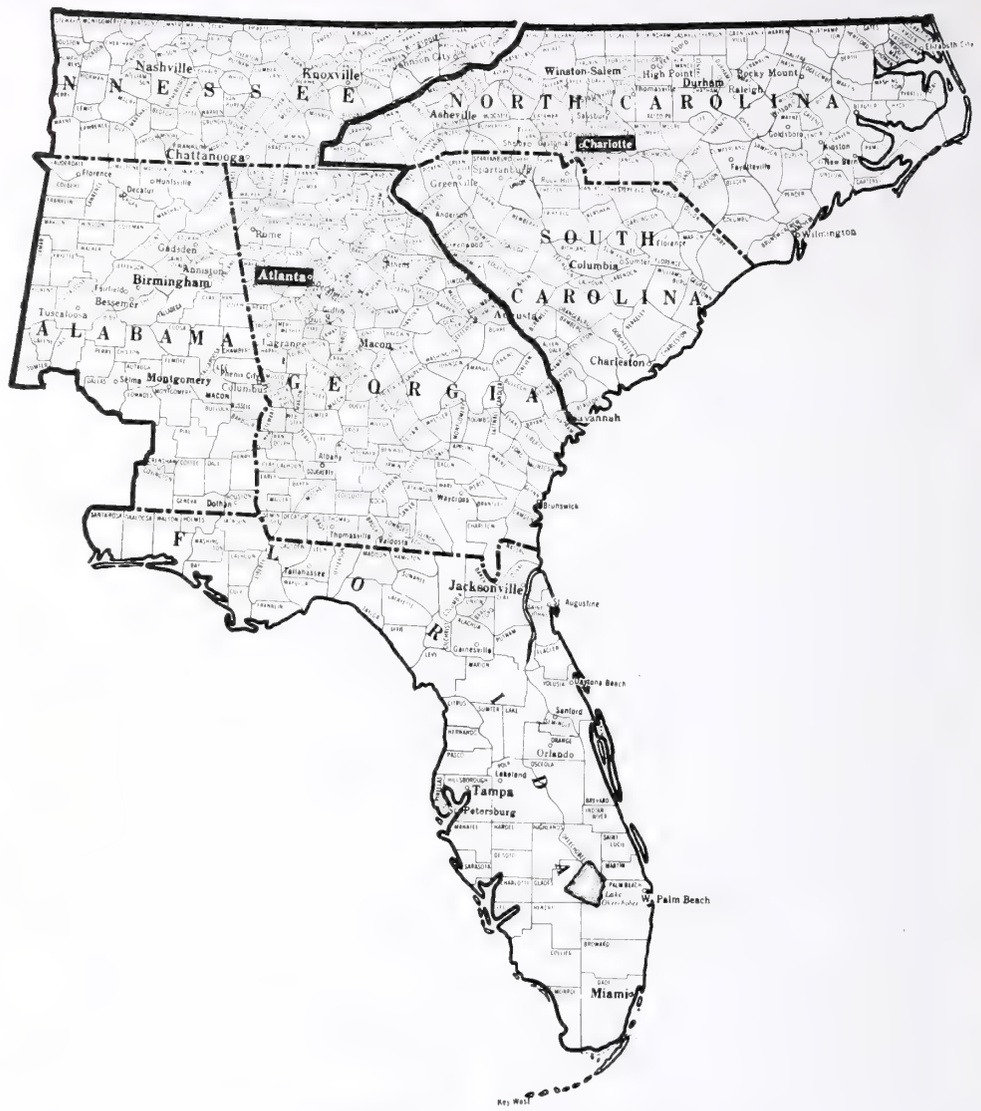
LITTLE ROCK—A bill has been introduced in the House to legalize the placing of bets on horse races with licensed bookmakers. The license fee would be $50 annually. A tax of seven per cent would be levied on the total amount of bets accepted. Revenue would pay the cost of administering a proposed federal food stamp plan in Arkansas counties.

Another bill introduced in the House would increase the privilege tax on money wagered in pari-mutuel machines at horse race tracks from the present five to 15 per cent. The additional revenue would be allotted to payment of old-age pensions.

New Daytona Beach Unit To Show Warner Product

DAYTONA BEACH, FLA.—A permit for the construction of a $50,000 theatre in the Burgoyne Block on North Beach Street, has been signed by George W. Steele, local contractor. The new house will be air conditioned and accommodate about 1,000 patrons.

The property is owned by W. R. Lovett, Jacksonville business man, who will finance the structure and lease it to a New York group. The new theatre will feature Warner pictures, which have not been shown here in more than a year.



The Fire at Norton

BRISTOL, TENN.—Recent mention of a fire in Bristol, Tenn., was erroneous. The first was not in Bristol, but in Norton, Va., 60 miles northwest. The New Norton was destroyed with a loss of $50,000 to $60,000. The theatre was owned by the King Cole Theatre Corp., which operates out of Marion, Va.

Atlanta Variety Club Holds Gala Banquet

By HELEN HARDY

ATLANTA—The annual banquet of the Atlanta Variety Club Tent No. 21, was held in the Henry Grady Hotel, Saturday, February 1, and was indeed a spectacular piece of showmanship. It was a thrill-packed evening of entertainment headed by such celebrities as Deanna Durbin, Allan Jones, and Bob Hawk, quizmaster of "Take It or Leave It" radio fame.

Dean Raimundo De Ovies, chaplain of Atlanta Tent No. 21, opened the banquet with the Variety prayer and Allan Jones sang "God Bless America."

William K. Jenkins, Chief Barker, spoke on the origin of the Variety Club, and gave a report of the past year's work. Bob O'Donnell of Dallas, Tex., first assistant chief barker of the Variety Clubs of America, inducted the roster of officers and directors for 1941, which is composed of William K. Jenkins, chief barker; Harry G. Ballance, first assistant; Charles E. Kessnich, second assistant; Robert B. Wilby, dough guy; Egbert E. Whitaker, property master, and the directors, John Ezell, R. L. McCoy, Paul S. Wilson, Dave Prince, J. F. Kirby and Willis J. Davis.

The following notables were introduced by Jenkins: T. J. Conners, southern division manager for M-G-M; Mrs. James Durbin, Deanna's mother; Troy Chastain, chairman of the Fulton county board of commissioners; Lindley Camp, secretary of the state senate; Major Clark Howell; James Grizzard, executive secretary to Mayor Roy LeCraw; Herman Talmadge and his mother, Mrs. Gene Talmadge, wife of the governor of Georgia; Randall Evans jr., speaker of the house of representatives; Charles Redwine, president of the state senate; Mitchell J. Hamilburg, Miss Durbin's manager; John Joseph, director of publicity and advertising for Universal; George Thomas of Universal's publicity department; Harry Graham, district manager and John Ezell, branch manager of Universal in Atlanta, and presidents of the Atlanta civic clubs.

The evening reached a spectacular climax when Jenkins, on behalf of the Variety Clubs of America, presented the Berry Schools of Rome, Ga., with a check for $1,000 as a tribute from the organization to Miss Martha Berry, founder of the institution, who was awarded Variety's Humanitarian Award for 1940, at the annual convention in Dallas last spring. Miss Berry, had planned to attend but was unable to be present due to illness. Miss Inez Henry, who accepted the check in behalf of Miss Berry, came forth to "steal the show" from all with her touching story of the mountain children and how the $1,000 check would keep six children in school for one year.

Dean De Ovies made the formal address of the evening on "What Variety Can Mean to This Community."

An evening filled to the brim with entertainment that lasted for three and one-half hours (and seemed like 30 minutes) ended in a grand finale with Allan Jones and Deanna Durbin leading the audience in the national anthem.

Braly and Owen Are Feted at a Party

DALLAS—Paramount's southwestern district bade god-speed to departing District Manager Hugh Braly and welcome to their new boss, Hugh Owen, with a gala dinner-dance at the Jefferson Hotel, last Saturday night.

C. H. Weaver, sales manager, was toastmaster, and his first act was to call in the photographer for a group picture. Shortly afterward, Mrs. Willie Simmons presented Mrs. Hugh Braly with an arm bouquet of roses, a going-away gift from the girls of district three.

With dessert out of the way, the boys from the Oklahoma City and Memphis exchanges were introduced. Branch Manager C. L. Dees led the Oklahoma City contingent with Booking Manager Sam Brunk and Salesmen Nichols, Rau and McKean present. Mrs. Dees, Mrs. Nichols and Mrs. McKeen accompanied their husbands. From Memphis were Branch Manager Bugie, Booking Manager Neel and Sales-

Weaver introduced Braly, who expressed his appreciation for the cooperation he had received from members of the district. Braly in turn introduced Owen, who spoke of his happiness at once again becoming a Paramounteer.

Braly was presented a set of Hartman bags as a token of esteem from the boys of the district. He departed for the west coast immediately following the party.

Credit for the affair goes to Toastmaster Weaver, George Gaughan, Mrs. Willie Simmons, Lloyd Hendrich, Alene Webb and Sebe Miller, who had charge of preparations.

Awarded Contract for Theatre in Sheffield

SHEFFIELD, ALA.—Muscle Shoals Theatres, Inc., has awarded a contract to Daniel Construction Co. of Birmingham, for construction of a new $75,000 theatre here to seat 1,000 persons. Concerning Florida

By A. JULES BENEDIC

HAINES CITY, FLA.—We hie to Haines City and harangue with Carl Floyd, one-time Republic manager at Tampa, who resigned recently to become a full-fledged exhibitor in a tiein with L. A. Stein at Jacksonville. The company controls a score of theatres in small towns equally divided between Florida and Georgia.

Carl puts us straight on this prosperity talk being linked with the Peninsula State. He says that some towns have their full measure of prosperity, namely Starke, Jacksonville, Tallahassee, Tampa, Orlando, etc., but that other sections seemingly are resigned to a humdrum Floridan existence, with booms conspicuous by absence.

New Theatre for Sebring

Mr. Floyd tells us of a new theatre being erected by the circuit at Sebring. It's to be called the Florida and efforts will be made to get open by June 1 of this year. The company already has one house at Sebring, the Circle.

This Haines City exhibitor spent many years in the exchange end before embarking on a theatre career, after he and the Stein interests had purchased the circuit formerly owned by F. O. Mullen. In his office here Carl has hung up on the wall a scroll signed by every employe of Republic's southern branches, testifying to their good will.

Green Cove Springs Expansion

We leap to Leesburg, Florida's famous fishing town, despite its inland location, and have an interesting chat with Earle M. Fain, head of the independent theatre circuit of that name. Earle has theatres scattered over approximately a dozen Florida towns, making headquarters in Leesburg. He tells us of the new theatre he is erecting in Green Cove Springs, near the soldier excitement at Fort Blanding. This will be the second house for this rapidly-growing town, the other, the Clay, being also controlled by the Fain circuit.

We stumble into Starke, once a sleepy village of 1,600, now a transformed city of thousands, all due to Uncle Sam's proximity at Camp Blanding. Folks hereabouts are of differing opinions concerning the eventful fate of the present boom with which Starke and area is being blessed, in view of the fact other and larger towns are nearer the camp, which, by the way, may train 70,000 soldiers. A small theatre here is filled nightly, while a Mr. Carnasion, formerly of Lake Wales, is rushing to completion a competitive theatre that will seat approximately 700. Out on the busy highway, in the vicinity of the camp, the American Theatre will open soon, while there is also nearby, a tent show.

We hurry to Hawthorne and have a go with J. P. Grimes, who has a portable circuit taking in this and surrounding small towns, then we jump again into Jacksonville. In the manner of Pepys, this would be our Jacksonville diary:

Jaxon's Diary a la Pepys

Up betimes and hurry to Riverside for enjoyable luncheon with Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Moore; he being skipper of the Riverside Theatre and perennial prexy of the Southeastern Theatre Owners Ass'n. There's been an addition to the family since our last visit, one Duke, a canine critter whose cunning habits have endeared him to the Moore menage . . . Out then to the Cinema Ritz, for local colored, an establishment headed by Joe Hackel, who has still another show in Jax, and a pair additional in nearby Georgia . . . Then to the Seligmans, brothers two, veterans in the operation of theatres devoted to colored patronage, and both of whom were, unfortunately, out at the moment.

We bustle into Baystrasse, a thoroughfare upon which the veteran L. D. Joel has projected celluloids for three decades and more; in fact, L. D. is rated one of the oldest exhibitors, in point of service, in all of Florida . . . We flit to the Florida Theatre and after so long a time confer with Guy Kenimer, possibly the busiest executive on all of E. J. Sparks' staff . . . While we wait, we're guest of Manager Robert Heekin at the initial showing of "Philadelphia Story," a cinematic yarn that had us all in proverbial stitches, and which left us flabbergasted when Hepburn didn't marry Jimmy Stewart . . . We learn that R. A. Yockey of the Casino, confined to the hospital for a week, is much better and has been removed to his local domicile, with expectation of being up and about before long.

Fred Weis and Associates Get Arcadia in Savannah

SAVANNAH—A telegram from this Georgia city advises that Fred G. Weis and associates, under the name of F&W Amusement Co., have taken over operation of the Arcadia on East Broughton, the town's "main street."

The Arcadia was under lease to Lucas & Jenkins until the end of 1940, when it was dropped. Weis is remodeling, putting on a new roof, installing new chairs, sound equipment and air conditioning.

Freddie is owner and manager of the Savannah Theatre, 122-year-old establishment, and operates also the Bibb in Macon, Ga., another L&J stronghold.

Price range of 10 and 15 cents, the same as at the Savannah, will prevail at the Arcadia, which may get a new name.

This marks the first time in years that the downtown section of Savannah will be a competitive field.

NEW ORLEANS

CHARLES BLOMQUIST is in charge of the local arbitration tribunal which has opened offices in the Barrone Building. He was formerly a resident of New Orleans, but for the past year and a half has been with the U. S. census bureau in Ohio . . . Harry Spann, Monogram manager, has been transferred to Atlanta, and Harold Cowan, salesman, was elevated to the local helm. A farewell party was tendered Spann by the Monogram staff which also evolved into a welcome for the new manager.

F. M. Hartley, manager of the London office of 20th Century-Fox, accompanied by his wife, is in New Orleans for a month's vacation . . . Jimmie Fidler, the Hollywood gossiper, was in the city last week en route to Miami . . . "The Big Drive," an official film of the First World War, was shown at the Orpheum . . . On February 13, "Back Street" will have its initial local showing at the Orpheum. Bruce Manning, the author, will be here for the occasion with his wife . . . Warren Salles of the Garden has a new motto: "No Blackout at the Garden Ladies Lamp Night." He is giving away a table lamp for ten consecutive admissions.

Visitors to the Row: Louisiana—Roy Saxon, Frankelton; J. O. Gaudet, Port Allen; Gordon Ogden, Baton Rouge; O. J. Barre, Edgard; Jeff Rebstock, Golden Meadows; L. W. Watts, Oil City; W. A. DALLAS

IN HIS NEW role as administrator of the Homer Mulkey estate and operator of the Pastime and Cozy theatres in Clarendon, Lee Bell made his first trip to the Row this week booking and ordering a few miscellaneous supplies . . . With Lee Bell's visit here, comes word that Mrs. Mulkey continues at the theatres where she has sold tickets, mainly at the Pastime, for many years.

Herman Young, who recently opened the Joy for Negroes in Greenville, was here Tuesday along with the McNatts of Naples. He is their son-in-law . . . W. S. "Bill" Hurst, owner of the Plaza at Denton, was in town with the same enthusiasm he had when he was Columbia's east Texas representative for a number of years . . . Harold Cunyus, owner of the Gem for colored in Waco, finished up a hurried booking trip and on another walk to the corner, we saw Johnny Blevins of Dublin going in and out of exchanges.

Current theatre activity in Texas gets a boost from the fact that G. A. Cole is planning to rebuild the new Cole in New Braunfels which is practically a total loss from a recent fire . . . Knox Riley, a brother of Mack Riley of Logansport, is reopening the Queen at Tenaha. He was here completing arrangements along with Mack and L. G. Tomlinson of Timpson. Knox is associated in Tenaha with Mack, who, in turn, is in partners with Tomlinson. On his own, however, Mack operates the Castle in Logansport . . . Theo Routt, general manager of the J. G. Long circuit with headquarters at Bay City, was here and in a round of the exchanges, dropped in to order a BOXOFFICE renewal for the Capitol at West Columbia.

Karl Hoblitzelle, Interstate president, was on a trip through the Rio Grande Valley this week, in which territory his company is well spotted with theatres. As he left town, R. J. O'Donnell arrived from a trip to New York. He also attended the Balaban testimonial dinner in Chicago . . . In with many reports of new theatres contemplated over almost all areas of Texas, comes one that a new house is about to go up in East Waco. No names, however, could be definitely linked with the project.

A committee of Dallas showmen met Tuesday to decide winners in a contest naming two short subjects for the State Fair. The judges were Mrs. Besa Short, Interstate's short subjects expert; R. I. Payne, official of the R. E. Griffith Theatres; S. L. Oakley, manager of Jefferson Amusement Co.'s Dallas branch office; C. V. Jones, Robb & Rowley circuit officials, and Curt Beck of the State Fair.

Walter R. Smock, who took over the Ritz at Hale Center early in December, was on the Row Tuesday along with his projectionist, Odell Walls. They were attending mainly to some equipment repairs, and booking, of course. Smock took time out while in town to renew his subscription to BOXOFFICE . . . Mrs. C. F. Moeller and her son, Walter of the Palace in Muleshoe who are building a new theatre there, were here calling on exchanges. The Palace will run probably on Fridays and Saturdays when the new house is ready.

H. R. and Mrs. Bisby of the Garland in Garland plan to open their second theatre there the first week in March, work on it now being well under way. Their town is about 12 miles northeast of this city where a large airplane factory is nearing completion . . . Mart Cole of Rosenberg was in Tuesday to do some advance booking . . . A. G. "Smitty" Smith, newly appointed Dallas manager of National Theatre Supply, left Thursday for New York to attend the company's annual sales convention, February 9-14, at the Belmont Plaza.

C. D. Leon of the Palace, Graham, is moving his family to Dallas where he will be associated with his brother, H. S., in an undertaking said to be the manufacture and sale of a special type peanut roasting machine . . . Word is received that Martin Lamour has reopened his newly rebuilt National in Graham. The house was partially destroyed by fire several months ago and rather than merely replace the damage, Lamour decided to rebuild the entire show into a modern and streamlined theatre.

P. G. Cameron has added a few more modern touches here and there to his Peak in East Dallas. More color and lighting were added to the marquee and the cornice over the front entrance has been dolled up with several blue art ornaments which lend to the streamlining. Cameron recently enlarged the Peak's parking lot . . . Hugh Owen, Paramount's new district manager, entertained a large group of his salesmen and office staff at the Variety Club luncheon Monday.

Pete Blackshear, owner of the Queen at Aspermont, was here the other day purchasing equipment for the house which is scheduled for reopening early next week. The Abernathy show burned a short time ago and Blackshear rebuilt the house.

Interstate to Build 14th Houston Unit

HOUSTON—Interstate's 14th theatre in Houston, a $100,000 showplace to seat 1,000, will be built in the 2400 block on University Boulevard, it is disclosed following leasing of a site by the circuit for 50 years from Realty Servicing Corp.

Interstate's University Theatre, two miles west, will be remodeled and enlarged, circuit heads advise.

Deanna Honor Guest At Ladies' Luncheon

DALLAS—Deanna Durbin will be honor guest at the first annual Variety Club Ladies Day Luncheon in the Grand Ballroom of the Adolphus Hotel at noon, Monday. Paul Short, chief barker, and Edward "Dutch" Olsmith, branch manager of Universal, are handling arrangements.

Judge Sarah T. Hughes of the 14th district court will be the chief speaker, and the affair is expected to be attended by leading theatrical and film executives and their wives in this section.

At a special meeting of the club on February 3, it was voted to assume financial responsibility of equipping the Eye Conservation Clinic of the Freeman Memorial Clinic for under-privileged children in Dallas.

"MacIntosh" for Wexley

HOLLYWOOD—John Wexley is scripting "MacIntosh," a South Seas story by W. Somerset Maugham, for Sam Goldwyn.

HOUSTON

ABOUT 8,000 persons attended the President's Ball at the Auditorium. Eddie Bremer, Kirby manager and chairman of the entertainment committee, came through with his promise to present a sterling program of variety acts. Music was by the Torres-Waters combo. Buster Dees was emcee. Acts included Vocalist Libbie Palla, Dancer Thelma Gregg, Bobby "Rubber Legs" Bixley, Imogene Sappington and Merle Irwin, song duo; T. J. Ellis, singer; Bill Fleet, imitations; Kless sisters, dancers, and Howard Hartman, singer.

In a novel contest designed for children, Interstate neighborhood managers have given away 90 guest tickets to suburban houses. Using the Houston Post's Saturday's comic book, boys and girls were asked to give the correct count of either A's, B's or C's (depending on which week the contest was entered) and submit the best 10-word statement telling which comic book character they liked best.

Aline Muller, Kirby cashier, and "Hank" Hannington, Bluebonnet, are back from their honeymoon . . . Friends of Jim Meador, former Rice Institute man, recognized him in the picture "Kitty Foyle" in spite of his screen name, James Craig. This is his first important role and critics agree he made the most of it . . . Johnnie Andrew, Houston cotton man and producer of amateur shows, will replace Al Irwin on February 15 as manager of the Coliseum and the Auditorium.

Houston's newest theatre, the Lindale, opened January 30. The 800-seater is owned by Oskar Korn and will be managed by Jimmie Dezendorf. There will be matinees only on weekends and holidays. Admission is scaled at 10 and 20 cents . . . J. A. Hudson and family spent a few days visiting relatives in Denton, Tex. . . . Jack Groves was in Dallas buying pictures.

Ray Wilson, Alabama, has moved into his new home in West University Place. The event was marked with a housewarming for a group of friends . . . Virginia Cloud, the ever-smiling candy girl at the Uptown, is planning a trip to Mexico.

New Metro Film Based On Noted Texan's Life

FT. WORTH—Information comes from the Metro studio that "'Blossoms in the Dust," starring Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon, has been placed in production. The original by Ralph Wheelwright is based upon incidents in the life of Edna Gladney, founder of the Children's Home and Aid Society here.

Paper Recognizes Variety Project

OKLAHOMA CITY—Here's another tribute to the local Variety Club, this time in an editorial by the Oklahoma City Times which reads as follows:

"Theatre owners and operators and the show people of the community, long organized as the Variety Club, are building a health center to serve the unfortunates and underprivileged. The spirit back of the movement is praiseworthy indeed and the health building itself with its equipment and service is one of the best contributions made to the city in a long time.

"We like the way in which Mr. Griffith and the Variety Club went about establishing the health center. Instead of going into it blindly and independently, they sought cooperation of the welfare and charitable groups already functioning. The health center will dovetail right into the work of organized, community-supported welfare maintained to lighten the way for poverty-darkened lives. It will be a valuable addition to the community's program of help for the other half."

Caporal Opens Bison As a 10-15 Center

OKLAHOMA CITY—Sam Caporal's third suburban house, the Bison, at 1314 Northeast 23rd Street, was opened last Sunday, under a 10-15 cent admission scale. Caporal also operates the Yale in Capitol Hill and the Mayflower on Northwest 10th Street.

Bob Busch at Helm of Oklahoma City Uptown

OKLAHOMA CITY—Charles "Chuck" Ferris' new Uptown was scheduled to open Thursday, with Bob Busch, former Standard manager, in charge. Double features second and third run at popular prices will be the policy.

OKLA. CITY

TWO more suburbans opened this week and the old Victoria is supposed to be reopening shortly. Pretty soon one will have to wear shin guards to keep from stumbling over the neighborhood houses in and around Oklahoma City . . . Ted Lewis and his band are coming to the village for a one-night stand February 8 at Blossom Heath and there should be a lot of show people on hand for that date.

Joe Wallace, former State assistant manager, is new house manager for Standard's recently reopened Folly, which is under Paul Townsend's direction . . . Gene Hudgins, Rialto usher and son of Jim of Columbia, is the town's newest amateur film fan, having procured for himself an 8mm outfit.

E. Frank Roberts has replaced Julius Krish as booker at the Standard offices. Krish moves over to the Midwest as manager following the resignation of Bob Busch, who became manager of the Uptown, new neighborhood house . . . Bert Stern is scheduled to leave Standard as advertising manager as soon as Joe Cooper returns to O. C. . . . The State put on a heavy campaign for "Foreign Correspondent."

Bill Elliott, Columbia western star, made personal appearances in Tulsa last week. He's making an airplane trip through Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas and Oklahoma. Elliott spent two days at the Lyric and Circle and the Rita, the latter in West Tulsa.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Eddie Holt admitted draftees of Coal county free to their Wigwam at Coalgate upon their induction last week. Mrs. Eddie brought a cake to the city's party for the boys. It was beautifully decorated and topped with 16 miniature flags which brought $22.50 of the $45.05 raised for the boys and split up among them as a going-away present. Holt is commander of the Coal county American Legion.

UNCLE MIKE CIANCIOLO of the Rosemary in Memphis, who became a full fledged member of Variety Club this past week, was honor guest at the luncheon Monday . . . Earl Hartzog, former booker at Vitagraph, who now is in training at Ft. Oglethorpe, spent part of this three-day leave seeing his friends on the Row.

Roy Dillard of the Dillard in Wardell, Mo., was on the Row Monday and reported a fire in his booth Saturday night did very little damage . . . W. F. Ruffin of the Ruffin Amusement Co., advises he has opened a theatre at the Kentucky Dam, which is located near Benton, Ky., and is now operating three days per week.

L. F. Haven, president of the Imperial Theatres, Inc., is recuperating at his home in Forrest City, following a recent operation at the Baptist Hospital in Memphis . . . Ben Robbins, UA branch manager in St. Louis, together with Jack Goldhar, special representative out of Detroit, spent several days in Memphis last week calling on their nearby accounts.

Norma Williamson is the new biller at Columbia, replacing Virginia Raiford, resigned. Norma was with Columbia for several years prior to her marriage . . . Jeannette Billings is the latest addition to the Malco Theatres staff, replacing Louise Holland, resigned.

W. H. Kaver of the Von at Booneville, Miss., was on the Row for the first time in several weeks following a siege of the flu . . . Bill Bugie, skipper at Paramount, together with Howard Dean, Joe Young and Frank Neel, are back on the job after a two day district meeting in Dallas, which was climaxed as a "going away" party for Hugh Braly who is leaving for the coast, and initiation for Hugh Owen, new southern district manager.

Among exhibitors along the Row: J. J. Rhodes, Crittenden, West Memphis, Ark.; Harry Shaw, Ritz, Aberdeen, Miss.; R. X. Williams, Lyric, Oxford, Miss.; Charles Collier, Globe, Drew, Miss.; J. W. The members of the local Fox office gave Bonnie McCarley a going away party at the Chisca Hotel, Friday, prior to his departure for a year's training . . . Addys Brown and Jimmy Nichols of the Gem and Nevada in Prescott, Ark., were recent visitors . . . Maurice Olds, short subject booker for the Richmond and Mohrstadt circuit, was in booking.

J. Frank Willingham of the local Leo office was "King for the Day" at the regular monthly Ladies' Day luncheon at the Variety Club this week. A record crowd was there, and a novel program was enjoyed by all, except Willingham, who at the last minute was unable to attend due to an attack of the flu. M. A. Lightman, chief barker, carried on for him.

"Mary Elizabeth" arrived Thursday, January 30, at the hospital in El Dorado to the Bob Clarks. All are reported doing nicely. The Clarks have another little girl seven years old. "Papa" Bo owns the Rialto and Majestic in El Dorado, Ark.

Loyd Hutchins of the Ozark Amusement Co., Hardy, Ark., spent a couple of days advancing his circuit bookings . . . G. A. Smith, Paramount's division manager and Hugh Owen, district manager, spent sometime in Memphis recently with Bill Bugie of the local office . . . Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Richmond were in town, Lyle doing his booking and Mrs. Richmond shopping.

Barney Woolner, who built several Drive-In theatres in this territory last year, was back in Memphis for the first time since last fall, making arrangements to reopen his Drive-Ins the latter part of February if the spring weather continues. Otherwise, he advised he would open by the first of April.

Messrs. Rochelle and Voorhies are opening the Capitol in Linden, Tenn., on or around February 10. This theatre, formerly known as the Linden, was destroyed by fire several months ago.

Jack W. Harmon is manager of the Memphis tribunal of the arbitration system, which will serve the tri-states. Harmon's office is in the Shrine Bldg.

Unique in the U. S.—

Is the claim put forth by Jimmy Adams, manager of the above pictured theatre, the Log Cabin, in Oklahoma City.

Live-Wire Jimmy Adams Tells Of His "Unique" Log Cabin

DALLAS—A recent Filmrow visitor was live-wire Jimmy Adams of Oklahoma City, who is manager there of the Log Cabin which boasts as a slogan, "The most unique theatre in the United States."

Formerly with Warner Bros. and Standard Theatres, Adams is piloting the Log Cabin for Chester Humphrey, an oil man who also owns the Ritz at Britton and the Pix in Wewoka.

After questioning Adams about the novel house, BOXOFFICE came away convinced its slogan had some basis in fact. Firstly, it changes programs twice weekly with the bill of fare double features and all "A" product. A color cartoon, or the equivalent, is included. Also it offers circus rides free for kiddies. On hand is a trained attendant with six ponies.

Two attendants guide cars to an 800-car parking lot which surrounds the theatre. Cars are brought to the theatre door after the show.

The theatre has two entrances, the main one and another for families at the rear to circumvent walking around the lot. A well equipped "cry" room is provided and also a recreation room with ping-pong, bridge tables, etc.

The Log Cabin claims to be the first theatre to have installed rocking chairs. It boasts 450 of them and they are 35 inches apart. It also has 50 "love seats," all in stagger formation.

The engagement of David Katz, official of Producers Releasing Corp., to Miss Sara Copeland of Birmingham, Ala., has been announced . . . E. E. Heller, local manager of PRC, has returned from a successful road trip in eastern South Carolina . . . Harry Katz, brother of Dave and Ike, visited the local PRC office en route to Washington, D. C.

John V. Robinson, North Carolina's youngest mayor and owner of the Old Fort Theatre in Old Fort, N. C., has applied for government service in the aviation division. The theatre will be operated by W. A. Ashley . . . Sam Hammond has resigned his managerial post at the Carolina in Kinston, N. C., to assume a like post at Watt Parker's West End in High Point, N. C. He replaces Gilder Craver . . . Charles Hammond Arrington jr., a student at Duke University and son of Charles H. Arrington, president of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina and owner of the Cameo in Rocky Mount, N. C., is seriously ill with pneumonia. Arrington is at his son's bedside.

Ken Rice, assistant to M. J. McInaney, sales manager of Alexander Film Co., Colorado, spent the past week in Charlotte conferring with D. B. Kizziah, R. L. Simpson and the entire sales force of the Charlotte district . . . E. E. Wade, owner of the Iris and Gem theatres in Belmont, N. C., and the State in Orangeburg, S. C., visited Florida recently for the first time. He spent two days in Miami fishing, and his catch was two sailfish—one seven feet, six inches and the other seven feet, four inches. Wade is quite proud of the certificate hanging on his office wall and his membership in the Sailfish Club.

E. E. Heller, manager of PRC's local office, had a bad cold . . . Albert Sottile of the Pastime Amusement Co., Charleston, S. C., announces plans are being drawn for a new theatre there . . . Floyd, who operates the Colulmbus and Madison theatres in Whiteville, N. C., was recently conscripted to manage the President's Birthday Ball for Columbus county. Being a good showman, naturally the affair was a huge success. C. B. is a director of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina . . . The town of Conover, N. C., located between Hickory and Newton, will get a new theatre. George D. Carpenter and J. V. Benfield of Colonial Theatres, Inc., with headquarters in Valdese, N. C., will build. Carpenter and Benfield now operate theatres in Valdese, Madison and Granite Falls, N. C.

Recently appointed Metro district manager, Rudolph Berger, formerly chief barker of the Washington Tent of Variety, addressed the charter membership of the local Tent which will receive its charter on March 10 . . . H. E. Wessinger of the Carolina in Lexington, S. C., is now up and around after a lengthy illness. He's causing much comment in his home town by carrying a cane equipped with a little peep-peep horn . . . Stirling Hayden, handsome young star whose first picture, "Virginia," puts him near the top, made personal appearances at the local Imperial Monday and Tuesday. The Paramount feature will open at the Carolina for an extended engagement on February 15.

Visitors on the Row: Mr. and Mrs. Ben L. Strozier, Stevenson and Carolina theatres, Rock Hill, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fleming, Sylvia, York, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. William Conn, Webb, Gastonia, N. Call Upon Showmen to Aid War Bond Sales

CALGARY—Theatre and film men of the Canadian Prairie, who have donated so generously of their services and cash to patriotic purposes since the war started, are to the fore again. The current campaign for the sale of War Savings Bonds has been taken up by prominent industrialists of the prairies, who have started an energetic drive for their sale. Quota for the Province of Alberta is $600,000 monthly.

Calgary theatre exhibitors and branch managers have been formed into a publicity and stunt committee for the Province. Chairman appointed is Frank Kershaw, district manager of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, with Ken Leach, exhibitor, as vice-chairman. The two committeemen representing exhibitors are Pete Egan of the Palace and Al Gold of the Tivoli while Vernon Skorey, 20th-Fox and Harvey Harnick of Columbia, represent Filmrow.

A meeting of the officials appointed and all the staffs of city theatres and the film exchanges, was held in the Capitol Theatre Sunday. Various publicity plans were arranged for the district and a number of local stunts will be pulled during the month of February. This theatrical committee promises to put some life and punch in the War Savings Campaign and raise the languishing bond sale to the desired quota.

Rag Matinees for Salvage Corps Set for Feb. 15

WINNIPEG—At a meeting of the Manitoba Motion Picture Exhibitors it was decided to stage special children's shows on February 15 with rags accepted as admission.

The purpose is to collect rags which will be turned over to the Patriotic Salvage Corps, the proceeds to be used in Canada's war effort.

The meeting, which was presided over by J. Pearson, president, was addressed by George Wood, manager of the corps, who thanked the industry for the speed and enthusiasm with which it cooperated.

The committee in charge of the show includes Don Gauld, Misha Triller, Bob Hurwitz, Sam Rosenblatt, Claire Fallis and A. M. Knowles.

Calgary Theatremen Form War Fund Committee

CALGARY—Theatre and exchange managers were organized by W. Anderson of the War Savings Campaign personnel staff into a committee whose objective will be to aid in the promotion of the campaign.

Officers of the committee are Frank Kershaw, chairman; and Ken Leach, vice-chairman. Pete Egan and Al Gold represent the theatres and Vernon Skorey and Harvey Harnick the exchanges.

Would Sell Producers a Million in War Bonds

TORONTO—Canada will shortly float its largest war loan in history—a minimum of $500,000,000, according to advance information from a reliable source—and the suggestion is made that American moving picture producing companies should give immediate consideration to investment in Canadian war bonds on a substantial scale.

The "tentative allotment" for the U. S. film producers, doing extensive business in the Dominion, is $1,000,000 collectively, this amount being divided into suggested $100,000 lots for each of the eight major Hollywood producers, with the balance of $200,000 to be shared by several other important companies. The major producers are listed as follows: Paramount, Columbia, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Warner Bros., 20th Century-Fox, United Artists, RKO and Universal, for each of whom the suggested investment is $100,000 or more. Republic, Monogram, Producers Releasing Corp. and Alliance are among those who can absorb the balance of the million-dollar investment in Canada.

"It would be a judicious move on the part of the moving picture producers of the United States," was the declaration of Col. John A. Cooper, chairman of the board of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada, when the subject was brought to the attention of the administrative head of the distributors' organization in the Dominion. This comment will find reflection in the eventual attitude of U. S. producers toward the "proposal."

Cite Revenue Freedom

Several reasons have been advanced from semi-official sources for the prospective guidance of the American producers in considering the Canadian war loan. Reference has been made to the fact that Canada has not yet made any move to prevent the flow of revenue of film distributors to home offices in the States, although Great Britain and Australia have done so because of the foreign exchange situation and the desirability of retaining funds. In Britain last year half of the $35,000,000 revenue of U. S. producers was "frozen" while in Australia 50 per cent of the $6,200,000 film revenue was permitted to leave the country. In Canada, the gross revenue of film exchanges in recent years has averaged more than $10,000,000 per year and the excess revenue for export has averaged $6,000,000 for each of the past four years. This net is being sent out of the Dominion under permit regulations of the foreign exchange control board but it is known that some thought has been given to the restriction of money movement for sake of exchange conservation which is extremely important during the war period. A broad hint has been given that some restrictive policy is contemplated and if a 50 per cent limit is prescribed the film revenue to the States will be reduced to approximately $3,000,000.

Have 90% of Market

It has been pointed out that American companies control over 90 per cent of the Canadian moving picture market and goodwill for American product would be enhanced by important subscriptions in Canada's war loan by the U. S. producers. The Canadian loan will produce three or 3⅛ per cent interest, which is higher than the rate of interest for similar U. S. bonds, it is stated. Canadian funds are at 11 per cent discount in relation to U. S. money and there is the prospect that this exchange difference will be wiped out in due course, thus adding to the attractiveness of the Canadian issue. There is also the fact that the Canadian government will be appreciative of substantial financial help from the U. S. film industry at this juncture.

Investment in the approaching Canadian war loan by the film producers of the United States would be a splendid gesture on a voluntary basis. At the same time, the film industry has a substantial stake in the Dominion and its future in a business way while the revenue from the Canadian market has become relatively important in the face of trade difficulties in Europe, the Middle East and the Orient which cannot be righted for some years. It is contended that the future of both the United States and Canada follows at least a parallel path, apart from the possibility of an early move on the part of the Dominion which might freeze a portion of the funds, which might be diverted to another country, because of immediate needs. In a word, it would be good business for the film industry of the United States to invest in "Canada Preferred."

Lavish in Praise for "Peoples of Canada"

MONTREAL—National Film Board's "Peoples of Canada," which has just been completed by Associated Screen Studios, has been voted by those who witnessed the test screening, one of the greatest documentary films yet produced in Canada. Script writers, cutters, sound recordists, cameramen and a host of technicians attended the test. Gordon Sparling directed the picture.

Help Stamp Sales

SELKIRK, MAN.—To help launch the further sale of War Savings stamps, N. Rotshtein donated the use of the Roxy for a meeting of the Selkirk committee. Pictures were presented and the audience was addressed by the head of the local War Savings committee.

Eire Censors Ban "Great Dictator"

Montreal—Eire censors have banned "The Great Dictator," which is now showing in English and Scottish provincial cities. A Belfast theatre manager wished to advertise the film in Dublin newspapers, but his advertisements were returned with a note that the Eire censorship would allow no publicity regarding the picture.

TORONTO

N L. NATHANSON, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., returned to Toronto after a month's rest in Miami . . . Jack Arthur, district manager of Famous Players, was conductor of the 40-piece orchestra at the Toronto studios of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. for the first program of "The Theatre of Freedom" over the national network, February 2, in which Cedric and Lady Hardwicke appeared as guest artists in a special play. Arthur organized all of the musical arrangements for the feature . . . Lieut. Asks Suspension of Doric's License

TORONTO—The suspension of the operating license of the Doric, Toronto neighborhood house seating 527 persons, for a period of one month has been recommended by Fire Marshal W. J. Scott as a result of the public inquiry into the cause of the accident January 18 when 35 juvenile patrons were affected by coal gas during the matinee performance, more than 12 children requiring emergency hospital treatment.

It was brought out in the evidence at the official investigation that no adult employe of the theatre was on the floor of the theatre when the condition of the children was discovered by two parents who had entered the Doric to take their family home; that the heating equipment had been repaired two weeks before the accident and that cracks in the furnace had been filled two days after the incident, and that the projectionist, Fred Harcourt, who had been employed at the Doric for 30 years, had stopped the show and turned on the house lights and, according to his own statement, had walked out of the theatre without knowing about the mishap until he read about it in the newspaper the following Monday.

Recommends Amendments

The fire marshal recommended that the government regulations governing the admission of children be amended at the approaching session of the legislature to require the theatres of Ontario to have one matron for each 100 children present at a show and to provide that air conditioning plants and heating furnaces must be in entirely separate rooms, theatres already having the two pieces of equipment to be compelled to make alterations to conform with the specific requirement.

With respect to the Doric, a number of improvements in equipment were ordered, the fire marshal declaring that neither the air conditioning system nor the furnace was in completely good repair. Scott ordered the boiler attendant to be in constant duty during all performances in future. The fire marshal intimated that he would suggest a legislative amendment to require an adult to accompany each juvenile under seven years of age for any performance, even on Saturdays and legal holidays. Under present rules, unaccompanied children may be admitted at matinees on these days provided a matron is in attendance within the theatre.

One for Hugh Herbert

HOLLYWOOD—"Partner Wanted," story by Arthur T. Horman, has been purchased by Warner as a starring vehicle for Hugh Herbert.

MONTREAL

THE audience at an evening show in the Granada sat undisturbed and enthralled by the picture while firemen labored to extinguish an outbreak of fire in the cellar, about which no one but the theatre officials knew . . . George Degnon, field representative of RKO, hints at a few previews to be given in Montreal on the lines of the recent advance showing of "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" in Boston.

Roy Tash, ace cameraman of Associated Screen News, journeyed to Ottawa to cover the ill-fated conference of premiers of Canadian provinces studying the Rowell-Sirois report, and then went to "Little Norway" near Toronto and filmed the visit of Crown Prince Olaf and Princess Martha who inspected Norwegian aviators in training there . . . Ontario Considers No New or Added Taxes

TORONTO—According to announcement by Premier M. F. Hepburn, the Province of Ontario is expected to balance its budget for the fiscal year ending March 31 with the main sources of revenue being the corporation and income taxes, gasoline tax and licenses, succession duty and liquor profits. Hepburn declared that no new taxes would be imposed and there would be no tax increases. There has been specific intimation that no move would be made to revive the amusement tax in Ontario and the schedule of Provincial license fees for theatres will remain unchanged.

At the same time, it is understood that the federal government will invade the field of provincial taxation in order to gain additional revenue for the war effort. A great deal depends upon the voluntary response of the people in contributing by the purchase of war bonds and war savings stamps.

It is understood that the Dominion government will extend the list of prohibited articles for import as a further step toward retaining funds. Motion pictures are not likely to be restricted but there may be a ban on the purchase of theatre equipment and of some advertising accessories.

Neil Agnew Confers With Fitzgibbons in Toronto

TORONTO—Neil F. Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution for Paramount, was a visitor last week here for a conference with J. J. Fitzgibbons of Famous Players Canadian, on sales.

Del Goodman, newly appointed Canadian district manager who was at the home office familiarizing himself with the company sales methods, is due back in Toronto.

: SASKATCHEWAN :

ONE-TIME manager of the Ritz Theatre, Saskatoon, which his father owned, Lieut. Donald Hoar, who went to England in 1936 to join the Royal Air Force, has been reported missing after action with the fleet air arm in which he served.

Marjorie Hawe, secretary of the Met, Regina, is back on the job after an attack of measles. June Derbyshire, cashier, is at home with the flu. A new usher is Mel Brown.

Frank Kershaw, district manager of Famous Players, Calgary, was a recent Regina visitor. He was on his usual routine inspection trip.

Foyer alterations, expected to cost between $1,800 and $2,000, are now under way at the Roxy, Regina. I. Reinhorn is manager.

New usher at the Capitol Theatre, Regina, is Harry Todd who replaces Mel McElree who left to join the elementary flying training school in Regina.

WINNIPEG

INTRODUCED here last week, following a suggestion made by Syl Gunn, the Capitol, Metropolitan, Lyceum and Gaiety have put into effect a new Saturday night policy. Those houses which play double bills during the week are omitting the second feature on Saturday night and replacing it with shorts. The move is intended to do away with the inordinate running time of the usual double bill, make for a much quicker turnover, and eliminate as far as possible the turning away of patronage.

Warner's "Christmas Under Fire" is playing local houses this week and earning warm commendation from theatre patrons. Eddie Newman at the Lyceum again stole a march on the rest of the trade, with his Wednesday opening giving him a day's advantage over his competitors. Warners, too, are coming in for some fine praise on the efforts this company is making with these contributions.

At the Capitol, Harold Bishop publicized "Bitter Sweet" through the medium of an air trailer over station CJRC, plugging story and songs. In addition he made extensive use of music store tie ups. Don Gauld's sneak previews at the Uptown are attracting crowds from all over the city.

For the second time in two weeks, thieves broke into the Elm and made their getaway with a considerable haul of silver, although they left the house safe intact. The usual custom at the house is to present each guest weekly with a single piece of silver, but apparently this routine is not fast enough for some.

Two British films, both starring the comedian, George Formby, are doing very well here. "Leave It to George" is doing fine at Syl Gunn's Metropolitan while the other, "It's in the Air," has been held for a second week at Garnet Wright's Bijou.

Industrial shorts turned out here by Jack Pechett of Canadian Screen Publicity are earning praise from theatre managers and the public as good screen entertainment.

E. A. Zorn, Famous Players district manager, has left for an inspection trip to the head of the lakes . . . J. Miles, president of Western Theatres, Ltd., has gone to Florida on holiday . . . Sim Rost, Garrick manager who has been on the sick list for some time, is recovering at home.

Henry A. Morton of Morton theatres made a substantial contribution to Canada's war effort . . . Leon Toraldo, Crescent manager, is on the sick list . . . "Arizona" goes into its second week at the Garrick.

The Best in Film Fare For British Troops

MONTREAL—British army chiefs and executives of the British film trade have reached an agreement for full cooperation in presenting the best films to the troops in all parts of the United Kingdom.

EDMONTON

W LONG, former manager of the Rialto, was a recent visitor to Edmonton from Vancouver where he is now manager of the new Vogue. On a business trip, Long traveled by plane both ways . . . Charles Frost and Bill Ross, both formerly employed at the Rialto, have left Edmonton for Vancouver where they have accepted positions with Long.

Visitors to Edmonton recently included W. Blankstein, Universal; George Lynch, Paramount, and Reg Dodderdige, RKO, all of Calgary . . . Opening date for the new "Public Opinion" contest at the Capitol was February 6.

Manager Fred Tickell of the Princess has commenced a new series of amateur contests. Applications for entry are made in advance and contestants may sing, dance or play an instrument. Special shows for children will be held on Saturdays while the regular show will be a weekly event. Enlargement of the stage preparatory to the opening contest, has already been completed.

The "Jitterbug Contest" held at the Strand proved to be such a drawing card that hundreds were unable to obtain admission. The management found it necessary to repeat the contest the following night. Open to couples, the contest was accompanied by a 17-piece band.

Establishing a record in the annals of theatre history, the Capitol was filled continuously from door-opening at 9 a. m. until the show closed at 12:15 a. m. the following morning when "Hudson's Bay" was shown on Saturday, third day of its run, reports Manager Walter Wilson. With its close association to Edmonton, one of the company's most historic outposts, the picture had a tremendous popularity with city theatregoers. A broadcast was a feature of the premiere of "Hudson's Bay" when the Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta, Hon. John Campell Bowen, was presented with a pair of the famous Hudson's Bay point blankets on the stage of the Capitol and introductions were made by Manager Walter Wilson.

Under the direction of Fred Tickell, newly appointed manager, the Princess will undergo extensive alterations. Chief of these will be the enlargement of the stage to facilitate a new program of feature contests.

Following announcement that a jitterbug contest would be held at the Strand, one of the Entwisle chain, the office was flooded with applications, according to Arnold Entwisle. The contest, promoted chiefly among high school teams, will be aided by a 17-piece band. The musi-quiz contest held weekly at the same theatre and at which cash prizes are distributed, is proving particularly popular with members of the armed forces in training here.

W. O. Kelly of Paramount, Calgary, was a recent visitor in Edmonton. Following an illness, Kelly now is reported to be in the best of health.

Gets Building Contract For Longueuil House

MONTREAL—L. P. Theriault has been awarded the general contract at about $45,000 for the construction of a theatre block and stores in Longueuil, Que. A separate contract for electrical work has been awarded to William Rochon. George A. Duclos is the owner. Work is to start immediately.

Plans by L. J. T. Decary call for an ultra-modern fire-proof structure. The theatre will have a seating capacity of 640 persons. The theatre front will have a facing of block vitrolite and snowcrete stucco.

With brick work completed, interior work is proceeding on an 800-seat theatre at Sherbrooke Street and Hingston Avenue in the west end. Another theatre is well advanced in construction on St. Denis, near Jarry Street, with a capacity slightly less than that of the Sherbrooke Street building. Both were being designed by Eliasoph & Greenspoon, architects.

Allen Silent on Report He Has PRC Franchise

TORONTO—Regarding a report from Hollywood that Grand National Films, Ltd., Toronto, had taken the Canadian franchise for the product of Producers Releasing Corp., comprising 39 features, Harry J. Allen, general manager of the Canadian company, declared that he had no announcement to make for the present and preferred to give no information. A statement might be possible in due course, he intimated.

Allen has returned from a business trip to Winnipeg, where he formerly resided and where he lined up new bookings in conjunction with his brother, I. H. Allen, who is manager of the Winnipeg branch of Canadian Grand National.

Two Ontario Exhibitors, Delaney, Simpson, Die

TORONTO — The death has occurred of two more Ontario exhibitors. Sanford Delaney, proprietor of the Delaney at Ganonoque for many years, died after a long illness. The theatre will continue to be operated by his son.

Milton B. Simpson, manager of the O'Brien at Almonte, died suddenly at the age of 56 years, leaving a widow and three sons. A native of Ottawa, the deceased became operator at the Almonte Theatre a quarter of a century ago and eventually took over the management of the house which is a unit of the Ottawa Valley Amusement Co.

Move on Carnivals

TORONTO—The city council of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., has adopted a move to prohibit the local appearance of any carnival, midway or circus for the duration of the war because of the opposition which is provided permanent amusement operators and because of the money which is taken from the community by carnival engagements. Further carnivals are banned even though they are to be staged under the auspices of local patriotic organizations or for some charity society.

CALGARY

RICHARD (REDHEAD) BARRON, genial young man in charge of the premium department at the Grand Theatre, left Calgary last Saturday to join the Canadian Air Force. He goes to Toronto to start his initial training. Richard is the youngest son of J. B. Barron, who controls the Grand.

Harvey Harnick, local manager for Columbia, put on a stag last Saturday to celebrate the birth of a son born to his wife the day before. Master Martin Barry Harnick and his mother are both doing well.

Abe Feinstein, local manager of United Artists, has been confined to his home for the past week, but is reported to be improving.

Visitors to Filmrow from country points this week: W. Stewart, of the Empress at Nordegg; Russ Robson (who expects to be in the army this month), of the Opera Theatre at Vulcan; S. Glazer of the Fox Valley at Fox Valley; Mark Jenkins of the Rex at Claresholm and Danny Boyle controlling the Empress at Macleod.

: VANCOUVER :

Excellent exploitation was secured by Roy Rogers, Republic's western star, when he rode his horse, Trigger, into the lobby of the largest hotel in this city where the newspapers took pictures of the horse registering at the desk. Further pictures were taken of them in the Panorama Room, the hotel's largest ballroom. All of this publicity is to be used in conjunction with the drive of the American Western Division of the British War Relief, of which Rogers is chairman.

It is understood J. E. Archer will again assume command of the local office of Sovereign Films . . . Nat Levant returned from a quick trip to the Island . . . J. I. Foy, general manager of Sovereign Films, in Vancouver for a short stay . . . C. D. Hoy of the Sunset, Wells, in town booking.

$173,880 Nolan Estate; Bulk to His Daughter

OTTAWA—The net estate left by Patrick J. Nolan, noted independent theatre owner and former mayor of Ottawa, was $173,880, according to the details of the probate in surrogate court and all but a small portion of the assets have been bequeathed to one daughter, Miss Maryan Nolan, who has been in charge of the Rexy and Nola in Ottawa for several years. The sum of $2,000 in cash is left to Mrs. Agnes McCarthy, another daughter, while a sister, Elizabeth Nolan, receives $25 per month.

Selling Late Shows

CHICAGO—Some of the measures John P. Field, manager of the Ogden Theatre, took to popularize late Saturday night shows:

1. One card trailer on the screen.
2. "A" board on sidewalk, morning, afternoon and night.
3. Two special cards at the side windows of the boxoffice with late Saturday night copy on same.
4. Front page of two-week program. (Program paid for by merchants' ads).
5. Stencil on sidewalk "Late show every Saturday night at the Ogden."
6. Writeup in the neighborhood paper.
7. Bottom of available billboards and the back wall of the theatre bore "late show" copy.
8. Ushers to tell as many friends in the neighborhood as possible (at least 10 each).
9. New Year's Eve high top hat in loud colors, with sign in front of same: "Late Show Saturday Night."

Show Your Leading Grocer—

The above window display was arranged by Dee Fuller, Circle Theatre manager in Oklahoma City, in a nearby chain store. Built around the Ginger tieup, it is a natural where a Ginger Rogers picture shows. Ten passes were given to the store patrons who guessed nearest to how many ginger snaps were in the jar. It both sold the picture, in this case, "Lucky Partners," for the Circle, and the cookies for the store.

Weekly Newspaper Sells Shows for Two Theatres

LEVELLAND, TEX.—The Rose and Wallace theatres here issue a weekly newspaper called The Reminder, 11x18 inches in size that is distributed house to house or mailed if a patron leaves his name and address at the theatre.

The paper, which is of a different color each week, is planographed, a process of printing which permits the use of an abundance of cuts without being too costly. A week's product is listed on the paper which is printed on both sides.

Special show information, quotations and jokes fill out the paper and are prepared on typewriter.

Generally each issue carries a name or two of a regular patron somewhere in its text, and bringing the copy with one's name thereon entitles to a free admission.

Good for newspaper stories and pictures is the donation to the public library of several copies of a book from which a picture has been made.

"The Letter" By Card

Baxley, Ga.—A variation upon the letter used in some instances to advertise "The Letter" made a clever mailing piece for the Roxy Theatre here.

On a 3x5 card was written by hand the message: "Robert will be away for the night. I absolutely must see you. I shall expect you at eleven. I am desperate—and if I don't see you I won't be responsible for the consequences. Bette."

In the upper right hand corner, in quite small type, and printed upside down to the message itself was a box, saying:

"What were the consequences? Learn and see Bette Davis at her best in 'The Letter.' Roxy Theatre, Baxley, Ga., January 27-28."

BALTIMORE—Swift to capitalize on current events is the management of the Times Theatre. Close on the heels of Senator Wheeler's diatribe against the industry as leaning to war mongering, came the following ad in the classified section of the Baltimore Sun.

Filling one column, eight inches, it read:

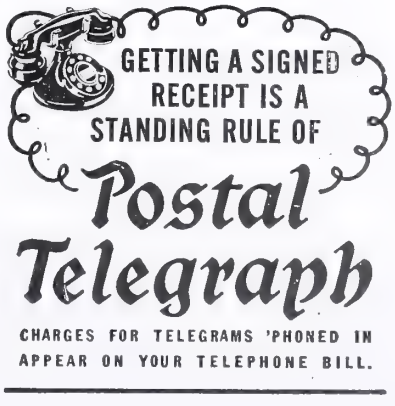
"A Free Screen! An open letter to Senator Wheeler. Your charge of propaganda in films is very unfair. Your statement that the picture companies are attempting 'to incite the American people to the point where they will become involved in the war' is unfounded. Your threat of censorship legislation is uncalled for."

Then this in large letters:

"'Phantom Submarine' with Anita Louise and Bruce Bennett is a Columbia film in the interest of national defense."

And continuing:

"It is a tense, dramatic story of America's defenses threatened by a secret submarine base! 'Phantom Submarine,' the second big defense picture, follows in the footsteps of 'Flight Command.' Certainly 'Phantom Submarine' whoops it up for Uncle Sam . . . and we're proud of it. We leave the verdict to defense-minded Baltimoreans."



Playdate copy and sig cut concluded the ad.

Full Page Coop Ad for "Land of Liberty"

WINCHESTER, IND.—A full-page cooperative ad, and the contribution by the newspaper of 25 per cent of the proceeds from the ad itself was promoted by Fred C. Doughty, manager of the Lyric Theatre here, for "Land of Liberty."

The bulk of the ad was devoted to selling the picture and the cooperating merchants took signature spots thereon.

A front page story called attention to the fact that the distributor was turning over all proceeds from the picture to war relief agencies.

Double Barrelled Publicity—

Stunts that Barnes Perdue, manager of the Ritz and Grand in Chillicothe, Mo., sprang on his patrons for "Love Thy Neighbor" and "Li'l Abner" respectively. In the upper photo is pictured a checker marathon held in the Ritz lobby that netted pictures in the paper. A $15 prize was offered for the nearest correct guess as to how many games would be played. The marathon got under way a week in advance. The lower photo shows the staff as Daisy Maes and Li'l Abners. The barrel of corn in the center also made a street display, with the placard reading: "The corniest and funniest picture you'll see this year."

Horror Duo Results in Record Mid-Week Take

MONTEREY, CAL.—John Wyatt, manager of the Monterey, reports record mid-week business with the duo "The Mummy's Hand" and "Before I Hang" played up as a horror show.

Wyatt's experience confirms exhibitor opinion that horror bills are best kept in pairs thus drawing their devotees full strength, rather than divided with diversified product and so only partially satisfying the patron who favors a particular type of fare.

Shows Slides in School Assemblies

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Manager George E. Freeman of the Loew's Poli here, in connection with "Thief of Bagdad," made arrangements with the board of education to show stereoptican slides of "Thief of Bagdad" at school assembles.

Quiz Broadcast From Theatre

NEW YORK—A quiz broadcast over WWRL emanates from the stage of RKO Keith's Theatre, Richmond Hill, every Tuesday evening from 9:00 to 9:30 with participants for cash prizes being selected from the audience.

NUGGETS

ADAPTABLE to many pictures is Clyde Anderson's stunt for "Barnyard Follies" preceding its run at the American in Butte, Mont. Anderson placarded several hayracks which cruised about town inviting patrons to call the theatre for a free ride to the house to see the picture.

Novel throwaways for both "Seven Sinners" and for "Scatterbrain" were utilized by L. W. Shuppert, manager of the Tipton in Tipton, Mo. For "Seven Sinners" Shuppert inserted an ordinary match in two slots cut to hold it on a 4x6 card. Copy read: "They're a perfect match—Marlene (Destry) Dietrich and John (Stagecoach) Wayne in (picture and playdate copy.)" For "Scatterbrain" the same size card had a peanut glued to it with a caption "Nuts to you from 'Scatterbrain'." A line cut dressed up the throwaway.

The cover of the press sheet on "The Howards of Virginia," under the title of "Meet the Howards of Virginia," was put up in the side window of the cashier's cage, by Manager John Maloney of the Grove Theatre in Chicago.

Following a suggestion in the press book Manager Al Blasko of the Parthenon in Chicago placed a typewriter on a small table in the lobby evenings from 6 to 10 p. m. A small lamp lighted the typewriter and in the roller was left the message: "Tom—dear! Please comes over early Friday. I want you to take me to see 'Arise, My Love' . . . etc., at the Parthenon Theatre."

Newsboy aprons, imprinted with "Behind the News' Globe Now" were distributed among several boys to wear at busy corners and in front of factories, thus advertising "Behind the News" for Harry Rose of Loew's Globe in Bridgeport, Conn. A six-sheet pasted on the lobby floor, was another attention-getter.

Two ushers, dressed in cap and gown outfits, each carried a banner front and back. Banner on front read: "What's it all about?" Banner on the back read: "'You'll find out' at the Stratford Theatre now." The stunt was Manager Steve Fitzgerald's of the Stratford in Chicago.

Securing permission from the Civil Aeronautics Authority, Maynard Nelson, World, Kearney, Neb., arranged for a plane to fly over that and eight surrounding towns, releasing thousands of small imprinted envelopes containing candy and a plug for "Flight Command."

A ballyhoo man attired in flying togs was sent through Harrisburg streets as part of the "Flight Command" campaign arranged by Bill Elder, Loew's.

Stills from "This Thing Called Love" were placed in a large box, lighted from within, and the top of the box had three peep-holes, each fitted with a magnifying glass. Copy invited passersby to "take a peek." Display around the box was made up of recent newspaper articles publicizing an argument between Binnie Barnes and the studio over scenes in the picture. The successful stunt was William "Bill" Bryan's of the Manos at Vandergrift, Pa.

Stranger Than Fiction, No. 86

Universal 9 1/3 Mins.

The usual. Japanese stenography and typing with an alphabet that has over 20,000 characters; a lifeboat launching device; a tree that grew although planted upside down; a miniature city in a Michigan town; a water-going locomotive and a paralyzed young man who draws by holding a pencil in his teeth.

Picture People, No. 5

RKO 10 Mins.

Average. Irene Rich and her daughter go on a picnic; Tim Holt, in cowboy attire, puts his horse through a few stunts and John Barrymore and Rudy Vallee horse around over a script and scrambled eggs. Last named tops the reel's content.

The Fired Man

RKO (Leon Errol Comedy) 20 Mins.

Familiar, but funny. Leon Errol is the stooge in a store who gets fired every time a customer complains. He gets himself involved plenty when invited by a customer to bring his wife and non-existent children to a beach house weekend. Bedroom farce-nightwalking ensues.

Pantry Pirate

RKO (Disney's Pluto) 8 Mins.

Average Disney. Technicolored Pluto, booted out of the house, returns when the aroma of a baked ham reaches him. Then he gets himself tangled up with a box of soap suds, misses out on the ham but reaches the doghouse in furious retreat before the colored cook returns.

Mouse Trappers

Universal (Andy Panda Cartoon) 7 Mins.

Entertaining. Andy Panda's pa is quite a hunter in this colored tidbit but he bogs down horribly when he sets out to catch a mouse. His attempts to corral the rodent however, are responsible for clever animation devices.

Snow Eagles

RKO (Sportscope) 8 Mins.

Interesting, timely. The Sawtooth Range in Idaho is the scene and the action concerns skiing by experts, and photographic interpretation of various maneuvers. Like most skiing reels it is dramatically filmed, full of action.

New York Parade

Columbia 10 Mins.

Interesting. Bridges, churches, skyscrapers, contrasts and the people who inhabit, utilize and effect them are interestingly caught and presented herein.

They Spent Christmas Under Fire

Warner 10½ Mins.

Splendid. A sequel to the powerful "London Can Take It," Quentin Reynolds, war correspondent for "Collier's," this time shows and tells the kind of Christmas London's millions spent. There are no war planes and no alerts, but gripping depiction in short and staccato-like scenes of how the average Londoner took the blitz in his stride, made the best of it and managed to enjoy something, at least, of the "peace on earth" holiday in traditional British manner. Narration is intelligent and dramatically delivered. All profits go to English war relief.

The Great Meddler

M-G-M (Miniature) 11 Mins.

Excellent. Unusual care in the preparation and material that has gone into this subject makes it one that should appeal to every type audience. Especially because it espouses the cause and background responsible for the American Society for the Prevention and Cruelty to Animals and the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Full credit is given one Henry Bergh, who, from his return to America after a legation post to Russia in 1864, single-handedly combats powerful opposition to establish his concepts of humanity. A fine script and expert handling make it outstanding.

Information Please, No. 5

Up to snuff. Levant, Adams and Kieran are about to help Wendell Willkie make his return engagement with the quiz sheet. They tangle with posers on baseball, poetry, booktitles and the identification of presidential cabinets, lose 50 bucks to the Will Rogers Fund.

Bagdad Daddy

Universal (2-Reel Musical) 17 2/3 Mins.

Fair. Fuzzy Knight, surrounded by Gertrude Niesen and a number of tumbling girl singing and dancing acts, in a Larry Ceballos harem, waves the magic wand and the entertainment ensues. It doesn't quite come off.

The Happiest Man on Earth

M-G-M (Miniature) 11 Mins.

Very good. Adapted from a story appearing in the O'Henry Memorial Award volume, this capsule drama is played to perfection in one sequence that is as compellingly dramatic as the potency of the nitroglycerine which figures prominently. Paul Kelly and Victor Kilian carry the story which tells of a down-and-out family man who just about forces a relative to give him a dangerous job in the oil fields so he can give his wife and children the necessities of decent living. It is all dialogue, the heart-touching kind.

Going Places, No. 86

Universal 9 Mins.

Average. This is a mediocre sightseeing tour of a few Mexican provinces with cathedrals, landmarks, relics of past grandeur, a snatch of agricultural progress, tourist attractions and the like.

This Thing Called Censorship

FIRST major studio release since "Strange Cargo" to be condemned by the Legion of Decency, the industry is entitled to know more about the situation confronting "This Thing Called Love" than merely that it has been banned.

In the censorship states, the film was passed without cuts. In script and final form, it went through the production code bath and must have come out clean and shiny because it has a seal of approval tied around its neck. A print had been in New York almost a month before the Legion took a look. Meanwhile, approximately forty first runs were booked in and around Christmas and New Year's, and played. Bought by the Music Hall, sight unseen, the New York run was set back by six weeks of "The Philadelphia Story" and an agreement to spot "Arizona" immediately after "Story."

Representatives of the Legion first saw the film in the projection room along with a Hays office committee representing women's clubs. Later, the Legion reviewing body sat through it a second time when a militant minority struck for a "condemned" rating. Subsequently came a third showing out of which emerged such a listing. The Legion states the film never had any other rating and offers its official records to prove the point. Yet various interested parties on the other side stand stubbornly by their impression the picture was heading for a "B," or objectionable in part, classification. This impression, by the way, seems not to have given birth through wishful thinking, but through conversation and discussion. At any rate and regardless of impression no matter how created, "This Thing Called Love" stands condemned by the Legion.

Case of the Seven

SEVEN other attractions play a necessary part in this discussion, although there could be more.

In "Vivacious Lady," the general idea, having to do with a married couple, was to get them started on their honeymoon. The plot threw obstacles in the way until time came to end the film, just as in "This Thing Called Love." Legion rating on "Vivacious Lady," "A-2," or unobjectionable for adults.

In "My Favorite Wife," two wives and one husband were the principals under the same roof.

In "Too Many Husbands," there were two husbands and one wife, the same general obstacles, the same objective. Legion ratings in both cases, "B," or objectionable in part.

In "The Philadelphia Story," the audience never knew, and certainly the principals did not, whether Katharine Hepburn had an affair with James Stewart by the swimming pool. In fact, Miss Hepburn expressed regret over the uncertainty. Legion rating, "B."

In "Arise My Love," Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland spent days in the country and they were not married.

In "Back Street," Margaret Sullavan lived with Charles Boyer for twenty-five years, while Boyer was married to, and had children by, another woman. Legion ratings, in both cases, "B."

In "They Knew What They Wanted," Carole Lombard, while engaged to Charles Laughton, has a child by William Gargan. All, finally, was forgiven. Legion rating "A-2," or unobjectionable for adults.

In "This Thing Called Love," Rosalind Russell and Melvyn Douglas are married. Theirs is a bedroom farce, certainly on the risque side, but involving no other man and no other woman. Yet this picture is condemned without reservation.

And Now —

IT IS OBVIOUSLY time now to put the question. Was this attraction condemned by the Legion because of content not widely dissimilar from plot and treatment characterizing, let us say, the seven films already outlined? Or was it condemned because the Legion, having warned producers some time since to watch their step, was on the lookout for a guinea pig and pounced upon the first likely candidate to stroll across its line of vision?

This, then, is the possibility about which the industry is entitled to know. It ought to be of considerable interest to those who realize surface markings do not always, or necessarily, present a complete picture.

There, and for this day at least, the discussion rests.

NO SLIDE IN PRODUCT SEEN; MAJORS FOR '42 SAME AS '41

To Walk Cautiously for First Year; Shorts in For Tossing Around

NEW YORK—Although there were some doubts about it months ago, the impression now prevails in distribution quarters majors will pretty well hold to the same numerical lineups next season as prevails for 1940-41.

The reason for the change in prospective is that, with increased manpower in the field under the decree's system of "five-block" selling, it would be unwise to reduce the number of pictures.

Also, there is a feeling each company will continue to make a substantial number of lesser important pictures, as in the past, to absorb as much of each account's playing time as is possible.

To Step Up Quality

There seems to be no doubt, according to observers, that shorts will be given a tossing around and that the main problem will be to concentrate on feature selling. After the first year, it is believed majors will make every effort to further step up quality product with an eye to securing even more extended playing time and eliminating the need for a second feature on any program.

The elimination of duals will be gradual, if it is achieved at all, it is felt, with the theatres, particularly the major circuits, discarding the second feature on the long half and doubling up on the weaker product for the short half. The latter usually is a two or three-day booking, while the long half runs from four to six days.

Year for a Test

In some quarters it is believed the first year of decree operations will be more in the line of laboratory endeavor for the producer, exhibitor and distributor.

The producer, it is held, must be given a chance to readjust himself and concentrate on as many big pictures as the studio can handle without getting too involved and too concerned about release dates. Meeting releasing schedules will be a thing of the past under the decree, it is argued.

Next, it will be up to the distributor to spot the pictures as they come through, demanding more playing time and better admissions. If successful, this is seen eliminating the use of an accompanying picture and building the demand for shorts.

Third, the major circuits will be the first to be called upon to follow through on the extended-playing-time, increased-admission idea so that independents can pick up from there. If the larger houses do not resolve to go for this plan, certainly subsequent houses would not be expected to inaugurate or adopt policies which the more powerful interests are afraid to tackle.

In all, the general impression seems to be that as soon as the new selling season gets under way the industry is in for a year of experimentation in all its branches. Hence, it is assured, production budgets will be increased and, in some cases, like Universal, numbers of pictures may be hiked over the current season.

Seek Film Backlog; Reissue Wave Looms

NEW YORK—Further confirmation of an earlier and exclusive report in BOXOFFICE that the "Big Five" will undoubtedly offer a number of reissues toward the summer in order to concentrate production energy on the first blocks of films under 1941-42 consent decree selling is seen in the admission by an RKO spokesman that "Top Hat" and "Bringing Up Baby" are "under consideration" for such treatment.

"Bringing Up Baby" is regarded as a "natural" because the leads are held by Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant, two stars who are gaining further national prominence at present through their presence in "The Philadelphia Story." However and although the impulse is to capitalize on this factor immediately is present, the company feels "Story" is too potent competition to gain "Baby" its greatest possibilities, while the release of the latter after the M-G-M film has more or less dissipated itself would be of far greater value.

The company is represented by a spokesman as having mulled over reissue on a national renewed scale of "Top Hat" for some time because "this picture hit grosses that were never dreamed of when it was first released and there is plenty of business yet to be had." Again, the impulse to cash in on this sentiment is checked through the fact that Ginger Rogers, who plays the lead in the film opposite Fred Astaire, is currently doing very well by herself in "Kitty Foyle," also an RKO release and simultaneous showing of both would only conflict.

Self-Contained Era Seen Close at Hand

NEW YORK—Reports the Wall Street Journal, authoritative financial newspaper:

"The American film industry has already suffered the worst of the decline in revenues from abroad and any further drop from this point will be relatively unimportant in comparison with large domestic revenues. In other words, the industry may be considered very nearly on a domestically self-contained basis."

Columbia Considers Blocks-of-5 Sales

NEW YORK—Probability that Columbia will soon be selling in blocks of five which may terminate the government's anti-trust suit against it was disclosed during the week when, at the conclusion of an argument held before Judge Henry Warren Goddard in the federal court, Louis Frohlich, attorney for the company, told the court his company was being forced into an acceptance of such blocks against its will. The argument, with Columbia, UA and Universal seeking a dismissal of the government's anti-trust suit against them or a restatement of the complaint with all items referring to the five producer-exhibitors eliminated, was a complete loss for the film companies.

Sees Issues for Trial

Judge Goddard, at the conclusion of two hours of argument, told Robert L. Wright, special assistant to the attorney general who argued for the government, "I am convinced there are issues here for trial and the motion should be denied." Frohlich then asked for 30 days to file an answer, stating that later in the week he was arguing the dismissal of the Crescent suit in Nashville. The court granted him only 20 days.

At the outset, Frohlich repeated his reasons for asking a dismissal which had been denied to him before. The reason for the repetition was that in the previous plea he had asked the government be denied the right to file an amended complaint. Judge Goddard asked the Columbia attorney if he expected him to reverse his former ruling and Frohlich replied, "Frankly, no."

Floor to Pepper

Then Benjamin Pepper took the floor for UA and repeated some of the history of the case before getting to his main argument which was that there is no statement in the complaint which states how in any manner Universal, UA, or Columbia violated the anti-trust laws. The attorney mentioned the suit is being brought under the Sherman act, but does not contain allegations of an anti-trust character. He remarked that the three companies in combination did not have sufficient power to disturb the industry or, more importantly, the power to restrain interstate trade or commerce.

He told the court that in the beginning the government had a case under the Sherman laws when it sought divorcement, but now had authorized and sanctioned the control of theatres by the "Big Five" and was trying to force the "Little Three" into a selling agreement which would put them out of business.

Theatre Attendance Down Five Million

NEW YORK—Approximate weekly theatre attendance during 1940 dropped for the first time since 1937 to 80,000,000, or 5,000,000 less per week than had been estimated for the prior three years, according to Film Facts, annual statistical compilation issued by the MPPDA.

Approximate annual payrolls are estimated at $406,560,000, of which $250,000,000 represents payrolls for theatres, $129,000,000 for production, and $27,560,000 for distribution. The 1940 figures compare with an aggregate annual payroll in 1939 of $370,060,000, of which $250,500,000 went to theatres, $27,560,000 went to distribution, and $92,000,000 for production—a difference and increase in the latter category of $37,000,000 during 1940.

Feature films approved in 1940 by the Production Code Administration totaled 523, which included 44 of foreign origin. The PCA also approved seven reissues and 707 short subjects. This compares with 1939 figures of PCA seals given 596 features and 715 shorts.

Drop in Employment

Employment in exhibition and production dropped during the year in the tabulation that shows: exhibition, 241,000 compared with 245,500 in 1939; production, 28,500 compared with 29,500 last year. Distribution employment remained at the same level of 12,500. Grand total for 1940 is 282,000; with 287,500 for 1939.

Estimated capital investment is unchanged at $2,050,000,000. Broken down, it is estimated at $1,900,000,000 in theatres; $125,000,000 in studios and $25,000,000 in distribution.

Among the new facts brought out in the compilation are that there are 10,031 theatres showing double feature programs, while 6,972 show single bills. In percentage equation it means that duals are shown in approximately 59 per cent of all theatres—30 per cent every day, 29 per cent part of the time.

Average Admission Is 23 Cents

Estimated average theatre admission is given as 23 cents. A further explanation in respect to attendance states the average theatre is open for business about 10 hours a day and takes in 60 to 85 per cent of its daily receipts in one hour, usually between 7:30 and 8:30 p. m. Daily average attendance is estimated as follows: Monday, 10 per cent; Tuesday, 10 per cent; Wednesday, 10 per cent; Thursday, 10 per cent; Friday, 15 per cent, Saturday, 20 per cent; Sunday, 25 per cent.

As has been the case in the last few years, 35 per cent of every dollar received at a theatre goes for film rental, with the remaining 65 per cent left for local theatre expense.

Stage plays, as a trend, passed through their peak year in 1940 as a production source, when 51 films of this type were made as compared with 34 in 1939. Other statistics reveal short stories receded from 59 in 1939 to 21 last year; biographies dropped from 17 to eight; novels decreased from 127 to 109 and original screen stories were at 323, four less than 1939.

Titles registered during 1940 were 3,124, bringing the number in the release index up to 42,866, the latter figure representing the title of pictures released since the industry records have been maintained.

The 1940 record of the Advertising Advisory Council is represented as follows: Out of 98,333 stills submitted, 1,217 were discarded or retouched to meet code standards. Of 9,011 exploitation ideas, only eight were unsuitable. Out of 1,759 posters submitted, but 25 were changed and there were but six revisions in 1,027 trailers. Of 11,256 advertisements, only 240 were rejected or revised. No revisions were necessary in the 10,646 publicity stories submitted. A total of 4,796 miscellaneous advertising accessories cleared through the council with changes in only 16.

Introduce Anti-Decree Bill

ST. PAUL, MINN.—Sponsored by Northwest Allied, a bill compelling distributors to license a full season's product and granting exhibitors a 20 per cent cancellation clause has been introduced in the legislature. The first of its kind, the text follows:

Whereas, the motion picture industry is made up of three branches, namely, production, distribution and exhibition; and

Whereas, the production and distribution branches are dominated and controlled by eight major companies with great economic power and exhibition is accomplished through two classes of theatre owners, namely, those wholly owned or affiliated with the producer-distributors and the independent exhibitors; and

Whereas, the major producer-distributors lease and distribute substantially all of the feature motion pictures exhibited in the state of Minnesota and the other states of the union; and the needs of the independent exhibitor require that he license or lease feature motion pictures from substantially all the major-producer-distributors; and

Whereas, by reason of arbitrary terms and conditions imposed by the producer-distributors, the independent exhibitor has been:

(a) compelled, as a condition precedent to licensing feature motion pictures, also to license short subjects, newsreels, trailers, serials, re-issues, foreign and western pictures far in excess of his needs or requirements;

(b) unable to cancel feature motion pictures injurious and damaging to his business, and therefore compelled to play pictures undesirable and harmful to the public and

Whereas, the long established trade practice of licensing feature motion pictures for a full season (one year) is essential to the best interests of the producer-distributors, exhibitors, and the public; but the above conditions imposed by the producer-distributors have subjected the independent exhibitors to unfair disadvantages, preventing him from responding to the community and local public influences and preferences with respect to the selection of desirable feature motion picture films and are inimicable to public welfare and against public policy, now therefore,

Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Minnesota:

Section 1.—Definitions, for the purpose of this act.

Section 2.—No distributor shall license feature motion picture films to an exhibitor in this state unless the license provides:

(a) that all the feature motion picture films, which such distributor will license during the exhibition season or the unexpired portion thereof shall be included;

(b) that the exhibitor shall have the right to cancel a minimum of 20 per cent of the total number of feature motion pictures included in such license. Such cancellation shall be made proportionately among the several price brackets, if there be such price brackets in the license agreement. Any number of cancellations to which an exhibitor is entitled may be made from the lowest price bracket at the exhibitor's option. The right to cancellation shall not be effective unless the exhibitor exercises such right by giving notice thereof, to the distributor, within 15 days after being notified of the availability of a feature motion picture. The right to cancellation may be waived by the exhibitor before or after the making of a license agreement, but such waiver shall be in writing.

Section 3.—No distributor shall license feature motion picture films to an exhibitor in this state upon the condition that the exhibitor must also license short subjects, newsreels, trailers, serials, re-issues, foreign and western motion picture films.

Section 4.—Any provision of any license which is contrary to any of the provisions of this act is hereby declared to be against public policy and void.

Section 5.—Every person violating any provisions of this act or assisting in such violation, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment in the state prison for not more than one year, or both. In the case of a corporation, the violation of this act shall be deemed to be also that of the individual directors, officers or agents of such corporation who have assisted in such violation, or who have authorized, ordered or done the acts or omissions constituting in whole or in part such violation, and upon conviction thereof, any such directors, officers or agents shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, as in this section provided.

Section 6.—If any provision of this act is declared unconstitutional or the applicability thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of the act and the applicability of such provision to other persons and circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

The term "exhibition season" shall mean a period of 12 months as may be selected by the producer-distributor; provided, however, that there shall be no lapse of time between the termination of one season and the beginning of the next.

Men and Events

As Viewed by Red Kann

THIS turns out to be a sequel to "Script for a Happy Ending," editorial which ran on neighboring page a few weeks ago.

Pete Harrison was again deploring "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" on the basis, you may recall, of a statement made by Nelson A. Rockefeller, coordinator of commercial and cultural relations among the American republics, before the New York Chamber of Commerce. Rockefeller endeavored to illustrate "the decay of democracy" by pointing out the Axis powers were employing Hollywood-made films to discredit procedure by majority rule.

Your observer, in rebuttal, thought the contrary on two counts. One was an awareness which must prevail in other countries that all political systems have their failings and, in some regard or another, are to expect an occasional booting because of them. The other was a warning that colorations should not be applied to festers, actual or potential, internally because of external opinion and that important is the need to protect and safeguard what we have while we have it.

On Pete's approach if it is carried to its ultimate conclusion, the theatres of America finally will be loaded down with butterflies and sunsets. Could it be argued, for instance, that "The Great McGinty" should not have been made because exposure of machine politics and stuffed ballot boxes will give the totalitarian powers another opportunity to place thumbs against their noses and extend the other four digits in the direction of America?

Could it be argued, furthermore, that "Jesse James" was improper material because it showed railroads in a pilfering land campaign with government sanction?

What about that old one, the gangster cycle, currently climaxed in a fashion by "High Sierra"? Should this type of film, reflecting a true, if unfortunate, segment of the American scene, be verboten because it may implant ideas overseas about the kind of a country this is?

In "Hudson's Bay," the British business class, as of that day, was shown ready to rob the Indians until Paul Muni put a stop to it. But what of it and why not?

"The Philadelphia Story" showed the Main Liners out of Philadelphia to be drinkers, wastrels and snobs and "Kitty Foyle" did the same thing on behalf of the Quaker City's bluest blue bloods. Would Harrison suggest these important attractions not be made or these essential dramatic overtones be eliminated in the cause of overpowering honey and light?

If he does, he's apt to face a lot of letters from his subscribers.

"Night Train"

SLIGHTLY on the tardy side in making "Night Train" so late. Already and regularly reviewed, the purpose now is to spotlight brief attention here on this British-made spy melodrama. In the Hitchcock manner, Carol Reed directed with a degree of suspense and thrills that makes "39 Steps" and "The Lady Vanishes," which are of the same school, clutch to their undeniable laurels.

Even 20th-Fox admits it had a sleeper on its hands with this one, which is so good, it becomes very good. Having seen it once, it is the column's intention to see it again. And, whether this design influences exhibitors and playdates or not, at least it doesn't happen often.

Finally

FROM behind the bushes or wherever he may have been in retirement and without warning emerges Ali Gaga. Writes he:

"I read a biography of Sam Marx in one of the trade papers the other day. According to this account, he was born in 1920. His first job after leaving Columbia, University not Pictures, was with Universal. A year later, he joined the late Irving Thalberg. By 1930, and at the age of ten by my reckoning, he was story editor for M-G-M and remained in that post seven years.

"This tells me all I ever needed to know what's wrong with the business."

Reaction

NO DOUBT, you will remember the recent one on Thurman Arnold—how he got into his berth in New York expecting to wake up in Washington the following morning only to discover it was Boston.

This has induced the following sort of comment:

"It looks to me as if Mr. Arnold had gone and done it again."

From an anti-decree guy, of course.

What Do Arbitrators Look Like? Here's the Answer—

In all cities but four, the AAA has partially named its panels. Non-film men entirely, this is a sample. The nine individuals here are members of the New York group, now totaling 53 and more to come. Left to right they are Morris B. Moskowitz, attorney; Victor Weybright, magazine editor; Roscoe S. Conkling, attorney; the Hon. William H. Wadhams, former jurist; George A. Spiegelberg, broker; William T. Van Atten, credit executive; Robert Buechner, broker; Robert Emmet Connolley, attorney, and Henry J. Fuller, munitions executive.

Arbitration Dubbed 'Unique Experiment'

NEW YORK—The 53 business and professional men who were formally appointed arbitrators of the New York film tribunal panel at a brief ceremony at AAA headquarters were told they are part of a "unique experiment" by Van Vechten Veeder, chairman of the appeals board, and urged by him to familiarize themselves with "this great industry."

"The more you know about this industry the better able you will be to perform your duties," Veeder declared. He expressed "great expectation" that the system will perform what is contemplated for it in the decree. The former judge said he could see no reason "why it should not make the act effective."

AAA Names 433

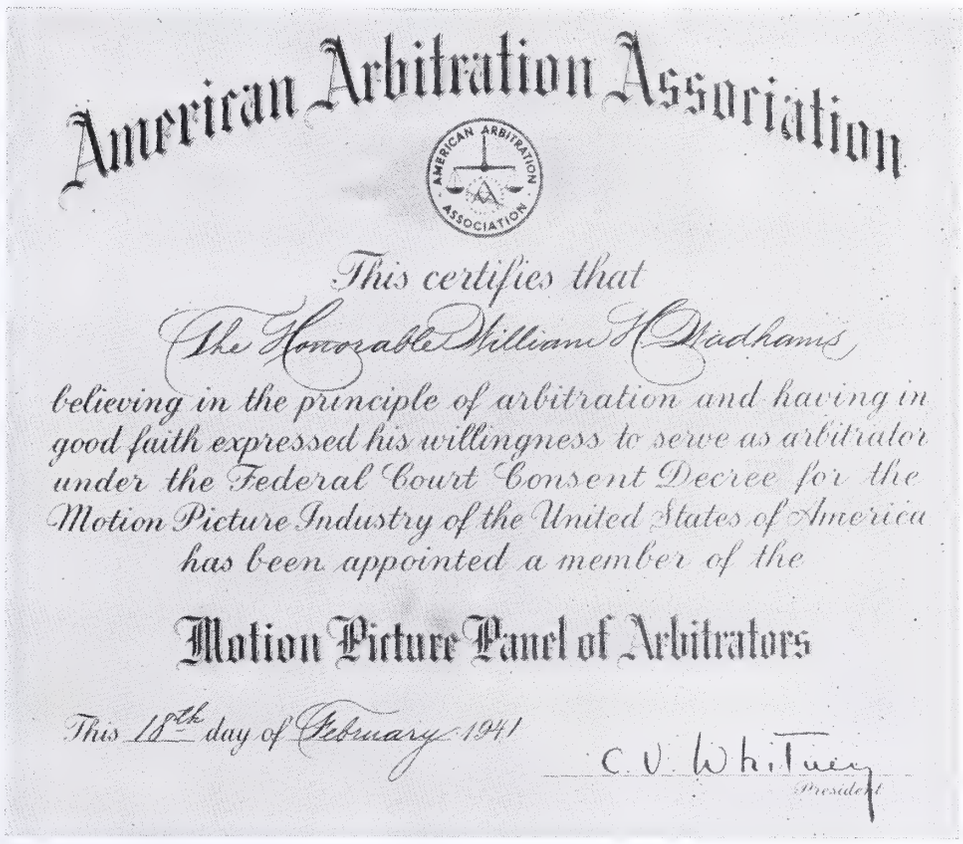
The ceremony was a local manifestation of a nation-wide move dealing with release of the first panels of arbitrators who will sit on cases developing under the decree. The AAA named 433 of what ultimately will be a national total of between 1,100 and 1,200. The men, who they are and their addresses appear in various editions of this issue of BOXOFFICE.

Veeder was preceded by C. V. Whitney, AAA president; Frances Kellor, first vice-president, and Paul Felix Warburg, chairman of the administrative committee. All spoke briefly. Whitney confined himself to a resume of the pertinent facts that were responsible for the AAA administration of arbitration, while Miss Kellor outlined the background of the organization and the various types of tribunals it conducts. She asserted the film tribunals represent to the AAA "a great adventure" and observed it may set a pattern for other industries to follow.

Six Plaints First Two Weeks

Warburg remarked that in the first two weeks of nation-wide operation but six complaints were filed at tribunals and that one of these may never reach the hearing stage because parties to the complaint were attempting to settle their differences. He made the point, however, that once the new season selling gets under way more numerous complaints are to be expected.

Even a Funeral Director---



NEW YORK—Who are the 433 arbitrators thus far selected by the AAA to handle arbitration under the decree, and what manner of men are they?

It runs something like this:

There are attorneys—lots of them. There are retail credit men, and plenty of those. Several are certified public accountants and some are retired from business. There are professors and assistant professors of economics, a convention and tourist bureau manager, a jeweler, at least one editor, geologist, motor car sales manager, commissioner of public utilities, insurance man, member of a state railroad commission, university president, banker, bookstore owner, president-elect of a bar association and head of a lumber company.

And more. The list includes at least one civil engineer, bridge designer, dean of a law school, president of a company dealing in antiques, professor of marketing, member of the board of a nationally known munitions firm, coal man, architect, food executive and telephone executive.

And, finally, the head of a mortuary. He is Mark A. Pierce, and he'll sit on cases developing before the Los Angeles tribunal.

And Here Is an AAA Certification—

Each arbitrator gets this formal acknowledgement of his acceptance. The owner here is the Hon. William H. Wadhams, member of the New York panel and former jurist.

Two More Demanding Arbitration Action

NEW YORK—The American Arbitration Ass'n reports the following complaints were filed during the week:

New York—Hilary Theatre Corp., operating the Regent, 1215 Fulton St., Brooklyn, complaining against Paramount, Warner, 20th Century-Fox, RKO and M-G-M. Albert Margulies, secretary of Hilary, charges the Apollo, purportedly one mile from the Regent, holds seven days clearance over the Regent. Margulies seeks equal availability. He claims that the Regent held seven days clearance ahead of the Apollo years ago, but this was upset during the NRA. He also claims the Regent at present charges five cents higher admission than the Apollo.

New Orleans — The Modern Theatre Corp., of which Charles F. Woolner is president, operating a Drive-In theatre at 7201 Canal Boulevard, complaining against Paramount. Woolner seeks "some run," charging Paramount with refusal to license.

NT's Coast Convention Is Set for March 10

NEW YORK — Spyros Skouras has set March 10 as the starting date of the week's annual convention of National Theatres divisional heads on the coast. The date, it is pointed out, is subject to change although home office executives believe it will be the final one. March 6 had previously been set.

While winners of the recent National Theatres drive in honor of Skouras will not be officially made public until the annual get-together, it is learned Harry Huffman's district under Rick Ricketson, Denver division head, is the leading zone while Charles Thall, who supervises a district in San Francisco under Arch Bowles, reached number two spot.

Hughes Names Bob Savini Eastern Representative

NEW YORK—Robert M. Savini, head of Astor Pictures, has been named eastern representative for Howard Hughes, producer of "The Outlaw" for 20th-Fox. The first of two pictures Hughes will make for the company will be ready for sale as a special next month.

And Many More Are Yet to Be Named

NEW YORK—In most instances, arbitration panels made public by the AAA during the week are not complete. Furthermore, four cities—Albany, Indianapolis, New Haven and Seattle—are currently among the missing. But as far as it goes, panels to the appended totals have been named in the following cities:

Atlanta	11
Boston	12
Buffalo	23
Charlotte	21
Chicago	12
Cincinnati	13
Cleveland	17
Dallas	9
Denver	14
Des Moines	15

Jack J. Sullivan Rites Held in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES—Funeral services were held at St. Paul's Cathedral here for Jack J. Sullivan, 56, chief film buyer for National Theatres. He had been ill on and off for the past 10 years and inactive for the past few years. He made his last trip east about two years ago and on his return was confined to a local hospital, from which he had been discharged a few months ago, living thereafter in seclusion except for visits by his wife, two sons and two daughters who survive him.

His death had been more or less expected. Recent reports had him seriously ill with little hope for recovery.

Business kept Spyros Skouras in New York, but Milton S. Hossfeld, home office booker, attended the services. Hossfeld has been here several weeks on vacation and business. No successor is expected to be named. Larry Kent has been handling most of Sullivan's duties with Fred Stein assisting.

What the Studios Are Doing

Schaefer Coast Stay Plans Promote Talk of Changes

HOLLYWOOD—Possibility that changes in RKO Radio's studio executive setup may be impending, although neither officially confirmed nor denied, is being voiced following an announcement by George J. Schaefer, company president, that he has assumed full charge of all studio activity and will remain in Hollywood indefinitely, with J. J. Nolan as his assistant . . . Schaefer's declaration closely followed an earlier denial by him of rumors that Ned E. Depinet, distribution head, was to be placed in charge of the studio, and was made just prior to the launching of product and sales parleys in which he, Depinet, Nolan and Harry E. Edington, executive producer, were to participate . . . RKO Radio head also expressed optimism as to prospects for the coming year.

Y. Frank Freeman Again Heads Producers Ass'n

Producers association has elected Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount vice-president, as its president for a second term. E. J. Mannix, Cliff Work and Fred Beetson, other officers, were also re-elected . . . Will H. Hays, MPPDA president now here, spoke briefly on the foreign and domestic situation at the organization's annual meeting and various industry problems were also discussed.

Record Production Pace Shows No Letup Sign

With 48 features now before the cameras, all signs point to a continuation of this blistering film-making pace during the balance of this month and in March. A minimum of 35 films are scheduled for camera work before April 1 . . . Universal is launching the most sustained production drive in its history, with a minimum of seven pictures to be rolling continuously until November . . . 20th Century-Fox has added 12 more musicals to its schedule for early production, in addition to three already in work.

Roosevelt Is Headliner For Academy Banquet

Headliner at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences' 13th annual Awards banquet February 27 will be President Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking by radio over the three national networks on a 15-minute hookup . . . Walter F. Wanger, Academy president, made the arrangements during a recent trip to Washington . . . Bob Hope will emcee the banquet and Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will present best-actor and best-actress awards.

Monta Bell to Paramount; Extras' Earnings Dwindle

Monta Bell, veteran producer-director-writer, has joined Paramount as an associate producer . . . Jobs and earnings for extra players reached a new low in January, dropping $35,000 under January, 1940, Central Casting reported . . . Warner signed Marlene Dietrich to co-star with George Raft in "Hard to Get" . . . Michael Curtiz will direct that studio's "Dive Bomber," starring Errol Flynn . . . Bob Hope's next for Paramount will be "Back Home and Broke" . . . Columbia loaned Rita Hayworth to 20th Century-Fox for a topline in "Blood and Sand" . . . David Hempstead will produce "Joan of Paris," starring Michele Morgan, for RKO Radio . . . Same studio signed Adolphe Menjou for a major role in "The Father Takes a Wife."

"A Dither in a Demi-Tasse"

NEW YORK—"It strikes me that the Legion is stirring up a dither in a demi-tasse," observes Howard Barnes, film critic of the conservative New York Herald-Tribune, in his review of "This Thing Called Love" which has been condemned by the National Legion of Decency. (See page 3.)

While New York critics analyzed the film alternately, virtually no attention was paid by them to the Legion rating. Barnes dipped in more deeply than the others. He said:

"To my mind there is nothing objectionable about the proceedings . . . the farcical foolings . . . are never vulgar. If Hollywood cannot handle subject matter such as that in 'This Thing Called Love' it might just as well shut up shop." He also thought the film is "bright when the situations are deftly articulated and the lines have bite; it lags when the script flounders, as it so often does."

Kate Cameron, reviewer for the Daily News, gave the picture three stars and this: "A lively and comic romp that occasionally comes close to the brink of indecency but never really goes overboard. At every close call, the situation breaks up with a genuine bit of comedy that sends the audience into stitches of laughter. The picture is for adults only. Children will be bored by it and adolescents suffer embarrassment at the antics of their elders."

Boildown excerpts from the other critics follow:

Lee Mortimer, Daily Mirror—...grand, gay comedy...races along with funny situations that bring thunderous laughs...

Rose Pelswick, Evening-Journal—...geared for laughs, and getting them...mood is one of lighthearted gaiety...It's smartly turned out and the pace is brisk.

Archer Winsten, Post— . . . won for itself a "condemned" rating . . . thus causing us to approach it with lurid anticipations ready to be disappointed. But don't worry...is one of the most hilarious films of the year...It cannot be called a dirty or degrading film. The worst that can be said by a moralist is that it deals with a subject forbidden to the young.

Cecilia Ager, PM—...one of the more comical ones, gracefully handled and lightly spun. There's invention in its script, more winking than leering...

Eileen Creelman, Sun—...an uproarious piece... and revolving so fast and so constantly that it leaves the audience slightly dizzy...The script goes haywire at times...The comedy is often strident, often repetitious. More often, it is funny.

Bosley Crowther, Times—...the picture is just a series of farce episodes in which Mr. Douglas tries manfully to assert his prerogatives and then Miss Russell, apprehensive, attempts to lure him on to the chase...For persons with delicate sensibilities, might be boldly risque.

William Boehnel, World-Telegram — After a lively beginning...bogs down in the middle and limps feebly to a disappointing ending. But the first third is light-hearted, scampish, tasty fun full of good, loud guffaws in the old-fashioned bedroom farce tradition.

Flashes From the News Front

Odeon "Invades" Canada

VANCOUVER — The Odeon Theatres of Canada, closely allied with the British firm of the same name, has launched its long-rumored invasion of Canada with the acquisition of four local theatres and the admission of intentions to acquire a coast-to-coast circuit.

Tax Exemptions in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.—A ruling that a law exempting opera houses in counties, villages and towns of less than 5,000 population from license or other tax, applied to present day theatres as well, has been made by the Missouri supreme court. The decision was the outcome of an appeal made by the St. Louis Amusement Company for four houses in the county.

Drive on Games Looms

FRANKFORT, KY.—In what may prelude a state-wide drive against the games, the attorney-general's office has declared that "Bank Night, Bingo and other similar schemes are violative of the laws of Kentucky." Local prosecution of gambling law violations, it declared, however, is the "statutory duty of local law enforcement officials."

LeBaron to 20th-Fox

HOLLYWOOD—William LeBaron, former Paramount executive producer, has been signed by 20th Century-Fox to head a production unit. LeBaron was succeeded at Paramount by B. G. DeSylva.

Seeks End to Bank Night

PITTSBURGH—The Better Business Bureau is urging local exhibitors to voluntarily discontinue Bank Night because it encourages the "widespread promotion of other types of commercial lotteries, including Bingo and other forms of gambling."

Out of American Display

NEW YORK—Charles L. Casanave has been retired as general manager of American Display, accessory manufacturing unit of National Screen Service, by vote of the former company's board. Casanave's positions with other NSS affiliates and subsidiaries are unchanged.

Ticket Tax Returns Boom

WASHINGTON—An additional revenue of not less than $55,000,000 annually will accrue to the federal government in the reduction of admission tax exemption from 40 cents to 20 cents, it is indicated by current ticket tax returns.

Early With Banquet Plans

PITTSBURGH—Tent No. 1 of the Variety Clubs will stage its 13th annual banquet the evening of Sunday, November 2, in the William Penn Hotel. The date was set by C. C. Kellenberg, chief barker.

First Capra Warner At Fifty Per Cent

NEW YORK—Warner is asking "Boom Town" prices and playing time for "Meet John Doe," latest Frank Capra film. Sales executives are asking 50 per cent of the gross with an increase in admissions along the lines which prevailed for M-G-M's special.

First day-and-date premiere has been set for March 6 at the Hollywood and Downtown in Hollywood and Los Angeles. The picture is set to go into the Rivoli and 51st St. theatres on Broadway about the same time, depending on the run of "Back Street" at the Rivoli.

Negotiations with the Music Hall had been under way for some time but were called off when Warner could not get an early date. The Hall is booked solid for many weeks and refused to make an exception for "Doe."

Warner has sneaked the picture at White Plains and Connecticut within the past few weeks at which circuit executives got their first glimpse.

While the Warner press release states the Rivoli will increase its prices, the theatre seems to be unaware of any such arrangement and advises it will maintain the top evening scale of 99 cents but step up the matinee price slightly.

The 51st St. Theatre was formerly the Hollywood and has been featuring ballet. It is a Warner house, the same as the Hollywood and Downtown on the coast.

Traveling Theatre Car Builds Dodge Goodwill

NEW YORK—The original Dodge car used by the Denis-Roosevelt Expedition in filming "Wheels Across India," has been put into service to assist Dodge dealers in planning and executing free motion picture programs. The motion-picture automobile is proceeding on prearranged schedules established by the company's district representatives who contact car merchants and with their aid act as advance men and booking agents in laying out routes and show dates.

Films carried by the traveling unit include "Army on Wheels," "Land of the Free," "Years of Progress," "A Chance to Lose," "Highway Bound," "Major Bowes," and "Thrill Hunters."

Adam Had Four Sons

F — Drama

Columbia (——) 80 Minutes Rel. Feb. 15, '41

Robert Sherwood's first production under the Columbia aegis is a finely made and impressive motion picture, incorporating sufficient proven entertainment elements to indicate profitable patronage. It appears probable that the feature will require smart merchandising to garner, in initial showings, the grosses to which it is entitled. Once it begins to receive the benefits of the word-of-mouth acclaim that obvious merit will engender, the film should have no difficulty in hitting its full stride. For the acute sentimentalists and romanticists the picture is irresistible bait, since it specializes in love of various varieties—the love of a man for his motherless sons, the suppressed and undeclared tender passion which two fine characters feel toward each other over a long period of years, and the impetuous love of youth. The cast, although light on established names, is splendid throughout. Warner Baxter, in a part ideally suited to his matured talents, re-establishes his position as one of filmdom's better actors. Ingrid Bergman, who shares top honors with him, appears to incalculably greater advantage than in her previous roles. The story, an adaptation of Charles Bonner's novel, "Legacy," deals with the raising of four boys by a father and beloved governess during the turbulent period between 1907 and the end of World War I. Gregory Ratoff's effective direction displays understanding.

Ingrid Bergman, Warner Baxter, Susan Hayward, Fay Wray, Richard Denning, Helen Westley, Robert Shaw.

EXPLOITIPS: The fact that this was made from a best-selling novel, "Legacy," should not be overlooked in the exploitation campaign. Make the obvious tieups with bookstores and public libraries. Warner Baxter is the top marquee and advertising name. Stills showing Baxter driving an antiquated "horseless carriage" can be worked into tieups with automobile dealers. Use the picture title as the basis of a stunt whereby every father with four sons is admitted, with his offspring, free.

CATCHLINES: It Was a Stirring Novel . . . This Story of a Man Who Fought to Keep His Family Together . . . And It Makes a Great Picture.

Blondie Goes Latin

F — Comedy Musical

Columbia (——) 70 Minutes Rel. Feb. 27, '41

What may well be the savior of the Blondie series is this effort, which takes the edge off the domestic tomfoolery of the Bumsteads and puts a great deal of the emphasis on music—three pop tunes, and three Latin rhythmsessions. Blondie (Penny Singleton) finds it an excuse to dance, which was her forte before pictures. Tito Guizar sings a couple of pampas specials, and Ruth Terry does the others. Story starts the Bumsteads for a South American vacation, but Dagwood (Arthur Lake) is sent off the boat at the last minute. He sneaks back, unknown to his wife, and tries to hide from her as drummer in the ship's orchestra. By choosing Ruth Terry's stateroom to hide in, the possibilities for comedy and misunderstanding are easily evident. This Blondie has some snap to it, without losing touch with the family trade which has followed the series.

Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms, Tito Guizar, Ruth Terry, Jonathan Hale, Danny Mummert, Irving Bacon.

EXPLOITIPS: Build up interest here by outfitting the theatre staff in the motif of the film, bannering the bosoms of the cashiers with notice that "Blondie Goes Latin" is coming up. Strolling lobby musicians, in full regalia, doing the Latin tunes from the picture will serve to instill the idea both before arrival of the film and after it gets going on the screen. Calling attention to the fact that it is Blondie's first musical should be imperative, and the music stores should not be forgotten in tieups.

CATCHLINES: The Bumsteads Set to Music Is Something . . . Especially When Dagwood Doesn't Like the Arrangements.

Tap Your Feet, Hold Your Side! See Blondie Off on Her Boatride!

The Strawberry Blonde

F — Comedy Drama

FN (559) 91 Minutes Rel. Feb. 22, '41

A full measure of laughs, a few tears, a large helping of romance and a dash of bittersweet nostalgia are expertly blended against authentic backgrounds, atmosphere and music of the Gay Nineties to compound a story, which, entrusted to a sterling cast, emerges as a film treat for which great popularity and profit may be confidently prophesied. The picture is considerable of a triumph for the Cagney family. William, of that clan, turned out his second productional assignment, and delivered a topnotch job in mounting the vehicle. James, sharing star billing with Olivia de Havilland and Rita Hayworth, romps home with the acting honors in a part which fits his talents like a pair of hand-made boots, although the aforementioned Misses both score effectively. The supporting cast, ideally typed throughout, adds its sizeable bit to the gay proceedings. Cagney is cast as a struggling dentist who married Miss de Havilland on the rebound after Miss Hayworth, in the title role, and with whom he fancies himself still in love, was stolen from him by his arch-enemy, Jack Carson, who further framed him into serving a term in prison. Carson comes to him for emergency dental work and Cagney sees his opportunity for revenge. The story is then told through flashback technique which brings to Cagney a realization that he has been the more fortunate and happier of the two. Raoul Walsh's direction is noteworthy.

James Cagney, Olivia de Havilland, Rita Hayworth, Alan Hale, Jack Carson, George Tobias, Una O'Connor.

EXPLOITIPS: Stage a "Gay Nineties" party on opening night, requesting patrons to come in costumes of the period, and serving beer and pretzels. Try to locate a tandem bicycle and have it ridden around the streets. For throwaways use cutouts of "handlebar" mustaches with picture billing imprinted on the back. Also distribute buttons saying "Oh, You Kid" and similar turn-of-the-century witticisms. Spot a "barbershop quartette" in the lobby or have it do a turn on the stage.

CATCHLINES: Come on Back to the Good Old Days . . . And Waltz Once More With the Strawberry Blonde.

Golden Hoofs

F — Comedy Drama

20th-Fox (130) 68 Minutes Rel. Feb. 14, '41

Considerable of an improvement over the last two or three Jane Withers vehicles is reflected in this treatise on the sport of harness-racing, which should slide nicely into the program groove, particularly in those sectors where the Withers name is a marquee magnet. It is designed to appeal to horse-lovers and features some spectacularly-handled shots of sulky races. Jane, now virtually full-grown, has dropped most of her ebullient antics, carrying herself with a more subdued and pleasing demeanor. Worthy of mention is the screen return of Charles (Buddy) Rogers, acquitting himself very creditably; while the comedy honors are garnered by a little colored lad, Phillip Hurlick, in the role of a stable boy. The breeding farm where Jane is a trainer of trotting horses is purchased by Rogers, who is in the game for profit and wants to discard the trotters in favor of saddle horses. The animosity between him and Jane is lessened when, under her tutelage, he learns to drive the trotters and finally becomes a full-fledged harness-racing fan. Lynn Shores directed.

Jane Withers, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Buddy Pepper, George Irving, Phillip Hurlick, Cliff Clark, Katharine Aldridge.

EXPLOITIPS: Ideal ballyhoo would be a sulky and harness horse, walked around town by a girl resembling Jane Withers. At strategic spots around the neighborhood place big pairs of gilded hoofs. Advertise the film on the sporting pages of newspapers. Prepare heralds and throwsheets in imitation of racing forms. Check with your 20th Century-Fox exchange on commercial tieups made for the film.

CATCHLINES: Something New Is Thundering Down the Home Stretch . . . The Story of a Youngster and Two Gallant Horses.

The plus and minus signs indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the review. Where our compiler is unable to form any opinion from the review the sign "o" is used. Blank spaces indicate no review. This department serves also as an Alphabetical Index to feature releases. Listings cover reviews appearing by the Saturday preceding date of this issue. It will be brought up to date from week to week. The meaning of the various signs and their combinations is as follows:

Very Good; + Good; ± Fair; ∓ Mediocre; — Poor; = Very Poor.

In the summary ## is rated as 2 pluses; = as 2 minuses.

FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

Indexed on the adjoining two pages are the pictures reviewed in the new style started January 4. The number preceding title is your key to the Picture Guide pages, the new reviews being added each week. Additionally, a Quarterly Index, arranged alphabetically by companies, will be published for Picture Guide use.

Blonde Inspiration F

Comedy

M-G-M (123) 72 Minutes Rel. Feb. 7, '41

Once preliminary sequences establish the basis for ensuing action, the pattern of "Blonde Inspiration" is clear and comes off without making an important strike. A cast of competents deal out the various roles in the manner expected. John Shelton gets $2,000 from his uncle and sets out on a literary career. He falls into the clutches of Albert Dekker and Charles Butterworth, publishers of a western pulp magazine. They must print four issues to sell the book to a syndicate. They give Shelton a merry whirl. Virginia Grey, secretary to Dekker-Butterworth, keeps Shelton inspired. They fall in love. The Dekker-Butterworth plotting brings on the romantic complications. Through it all Donald Meek, prize hack in the Smoky Trails stable, roams in alcoholic confusion. In the end, boy gets girl and a contract calling for four cents a word.

John Shelton, Virginia Grey, Albert Dekker, Charles Butterworth, Marion Martin.

EXPLOITIPS: A good display of stills will help this one. The prepared advertising features the blonde inspiration of Marion Martin who has little or nothing to do with the story's motivation. She merely sits around and moves only on signal—from Butterworth. This might be exploitable. Have a blonde lovely sit in a restaurant, hotel lobby, theatre lobby. Put a small sign nearby with a list of words which interested spectators might call out to get the blonde to talk, move on, etc.

CATCHLINES: When a Girl Is the Inspiration . . . Love Stories Come True.

Wildcat of Tucson F

Western

Columbia (2211) 64 Minutes Rel. Dec. 31, '40

Trouble with the Wild Bill Hickok series with Bill Elliott is that the stories are gradually slowing down to the point where they're almost outside "action" limits. This one is no exception, Elliott's lines claiming him to be a peaceable man, and he living up to classification. In this adventure, he is called from his whittling to help save his brother (Stanley Brown), a hothead, who has run afoul of some law twisting homestead-jumpers. The gang, headed by Kenneth MacDonald, is well along the route to successful grabbing of all choice land by fixing judges, buying sheriffs and terrorist tactics, when Elliott arrives. He clips one guy on the chin, outdraws a couple, and the picture is over.

Bill Elliott, Evelyn Young, Stanley Brown, Dub Taylor.

EXPLOITIPS: Sell this along series lines, because the others in the packet of Wild Bill Hickok stories have been better than this one. Dating copy from the established past, with a pat and a promise for "Wildcat of Tucson" is the honest approach to the selling problem.

CATCHLINES: Wild Bill Hickok, the Gentleman of the West. He Allowed His Enemies to Draw First . . . And Die First!

Phantom Submarine F

Action

Columbia (2033) 69 Minutes Rel. Dec. 20, '40

Considering the heft of headlines working in aid of exploitation for "Phantom Sub," here's an opus with possibilities in the duals. Nothing in itself to stand alone, the film can do more than its share of toting the marquee load if used for the magnet, the other portion to do the entertaining. Anita Louise is a femme reporter, hired by Uncle Sam to go on a salvage cruise arranged by Bruce Bennett, that she may see whether rumors of an enemy sub in the West Indies is true. The story moves quietly along, and only the trouping of ship's captain Osar O'Shea and enemy agent Pedro De Cordoba makes any kind of a showing.

Anita Louise, Bruce Bennett, Oscar O'Shea, John Tyrell.

EXPLOITIPS: Recent files of newspapers, calling attention to Axis promises of breaking the blockade with sub warfare, will provided plenty of color and current events timeliness for a theatre lobby. Scareheads about uncovering the plot to mine the entrance to the Panama Canal, the truth about what's going on in the area of United States acquired island bases in the Atlantic, with a display of diving equipment, if available, exciting another interest angle.

CATCHLINES: A Salvage Ship Sets Out to Find Sunken Gold in the Caribbean Sea But Finds an Enemy Minefield!

Father's Son F

Comedy Drama

WB (520) 57 Minutes Rel. Feb. 1, '41

Translated into a film Booth Tarkington's story is fair lower case entertainment, varying from the usual minor feature. If Tarkington readers turn out, neat business should result. The author's "bad boy" is the son of a small-town lawyer. Papa is a stuffed shirt. Between the two there exists a state of nerves caused by the boy's innocent pranks. Mother understands the situation. The youngster runs off to a series of juvenile adventures. He thinks he can bring things around properly. But on his return, papa again bulges in his stuffed shirt. In order to forestall imminent family disintegration, the youngster stages a phoney kidnapping, himself the victim. It does the trick. The accent is on comedy, generally; drama is secondary.

John Litel, Frieda Inescort, Billy Dawson, Christian Rub.

EXPLOITIPS: Sell the Booth Tarkington name along literary lines by tying up with bookstores—window and poster displays, notices in libraries and schools, specially printed bookmarks. Plant passes in Tarkington books in various public libraries and get up a hunt for them. Stage a father-and-son performance. Run a resemblance contest.

CATCHLINES: Bill's Latest Antic Has Made Father Frantic . . . But Mother Doesn't Mind, They're Two of a Kind.

Booth Tarkington's Best Bad Boy . . . He Looks Like an Angel . . . But Raises the Devil.

The Devil Commands F

Mystery Drama

Columbia (2028) 65 Minutes Rel. Feb. 3, '41

Still pursuing weird science, Boris Karloff is up to his cadaver snatching again. Discount obvious implausibilities and you have fair horror—a la Karloff. There are a few chills between dull moments, but not too many. Professor Karloff devotes his experiments to recording patterns made by the human brain, in an endeavor to read minds. His feverish pursuit soon causes him to be dismissed from the faculty of a college. He goes to a New England town with a spiritualist whose living brain is an excellent "control." There the grave robbing occurs. Karloff conducts his horrible experiments with the cadavers costumed in outfits resembling diving suits and an array of electrical equipment that purrs, crackles and sparks menacingly. His last test wrecks the place, saving him from an irate populace.

Boris Karloff, Amanda Duff, Richard Fiske, Anne Revere.

EXPLOITIPS: Publicity on Boris Karloff is plentiful, interesting and easily planted. Rig up a mechanical figure, similar to the props in the film. Utilize buzzers, spark coils and flashing lights. Show the thing in the lobby or in a store window. Dare individuals to sit alone in the theatre while viewing the film. Costume usherettes as nurses.

CATCHLINES: Karloff . . . Monstrous Master of Horror . . . See Him Enter the Service of Satan.

See the Demented Wizard of the Weird . . . And Peer With Him Beyond the Grave.

Petticoat Politics F

Comedy

Republic (020) 67 Minutes Rel. Jan. 31, '41

Joe Higgins retires on his annuities. Mrs. Higgins and her women's political club need a candidate for mayor on the reform ticket. So they nominate Joe. And Joe proceeds to get funny. However, he is not funny enough, the comedy sequences that come his way being all too familiar. Another excursion into the middle class didoes of the Higgins Family, "Petticoat Politics" is just something for the followers of this series to observe, mark time with and await the next production for comparison. This can be said for the new cast of the Higgins Family cycle: They perform better than the former players.

Roscoe Karns, Ruth Donnelly, Spencer Charters.

EXPLOITIPS: Get a ballyhoo man to don a barrel adorned with a sign reading: "My name is Mr. Taxpayer, the forgotten man. Join me at the ..... Theatre, and we'll see what the ladies can do about the political situation in 'Petticoat Politics'." A still promotion campaign could be worked up with book stores on "Life Begins at Forty."

CATCHLINES: Fearless Joe Higgins Faces the Mailed Fist of Crooked Politics.

Newsreels Are Fair, Hays' Message Says

NEW YORK—Without departing from the canons of scrupulous fairness and good taste, the newsreels have "brought home to us the horrors of war and I think they have contributed in no small measure to America's determination to support right and justice, but to remain at peace unless we are attacked. By bringing us news and information and knowledge, they have greatly widened our horizons and better equipped us to fulfill our responsibilities as thoughtful citizens. This is one of the great merits of a free screen."

Will H. Hays is speaking of "Motion Pictures in 1940-41." It is the MPPDA president's annual message to the industry in Film Facts, annual statistical publication of the MPPDA.

Discussing some of the current economic aspects of the industry in the American scene, Hays declares there are 9,187 towns with theatres in operation and out of each quarter paid at the boxoffices of about 17,000 houses an average of almost 17 cents remains in the community. "In total," he states, "this means that movies are responsible for the expenditure of $650,000,000 annually in American cities, towns and hamlets everywhere. This is $2,000,000 every business day."

In Detail on Investments

Hays dwells in detail on the industry's investment in theatres and the position it occupies as a customer for steel, stone, lumber, furniture, printing, etc., and points out it is one of the heaviest taxpayers of the nation, contributing levies annually of approximately $250,000,000. He also observes science has found the motion picture a useful adjunct, that education has discovered the film is "an animated blackboard," and that "all business recognizes it as a salesman without limits of territory."

In conclusion, Hays has this to say:

"During the season the industry took its place with all others in our land to promote and expedite national defense so that we shall be ready, if such a tragic attempt ever should be made, to defeat any attack on our free institutions. This voluntary cooperation between all of us, between government and industry, transcends any selfish or partisan interest. It is another manifestation that our nation stands resolute and united. This spirit and this active participation in the defense efforts are our soundest security for the future."

WASHINGTON—While Will H. Hays places theatre grosses at $650,000,000 annually preliminary figures of the census bureau released this week place the 1939 total at $673,045,000.

Approves "Lash"

NEW YORK—"The Lash of the Penitentes" has been approved by the National Board of Review. After previously being rejected, Imperial Pictures of Boston complained, and a revision was ordered and then approved. Arthur J. Homans and Vincent Hart represented Imperial.

Moves and Counter Moves Mark Posen "U" Suit

NEW YORK—Two applications in Samuel I. Posen's stockholder suit against Universal featured the court news of the week, with ten officers and directors of the company first filing an appeal to the appellate division of the supreme court from an order of Justice Charles B. McLaughlin of the supreme court ordering their examination before trial. Second move was an application by Posen, a director of the company as well as the plaintiff stockholder, to examine Willard S. McKay, former general counsel of Universal before trial.

The company, its officers and directors are being sued for an accounting, with Posen charging that over $2,000,000 was lost through waste and mismanagement. Removal of the responsible officers is also sought.

Federal Judge William O. Bondy ordered the examination before trial of Charles Rogers and Mary Pickford in connection with a $300,000 breach of contract suit against them by Arthur T. Michaud and James V. Peppe, Rogers' former managers. It is claimed the orchestra leader breached a ten-year managerial contract at the insistence of his wife, Miss Pickford, who offered to secure him either an acting or a directorial position in Hollywood.

Seek $75,000 From Warner

Alvin R. Harnes, physician, and Howard A. Gray, film research man, filed suit in the federal court against Warner seeking damages of $75,000 for allegedly misappropriating an idea of theirs for a picture. The Warner film involved is "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet." The company has filed a general denial to the suit and asked for a dismissal.

RKO filed a general denial in the federal court to a $100,000 action against it by Helen Twelvetrees in which the actress seeks an injunction against "I'm Still Alive," claiming the film is based on the story of her life with her former husband.

Freeman H. Owens, inventor, filed a federal court suit against Bell & Howell Co., claiming infringement of a patent for photographic cameras. An injunction, accounting of profits and damages are sought.

Warner filed a denial in the federal court to Thomas Carlton Upham's suit in which the plaintiff claimed "Mayor of Hell" was based on a story of his. The company states the film was based on a story by Islin Austen, called "Junior Republic," and the screenplay was written by Edward Chodorov. Warner also claims that, since the film was made in 1933, plaintiff is guilt of laches. A dismissal is asked.

The circuit court of appeals upheld Federal Judge Edward A. Conger and denied a plea of Harry G. Fromberg, trustee in bankruptcy of Grand National, to remove James A. Davidson, trustee of Educational Pictures. Fromberg claimed Conger erred in refusing to allow him to vote Grand National's claim of $966,745 in favor of Sidney Abrams as trustee.

Trial of Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th-Fox, and Joseph H. Moskowitz, eastern representative of 20th-Fox for alleged income tax errors was postponed to March 3 by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe. Matthias Correa, newly appointed U. S. attorney for the southern district of New York, will try the case, which is presently being revised with several of the charges being dropped in accordance with recent decisions of the treasury department.

Producer Seeks Revision Of "Baker's Wife" Pact

NEW YORK—Phillips & Nizer, representing Raphael Hakim, French producer, has filed suit in federal court against "The Baker's Wife, Inc.," for a revision of contract, an accounting and return of all prints and advertising matter outstanding. Other defendants are Joseph Malcolm, Nat Sanders and Joseph Gilbertson.

The plaintiff, who produced "The Baker's Wife" and sold it to the defendants in December, 1939, says he modified the contract in July, 1940 and again in November of the same year. There have been a number of breaches in the modified contracts, the plaintiff holds. The court is asked to terminate the deal as of February 1 when Hakim, through counsel, notified sub-distributors of his desire to regain control of the film.

15,115 Theatres in 1939 Did $673,045,000 Gross

WASHINGTON—Exhibitors took in a total of $673,045,000 at the boxoffices of 15,115 theatres in 1939, compared with a business of $508,196,000 at 12,024 theatres in 1935, according to preliminary figures compiled by the census bureau.

The increase over 1935—25 per cent in the number of theatres and about 29 per cent in revenue—compared with an increase of 22.2 per cent in establishments and 43.4 per cent in receipts for the amusement industry as a whole, in which 44,917 establishments took in $998,079,000 compared with 36,745 establishments and receipts of $696,012,000 in 1935.

A statistical analysis of the industry, prepared by the MPPDA, appears on page 6.

The bureau pointed out that theatres, whose 1939 receipts were but $23,000,000 under the entire "take" of the whole amusement industry in 1935, accounted for 33.7 per cent of the total number of establishments and 67.4 per cent of the total volume of business of the amusement industry. The film theatres also accounted for 56.2 per cent of the total employment in the industry and 58.4 per cent of the total pay roll.

Bowling Big Competitor

The most important branches of the industry following the motion picture theatres, in point of revenue, were: Billiard and pool parlors and bowling alleys, $87,450,000 reported by 17,644 establishments; horse and dog tracks, $43,507,000 reported by 56; ligitimate theatres, operas and theatrical productions, $32,461,000 reported by 231, against $19,630,000 reported by 158 in 1935; amusement parks, $10,123,000 reported by 245; riding academies, $2,875,000 reported by 840; and swimming pools, other than municipal, $2,815,000 reported by 668.

Little detail regarding exhibition was given in the bureau's initial report, but figures showing the number of theatres in each state and their receipts will be issued in the near future.

Operators Increase

The preliminary summary did show, however, that the number of individuals actively engaged in the operation of unincorporated theatre businesses increased from 6,104 in 1935 to 6,717 in 1939, but no indication was given of the number of houses so operated.

The average number of persons employed in theatres increased from 93,052 in 1935 to 125,684 in 1939, and the total pay roll increased from $102,804,000 to $131,583,000 in the same period. The 1939 figures represented 103,879 full-time employes who were paid a total of $124,165,000, and 21,805 part-time workers paid $7,418,000.

Conn. Mutual Mortgage Phase in Refinancing

JERSEY CITY—The issuance by the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. of a $4,500,000 mortage to the Stanley Co. of America covering a group of properties in Hudson county is in line with recent refinancing of certain Warner theatre properties that have netted a lowered rate of interest as well as the acquisition of new cash, according to a circuit spokesman.

The Mutual mortgage covers six theatres and calls for four and one-half per cent interest, quarterly payments of $52,500, and extends to Feb. 15, 1956. It covers the Stanley, Ritz and Central in Jersey City; Judson, Kearny and Lincoln and Roosevelt, Union City.

Moss Closes One, Opens Another in Cedarhurst

NEW YORK—B. S. Moss has closed the Playhouse, Cedarhurst, L. I., and reopened the Central, same town. Abe Levy has darkened the New United, Brooklyn. Henry R. Sandor and George Miller have taken over the Cameo, New Rochelle, at one time operated by RKO. Miller manages the Lakeland, Brooklyn, and will continue in that post.

Joelson Negotiations For String Continue

NEW YORK—Despite reports and denials, Julius Joelson, former local independent circuit operator, is understood continuing negotiations for the acquisition of the Consolidated string of 20 houses in the metropolitan area.

Several hitches have come up since discussions got under way several months ago, it is stated, but these are being ironed out as rapidly as possible.

Joelson last operated a string in New England which he sold to Mullin & Pinanski. Several months ago and before he began to be interested in the Consolidated circuit, Joelson almost made a deal with Dave Snaper for four New Jersey theatres.

It is expected, according to one source, several weeks will elapse before anything definite materializes on the Consolidated situation.

Dismiss Minority Suit Against Interboro

NEW YORK—Sam Strausberg and other executives of Interboro circuit were given a clean slate in the minority stockholders suit filed by Abraham Werbelovsky, father-in-law of Sam Small, and later joined by Sam Small, William and August Small, Mendel Lerner and Harry Gross. Former Judge Joseph M. Proskauer represented the defendants while I. Gainsburg acted for the plaintiffs. The action had been pending three years before Supreme Court Judge Hofstadter dismissed it.

RKO, Skouras Build Forest Hills House

NEW YORK—RKO and Skouras circuits are jointly interested in building a new 2,000-seat house at Forest Hills, L. I., in back of the Skouras Forest Hills. The entrance to the new house will be located on the boulevard instead of on a side street, as in the case of the other.

B. S. Moss is understood to have acquired a site across the street from the Forest Hills for an amusement project and, while he has announced a theatre to be included in the plans, it is believed the RKO-Skouras project will alter the situation.

Loew's also was believed interested in building a new theatre there in view of the new housing development, but has dropped the idea.

No date for the new RKO-Skouras theatre building program has been set as final plans are now being worked out between operating heads of both circuits.

Asks $140,000 Greek War Relief From Two Areas

NEW YORK — Spyros Skouras, national chairman of the Greek War Relief Drive, has set a quota of $140,000 for the New Jersey and New York area. He so announced at a meeting of his committee Tuesday at the Astor. Society women, debutantes and other interested in this cause will make collections in 1,100 local theatres during the week of March 25.

Arrangements have been made to hold midnight shows in practically every city sometime during the week of March 25 which marks the date of Greek independence. A two-minute subject is being prepared in Hollywood for theatres in connection with the drive.

Vogel Appoints Committees For Greek War Relief Aid

NEW YORK—Joseph R. Vogel, division chairman for the amusement division of the Greek War Relief Ass'n, has appointed the following committees to work with him on the drive.

Buffalo, Vincent McFaul; Albany, Moe Silver; New Jersey, Don Jacocks; New York and Brooklyn, Harry Brandt, J. J. O'Connor and A. A. Hovel.

Other committee members include Sam Rinzler, Joseph Seider, Si Fabian, Irwin Wheeler, Robert Weitman, Sam Strassberg, Fred Schwartz, Laurence Bolognino, Guy Eyssell and Leo Brecher.

Oscar A. Doob of Loew's is chairman of publicity, and Marvin Schenck heads the entertainment committee.

The first meeting was held Tuesday at the Astor at which time every theatre in the Greater New York territory was asked to join the drive.

Revokes an O. K.

COLUMBUS—The Ohio film censor board revoked without comment the approval given last week to "Birth of a Nation."

Consolidated Will Finance PRC

Hollywood—In a trade pact involving more than $1,000,000, Consolidated Film Industries will finance Producers Releasing Corp.'s 1941-42 schedule of 63 films and will handle PRC's entire laboratory contract. The deal covers 37 features and 26 westerns.

Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated, further announces a large advertising campaign for this year for Republic, of which he is board chairman. It calls for an outlay of $100,000 in fan magazines, which will be used by the company for the first time, and $400,000 in trade papers.

Arbitration Cases Sprout Up Over the Country

NEW YORK—Initial arbitration case filed in this area is that of the Hilary Theatre Corp., operating the Regent, Brooklyn, on equal product availability with the Apollo. It is alleged the Regent, about one mile from its competitor, charges five cents more in price. The complaint is aimed at Warner, 20th-Fox, Paramount, RKO and M-G-M.

BALTIMORE—Second complaint under the decree here, and filed in Washington, concerns the Westway, which alleges the Edgewood, a Durkee theatre, exercises unreasonable clearance. Distributors involved this time are M-G-M, 20th-Fox, Warner and UA.

DETROIT—Two cases lead off the complaints to the arbitration board here. Both are filed by Circuit Operator Julius D. London, one for the Booth Theatre and the other for the newly opened Midtown. The Booth, London claims, is refused reasonable clearance by Vitagraph and Paramount over Komer and Goldberg's Whittier and the Delodder circuit's East End. In the case of the Midtown, unreasonable clearance again is the count and Paramount, Loew's, RKO and Vitagraph are the distributors named. The competitive houses involved in the latter case are the Coliseum, operated by London's brother-in-law, Jack Krass; the Mayfair, operated by Cohen Brothers; Majestic, operated by the Schreiber circuit, and the Globe, operated by William Schuttenhelm. Cooperative and Mutual theatres, both local booking organizations, are named as affected in this case.

DENVER—Initial complaint here was filed by Joseph J. Goodstein, operating the Longmont, Longmont, Colo. Aimed at Fox Intermountain Theatres, operating the Fox in the same city, Goodstein charges his competitor is overbought. He wants a redistribution of the product.

CLEVELAND—First complaint on tap here is that of Louis Isreal of the Ellet, now in construction on the outskirts of Akron, seeking some run and an end to the seven day protection currently enjoyed by the Norka and Rialto, owned by W. L. Hart.

CHICAGO—The Ken, now running product 13 weeks after "Loop" openings, has filed the first clearance complaint affecting Chicago. The theatre seeks to run 20th-Fox, Paramount and RKO day and date with the Shakespeare and ahead of the Pix, both operated by the Schoenstadts.

NEW ORLEANS—Arbitration complaints got under way here with an appeal for "some run" sought by Charles K. Woolner, president of Modern Theatres, Inc., operator of a drive-in house on Canal Drive. He names Paramount as the solitary defendant.

Attaches Positives In DuWorld Suit

NEW YORK—Daniel E. Finn jr., sheriff of New York, has attached positive prints of "Legong" and "Kliou" at the Lloyd Film Storage Co. in connection with an action by J. S. Rex Cole against Du World Pictures, World Pictures, Martin Mermelstein, Irwin S. Shapiro, Archie Mayers, and Lloyd Film Storage. The plaintiff, the assignee of Bennett Pictures Corp., Ltd., claims the defendants' license to exhibit the films in the U. S. has expired but they refuse to part with the prints.

Supreme Court Justice Aaron Steuer has denied a plea of Marlene Dietrich to strike out portions of a suit against her by Forrester Parant Productions. The action seeks $98,750 and claims she failed to go through with a contract to make a picture in France. Miss Dietrich had complained parts of the complaint showing the elaborate preparations and expenses of the plaintiff and the rejecting by her of scripts would prejudice her, create sympathy for the plaintiff and show her as arbitrary and capricious besides, obscuring the real issues.

Suit of Carl Field, Henry Clarkson, and Jeff Clarkson, song writers, against 20th Century-Fox, Con Conrad, Herb Magidson, and the Sam Fox Publishing Co. has been settled out of the federal court. It sought damages of $525,000 claiming the defendants plagiarized plaintiffs' song "Goodby to Love" in "Here's to Romance," used in the 20th-Fox film of the same name.

Wilhelm Karol, former Paris representative of Universal, will have to be examined before trial and his action against Universal will not be tried for 20 days after the examination, Justice Bernard L. Shientag in the supreme court has ruled. Karol is suing for $60,000 claiming that amount is due on commissions for having sold Universal's product in Italy to Giuseppe Musso for $400,000. Universal claims it paid Karol $75 weekly and deposited 43,108 lira for him in Italy in full payment for services.

Roxy Becomes Grind For 'Tobacco Road'

NEW YORK—The Roxy, in a stunt believed never before attempted, was out to attract a new high attendance-and-money total in a 42-hour grind for the opening of "Tobacco Road." The film got under way 8 a. m. Thursday morning and the 6,000 seat theatre did not close until 2 a. m. Saturday morning. There were 22 showings of the film and 11 of the stage show in the marathon.

The 20th-Fox production did an estimated $12,192 in the first 24 hours of its "non-stop" grind.

The management attracted unusual advance word-to-mouth through sending out 1,500 invitations to persons that rarely, if ever, get an opportunity to attend film theatres because of their unusual working hours. Invitations went to 500 taxicab drivers, 500 milkmen and 500 letter carriers. They were admitted only between the hours of midnight and seven a. m. The theatre served doughnuts and coffee all night for the asking. The largest service staff in the theatre's history was on hand through the stretch, numbering about 125. An outside loudspeaker was employed to direct pedestrian traffic.

55 Millions More From the Trade

WASHINGTON—Reduction of the admission tax exemption from 40 to 20 cents and generally improved amusement business, will give the federal government an additional revenue of probably not less than $55,000,000 a year, it is indicated by current admission-tax returns.

For the first seven months of the current fiscal year, six of them at the lower exemption, collections reached $38,898,-819.28 compared with $12,206,619.11 for the corresponding period a year ago, an increase of $26,692,200.17, it was reported this week by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

January collections, showing the effect of the year-end drag, were $6,583,277.97, the lowest figure in four months. However, although the total was $70,693.03 under the $6,653,971 reported for December, it was $5,096,743.33 above the $1,486,-534.64 of January, 1940, records show.

Payment on Accumulations

NEW YORK — Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., has voted an accumulations distribution of 25 cents a share on its $2 preferred, payable April 1 to stockholders of record as of March 10.

Demand Proof on Non-Theatricals

NEW YORK—Warner's answer to Allied's charge of offering recent releases for non-theatrical showings in competition with independent subsequent exhibitors is a blanket denial that there is any conflict in bookings, coupled with the challenge that Allied produce an instance to substantiate its claims.

Allied, in a recent bulletin, stated Warner has issued an advertising folder "that constitutes the most flagrant disregard for the welfare of the exhibitors that has yet come to our attention. It offers recent releases of feature pictures on 35 mm. film for performances by clubs, lodges, churches, etc. The folder assures these potential customers that projectors and sound apparatus are available. The films listed in the folder included some that had not yet reached the subsequent runs in Pittsburgh."

A Warner spokesman ridiculed the allegations this way:

"The booklet we sent out is the same one we have been sending out for the past 10 years, except that the titles of pictures are brought up to date. Secondly, there is positively no mention of anything that has to do with the obtainment of equipment for showing these films.

Check Competition

"State institutions and other such organizations are the only ones that are solicited and we make it very clear they must not be in competition with our regular accounts. The booklet states potential customers must advise our branch managers where the screening is to take place, the approximate size of the audience and the price of admission. Our branch managers must be satisfied these showings will not conflict with our regular customers."

This spokesman also claims the films listed for rental by the institutions are, as a rule, at least two seasons old, citing "The Fighting 69th," "The Old Maid," and "My Love Came Back" as examples. He also enumerated a list of short subjects, that upon checking, turned out to be 18 to 24 months old from original date of national release. In the latter respect, this source declares a number of requests for rental of patriotic two-reelers of a few seasons back were rejected because of the popularity of subjects of a similar theme of current vintage now in release at theatres.

"Let's assume," the spokesman added, "that a fairly recent film was listed as available to these non-theatrical customers. On the face of it Allied should know we would not consciously jeopardize our normal, 52-week a year customer if there is one in that area. Every one of our non-theatrical bookings is bonafide and above board."

Joins Army Picture Service

ALBANY—John Babbitt, assistant booker at RKO, has resigned to take a job under Tommy Martell in the U. S. Army Motion Picture Service, New York. He succeeds Lee Beecher, transferred to Boston.

See Extension of Agency Efforts to Crash Trade

NEW YORK—The demonstration of a new theatre game is seen by observers as further evidence of the extension of efforts on the part of advertising agencies to crash the desirable theatre market. Aside from that obvious fact, plus the noticeable and substantial production effort behind the subject, the screening of one of a series of Minute Mysteries by Roy Post and Austin Ripley for the benefit of the William Esty & Co. advertising agency, which handles Camel cigarettes, carries little news value to exhibitors who are aware of the trend.

In the background is said to be Jam Handy, which is no small factor in the development, production and distribution of commercial product. It is to be admitted the company is utilizing a new and spirited approach in the new series. Rather than have the footage carry an outright or subtle plug for a given product, Minute Mysteries is straightforward drama which lasts about 60 seconds, plus about eight more for an introduction trailer.

The audience is given cards with 15 "Yes" and "No" spaces to be torn out after it has seen the reel. The idea is to see how many questions can be correctly answered in connection with the action that took place in the subject. The reels, plus all material necessary for operation of the game, would go to exhibitors gratis. The plug for the advertiser comes in via the credit on the title, plus using the name in lobby posters, advertising and theatre programs. Prizes would be at the discretion of the theatre.—L. W.

Financing Negotiations Bring Johnston East

NEW YORK—W. Ray Johnston's trip east from the coast is understood to be in regard to new financing negotiations for Monogram.

There will be no numerical change in the program for 1941-42, 26 features and 16 westerns again prevailing. It is planned to hold the annual sales meeting of franchise holders on the coast sometime in April.

Trem Carr, vice-president of Monogram, is in the east on financing. It is reported the studio is after $250,000 which will in all probability be forthcoming from Pathe, which has been financing the company over the years.

Both Carr and Johnston are due on the coast in a few weeks.

Jack Reiger Produces Stereoscopic Reel

NEW YORK—Jack Reiger, producer of fight pictures, has completed production on a one reel third dimensional stereoscopic short called "Stereo Laughs" which will be released within two weeks. The film cost $20,000 and has a commercial tieup with the makers of the colored glasses through which the picture is seen.

Cleveland Operation A Test by Brandt

CLEVELAND — Acquisition of the Lake, formerly operated jointly by Warner and RKO in a pooling arrangement, by Harry Brandt and his nephew, Marty Levine of New York, is for a minimum of six weeks and a maximum of two months.

The pool which operated found the $400 weekly projection booth cost too much and therefore had the house closed 40 weeks out of the year. Brandt is experimenting with the theatre with a policy current at the Central in New York where "Virgin Bride," a non-Hays approved picture with Danielle Darrieux, and "School for Husbands" with Rex Harrison are double featured.

Brandt is expected to book in "Night Train" later and then pencil in some of the English pictures he is distributing through Alliance Films of America.

Oscar Morgan Rounding Out Paramount Staff

NEW YORK—Rounding out his staff under the new shorts subject activities at Paramount, Oscar A. Morgan has appointed Monroe R. Goodman, who was associated with Morgan in the southern division for several years, as his assistant, and Manny Reiner has been named publicity and advertising manager for the department. Reiner has been identified with Warner, M-G-M, Monogram and lately publicity director for the "Quiz Kids," which Paramount is using for a series of shorts.

New In-Car Loudspeaker For Drive-Ins by RCA

CAMDEN—RCA Photophone has developed a new in-car loudspeaker for drive-in theatres that hangs inside the door of the car and connects by means of a 15-foot heavy weatherproof cable to the plug-in receptacles of the theatre's loudspeaker system. An important feature of the new unit is said to be a volume control located atop the speaker housing. Overall diameter of the speaker housing is eight inches with a depth of five.

"This Is England" With Murrow to Columbia

NEW YORK—"This Is England," a short in which Edward Murrow, CBS correspondent in London, does the narration, will be released here by Columbia, using the sales model drawn by Warner for "So This Is London." Harry Hopkins, the President's special envoy, brought the print with him.

Graff Installs Sound

ANGOLA, N. Y.—S. J. Graff has new booth equipment, including RCA sound, at the New Angola.

Eastern AAA Panels Partially Set Up

NEW YORK—Making it clear that the panels are not fully rounded out, AAA now divulges the names of arbitrators who will figure in the adjudication of cases filed before eastern tribunals under the provisions of the decree.

Twenty-three have been named for Buffalo, ranging alphabetically from Frank M. Barker, former president of the Rotary Club of that city, to Henry P. Werner, chairman of the board of Best Foods, Inc., which headquarters in New York.

The New York City list totals 53, alphabetic precedence going to Johnfritz Achelis, president of the Commercial Factors Corp., to include Jules Glaenzer, vice-president of Cartier, international jewelers and an habitue of "21," and end with William Gamble Woodward, treasurer of Will Harston, Inc., and a broker with the Pershing Co.

Advice on Arbitration Is Offered by Allied

NEW YORK—Allied of New Jersey has appointed a committee of five to act in an advisory capacity to members who contemplate the filing of complaints before the American Arbitration Ass'n. They are Harry M. Lowenstein, Irving Dollinger, George Gold, Sam Frank and Maury Miller, the latter chairman.

The organization also is on record as condemning the practice of all majors, except M-G-M, in servicing non-theatrical organizations for what is claimed to be "unfair competition to legitimate motion picture theatres." Discontinuance of the practice is urged.

Mapping Production Schedule at RKO

HOLLYWOOD—Plans for RKO's schedule next season are now being discussed here by George J. Schaefer, president; Ned E. Depinet, vice-president in charge of distribution, and studio executives with a tentative program of 35 top-bracket features being considered.

Schaefer has indicated previously the company will make a greater number of "A" pictures than before and at the same time cut the output of "B's." He has also intimated the RKO schedule will be less than the current season's.

Emphatic denial was given reports that Depinet, who accompanied Schaefer west, would assume active charge of studio operations. Schaefer has been anxious to keep a fatherly eye on the production end himself, spending as much time as he can spare here in that endeavor.

Eastern reports have it the company's new selling system under the decree is set under a simplified plan which could be put into effect tomorrow if the new season were that close. However, sales forces are now cleaning up all possibilities outstanding.

From accounts, the company is far ahead now than at the same time last year.

Herman Starr Recuperates Following Appendectomy

NEW YORK—Herman Starr, New Jersey division head for the Skouras circuit, is recuperating at Murray Hill Hospital here following an emergency appendectomy. Notis Komenos, his assistant, is taking over until Starr returns to his post. Starr had complained of a stomach ailment at first and this was diagnosed as gallstones, but after a second going over it was found to be his appendix.

While few know it, Starr's appendix burst while he was on his way to the hospital in an ambulance. After his arrival, he had to wait two hours before the surgery was performed. According to his coworkers, it is a miracle he is alive.

Off for Hollywood—

Joan Merrill leaves night clubs, where she sang, for Columbia and the coast. Her first assignment will be one of the leads in a forthcoming musical. She's from Baltimore and, latterly, from Rudy Vallee's show.

They Clashed; They Also Smiled—

The idea was a quiz program conflict over NBC. Opposing teams were composed of men and women who do the commentating in the newsreels. Described as "Battle of the Sexes," Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit conducted and used these photographed individuals, in left to right array: Arlene Francis, stage and radio actress and in private life Mrs. Neil F. Agnew; Miss Sanderson; Sue Reed, radio and television actress; Adelaide Hawley, women's commentation for News of the Day; Vyvyan Donner, fashion editor of Fox Movietone News; Crumit; Jim Clemenger, Pathe News announcer; Gregory Abbott, commentator; Jack Haney, Fox Movietone News commentator, and Andre Baruch, Pathe News commentator.

On the Occasion of a Visit—

Renewing Hollywood acquaintances on the Paramount lot while visiting the film capital, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Britwar, of Associated Playhouses, Inc., of New York City, paused to exchange the time of day with Mary Martin and Don Ameche on the "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" set. Britwar is at the left, with Mrs. Britwar standing beside Ameche.

BROADWAY

H. Haines plans to take his vacation after those studio conferences next month.

William A. Scully, Universal's general sales manager, and Jack Bowen, New York district manager for M-G-M, are losing themselves among the palms of Coral Gables and prepared to stick it out until about March 2 . . . Among a Paramount home office contingent supposedly sunning themselves in and around Miami Beach are Barney Balaban, Austin Keough, Stanton Griffis, Leonard Goldenson, Monty Gowthorpe and Walter Gross, circuit attorney . . . Aldyth Reichenbach, Balaban's secretary, is vacationing at Umatilla, Fla. . . . Marge Leiczer, secretary to William F. Rodgers, flew to Havanna for a holiday. She decided on the plane because she has already made the same trip via boat and car, the latter as far as Florida, of course.

Joe Hornstein is Miami-bound again, this time by car . . . Oscar Levant is back from the coast where he appeared in "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" . . . Jane Seymour has deserted the Broadway footlights for a role in "Tom, Dick and Harry" . . . Marcel Rebiere and H. Maurice Lancaster, March of Time war correspondents, are here from abroad . . . Wendy Barrie flew in from the coast in time to make the State opening engagement. Lola Lane of the Lane Sisters also is on the bill . . . Dee Lowrence has left Paramount's coast publicity setup to do a fashion column for NEA . . . Latest reports have it the RKO deal for the contemplated second Parkchester house is colder than Wednesday's temperature, which was cold enough . . . J. J. ("Fitz") Fitzgibbons of Famous Players Canadian was around during the week.

Leo Cohen, head of WHN's artist bureau, has written the lyrics to "With Your Permission" and Abner Silver aided in the music. Belle Baker, appearing at the State, Benny Fields and Mark Plant have been plugging the song which has been sent out to the M-G-M studio for possible inclusion in a forthcoming attraction . . . J. S. McLeod, head of M-G-M exchange operations, has returned from St. Louis, Cincinnati and a couple of other exchanges on the decree . . . Major Leslie E. Thompson is another homecomer from Palm Beach where he spent a few weeks' vacation . . . Harry Brandt is practically packed for his departure for Miami soon . . . Oscar Morgan is planning a tour of Paramount southern branches, the first since he took over his new post of shorts subject sales manager. Norman H. Moray, Warner short subject sales manager, is off on his annual trip to exchanges to discuss plans for '41-42. He will be gone eight weeks and end up at the studio where he will report findings to Jack L. Warner.

George Burns, Gracie Allen, Fred Allen, Jack Benny, Edward Everett Horton, Martha Raye, Phyllis Brooks, Martha Sleeper, Ezra Stone and Al Jolson are among the film folk who have contributed toward the support and "financial adoption" of 73 British refugee children in England, according to the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children . . . Headed by Harry Hershfield as master of ceremonies, an array of Broadway talent provided entertainment for the 11th annual dinner dance of the Columbian Club of Columbia at the Waldorf-Astoria on Saturday evening . . . Leon Fromkess of PRC has closed his lineup with British Empire Films, Ltd., for Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania . . . Lucille Watson is in town from the coast where she played a role in "Model Wife" . . . Lynn Farnol, getting set on his own public relations service, has closed for the Sam Goldwyn representation in the east, thereby renewing an old association.

Morey Marcus, general manager for M-G-M in Japan, is back from a Havana vacation. He says plans to return to the Orient are indefinite . . . June Keller of National Screen has left to become the bride of Louis A. Salander the middle of next month. She plans a Washington honeymoon and will live in Vermont . . . E. K. "Ted" O'Shea has returned from a brief visit of exchanges under his supervision . . . Dan Frankel, who is in business for himself, is due to return from the coast early next week . . . Gracie Fields appeared on the Music Hall special midnight show Friday. It was called "Carnival for Britain" . . . Harry Gold has not appointed a successor yet to Hugh Owen, southern UA district manager . . . Hal Horne and Dick Condon were in Chicago for the opening of "Fantasia" . . . Charles Kellenberg of 20th-Fox in Pittsburgh is vacationing in Miami . . . Bob Rubin plans to leave on a vacation very shortly . . . Tyree Dillard of M-G-M's legal department is trying to make up for the vacation he spent down home in the Carolinas with the flu. He's quite a horseman and fisherman.

Homer Harmon and most of the Roxy publicity staff are beating a luncheon path to House of Chan . . . Robert Sherwood, 29-year-old Columbia producer who has just completed "Adam Had Four Sons," is here from the coast . . . Ditto George Marshall, who has been signed by the same company to direct "Texas" . . . Joe Shea, who had been active in publicity for the Greek War Relief Ass'n, has left to take a post in the public relations department of the motion picture division of General Motors . . . Bill Grady, M-G-M talent scout, is in town from the coast for a look-see at the new shows . . . Susanna Foster, Dolly Loehr, another young Paramount player, a school-teacher and studio representative were here long enough for Miss Foster to take part in Kate Smith's radio show . . . Ray Middleton has signed a long-term contract with Republic and left over the weekend for a lead role in "Lady From New Orleans."

Move for Allied Unit In New York State

ALBANY—Steps for setting up a New York State organization, to be affiliated with National Allied, were taken at a meeting of independent exhibitors held in the DeWitt Clinton Hotel. A committee of four, entrusted with powers to name other committees, to fix a scale of dues, etc., was selected. Named to the committee were: Abe Stone, Eagle, Albany; Leonard Rosenthal, State, Troy; Morris Goldblatt of Tarrytown, and Max Cohen, Lydo, Brooklyn. About 25 exhibitors attended the meeting.

A meeting in the Buffalo territory is to be held next month. At that time, representatives from Buffalo will be added to the committee. Formation of the temporary executive committee is to be followed by a statewide convention of exhibitors within a specified period.

Power in Advertising, Robbins Tells Ampa

NEW YORK—More than 250 members and guests of Ampa heard Herman Robbins, president of National Screen, urge that "exhibitors must be made conscious of their powers to swell receipts through constant advertising."

"Don't let the story die," is the slogan he intoned when he observed that "only advertising will make a theatre alive." Robbins was honored on the occasion of his 20th anniversary as head of NSS. Most of his official family was with him at the dais as he touched on his company's varied activities.

Robbins declared material improvement has been shown in the development of screen trailers, not the least of which has been the subjugation of "super-super superlatives." He suggested the customary four-minute trailer is best suited to houses with single or double bills; that they be shorter for theatres with longer programs. He also advocated shorter trailers for subsequent run houses.

Robbins was introduced by Red Kann, editor-in-chief of BOXOFFICE. Among NSS executives who were introduced were Vincent Trotta, Charles Casanave, Ed McNamee, Paul Benjamin, Milton Silver, George Dembow, Toby Gruen and Harry Samwick. Other guests who took bows from their tables were Herman Wobber, A. W. Smith jr., John J. O'Connor, H. M. Richey, Major Leslie E. Thompson and Jack Fuld.

Keough, Phillips Halting Paramount Decree Talks

NEW YORK—Austin C. Keough, general counsel, and Louis Phillips, his assistant at Paramount, have halted legal discussions with the sales force on the decree, for the time being.

None of the western exchanges had been covered by the two lawyers during their trips to the field. Keough is vacationing in Miami, and Phillips has gone to Madison, Wis., on the La Crosse anti-trust action against Paramount and its theatre affiliates. He expects to remain in the midwest about a month.

It is likely field meetings will be resumed in the spring. The general feeling in Paramount is that the men should be instructed on how to operate under the decree now and in the future. Keough and Phillips undoubtedly will speak to the sales forces at the annual convention, stressing the need for observing the decree provisions.

Columbia Is Interested In Broadway Stage Hit

NEW YORK—Columbia is interested in "Sister Eileen," current Broadway stage success. One of the reasons for Sam Briskin's arrival Friday from Hollywood was to view the play for possible production. Max Gordon, who produced with Harry Goetz, is understood asking $250,000, plus a contract whereby he will produce and his writers will work on the script.

• REVIEW FLASHES •

ANDY HARDY'S PRIVATE SECRETARY (M-G-M)—In which the youngest of the Hardy clan, in the person of Mickey Rooney, very nearly doesn't graduate from high school, but scrapes through after the expected romantic, hilarious and academic complications. The feature, up to par for the series, otherwise is notable because it marks the debut of Kathryn Grayson, youthful actress and singer, who looks to be of star calibre. George B. Seitz directed.

COMPLIMENTS OF MR. FLOW (Hoffberg)—A smart cast of Gallic worthies plays this risque crook farce ably but fails to make the effort result in anything more than sketchy entertainment. A French import, it was probably made about seven or eight years ago. Fernand Gravet, Louis Jouvet.

ELLERY QUEEN'S PENTHOUSE MYSTERY (Col)—Second in the series being produced by Larry Darmour from the popular detective novels, this incorporates suspense, intrigue, comedy and thrills in sufficient quantities to insure its popularity among action seekers. Ralph Bellamy repeats in the title role. James Hogan directed.

HARD-BOILED CANARY, THE (Para't)—An experimental sally into the field of culture, the picture has many moments of rare entertainment to offer music lovers and, because of its preponderantly juvenile cast, may possess an appeal to youngsters. Andrew L. Stone produced and directed.

IN OLD COLORADO (Para't)—Although Hopalong Cassidy gets away from his usual stomping grounds, geographically, he doesn't deviate one bit from his well established system for delivering top notch action entertainment to the sagebrush fans. This is the third in the current series and in every department it compares favorably with its many predecessors. William Boyd, of course, portrays "Hoppy." Harry Sherman produced. Howard Bretherton directed.

OUTLAWS OF THE RIO GRANDE (PRC)—Surely as the kids like swimmin' holes, bread and jam and ice cream will they go for handsome, virile Tim McCoy as he wades through a band of counterfeiters in this stock, but sure-footed, western. There's no pretention to go beyond the prerequisites of outdoor action, and of that there is abundance. In fact, there's little else, not including much of a story, feminine relief or production values.

TOBACCO ROAD (20th-Fox) — Darryl F. Zanuck's screen version of the record-breaking stage hit is an expertly-produced, magnificently-enacted feature. The obscenity and objectionable sex sequences of the original have been eliminated, but the screenplay retains and accentuates its pathos and scattered humorous situations. Among those who are prepared to judge it solely on its merits as an example of better motion picture making, the film should win wide patronage. John Ford directed.

Complete Reviews of These Pictures Will Appear in an Early Issue.

Hayes and Sher Quit Government; On Own

WASHINGTON—James V. Hayes and Robert E. Sher, both special assistants to the attorney general, have resigned to enter private practice together in this city. Hayes had replaced Paul Williams as nominal head of the prosecution of the all-industry suit, but had turned over the prosecution of the case against Columbia, UA, and Universal to Robert L. Wright.

When the suit against the "Little Three" goes to trial, Wright, Seymour Simon and J. Stephen Doyle will be all that is left of the original staff. Government attorneys expect the trial to get under way in late May or June. Should it be impossible to hear the case then, a postponement will probably be taken until the October term.

Little Light on Purposes Of New Theatre Group

NEW YORK — Curiosity about National Theatre Owners' Ass'n remains unrequited. M. Walter Solomon, attorney who filed incorporation papers in Albany, refuses to divulge principals or purposes at this time. The association has organized as a membership corporation under state laws.

Three-Fold Purpose in Debenture Sale Plan

NEW YORK—The contemplated sale by Paramount of approximately $2,500,000 of 3¼% debentures to five banks has as purposes (1) the saving of a substantial amount that would normally go to SEC if the sale was in the open market, (2) the additional saving between retirement of first preferred at a rate of five per cent and the new rate of 3¼ per cent and (3) the prestige that goes with the ability to secure the face amount from banks who would not consider it unless the deal reflected a "good risk." These are observations of financial men.

It is presumed some action will crystallize once Barney Balaban and Stanton Griffis return from southern vacations. It is considered most likely the sum realized from the sale of the debentures will go toward retirement of first preferred, although it is not inconceivable the company may elect to throw at least a portion into production. Regardless of which course is pursued, the company is said to be anxious to consummate the deal if only to establish itself as a good risk in financial circles, which the purchase of the debentures by five banks is viewed as accomplishing.

Expect Decision Next Week on Remittances

NEW YORK—Oral arguments have been completed and attorneys have filed briefs on M-G-M's protest on the method of allocation of remittances from England under the plan which went into effect November 1, 1940. Milton J. Handler, Columbia law professor, acted as arbiter with Sam Cohen of M-G-M's legal department handling the company's protest. Joseph H. Hazen of Warner represented the other seven majors.

A decision is expected next week, after which Arthur Loew, head of Loew's foreign activities, will leave for the coast.

M-G-M's contention is that Great Britain never intended to allow remittances on the turnover of the distributors, but each company was to be treated on an equal basis. Hazen held the new remittances were based on the original agreement which began the year before. In rebuttal, M-G-M argued that, when it accepted the original agreement, it was because it was the simplest form then and, secondly, that it was aware of the fact no funds would be left over in England on which any dispute would arise.

The first year's agreement with England permitted $17,500,000 to be remitted to American companies in New York. This was reduced to $12,900,000 for the year starting November 1, 1940.

Para't Partners May Meet Late in March

NEW YORK—Paramount's annual meeting of all theatre partners, the first in several years, may be held in Hot Springs, Va., March 27-29, but it is still possible the dates may be pushed back a week. It is expected Y. Frank Freeman, studio production head, will attend as well as Barney Balaban. Plans will be developed on the three-day schedule within the next few weeks.

With National Theatres now drafting a consent decree manual relating entirely to exhibition problems under the new law, Paramount counsel is understood planning something along the same line for its partners.

"Everything relating to current problems will be discussed at the sessions," a home office executive states.

"Daily News" Star Ratings Return to Picture Ads

NEW YORK—Although it has been discreetly infringed upon from time to time, the "gentlemen's agreement" purportedly in effect for the past few years in respect to quoting the star ratings on film reviews from the Daily News is officially off. Henceforth, major distributors and theatre affiliates, as well as their Broadway showwindows, are to be free to use the star ratings either on their marquees or newspaper advertising. The difficulty in controlling the ban is given in some quarters as responsible for the lifting of the original restraint.

New Press Stunt—

If the above photo was wired for sound, you'd probably hear something like: "Boy, what these Paramount fellows will do for publicity." What the Paramount fellows will do, and did, is amply demonstrated here, in behalf of "The Lady Eve." The three young women are presumably reasonable facsimiles of various conceptions of what Eve, of apple fame, looked like. They are fondling a reasonable facsimile of Emma, the King snake that appears in "The Lady Eve."

Dr. Wortis Chairman on Exceptional Photoplays

NEW YORK—Dr. S. Bernard Wortis is new chairman of its Committee on Exceptional Photoplays, the National Board of Review states. Dr. Wortis acts as consultant and attending neuropsychiatrist in several government services and was formerly associate psychiatrist to the Johns Hopkins Hospital and Medical College.

Cooperation between exhibitor and public was the keynote of a regional discussion of community Motion Picture Council representatives held by the national board at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Among the speakers was Herman M. Levy, secretary of the MPTO of Connecticut. In answer to the group's questions regarding theatres, booking and the decree, as applied to their work with the theatres of their communities, Levy declared:

"Make yourself a part of the theatre man's program all year 'round, instead of just for special favors. The exhibitor welcomes suggestions from you community groups about the pictures he shows—provided you come to see them after he books them."

Columbia Sales Drive

NEW YORK—Columbia launches its annual sales drive March 1 as the "Columbia Exhibitors' Goodwill Campaign." It winds up May 30.

Triple Billing Reaches The Garden of Eden

By LEONARD WEISBERG

NEW YORK—The personnel of Paramount's eastern publicity staff has never impressed this department as being imbued with the sort of serious attitude expected of a group of educators, historians or archaeologists.

Maybe we've had the wrong slant on the praise boys all along; figuring all along as we have that they'd sell their mothers-in-law's soul for a front page story or picture break. But a mere look at the record will demonstrate beyond a shadow of a doubt how serious they are about zoology, for instance. Reams of copy centered about dogs in behalf of "The Biscuit Eater." Then such an intense interest in lion cubs, as associated with "Her Jungle Love." You may remember the glorification of the flea for "Zaza." Who can forget the sendoff the seals got when that Gladys Swarthout picture rolled around? Ducks came in for the spotlight when Dorothy Lamour's film was ready for release. And then Jiggs, the chimpanzee, was almost immortalized for "Typhoon."

At the moment we're down to Emma, the snake. It seems no accurate record exists over whether Eve, of Adam fame, was a blonde, brunette or red head; whether she was short, medium or tall. Tom Waller and Herb Berg undertook to find out, just for the record, of course. So they invited the leading newspaper syndicates to witness the event and chose the Copacabana club for the testing. Emma, it seems further, was flown in from the coast for the occasion. She was uncaged at the night club in a setting possibly reminiscent of what Eve saw when she was linked to that apple tree. Maybe.

Emma, all 30 inches of her, had the privilege of being attended by Dr. Raymond Ditmars, curator of reptiles and insects; Dr. Lawrence Gould, consulting psychologist, five comely lassies, one seven-foot-seven man, 10 cameramen and representatives of leading newspaper syndicates, wire services and trade press representatives. The five comely misses were appropriately dressed as Eves, and the man as Adam. The apples on the tree were genuine. Emma was as docile as a kitten. It all made sense, Dr. Ditmars meekly declared, becauses snakes and apple trees are symbolic of Adam and Eve.

This explanation is accepted by this observer because it bore the mark of authenticity. As we left the Copacabana, though, we kept wondering if anyone else —say, the cameramen—believe it. Because, as we all know, Paramount is about to release "The Lady Eve."

Screen Readers Re-elect

NEW YORK — Officers of the Screen Readers Guild of N. Y. have been re-elected unanimously. More than 90 per cent of the readers in the east are members. The unit is awaiting a date for an NLRB hearing which is to be set following the NLRB hearings with the Screen Publicists Guild.

Rudy Berger, Metro district manager, was bedded with the flu for a spell; his recovery making possible his scheduled departure with Mrs. Berger for the Miami shores where they will join Mr. and Mrs. Abe Lichtman for a fortnight . . . Bob Sargent, formerly associated with the Metro staff and now of New Rochelle, was a visitor with his recent bride . . . Mr. and Mrs. Jack Goldberg celebrated an anniversary on the 21st . . . Robert Rubin of the Metro legal staff was a visitor . . . Estelle Goldschein a birthday celebrant on the 19th.

Bonus Checks to Republic For Outstanding Films

NEW YORK—Within two days, exhibitors of Buffalo and Koppel, Pa., have voluntarily tendered bonus checks to Republic in "appreciation" of unusual boxoffice returns on two recent releases. It is safe to assume the incident evoked no little surprises among Republic executives.

Anyhow, Nicholas J. Basil, general manager of Basil Bros. Theatres in Buffalo and Niagara Falls, sent Jack Bellman, branch manager at Buffalo, a check on account of the "nice results" of "Hit Parade of 1941." Basil wrote he hoped the check "will be accepted in the spirit in which it is given."

The other check was sent by John B. Wilson, manager of the Koppel, Koppel, who said the bonus was for the "exceptional business" done by "Wagons Westward."

Republic Sales Meeting Series Starts Feb. 27

HOLLYWOOD—First of five in a series of regular quarterly sales meetings planned by Republic will get under way at the North Hollywood studio February 27. The three-day session, over which Herbert J. Yates, M. J. Siegel, production head, and James R. Grainger, distribution chieftain, will preside, will be attended by approximately 50 western franchise holders, branch managers, bookers and salesmen.

Other parleys will follow in the east, south, midwest and Canada.

A Special Week's Drive For Gus J. Schaefer

NEW YORK—Gus J. Schaefer, RKO northeastern district manager, was honored with a special drive last week. Those participating were Bernard Kranze, Albany; R. C. Cropper, Boston; Elmer Lux, Buffalo; Barney Pitkin, New Haven.

Schine Renews Altec

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.—The Schine circuit has renewed an agreement under which Altec provides sound service, repairs and replacements, and theatre inspection for the 117 Schine houses.

"Back Street" Takes Honors on Broadway

NEW YORK—"Back Street" at the Rivoli, garnering a very profitable $38,000 the first week, is the standout along an otherwise average Broadway. The film was the recipient of a swell advance campaign by Universal and the management. Universal scored another ace with "Buck Privates," playing first run at the State, customary secondary film, vaudeville house. It was heavily backed by the critics and brought in more cash than some of the more expensive opposition offerings, although the bulk of the latter were holdovers.

See Little Likelihood Loew's Will Drop Rio

NEW YORK—There is little chance Loew's will drop the Rio, on upper Broadway. While the circuit is operating currently on a short term arrangement, following a long term lease, it is pointed out no extended lease can be made until the lessor makes another commitment with the landlord first. This is expected shortly.

New Low in Jobs and Earnings for Extras

Steadily declining over the past few months, job placements and earnings for Hollywood's extra players reached a new low in January, according to disclosures from Central Casting Corp.

Tabulation revealed earnings for the month were less than $130,000, nearly $100,000 under January, 1939 and $35,000 under January, 1940. Decrease in job placements is affecting Central in addition to the extras themselves, the low pitch of activity having forced officials of the casting agency to introduce a staggered system whereby two casting directors, in rotation, will be given 30-day leaves of absence. A thorough discussion of the entire situation is expected to be made when Screen Actors Guild representatives meet with the producers shortly, in an effort to have certain groups of extras reclassified and given wage increases.

Two Quit Paramount

Both Jack Moss and A. M. Botsford, Paramount producers, have resigned. Botsford, for the past several years production assistant to William LeBaron, executive producer who terminated his contract recently, announced he will continue his association with LeBaron. Latter is forming an independent unit to make films for Paramount release. Moss has signed a term contract with Walter Wanger, United Artists producer, as a production executive, taking over his new duties early in March after an eastern vacation. His first assignment will be supervision of Wanger's "Sundown," to be directed by Henry Hathaway, who secured a release from his Paramount contract recently.

Also leaving Paramount is LeRoy Prinz, dance director on the lot for the past eight years. Now staging the musical numbers for Columbia's "Show Business," Prinz is expected to return to Paramount on a one-picture deal for "Aloma of the South Seas."

Orville O. Dull, associated for more than ten years with Producer John W. Considine of M-G-M, has been made a full-fledged producer at the studio. His first assignment will be to co-produce, with Robert Z. Leonard, "Two Women." Dull acted as Considine's aide on "Men of Boys Town," "Edison the Man" and "Young Tom Edison."

An Array of Entertainment For Academy Banquet

An array of entertainment features never before equalled, with President Franklin D. Roosevelt, via radio, to be the principal speaker, has been lined up for the 13th annual Awards dinner of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences February 27.

As arranged for by Walter F. Wanger, Academy president, during a recent trip to Washington, the nation's chief will deliver an address on a 15-minute, two-way hookup in which all three national networks—Mutual, NBC and Columbia—will participate by running direct lines into the Biltmore Bowl, where the banquet is to be held. The program will get under way at 8:45 Pacific Standard Time, with the President to deliver his speech from the White House. Arrangements have been worked out by Academy executives with network officials whereby sponsors of the air time which will be devoted to the President's address have given up their commitments. Thanking the President from Hollywood and extending him the industry's greetings and best wishes will be a representative collection of motion picture notables headed by Wanger.

Mervyn LeRoy, chairman of the dinner committee, has announced, additionally, that Bob Hope will be master of ceremonies, with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne to present the best actor and best actress awards. LeRoy's committee includes Edward Arnold, Charles Brackett, William Goetz, Hope, John LeRoy Johnston, Robert Riskin, Hal Wallis, Lyle Wheeler, Frank Whitbeck, Don Gledhill.

Meantime the following short subjects have been named for final consideration by members of the awards rules committee and the Academy board:

One-reel subjects—"Quicker'n a Wink," Pete Smith Specialty, M-G-M; "London Can Take It," Vitaphone Varieties, Warner; "More About Nostradamus," Carey Wilson Miniature, M-G-M; "Siege," Pathe.

Two-reel subjects—"Eyes of the Navy," produced by Frank Whitbeck, M-G-M; "Service With the Colors," Warner, produced by Gordon Hollingshead; "Teddy the Rough Rider," produced by Hollingshead, Warner.

Cartoons — "Puss Gets the Boot," M-G-M; "Milky Way," M-G-M; "A Wild Hare," Leon Schlesinger, for Warner.

Further, Wanger has appointed a Special Effect Award Committee which will select the one production to be recognized as the outstanding special effect achievement of the year. With Farciot Edouart as chairman, committee includes: Lionel Banks, Jack Cosgrove, Arnold Gillespie, Alexander Golitzen, Byron Haskin, Bernard Herzbrun, Stanley Horsley, Kenneth Lambert, Harry Leonard, Louis Mesenkop, Jack Otterson, Elmer Raguse, Roy Seawright, Fred Sersen, Hal Shaw, James Stewart, S. J. Twining, Vernon Walker and Fred Wilson.

Monta Bell Joins Para't As Associate Producer

Monta Bell has joined Paramount as an associate producer. An industry veteran, he was an associate producer at M-G-M and executive producer of the old Paramount Eastern studio in Astoria, Long Island. Bell is now reading scripts, announcement of his first assignment to be made shortly. At the same studio Harold Wilson has been appointed assistant to B. G. DeSylva, new executive producer, moving over from the Sol C. Siegel production unit.

7-Year Pact for Jane

Twentieth-Fox has given Jane Withers a new seven-year contract.

Screen Stars in Ascap's Musical Show in Hemet

Film stars were well represented in the musical show staged in Hemet February 19 by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers in conjunction with that town's annual Ramona Pageant.

First in a projected series of barnstorming trips, the junkets itinerary included Edward G. Robinson, Betty Grable, Jack Oakie, Mary Healy, Frank Fay, Constance Moore, Ray Bolger and Mary Whiting. Ascap songwriters attending included Gus Kahn, Hoagy Carmichael, Sam Coslow, Arthur Schwartz, Clarence Muse, Wolfe Gilbert, Harold Arlen, Ned Washington and Harry Akst.

RKO Executive Setup May Get Revamping

That changes in RKO Radio's studio executive setup may be impending is seen as a possibility, although neither confirmed nor denied by those authorized to voice opinions, as the result of a statement issued by George J. Schaefer, president of the company, declaring he has assumed full charge of all studio activity and will remain in Hollywood indefinitely. Schaefer's statement read:

"My stay on the coast is for an indefinite period. While here I will take complete charge of the studio. J. J. Nolan will continue to act as my assistant."

This declaration came on the eve of the launching of product and sales parleys in which Ned E. Depinet, vice-president in charge of distribution; Schaefer, Nolan and Harry E. Edington, executive producer, were to participate. It closely followed an earlier statement by Schaefer denying emphatically rumors which had been circulating to the effect Depinet would be placed in charge of the studio.

On Wednesday the company officially announced that J. R. McDonough, a vice-president, would assume the executive duties formerly held by Lee Marcus. Marcus will serve as associate producer under McDonough who will continue to handle, as in the past, the company's relations with independent producers. It was also announced that Dan Winkler, who joined the company a year ago, would continue in charge of studio commitments.

Lauds Financial Condition

Schaefer is expressing optimism as to prospects for the coming year, having asserted upon his arrival that, despite chaos abroad and the loss of foreign markets, the company which he heads has weathered one of the severest crises in the industry's history, without borrowing from the banks, and is not indebted to its parent company for current production. This is true, Schaefer pointed out, despite reduction in foreign currencies and serious restrictions on the flow of foreign funds. The RKO Radio president stated that two new releases, "Kitty Foyle" and "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," are among the biggest money-makers in the company's history.

Following their attendance at Universal's recent annual sales meeting in Chicago, Cliff Work, in charge of studio operations; Dan Kelly, chief of the talent-scouting division; and Milton H. Feld, executive producer, are back at the studio. John Joseph, advertising-publicity director, was expected to return later in the week, having spent a month away from his desk. During that time he accompanied Deanna Durbin to the President's Birthday Ball in Washington and to the Miami premiere of "Back Street," then went to Chicago for the sales session and on to New York for homeoffice conferences.

Terminating conferences on future production and budgets, A. Montague, Columbia's general sales manager, and Leo Jaffe, assistant to the treasurer, have returned to New York. Remaining here a few days longer to wind up their huddles are Jack Cohn, vice-president, and A. Schneider, company treasurer.

Also going east, after a week at the Culver City studio, was Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc. He huddled with Louis B. Mayer, E. J. Mannix and other local executives on new productions planned for spring and early summer.

Trem Carr, member of the Monogram board of directors, has followed President W. Ray Johnston to New York, where they are conferring with other company executives on plans for future product. Johnston will remain away from his local headquarters for several weeks, as he plans to stop off at various key centers en route back to Hollywood for conferences with district managers, franchise holders and other exchange officials.

March Start Scheduled For "Strange Victory"

For United Artists, Sol Lesser has pegged a March starting date on "Strange Victory," from a story by Rose Franklen and William Brown Meloney. A UA release has also been set for "The Eagle Squadron," which Argosy Corp. will launch in March in an affiliated deal with Walter Wanger. Wanger himself is preparing "Sundown" for an early getaway.

Other independents with UA releases planning early production starts include Edward Small, who recently announced a $5,000,000 program of five pictures; Richard A. Rowland, preparing "The Battle of Britain;" Hal Roach, soon to roll "Niagara Falls" and David O. Selznick, readying "Jane Eyre."

Freeman Will Again Lead Producers

Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of Paramount's studio operations, has been re-elected president of the Producers Association. He was unanimously selected for a second term at a meeting of the board of directors on the occasion of the seventeenth anniversary of the organization.

Also re-elected for a second term were: E. J. Mannix, M-G-M, first vice-president; Cliff Work, Universal, second vice-president; and Fred W. Beetson, executive vice-president.

Attending the session, in addition to the elected officers, were Will H. Hays, Harry Cohn, J. R. McDonough, William Goetz, Walter Wanger, H. M. Warner, Maurice Benjamin, George Cohen, George Wasson, Alfred Wright, Jack Karp, Homer Mitchell, Herbert Freston and Mendel Silberberg.

Following election of officers association members voted to resume negotiations February 20 with the Screen Actors Guild on that organization's demands that extra players be reclassified and given wage increases. Approval was also given for a wage increase requested by Studio Scenic Artists. Hays, here from New York on one of his periodic visits, spoke briefly on the foreign and domestic situation.

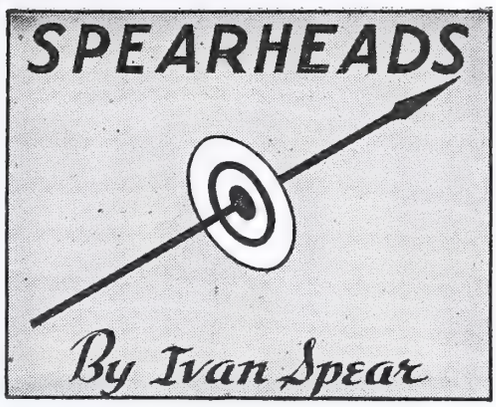
Produce "Pioneers"

Monogram will produce "The Pioneers," from the James Fenimore Cooper novel, as a special feature starring Tex Ritter. It rolls late in February with Edward Finney producing from a script by Charles Anderson.

Link Herbert Yates With PRC Setup

Possibility that Herbert J. Yates, through his Consolidated Film Industries, may indirectly enter into the Producers Releasing Corp. setup insofar as its financial destinies are concerned, is indicated in disclosures by PRC spokesmen that the company may switch its laboratory contract away from Pathe to Consolidated or another processing firm. Officials assert, however, that to date there has been no decision on the matter, although admitting that one deal with Consolidated has already been set whereby the laboratory work on "Federal Fugitives," forthcoming film to be produced by John T. Coyle, will be done by the Yates company.

Meantime "Laddie's Loyalty," script by Martin Mooney, has been added to Jed Buell's schedule for PRC. Built around the truelife story of the Airedale who died when his master left his home in Kansas to join the draft army, it will roll March 4 with William Beaudine directing. Buell will follow this with "Emergency Landing," also written by Mooney.



Now in production on location in Tucson, Ariz., is "Tumbledown Ranch in Arizona," newest in the "Range Busters" western series being produced by George W. Weeks for Monogram release. Feminine lead has been handed to Sheila Darcy.

For RKO Radio release, William Hawks' United Productions has rolled "My Life With Caroline." Lewis Milestone is directing Ronald Colman and Anna Lee in the leads. Following its completion, the Hawks unit moves to 20th Century-Fox to prepare "The Red Pony" from a John Steinbeck story.

With camera work pegged to begin in April, Orson Welles has dispatched Cinematographer Gregg Toland to Mexico to pick up background footage and scout locations for Welles' next film for RKO Radio.

Talk Plans for Second "Gambol of the Stars"

Plans for the Screen Actors Guild-American Federation of Radio Artists' second annual "Gambol of the Stars," to be held March 17 at the Ambassador Cocoanut Grove, were discussed at a press luncheon at which Edward Arnold, George Murphy, Bette Davis, Lucile Gleason, Porter Hall and Robert Montgomery were hosts. They are committee chairmen for the affair. Representatives of the trade, metropolitan and syndicate press attended.

MARK Twain's classic observation, "everybody talks about the weather but nobody ever does anything about it," might also be applied to that nebulous industry panacea—New Blood.

During the past week, however, came a demonstration that Hollywood, probably in spite of itself, has apparently done something about it. The "something" was reflected in two new features shown to the reviewing press. They are RKO Radio's "Scattergood Baines" and Columbia's "Adam Had Four Sons." Each is the initial productional effort of a young fellow with virtually no previous experience in motion picture making. Each, in its respective budget class, is a highly commendable accomplishment, for which any more-seasoned, established and high-salaried production executive would be happy and proud to take bows.

"Scattergood Baines" is brought to the screen by Jerrold T. Brandt, son of the late Joe Brandt, former Columbia executive. Young Brandt, now only 27, incorporated Pyramid Pictures last July; went out and paid a cold $100,000 for the rights to 104 of Clarence Budington Kelland's "Scattergood" stories; and with those under his arm set a three-year deal to produce three films yearly for RKO Radio. It was his first sally into the production field, his previous experience in motion pictures having been limited to work as a film cutter.

One Robert Sherwood produced the Columbia film. He, 29 years old, had been a jack-of-all trades before deciding to take a fling at Hollywood—having pursued such professions as radio announcing, stage acting, singing and even playing the oboe—on which instrument he became proficient enough to last a season with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Having secured an option on what he considered promising film material, Charles Bonner's novel, "Legacy," Sherwood trekked to New York and diligently applied himself until he secured financial backing, in the process of which his earnestness apparently overcame any qualms his backer might have entertained because of Sherwood's complete inexperience in picture production. Then he went out and signed Warner Baxter for the male lead, succeeded in borrowing Ingrid Bergman from David O. Selznick for the top feminine role, and set a releasing deal with Columbia.

When a new producer is born in Hollywood, which generally admits its constant and crying need for new blood transfusions, it is noteworthy. When a pair of them put in an appearance in the same week it is nothing short of an event.

Especially is it an event worthy of the attention of the graybeards who delight in creating the impression, probably to help in justifying their princely salaries, that nothing but a rare blend of genius and nerve-racking experience can make a producer.

More power to young Messers. Brandt and Sherwood, and may the near future uncover more like them.

An interesting sidelight in connection with the Brandt film is the immediate and obvious conclusion that well-made motion pictures are still far superior to the radio in capturing the true atmosphere and character of a fictional figure. Countless thousands of readers are familiar with the down-to-earth philosophies and shrewd Yankee operations of Kelland's Sage of Coldriver. Guy Kibbee's interpretation of "Scattergood" comes miles closer to fitting the popular conception of the character, his associates and his environment, than does the radio program based on the same stories.

An ominous, status quo silence has descended upon the William Randolph Hearst-Orson Welles controvery concerning whether or not the boy wonder's quadruple-threat production, "Citizen Kane," is to be released and, if so, when and in what form. Contending that the film story parallels his own life, and in none-too-flattering vein, the publisher demanded that it be shelved. The ticklish problem was dumped into the lap of George J. Schaefer, RKO Radio president, and repeated promises have been forthcoming during the past few weeks that a final decision would be made and announced by him following huddles with board members in New York. The pow-wows have come and gone, Mr. Schaefer is now in Hollywood, where he announces that his stay on the coast is for an indefinite period and that, while here, he will take complete charge of the studio.

But there is still no word about "Citizen Kane," when it will be previewed and when, if ever, it will be released. In the meantime, "Look," picture magazine edited by the Clan of Cowles, itself no small potatoes in the publishing world, breaks forth with three pages of action stills from the production and a review of the picture. Which brought a confession from the artful dodgers in RKO Radio's studio publicity department that "Citizen Kane" has been shown to a handful of favored reviewers in addition to Louella O. Parsons, Hearst's motion picture editor, who demanded to see it many weeks ago so she could decide whether or not it did her boss wrong. The "Look" layout and review certainly belies the glib statements from studio spokesmen that the Welles production "is not a story of Hearst's life but, rather, a composite of the careers of several prominent fourth-estaters." It can do nothing but add further fuel to the fires, assuming that the Sultan of San Simeon was not sufficiently burned before its appearance. Perry Lieber's department passes the buck to Herbert Drake, Welles' personal publicist and currently the fattest fly in Lieber's ointment.

Regardless of where the blame falls for woeful and continued mishandling of public and trade relations in the deplorable situation, it becomes increasingly obvious that RKO Radio has a celluloid bear by the tail, with every indication that further procrastination, equivocation and buck-passing will add to the bruin's ferocity. The press, the trade and the public are entitled to know what is going to happen.

Nostalgic, Neophytes, Nags

The long dry spell which had Hollywood reviewers talking to themselves came to a sudden end with six pictures combining to bring the weekly preview catalogue up to normal. Four were topnotch offerings in their respective fields and two of them were debuted with an accompaniment of free viands and vitamins.

In "The Strawberry Blonde" Warner expertly blends a full measure of laughs, a few tears, a large helping of romance and a dash of bittersweet nostalgia against authentic backgrounds, atmosphere and music of the Gay Nineties. Compounded as a result is a story which, in the hands of a first-rate cast, is a film treat for which great popularity and profit may be confidently predicted. The film is quite a triumph for the Cagneys; William, of that family, having turned in a topnotch job as producer, his second assignment, while James, sharing star billing with Olivia de Havilland and Rita Hayworth, grabs all the acting honors in a part which fits his talents like a pair of hand-made boots, even though his co-stars score effectively. The well-typed supporting cast, headed by Alan Hale and Jack Carson, adds its sizeable bit to the excellence of the entry. Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein concocted the script, using as its basis a play by James Hagan. To his growing list of directorial successes, Raoul Walsh adds another winner with his top-flight piloting job.

"Adam Had Four Sons," Robert Sherwood's first production, being released by Columbia, is a finely-made and impressive vehicle into which has been incorporated enough entertainment elements to indicate profitable patronage. The feature may require smart merchandising to garner the grosses to which it is entitled in its first runs, but when once it begins to benefit from the word-of-mouth acclaim that obvious merit will engender, it should hit its full stride with no difficulty. Acute romanticists and sentimentalists probably will find it irresistible, since the script by William Hurlbut and Michael Blankfort, from Charles Bonner's novel, "Legacy," specializes in love of several varieties. Gregory Ratoff displays understanding and restraint in an effective piece of direction. Furthermore, the cast is a splendid one. Warner Baxter re-establishes himself as one of filmdom's better actors in a part ideally suited to his mature talents; while Ingrid Bergman, sharing top honors, appears to incalculably greater advantage than in her previous Hollywood assignments.

Spiced with dry humor, the required rustic backgrounds and romance, RKO Radio's "Scattergood Baines" should prove a solid hit, in its own unassuming way, with the millions who are fans of Clarence Budington Kelland's famous fictional character. First in a proposed series to be produced by Jerrold T. Brandt's Pyramid Pictures, it is a distinct triumph for him. Brandt, together with Frank Melford, his production executive, merit praise for the successful manner in which they ensnared the atmosphere of Coldriver, "Scattergood's" home town, and for delivering a package of well-made, wholesome entertainment. Christy Cabanne directed; Michael L. Simmons and Edward T. Lowe wrote the script. The title role was made to measure for Guy Kibbee, and his delineation of the shrewd Yankee philosopher should delight all who have read the Kelland stories and listened to the radio program.

Metro's "The Trial of Mary Dugan," remade after 12 years, remains effective dramatic entertainment, well written, performed and directed. Deftly handling the top roles are Laraine Day and Robert Young, while supporting assignments are pleasingly fulfilled by Tom Conway, John Litel and Marjorie Main. Edwin Knopf, who produced, also contributed the major portion of the script, written from the Bayard Veiller play. Norman Z. McLeod handled the directorial reins with his accustomed competence.

Quite an improvement over the last two or three Jane Withers vehicles is 20th Century-Fox's "Golden Hoofs," a treatise on the sport of harness-racing, which should exert considerable appeal in those sectors where the Withers name is a marquee magnet. Jane, now virtually full-grown, has discarded most of her ebullient mannerisms and carries herself with a more subdued and pleasing demeanour. Worthy of mention is the screen return of Charles (Buddy) Rogers, acquitting himself very creditably; while comedy honors go to a little colored lad, Phillip Hurlick. Produced by Walter Morosco and Ralph Dietrich, it was directed by Lynn Shores. Ben Grauman Kohn scripted from a story by Roy Chanslor and Thomas Langan.

Tex Ritter returns to the time-honored formula for crooning cowhands in "Ridin' the Cherokee Trail" and his new adventure, consequently, is much better than the chapter which immediately preceded it. As middle-scale western fare, the Edward Finney production, released by Monogram, will serve in the market for which it was made. Musical moments are supplied by Ritter and the Tennessee Ramblers. Spencer G. Bennet directed from a script by Edmond Kelso.

An Aim to Please—

Whenever corpulent Director Alfred Hitchcock feels in the mood to drop into the Hawaii Theatre in Hollywood this specially built, streamlined and tailor-made seat will be waiting for him. Nearly three times the size of the ordinary theatre seat, it was reserved for Hitchcock when "Rebecca," which he directed for David O. Selznick, opened at the theatre recently. Seat, built by Kroehler, has a reinforced steel back, reinforced cushions on steel supports, and the parts are electrically welded instead of bolted.

With New York Behind—

See Central Casting Service Relegated

Another phase of the unemployment situation confronting extra and bit players is being subjected to official scrutiny with the disclosure by Howard R. Philbrick, general manager of Central Casting Corp., that in the majority of instances his organization is not being utilized to the fullest advantage by the studios seeking extra players. During January, his figures reveal, out of a total of 12,114 assignments only 4,681 were handled through Central, with the balance coming through direct hiring of the extras by the studios themselves. Earnings were $132,636.90, nearly $90,000 under January, 1939.

Philbrick is expected to confer with Screen Actors Guild and producer association officials with a view to urging that studios use Central to a greater extent, while he and other Central officials will also participate in scheduled SAG-producer conferences out of which it is expected several hundred so-called "casual" extras, who worked 20 days or less in 1940, will be dropped from the list of eligible players. The resultant decrease, it is believed, will increase placements and earnings for the remaining extras.

"Speculative" Writing Frown

With their next meeting scheduled for February 26, members of the producer-Screen Directors Guild conciliation committee met to discuss the SDG's demands for establishment of minimum wage scales, a 90 per cent Guild shop and other adjustments in its current studio contract. Phil Rosen and George Stevens are sitting in for the SDG, with B. B. Kahane and Roy J. Obringer representing the producers.

Motion Picture Set Electricians, Local 728, has filed demands with producers for a minimum six-hour call, improved wages and working conditions, as have the Motion Picture Studio Grips, Local 80. Now being readied by the Photographers Local 659, IATSE, are demands for a shorter work-week and wage increases.

Screen Writers Guild is drafting demands for a ban on so-called "speculative" writing, to be included in the new contract it is seeking when its current agreement with the producers expires in April. The SWG will also seek a minimum wage scale for "flat" and "package" deals and a readjustment of the present method of allocating screen credits. Negotiating committee, headed by President Sheridan W. Gibney, will meet with producers within a week.

Unit at Disney Plant

Completion of a unit at the Walt Disney studio has been announced by the Screen Cartoonists Guild, which recently filed a petition with the National Labor Relations Board charging the Disney plant with "unfair" labor practices and seeking to supplant the Federation of Screen Cartoonists, which it alleges is a company union, as bargaining representative for cartoonists at the studio. Meantime the NLRB has ordered a consent election of firemen and policemen at 20th Century-Fox to choose a bargaining representative. Voting is set for February 26 with George Yager, NLRB field examiner, in charge. Studio organizations of firemen and policemen will compete in the balloting against the Building Service Employes, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

To discuss the Screen Office Employes Guild's efforts to negotiate an industry-wide agreement for clerical workers, the Hollywood Guild Council held a meeting with President Ed Gilbert as chairman. The HGC is cooperating with the SOEG in the latter craft's drive to obtain a contract.

Replacing Gloria Stuart, absent from California, Walter Pidgeon has been named an alternate member of the Screen Actors Guild's board of directors. The SAG has been named defendant, together with Central Casting Corp., in a suit filed in municipal court by Jose Luis Rodriguez, bit player, seeking $1,697 in damages on the contention the SAG denied him a "leniency work permit" because he was delinquent in dues. This refusal, he alleges, has lost him several weeks' employment.

"Hard-Boiled Canary" to Bow in Dallas March 8

Ending a short lull in the out-of-town premiere cycle, Paramount has announced plans to debut "The Hard-Boiled Canary" in Dallas, Tex., March 8, with proceeds going to the British War Relief Fund.

Civic and business leaders of the city are aiding in the arrangements. The 3,800-seat State Fair Auditorium is being wired for sound under the direction of Interstate Theatre circuit engineers and the price scale has been set at $2.00 for the matinee performance, $2.50 for the evening show.

Allan Jones, Susanna Foster and Dolly Loehr, who star in the film, will make stage appearances, doing musical numbers accompanied by the 80-piece Dallas symphony orchestra. The stars will also attend a $10-per-plate banquet March 7.

Here to negotiate with prominent British actors to make the trip is Gordon Guiberson, Dallas oil man, who heads the committee of sponsors for the event.

Hedy Out of "Uniform" Because of Illness

Illness of Hedy Lamarr, as a result of which she is scheduled for a session with the dentist, has forced her withdrawal from the cast of M-G-M's "The Uniform." She has been replaced by Rosalind Russell, playing opposite Clark Gable in her first role for her home studio since "The Women." Hunt Stromberg is producing and Clarence Brown is the director.

Set New Arlen Vehicle

Picture Corp. of America will gun "Forced Landing," April 15 for release through Paramount. Starring Richard Arlen, it will be the second in a series of three aviation melodramas being produced by William H. Pine and William C. Thomas.

48 Films Shooting; No Letup in Sight

With a total of 48 features—almost a record in itself—now in production, every indication points to a continuation of this blistering pace throughout the balance of this month and in March in Hollywood's picture-making studios. Ten more films will be fed into the hopper in February and 24 have already been lined up for camera work next month.

Studio by studio, the schedules look like this:

Columbia—"Chain Gang" and "Texas." Metro—"The Uniform" and "Smilin' Through." Monogram — "Tumbledown Ranch in Arizona," "Widows of the Press" and "The Pioneers."

Paramount—"Aloma of the South Seas," "Two Bad Angels," "Buy Me That Town" and "Little Miss Muffett." Republic—"Rookies on Parade," "Angels Without Wings" and "The Lady From New Orleans."

RKO Radio—"True to Form," an untitled Kay Kyser musical, "Horseback Hurricane" and "Water Gypsies." In April it will launch "Father Takes a Wife." Twentieth Century-Fox—"Miami," "Man Hunt," "Private Nurse," "Last of the Duanes" and "Man Alive." United Artists—"The Battle of Britain," "Jungle Book," "Strange Victory," and "Jane Eyre." "Niagara Falls" rolls in April for UA.

Universal—"Hit the Road," "The Black Cat" and "Mutiny in the Arctic." Warner—"Bad Men of Missouri," "Hard to Get" and, in April, "Navy Blues."

Plan Another Broadcast For Greek War Relief

Having enrichened the coffers of the Greek War Relief Fund by an approximate $150,000 through its all-star broadcast from the stage of Grauman's Chinese Theatre February 8, the Motion Picture Permanent Charities Committee, with Samuel Goldwyn as chairman, is now engaged in planning another broadcast for benefit of the same organization.

Program will be staged at the Shrine Auditorium February 25 and will be an all-musical affair titled "Cavalcade of American Music." Ascap officials, including President Gene Buck, will participate, and George M. Cohan will be on hand. Screen tunesmiths including Hoagy Carmichael, Jimmy Van Heusen, Walter Donaldson, Gus Kahn, Mack Gordon, Bert Kalmar, Harry Ruby, Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger, and others, are scheduled to participate. Alfred Newman, 20th Century-Fox musical director, will conduct a 75-piece orchestra. Program will be heard locally over Station KFWB.

Rudy Vallee and Alan Mowbray were co-masters of ceremonies at a British War Relief benefit performance held in Palm Springs February 15.

Lead in "Chain Gang"

Gloria Dickson will play the feminine lead in Columbia's "Chain Gang."

Exhaustive Survey To Improve Sound

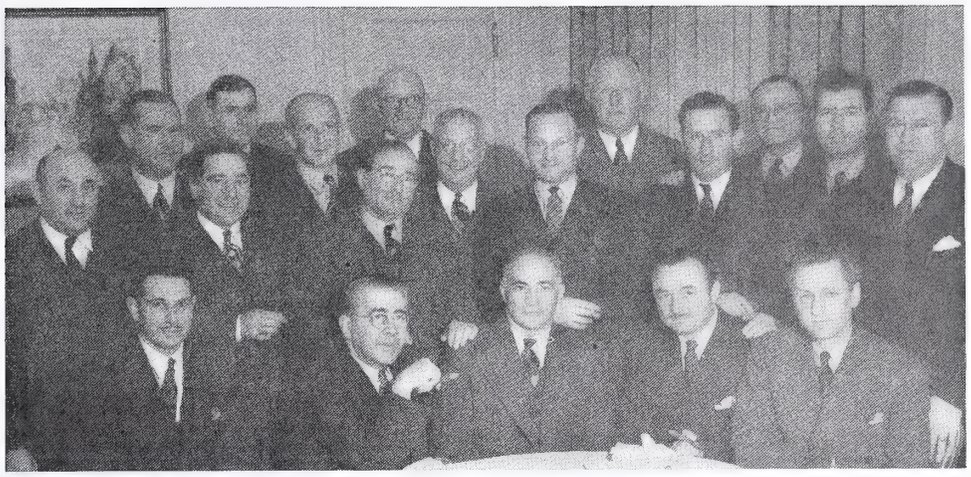
LOS ANGELES—Out of a total of 200 theatres scattered throughout the nation, ten houses in the Southern California exhibition area will, within the next week or ten days, be offered as guinea-pigs in an exhaustive survey of acoustical qualities and measurements being undertaken by the Academy Research Council with the cooperation of Altec Service Corp.

From this survey, according to Gordon S. Mitchell, chairman of the Academy group, it is hoped a standard system of acoustical measurements can be worked out which eventually will vastly improve sound quality and strongly effect the design of new motion picture theatres.

Representing Altec on the committee which will conduct the local analysis are G. L. Carrington, vice-president in charge of the engineering department, and Stanley Pariseau, manager of the Los Angeles branch. As yet, Pariseau declared, just which theatres will be used has not been decided, although Fox West Coast and many independent operators have offered their houses for the experiment.

Committee here, in addition to Carrington and Pariseau, includes Jack Durst, Lloyd Goldsmith, John Hilliard, Homer Tasker and M. C. Rettinger, all studio sound engineers.

A tentative system of acoustical measurements was first worked out by this group over a period of a month or more, using a Columbia Broadcasting System theatre turned over to it for that purpose. It is expected that the 200-theatre survey, which has already been launched in some territories, will take at least another month to complete.



Money and Goodwill in A Boy Scout Program

GLENDALE, CAL.—Extra business and customer good-will was the reward when Ed Harris, manager of Fox West Coast's Glendale, presented a special "Boy Scout Anniversary Program" on a Saturday matinee in observance of National Boy Scout Week.

Harris piped in the broadcast of President Roosevelt's address to the Boy Scouts as the program's finale. Preceding the broadcast, Scouts participated in a stage show demonstrating their activities, presenting merit badges, community singing and a short address by the local Boy Scout commissioner. Local schools cooperated and the stunt received considerable publicity in newspaper columns.

Mrs. Helen E. Berry

SEATTLE—Mrs. Helen E. Berry, owner of the Princess Theatre in Edmonds, just 15 miles from Seattle, died suddenly last week at her home. She had lived in Edmonds the past 20 years. Her husband died last May. Mrs. Lionel Brown, a daughter, will carry on at the theatre. Every exchange on Filmrow was represented at the funeral as well as many exhibitors from the Northwest.

Luncheon for Grainger On Visit to Seattle

SEATTLE—A luncheon was tendered J. R. Grainger, president of Republic, on his arrival here Wednesday, by J. T. Sheffield, franchise owner of Republic Pictures in the northwest.

Forty prominent exhibitors and newspaper men were present, among them Frank Newman, Al Rosenberg and Frank Christie of the Fox-Evergreen Theatres Corp.; John Danz, president of the Sterling Theatres Corp., and William Forman of the Sterling Theatres; J. Von Herberg, president of the Von Herberg circuit; Fred Murphy sr. and Fred Murphy jr. of the Murphy Washington and Oregon Theatres; Ben Shearer of the B. F. Shearer circuit.

Grainger Sets Deal With J. J. Parker for Portland

PORTLAND—James R. Grainger stopped over in Portland as a part of his itinerary to the Republic convention in Los Angeles. He spent a great deal of his time with J. J. Parker who will exhibit Republic pictures first run in Portland.

Contracts were signed by Parker and Grainger covering product for Portland and Astoria.

"Wind" Showing Seven Times Daily in L. A.

Los Angeles—In its first popular-priced run in this area, M-G-M's "Gone With the Wind" is being screened four times daily at the United Artists downtown, and three times daily at the Four Star.

George Smith Feted By Oregon Trade

PORTLAND — Friends of George Smith, newly appointed western sales manager for Paramount, gave a dinner party in his honor at the Benson Hotel last Wednesday evening. Exhibitors from all over the state attended the affair along with film men and representatives of the press. Jack Curry of the Paramount organization in Oklahoma City, and Hugh Braly, George Smith's successor as western district manager, also attended.

Representing the theatres were Dutch Stover, Carl Porter, Walter Leverette, Bill Ripley, Loring Schmidt, Dude Smith, Frank Newman jr., Banjo Miller, Joe Bradt, Kenny Ames, Bob White, Jesse Jones, Mose Mesher, Roy Brown, Herb Sabottka. Bob Farrell, speaker of the house of representatives at Salem, was there and from the Row, Lou Amacher, Mark Cory, Howard Mapes, Al Anderson, Jack Flannery, Joe Warren, Jack Kloepper, Glenn Broger, Lou Stang, George DuWade, and Tom Shearer. Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Oregonian, also attended.

Al Finke officiated at the presentation of a brief case to Smith, and Ted Gamble was master of ceremonies.

"Huskiest Engineer"

LOS ANGELES—Russ Holcomb, Altec engineer, claims to be the father of "the world's smallest engineer." His son, who weighed two pounds, seven ounces at birth, has just emerged from an incubator, and is now, Russ says, on his way to becoming "the world's huskiest engineer."

SEATTLE

THIS city is being bombarded with radio talks and outdoor advertising calling attention to the forthcoming election for mayor of Seattle. The field has now dwindled down to a mere 14. A few of the group have political background, but the rest are newcomers. One candidate is employing the showmanship of placing pretty girls on downtown street corners handing out cards. Only thing wrong with this gag was that the merchants got peeved because their doorways and corners are cluttered with cards. Betting among the "know-alls" favor a dark-horse, that is, as far as publicity is concerned, but the race will be nip and tuck. Show business is happy that the two strongest candidates have been close to it for years.

Due to the welcome given concert artists in this town, and what a welcome they receive, many have made bookings for the next few weeks. First will be Rachmaninoff, followed by Lawrence Tibbett, Kirsten Flagstad, Dorothy Maynor, Alec Templeton, Marian Anderson, Zino Francescatti, Arthur Rubenstein and other bookings still coming in . . . An oldtimer came to town last week, but he is of the sporting world. None other than Tommy Burns, former heavyweight champ. Tommy will reminiscence across a bar, having been granted membership in the bartenders union here . . . Technicolor pictures of Washington showing fishing and lumber industries, have been shown in 15,000 theatres and to 15,000,000 people, it is reported by Charles Larabee, chairman of the state progress commission. Four reels of the pictures were previewed by the senate and house in Olympia this week.

Biggest gathering of the week was for the one-day visit of Jimmy Grainger, general sales manager for Republic. Jimmy arrived by plane, was rushed to the Washington Athletic Club to be greeted by 30 some odd exhibitors and friends. Party was hosted by J. T. Sheffield, president of Republic of the Northwest, while Eddie Walton did the greeting. Reporters and photographers from all papers were on hand. Among those at the luncheon were John Danz, Frank Newman sr., Fred Mercy sr. and jr., J. von Herberg, Leroy V. Johnson, Bill Forman, Al Rosenberg, Frank Christie, Jack Rosenberg, B. F. Shearer, Clarence Innis, E. Blaine, Tommy Tomlinson, Joe Cooper, Paul McIlhinney, Al Baker, Ed Halberg, Sid Dean, Lee Kirby, Jack Sampson, Paul Bangasser, Dick Hays, Gil Brown, Fred Carter and Doug Welsh.

George Giroux, field representative for Technicolor Motion Picture Corp., on the Row from Hollywood . . . Morrie Segel back from the east of the mountain trip . . . Howard Taylor in from Sequin and plenty busy . . . Jimmy Ewing in from Auburn and toting a transformer . . . Visitor this week is Charles Coburn, noted character actor. He came to give the talent at the University the once-over . . . Word from Chicago and the Universal sales meet tells that Gordon Craddock has been named assistant to Bill Heineman. This is the same Craddock of the "Tillie" fame of Portland. Good luck to you Gordon. H. H. Hull will succeed him as branch manager of the Indianapolis office.

Bill Shartin, head of the local Warner branch, is back in the hospital but not from the last complaint. This time Bill got a sore foot and blood poison set in the leg. Nothing to report as yet . . . Howard Stubbins, president of Monogram of California, after spending several days here with Bill Duggan jr., local manager, has left for Portland and way points . . . Henry Kaufman, manager of Metro exchange operations, also off for Portland after doing his chores in the local exchange. Kaufman is from the New York office . . . Jack Burk and Louie Goldsmith of RKO back from the Spokane and way points . . . Rachael Caraco and June Pritchard lunching on the Row. 'Member June for many years with Metro?

Word from Denver that Jimmy Morrison, branch manager for Fox, is coming along nicely after that flu attack . . . Ray Grombacher visiting the Row from Portland; also Ollie Hartman from Grand Coulee. Ollie looks great following an illness . . . Sue Perunko over from Tacoma for the Valentine Party . . . Don Glover and wife along with the Washington State basketball team getting a real kick out of the double bills . . . Sid and Mrs. Dean enjoying the whole evening . . . Prize winning double features, "Six Lessons From Madame La Zonga" and "I'm Still Alive;" "She Couldn't Say No" and "He Stayed for Breakfast' and loads of others . . . One sheets will be left hanging in the club quarters and titles changed each week. Best suggested title will be given a special award . . . If you belong to a local service club, this is not a bad idea for something different if you are on the entertainment committee.

The eighth annual theatre conference under the direction of the University of Washington division of drama has officially opened. Over 200 delegates are on hand. Milton Lewis, talent scout for Paramount, is guest of honor . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ed Davis, brother-in-law and sister of Alys Johnson, who have been visiting here for a few days, off to their home in Helena, Mont. . . . With the slogan "Our Symphony Marches On," the Seattle Symphony will soon hold its annual sustaining fund campaign. Goal this season is $30,000.

Goodstein Brings Case To Denver Arbiter

DENVER—The first case to come before the Denver arbitration board is one in which the Jos. J. Goodstein Enterprises, Inc., are seeking relief under Sec. XXII, Sub. 9. He claims that his Longmont Theatre at Longmont, Colo., is at a disadvantage in buying product in competition with the Fox Longmont in the same town. Goodstein claims that seven companies, three of them signers of the decree, refuse to sell him films, leaving him only the product of RKO, Vitagraph and Republic. The three decree-signing companies against whom the complaint is filed are 20th Century-Fox, Loew's (M-G-M) and Paramount. Also named as refusing to sell him product are Universal, Columbia, United Artists and Monogram.

The Fox Longmont, named in the complaint, is operated by Fox Intermountain, while Goodstein operates the Longmont Theatre.

DENVER

RICK RICKETSON, manager of the Fox Intermountain theatres, has made the following managerial changes: Sterling Way has been moved from the Lotus and Orpheum at Sheridan, Wyo., to the Boulder at Boulder, Colo.; Charles Morehead moves from the America at Ft. Collins, Colo., to the Sheridan position; Harry Ashton, formerly at the Boulder, is now manager of the America at Ft. Collins; Don Smith, acting manager at the Boulder, Boulder, goes to Cheyenne to assist Fred Glass; L. C. Snyder, formerly owner of the State, Ft. Collins, has gone to work for Fox as manager of the Lyric there.

Bob Dane, former assistant manager at the Ogden Theatre here, has been signed by 20th Century-Fox as a stock player. Dane was urged to take a screen test by Tyrone Power, when Power was in Denver last summer on vacation . . . The Denver Theatre is getting new lighting in its vertical sign together with a new front. And a new uniform for their seven-foot doorman. Bernie Hynes, manager, says it costs almost as much to outfit him as it does the rest of the staff.

Buzz Briggs, manager of the State Theatre, in company with Dan Lehrburger, a former theatreman, and Dr. Arthur Clark, have gone to Phoenix, Ariz., for a short vacation . . . Duke W. Dunbar, for years formerly secretary of the Denver film board of trade, has been appointed an assistant attorney general, and now makes his headquarters at the state capital.

Ralph W. Abbott of the Jam Handy Productions in Denver for a week from his Los Angeles headquarters. He is making his headquarters at their Denver representative—the Monogram exchange.

Lon T. Fidler writes from California, where he is vacationing, that anyone who envies him his vacation should take a look at the pictures he sent his secretary and office manager, Miss Rose Agren. They show the results of the heavy "dew"—one where an automobile is half covered by flood waters.

Fred Footman of the Peak and Chief theatres, Colorado Springs, was seen on the Row dating films and buying supplies . . . The Palace Theatre, grind house on Curtis Street, is shining with a new redecorating job along with new leather upholstered seats, and a complete overhauling of booth equipment.

Curbs on Censorship Measure Discussed

Los Angeles—Ways and means of lessening the severity of the proposed censorship ordinance which would give the police commission authority to close any show, legit or screen, which it might consider indecent, were discussed by producer representatives, members of Hollywood's three largest talent guilds and other interested parties at a meeting over which Norris J. Nelson, councilman for the Hollywood district, presided.

The Screen Actors Guild already has gone on record as opposing passage of any such measure, on the ground it violates the right of free speech. The SAG contends the present censorship ordinance, providing for a trial by jury, could be made to work satisfactorily if properly enforced, and would give the producer or theatre operator an opportunity to defend himself. Under the proposed new legislation, however, police could step in and close any show arbitrarily.

First drafted more than a year ago, the measure was tabled, only to be revived recently. Those connected with film production and exhibition have been assured, however, by proponents of the legislation that it is not directed toward theatres or producers working under the Hays office's Production Code administration, but is aimed at "fly-by-night" stage impresarios presenting lewd and immoral productions.

SAN FRANCISCO

RAIN dealt a severe blow to theatres in this territory. Business was off at all boxoffices as rain fell continually throughout the week. Occasionally the downpour ceased, but most people stayed close to home. The rainfall for this area is double the average for this time of a normal year . . . Ted Lewis and his show of 25 opened an engagement at the Bal Tabarin . . . Universal sneaked "Buck Privates" at the Orpheum on Tuesday. All western managers, in for a one-day meeting, attended the preview.

Jack Redmond won his suit against Lawrence Goldsmith, owner of the Hopkins and Allendale theatres in Oakland. Redmond had a two-year contract to manage both of these houses and sued when Goldsmith attempted to slash Redmond's salary. The court ruled for Jack and he collected . . . The dance team of Jeanne and Jene Edwards have inked a contract to appear in a forthcoming Paramount picture. The act came here recently from Chicago and will fulfill local dates before going to Hollywood.

Paramount sent up a studio cameraman and a few assistants to get shots of San Francisco for backgrounds. Jury Commissioner Tom Mulvey suggested the Hobart Building in the center of the downtown district, as the view from there is pretty good. The Hobart manager stated that permission would have to be obtained from a real estate firm that handles the building. The real estate office directed troupe to the office of their attorney. The lawyer said O. K.—for $250! Paramount paid and then found they couldn't even get cooperation from the weather, having to sit around for several days until the rain let up.

Producers Releasing Corp. is moving March 1 to larger quarters. The company is taking the entire first floor at 125 Hyde with the exception of the space occupied by G. Karski. Alexander Film Co. is moving its office from this address to Los Angeles . . . Five East Bay theatres have contracted for Ruth Rogers cosmetics, introduced in this territory by Pacific Premium . . . Mickey Rooney and Les Peterson of M-G-M in town previous to sailing for Honolulu for a vacation . . . Harry Hollinsworth absent from his desk at RKO due to illness . . . William Huntington will open the Fowler in Fowler on the 28th.

Forty soloists from the major studios will compose the Werner Janssen Symphony Orchestra which will present a concert at the Curran, March 30. This is one stop on the tour that will take the studio musicians around the west . . . R. C. MacDonald, National Screen Accessories service manager, on vacation . . . Bill Heineman and Al O'Keefe in town for the Universal western district managers' meeting at the St. Francis . . . D. J. McNerny, UA manager, off on a four-week jaunt that will take him to New Orleans, Miami and New York . . . Fred Budde has taken Russell Clifton's doorman spot at the Embassy.

Harvey Amusement has taken over the American in Winnemucca from Harry Oastler. Kenny Udell moves over from Sonora to manage the American and C. Macway goes into Sonora . . . Hank Kaufman, manager of exchange operations out of New York, and Pete Dailey from Hollywood, visitors at Columbia . . . Ruth Chatterton comes back to San Francisco after a long absence when she opens at the Curran, February 24, in the Shaw comedy, "Pygmalion" . . . Dave Nathanson checked into town after a trip through the Valley for Producers . . . Harry Rice is now sporting a membership card in the Press Club. The membership is a gift from Harry's boss, Dan McLean.

Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney will be among Hollywood visitors who will participate in the big program to promote national unity to be sponsored by the Shriners. The doings will take place at the Civic Auditorium on March 15 and will coincide with the Shrine annual St. Patrick's luncheon. Louis B. Mayer will be the principal speaker . . . Edith Roger Dahl, wife of the famous flyer, is scoring a hit at the Club Moderne . . . The Deauville Club, which was one of the city's outstanding spots for many years during the 30's, has reopened as Lindy's.

The National Theatre Supply has installed new projection equipment and seats in both the El Campinil and the Casino in Antioch. The Casino, long dark, will reopen in the near future. George Stamm owns and operates both theatres . . . Clay Robinson and Bob Hale are new faces in the National Theatre Supply office. Lois English replaces Miss Fox in the same office on March 1 . . . Frank R. Stubbe, oldtime roadshow operator, is back in town looking for product . . . Marty Weiser, Warner exploiteer, in town.

The Fox held a "Western Union Night" on Monday. James G. Decatur, oldest living telegraph operator and for years manager of the San Francisco Western Union office, was guest of the theatre together with Mrs. Henrietta Gardner, world's champion telegraph operator. You guessed it, the feature picture was "Western Union" . . . Doc Henning back from Seattle with Pacific Premium contracts . . . Booking on the Row: Ray Kelsall, Victory, San Jose; Leo Reese, Lakeport, Lakeport; W. G. Allen, Sunset, Riverdale; Walter Morris, Tower, Santa Rosa.

Theatre Throws a Draftee Party

San Francisco—The Golden Gate threw a "Draftee Party" this week. Learning that 75 men had been called by draft board 98, Charlie Huy, Gate publicist, had 12 girls from the Peggy O'Neil dancers draw the names of 12 of the men from a hat. The 12 were taken by the girls for a swell evening—the last night before leaving for camp. The routine included the show at the Gate and stepping at the Bal Tabarin, all bills footed by the girls (backed by the Gate management). The exploitation, which received considerable local space, is expected to break soon in a national pictorial magazine.

Stunning is the word for the new offices of the Golden State Theatres, that occupy an entire floor in the Insurance Bldg. across the street from the former headquarters . . . John O'Leary, 20th-Fox traveling auditor, checked out after a week on the local books . . . Jesse Wright, son of Mildred Daly, is learning the exchange business. He is working in the Warner shipping and ad sales departments . . . M-G-M previewed "The Trial of Mary Dugan." However, at the time of the preview, the picture was called, "Crime of Mary Andrews" . . . Lester Hamilton, office manager at Pacific Premium, has been called by the Army and will report for duty the end of the month.

Ben Fisher, United Artists far western manager, off to Honolulu . . . Columbia is installing fluorescent lighting in the exchange here . . . Mike Newman has started an exploitation campaign on the serial "White Eagle." Exhibitors can win part of $100, personally put up by Newman, for their ideas . . . The Tower in Klamath Falls opens the first week in March . . . The theatre is owned by George Mann . . . "The Son of Monte Cristo" premiered here at the United Artists . . . George Page has started building at Vallejo. George was supposed to turn over his Ritz in Calistoga to Lawrence Borg on July 1, but the transfer will take place March 1.

"Gone With the Wind" has returned here at the Warfield at popular prices . . . James McArthur, Monogram shipper, is taking a vacation . . . Howard Stebbins, Mono prexy, was in town twice last week—once on the way north and again on his way back to Hollywood . . . Rumor has it that M. L. Markowitz is dickering for the President Theatre, dark now for a year. Markowitz sold his last house, the Davies, to the Blumenfeld circuit about four months ago . . . Roy Palmer of the Del Rio in Cloverdale is in Veterans' Hospital here.

The Tivoli is dark again. Joe Meyers' attempt to make it a film house ended after six weeks . . . Alvin Hatch is now operating the Princess at Half Moon Bay one day a week . . . Horror evidently pays. Three houses, one first run and two subsequents, all on Market Street, featured double bills, both ends being chillers. Boris Karloff was the man of the hour being featured at all three theatres . . . Ed Bauer, who left National Theatre Supply for an architect's job in Honolulu, writes he is settled and living the life of Riley . . . Warner previewed "Footsteps in the Dark" . . . The S. F. Art Commission is planning to bring outstanding musical comedies from Broadway to be staged in the Opera House . . . "Fantasia" is set for the Geary on a two-a-day basis. Hal Neides, formerly of the Orpheum, will handle the film.

Horror Duo Does Best Among L. A. Runs

LOS ANGELES—Apparently the first-run customers were in the mood to be horror-struck during the past week, for the outstanding business was chalked up by "The Monster and the Girl" and "The Mad Doctor" at the Paramount, coupled with a stage show headlining Andy Kirk and his orchestra. Warner's Hollywood and Downtown houses did slightly over average with "Road Show" and "Behind the News." At the Hillstreet and Pantages "This Thing Called Love," dualed with "San Francisco Docks," held up well in its second week. "Cheers for Miss Bishop" continued to exert a normal pull in its fourth stanza at the Four Star.

Seattle First Runs Still Seeking to Find Stride

SEATTLE—This town still needs a good shot of "something" to get it show minded. Store business is great, more autos jamming the streets, beer parlors and other spots doing fine but the show-shops are still not drawing what they deserve. "Gone With the Wind" returned to town at what is termed popular prices but it did not cause any riot although business was better than normal. "Buck Privates" proved that hokum comedy will go any time with the amusement loving public. Other business average or less.

San Francisco First Runs Make Mediocre Showing

SAN FRANCISCO—The clouds opened up on this territory again this week and rainy weather kept the boxoffices quiet. The weekends find great numbers of people heading out of town—either for the snow country or for drier and warmer climes. "Come Live With Me" led the first runs but even this film was only a shade above Paramount's average business. The rest of the Market Street theatres struggled along.

Detail for week ending February 12:

REVIEW FLASHES

ANDY HARDY'S PRIVATE SECRETARY (M-G-M)—In which the youngest of the Hardy clan, in the person of Mickey Rooney, very nearly doesn't graduate from high school, but scrapes through after the expected romantic, hilarious and academic complications. The feature, up to par for the series, otherwise is notable because it marks the debut of Kathryn Grayson, youthful actress and singer, who looks to be of star calibre. George B. Seitz directed.

COMPLIMENTS OF MR. FLOW (Hoffberg)—A smart cast of Gallic worthies plays this risque crook farce ably but fails to make the effort result in anything more than sketchy entertainment. A French import, it was probably made about seven or eight years ago. Fernand Gravet, Louis Jouvet.

HARD-BOILED CANARY, THE (Para't)—An experimental sally into the field of culture, the picture has many moments of rare entertainment to offer music lovers and, because of its preponderantly juvenile cast, may possess a dramatic appeal to youngsters. Andrew L. Stone produced and directed.

IN OLD COLORADO (Para't)—Although Hopalong Cassidy gets away from his usual stomping grounds, geographically, he doesn't deviate one bit from his well established system for delivering top notch action entertainment to the sagebrush fans. This is the third in the current series and in every department it compares favorably with its many predecessors. William Boyd, of course, portrays "Hoppy." Harry Sherman produced. Howard Bretherton directed.

"Mr. & Mrs. Smith" on Dual Is Denver Pace Setter

DENVER—"Mr. and Mrs. Smith" with "Let's Make Music" at the Orpheum topped the town with the Denver double bill, "Chad Hanna" and "Tall, Dark and Handsome," a close second. Both double bills were moved, the first to the Broadway and the second to the Aladdin.

Devote All Energies To Drive on Ascap

LOS ANGELES—Devoting all its energies to its projected suit against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, for which a bill of complaint is now being drafted, the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners reports no other activity on schedule, at least for the time being.

Completion of the bill of complaint is expected early next week, according to spokesmen for Albert J. Law, PCCITO general counsel. Announcement that the federal court suit was to be filed was made some time ago, at which time it was asserted the attorney was uncovering several "interesting new angles" in the contemplated action, which seeks to kill the "dual scoring" charge which exhibitors must now pay for the privilege of screening films containing Ascap music.

It was indicated several weeks may elapse before federal court passes on the complaint and sets a date for trial.

Hear Van Derveer Plaint Shortly

CHICAGO—The initial complaint filed with Clerk John F. Sullivan here on February 13 by E. F. Van Derveer, operator of the independently owned State in Morris, Ill., against Loew's, Inc., Chicago, is expected to be heard shortly.

In his complaint, filed under Section 6 of the consent decree, Van Derveer claims inability to obtain second run Metro product. Indirectly affected by the complaint is the Anderson circuit with headquarters in Morris, who operate about a dozen theatres in downstate Illinois. The circuit owns the Morris and Times, competing houses to Van Derveer's State.

Morris, Ill., which is a town of 6,000 located 60 miles from Chicago, has three theatres. The Morris is a 690-seat house with a 33 cents admission, the Times a 350-seat house with a 20 cents admission while the State, a 540-seat house, has a 20 cents admission.

The complaint, filed personally by Van Derveer, no lawyer being involved in the proceedings, read as follows:

"E. F. Van Derveer claims that Loew's, Inc., has arbitrarily refused to license second run pictures for exhibition at the State Theatre, Morris, Illinois, despite the fact that said exhibitor can satisfy reasonable minimum standards of theatre operation and is reputable and responsible.

"Van Derveer asks that the arbitrator direct Loew's, Inc., to offer its pictures for license to him for exhibition in said theatre on a run to be designated by Loew's, Inc., and upon terms and conditions fixed by Loew's, Inc., which are in accordance with the consent decree."

On March 1, 16 days following the filing of the initial complaint, Loew's, Inc., is to receive a list of arbitrators from Clerk Sullivan from which they can make their choice. It is understood they must return their selection of arbitrators immediately upon receipt of the list.

William Crouch Resigns UTOI Secretaryship

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—William F. Crouch has resigned as executive secretary of United Theatre Owners of Illinois. The association will continue under the direction of President Edward G. Zorn of Pontiac. No successor to Crouch will be named, it is reported.

Crouch experienced his second car crash in four weeks near Bloomington. His car was demolished in a head-on collision on a slippery highway, but he escaped with cuts and bruises. The other crash occurred in the northern part of the state.

Reider Strives for Shubert

ST. LOUIS—Sam Reider, veteran burlesque theatre operator, who made an unsuccessful attempt to reopen the Shubert Theatre with a girl show several weeks ago, is reported to be organizing a stock dramatic troupe. He hopes to reopen the Shubert with stock drama at an early date.

Clearance Complaint Filed in Chicago

Chicago—Landis and Landis, law firm, in behalf of the Ken Theatre, Chicago, filed a complaint against Paramount, 20th-Fox, and RKO on Tuesday, February 18, over clearance. The theatre claims the companies are giving clearance to Schoenstadt's Shakespeare Theatre and are not giving Ken clearance over Schoenstadt's Pix Theatre.

Racing Legalization Measure Up in Wis.

MADISON, WIS.—Latest measure introduced in the state legislature to cause exhibitors some concern is a bill to legalize horse racing authored by Assemblyman Nicholas J. Bichler, Ozaukee.

In commenting upon the measure, Bichler said: "There have been similar bills in the past which failed of passage because of the setup backing them. This time a reputable group, composed almost exclusively of Wisconsin citizens, is sponsoring the measure."

Bichler said that when racing is illegal, the people of the state send huge sums elsewhere in race horse bets. He believes that Wisconsin ought to be getting "a legal tax on that money."

The Murray daylight saving proposal has not yet been reported out of committee.

Illinois Allied Unit Re-elects Officers

CHICAGO—All officers were re-elected at the luncheon-meeting of Illinois Allied Wednesday at the Congress Hotel, including Van Nomikos, vice-president; Richard Salkin, secretary-treasurer, and Harry Nepo, sergeant-at-arms. Jack Kirsch heads the group, he having been elected president last year for a three-year term.

A regular business meeting was also on the agenda with the following subjects slated to be brought up for discussion; the consent decree, the Ascap-BMI situation and theatre-cooperation with national defense.

Kirsch, when interviewed by BOXOFFICE prior to the meeting, said business among the Allied members the first month this year has been ahead of 1940. He attributed this, in part, to the Ascap-BMI fight but mainly due to the fact that member-theatres had a month of top-notch films to play in January. Kirsch said he was planning on leaving for Miami Beach, Fla., on Sunday to join his family currently vacationing there.

Four Chicago theatres have joined Allied the past couple weeks and were expected to be represented at the February 19 meeting. Theatres, together with their owners, are: Oakley—Lester Retchin; Ken—Bennie Banowitz and John Landis; Rockne—Saul M. Meltzer, and the Louis—John Welsh.

Defense Maneuver In a Lobby

St. Louis—A young man who chose to applaud Hitler during the latter gent's appearance on the screen of the F&M Fox can thank the alert staff of the theatre for his escape from a very likely pummeling. Seeing the Hitler admirer cordoned by a group of other young men who arose to leave along with him, several ushers shoved him into a first floor office and notified Manager Clyde Brown. Brown in turn notified police who dispersed the crowd and turned over the erstwhile fuehrer fan for FBI questioning.

Lambert Succeeds Keegan For Warner in Racine

RACINE, WIS.—Stanley Lambert, manager of Warner's Rialto here, has been named manager of the circuit's Venetian succeeding Jack Keegan, who has resigned to become buyer for the United Detroit Theatres, Detroit. Lambert in turn is succeeded by George Gross, former assistant manager of the Avalon in Chicago. Keegan had been associated with Warner for nearly 15 years and served as district manager for the circuit in Milwaukee before being transferred to Racine several months ago.

Two Youths Confess to Robbing St. Louis Fox

ST. LOUIS—The police have reported that Andrew Gruen, 23, and Neal Tesson, 23, arrested in Wellston Loop, have confessed to the $1,300 holdup of the Fox Theatre on Christmas night.

The young men were picked up on suspicion and were not connected up with the Fox robbery until Elmer Esrock, a doorman at the theatre, identified Gruen as one of the robbers.

On Christmas night two men followed Lowell Smith, treasurer of the theatre, from the boxoffice to Smith's office. As Smith opened the office door, one of them "covered" him with a revolver, while the other took the money Smith was holding and an additional sum from the office safe.

"Come Live With Me" Finds Many Willing

Bloomington, Ind.—Arthur B. Clark, manager of the Indiana, advertised for a young man to become a "husband of convenience" for a beautiful young refugee, promising an income and residence to the one selected. Volunteers, to what was an exploitation gag, were so numerous that it has become a major problem to get away from the telephone.

Copyright Pooling Would Be Banned

Jefferson City, Mo.—Representative Paul E. Turner of St. Joseph has introduced a bill to do away with "monopolistic practices" of copyright music pools. It would make it unlawful for two or more persons holding copyrighted works to pool their interests for the purpose of collecting fees or issuing blanket licenses for the right to use such music commercially. Violators of the bill would face confiscation of their music.

"Four Mothers" Plus Stage Show Best in Chicago

CHICAGO—Warner Bros.' "Four Mothers" at the Chicago Theatre, aided by Gene Krupa's band and Andrews Sisters on the stage did best business in loop with Columbia's "This Thing Called Love" holding down the number two spot at the Garrick. The Oriental Theatre on Friday, February 21, changed from the Jones, Linick & Schaefer banner to a group headed by Michael Todd. A combination film-stage show policy is being continued.

RACINE

AT THE February meeting of the Better Films League of Racine, plans were made for a benefit show later in the month, with "Land of Liberty" the chosen film. Profits will go to the Racine Red Cross for war relief work. Four new groups joined the league, which has as its slogan "Patronize good movies and you will get more of them."

Nate Blumberg, president of Universal Pictures, and his brother-in-law, Matty Fox, vice-president of Universal, spent several hours in Racine February 7 visiting relatives, friends and former associates. Fox, who was formerly associated with the State Theatre here, had just returned from the premiere of "Back Street" in Florida. Blumberg was at one time manager of the Venetian when it was first opened.

That drummer man, Gene Krupa, and his band, made a stage appearance at the Venetian Wednesday, February 19. A contest for amateur drummers of Racine preceded his appearance here, with the winners being privileged to play with him and his band on the local theatre stage. A set of drums, given by a Racine music store, was awarded the lucky individual as a post-Krupa appearance feature. An interview over WRJN and a jam session following the stage performances were features of Krupa's day in Racine.

Critic Takes to Paeans In Reviewing of Two

CHICAGO—Mae Tinee, film critic of the Chicago Tribune, picked two Metro pictures in her list of seven best films for January. They were: "Philadelphia Story" and "Flight Command." Other films chosen by Miss Tinee were: RKO's "Kitty Foyle," Warner's "Santa Fe Trail," Paramount's "Second Chorus," 20th-Fox's "Night Train," and "Schubert's Serenade."

Commenting on "Philadelphia Story," Miss Tinee poetically wrote: "Yep— in 'Philadelphia Story' Hepburn crowns herself with glory, 'comes back' in a great big way, as all who have seen her say . . . Plays with touch that's sure but light. All she does and says is right. Well, she had no little worries. Cast, director, yarn—the berries!"

In commenting on "Kitty Foyle," the Tribune reviewer said: " 'Kitty Foyle,' now as a picture, had the Morley novel licked, sure! Ginger Rogers went to town. Did the title role up brown! Naught her grand performance marred. Will she get this year's award . . .?"

Indiana Exhibitors Aid Greek War Relief Fund

INDIANAPOLIS—Indiana exhibitors have been making an effort toward aiding as much as possible in the Greek War Relief cause, and have reported these accomplishments:

From Fred C. Doughty, manager of the Lyric and Cozy theatres, Winchester, Ind., comes information of a special one page cooperative ad on the feature "Land of Liberty," whereby the newspaper agreed to donate a percentage of the ad revenue to the Greek War Relief Fund. Doughty sent in the theatre employes' contribution together with the newspaper's.

At Washington, Indiana, A. J. Kalberer, city manager for the Switow circuit, operating the Indiana and Liberty there, announced the formation of a Citizen's Committee among the leading business men of the city. They set aside February 2 to 9 as Greek War Relief Week. Containers for the receiving of donations were placed in the theatres, as well as in other business establishments.

Indiana theatremen have contributed approximately $1,150.00. Those lately received are as follows: Indianapolis Cooperative Theatres, Inc., $100.00; Fourth Avenue Amusement Co., Louisville, Ky., $100.00; Circle Theatre, Indianapolis, $50.00; Indiana Theatre, Indianapolis, $50.00; A. H. Borkenstein, Fort Wayne, $25.00; Ansted, Pearson & Schilling, Connersville, $15.00; J. M. Dixon, Flora Theatre, Flora, Indiana, $10.00. Tivoli and Astra theatres, Jasper, $5.00.

Mike Todd Takes Over Oriental

CHICAGO—In "show business" all his life, although he has had no actual experience operating a theatre, Mike Todd, on Friday began operating the 3,900-seat loop Oriental, succeeding Jones, Linick & Schaefer, who had managed the house the past couple years.

It is understood Todd is managing the house for the 32 W. Randolph Street Building Corp., the latter having requested Todd to do the job following an impasse caused by Jones, Linick & Schaefer's inability to make payments on rental past due. It is reported JL&S were about $40,000 in arrears.

Todd told BOXOFFICE he is retaining Jack Hunt as manager. William F. Crouch has resigned as executive secretary of the United Theatre Owners of Illinois to handle publicity for the Oriental. Crouch, a trade-paper reporter for years, is now associated with the Howie Mayer publicity office which handles the Todd account locally.

In his initial week's bill, Todd is presenting a "Gay 90's Revue" on the stage and "Hell's Angels" on the screen. It is understood he is planning on concentrating on his stage presentations since the Oriental, under its present price policy, has had difficulty obtaining suitable product.

Todd, a native Chicagoan, rose to fame in recent years on Broadway. He first struck the critics' eyes when he dazzled Broadway with a colored swing version of "The Mikado" starring Bill Robinson. Subsequently, Todd and Billy Rose became the most successful showmen at the New York World's Fair. A few months ago, Todd returned to Chicago to open his north-side "Theatre-Cafe" which has proven to be a successful venture. It can best be described as "a poor-man's night club."

Filmack Into Larger Quarters Next Month

CHICAGO—Irving Mack, sales manager for the Filmack Trailer Co., announces that headquarters of the firm will be moved from 843 S. Wabash Ave. to the one-story building formerly occupied by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer at 1325 S. Wabash Ave. The change is expected to take place sometime next month.

Filmack will occupy most of the 20,000 feet of floor space at the new quarters, although a portion of the one-story building is being sub-leased to the Alexander Film Co., which will move from its present quarters at 839 S. Wabash. The move next month by Filmack is the fifth time the company has had to take larger quarters in the past 22 years.

NORTHWEST ALLIED FILES BILL TO PRESERVE BLOCK BOOKING

Proposed Law Counters 5-Block Plan Under Consent Decree

MINNEAPOLIS—The die is cast. Introduction into the state legislature this week of a proposed law to contravene the consent decree's plan for the sale of films in groups of five has embarked Northwest Allied, sponsoring the measure, in a fight to the finish to preserve the present block sale system.

The bill requires distributors to offer for sale their entire season's product to exhibitors, as now is customary, with a minimum 20 per cent cancellation privilege.

Under the bill, however, forced buying of shorts, serials, newsreels, foreigns, trailers, westerns and reissues, as a condition to the purchase of features, would be illegal.

Penalty for conviction of violating the law would be a maximum fine of $1,000, or a year in state prison, or both.

Confident It Will Pass

Expressing confidence in the proposed law's passage, Fred Strom, Northwest Allied executive secretary, has asked every theatre owner to give it his "wholehearted support and indorsement." No time will be lost, he says, in the vigorous effort to obtain favorable legislative consideration, he says. No opposition is anticipated from the film distributors, according to Strom.

In a statement issued prior to the bill's introduction, Strom asserted "Northwest Allied is firm and unalterable in its opinion that out-of-town situation, many of which are removed hundreds of miles from the Minneapolis exchange center, as well as Twin City subsequent-run exhibitors will be infinitely better off buying an entire season's output, with a cancellation privilege of 20 per cent, and with no forcing of shorts, than in attempting to operate the consent decree's terms."

The term "season," as applying to an entire output, is defined in the bill as "a period of 12 months, as may be selected by the producer-distributor, provided, however, that there shall be no lapse of time between the termination of one season and the start of the next."

A thorough canvass, made prior to the bill's introduction, has convinced Northwest Allied that the law's constitutionality, involving the commerce and due process clauses of the Constitution, can be upheld, according to Strom.

Preamble Defines Terms

A lengthy preamble not only defines the bill's terms, but also describes certain alleged conditions within the industry.

One charge in the preamble is that "producer-distributors impose arbitrary terms and conditions and Minnesota independent exhibitors have been compelled as a condition precedent to licensing feature pictures also to license short subjects," etc., far in excess of their needs and requirements.

It also is charged that Minnesota independent exhibitors "have been unable to cancel feature motion pictures injurious and damaging to his business and have had to play pictures undesirable and harmful to the public."

While "the long established trade practice of licensing feature motion pictures for a full season is essential to the best interests of the producer-distributors, exhibitors and the public," according to the preamble, "producer-distributors' conditions have subjected independent exhibitors to unfair disadvantages, preventing him from responding to the community and local public influences and preferences with respect to the selection of desirable feature motion picture films and are inimicable to public welfare and against public policy."

Under the measure's terms, cancellation would be made proportionately among the several price brackets, if there be such price brackets in the license agreement. It is specified that any number of cancellations to which an exhibitor is entitled may be made from the lowest price bracket at his option. However, if the law is enacted, the right to cancellation would not be effective unless the exhibitor would exercise such right by giving notice thereof to the distributor within 15 days after being notified of the picture's availability. The right to cancellation could be waived by an exhibitor before or after the making of a license agreement, but such waiver would have to be in writing.

In case of a violation of the act by a corporation, it is provided that such violation shall be deemed also to be that of the individual directors, officers or agents of such corporation who have assisted in such violation, or who have authorized, ordered or done the acts of omissions constituting in whole or in part such violation, and upon conviction thereof any such directors, officers or agents shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, as previously specified.

The bill also sets forth that "any provision of any film contract, which is contrary to any of its provisions is hereby declared against public policy and void." Under its terms, too, the holding invalid or unconstitutional of any of its provisions or the setting aside of its applicability thereof to any person or circumstances, would not affect the act's validity or the applicability of such provision to other persons and circumstances.

Fate of Measure Seen Dependent on What Opposition Arises

Determined on Success

The bill went into the lower house last Tuesday and into the state senate two days later. In trade circles the feeling is that its chances for success depend upon whether much, if any, opposition is marshaled against it. Where this opposition will emanate from—if it does develop—cannot be foreseen at this time. It may come from film distributors—although Northwest Allied leaders say they have been assured otherwise—from the federal government, civic groups and women's organizations opposed to block booking and believing that the consent decree selling plan abolished it. There even may be circuits or individual exhibitors who will try to defeat it, although as yet there is nothing definite in the air, as far as can be learned. Allied is determined to put it over.

Life for Independents

Minneapolis—One effect of the consent decree will be to boost such independent producers as Republic to a new prosperity peak, in the opinion of James R. Grainger, president of that company. Here to visit his local branch manager, Gilbert Nathanson, Grainger expressed the belief that those independent companies which always have maintained a steady product flow, now are sitting pretty.

"More than ever before exhibitors now will need a guarantee of sufficient pictures to keep their houses open even if they pass up some of the groups of five," said Grainger. "Republic and similar companies will be the same as an insurance policy for those exhibitors and that will mean peace of mind for the theatre owners."

Big gains over the preceding year were shown by every Republic exchange in 1940, Grainger said. He is now on his way to meet Herbert J. Yates in Hollywood to set up the 1941-42 production schedule. The program budget will be increased, he announces.

Korda's Stephen Pallos Confident in Britain

DES MOINES—A mountain of optimism was Stephen Pallos, Alexander Korda's representative from England, who visited the Tri-States Theatres Corp. here Tuesday.

Pallos, who is in the United States to work out Korda's production schedule, says he is confident England will win the war. The war has interfered little if at all with production in England, he states. He plans to return to London next month.

Minnesota Case May Be Taken to Court

MINNEAPOLIS—Middle States Corp. heads have let it be known they may carry a fight for film product for the 4,000-seat Minnesota Theatre, which they are operating with vaudeville and pictures, into the law courts, instead of to the consent decree's arbitration board. A large damage suit may be brought against the major film distributors and the Minnesota Amusement Co.—Mort H. Singer pool which has virtually all of the major product sewed up in the Minneapolis loop.

In this connection, the company had Joe Rosenberg, noted Chicago theatre attorney, here to make a survey of the local situation to determine what action should be taken. His law concern has been retained by the company to help it to obtain "relief."

The Minnesota Theatre situation is nothing new to Rosenberg. He was also retained by the Benzes, previous operators of the Minnesota, who also were unable to obtain major screen product and who blamed this for their unsuccessful operation. A conspiracy damage suit was threatened, but the matter was dropped after the Benzes made a deal with the Minnesota Amusement Co. for the latter to lease their local loop theatre, the Palace, for a long term.

E. J. Weisfeldt, Minnesota managing director, has expressed the opinion the situation here can be "beaten." He points out that the Minnesota Amusement Co.'s Aster, scaled at 15 cents to 5 p. m. and 28 cents thereafter, is using up with a double feature policy many of the types of pictures which he is anxious to obtain. However, the Aster policy has been in effect for several years and local film people declare there is no overbuying by the Minnesota Amusement Co.

All Funds Nearly In for Variety Music Project

KANSAS CITY—The Cinema Club, junior affiliate of the Variety Club, having undertaken a project in behalf of the music room of the Variety Club, is expected to complete this project within a week or so. The funds are nearly all in now, it was said. They will be used to buy a combination radio-phonograph and a library of records. Alex Schneiderman, with Quality Premium Co., is conducting the drive in behalf of the Cinema Club, assisted by Ward Scott of the 20th Century-Fox branch as representative for Variety. Joe Lysowski, with Altec Service Corp., is president of the Cinema Club.

Stern Buys House

MINNEAPOLIS—J. L. Stern, owner of the Majestic exchange and "Bank Night" distributor, has become an exhibitor. He acquired the Mohawk Theatre, St. Paul, from Charles Christians.

"Back Street" Doubles Average in Kaycee

KANSAS CITY—Three first run houses did way over average for the week, two with "Back Street," and one crediting Clyde McCoy and his orchestra. The Midland and the Orpheum had held over their pictures for a third week—"Gone With the Wind" at the former still pulling well enough on its return engagement to make an average week for the house. There was a lot of competition, chiefly from basketball and other athletic events—but these were at the Municipal Auditorium which at least, some downtown exhibitors say, helps to keep people in the habit of coming downtown for entertainment.

Ice Revue and Weather Holds Omaha Below Par

OMAHA—The theatre business was in the doldrums here for the week ending February 15, with competition and heavy winter weather ganging up on exhibitors.

"Thief of Bagdad" and "A Little Bit of Heaven" at the Omaha grabbed the week's only average business. The rest of the first-runs were using red ink. The State combined two second-runs with a first-run.

Sonja Henie and her ice revue were the big competition, drawing about 40,000 persons for a week at the Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum. Unpleasant wind and snow did their share to keep grosses down.

"GWTW" Does Better On Return to K. C.

Kansas City—"Gone With the Wind" ran three weeks on its return engagement at the Midland. In that time it showed to around 10,000 more people than saw it during the first three weeks of its month's run when it was here a year ago.

"Chad Hanna" Plus Stage Show Leads Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS—Another big stage show, Earl Carroll's "Vanities," plus "Chad Hanna" on the screen, had the Orpheum out front this week. "This Thing Called Love" also was a smash boxoffice hit at the World. The Minnesota had the Merry Macs and a strong vaudeville bill on the stage and "Drums of the Desert" as its screen attraction.

Grocery Gift Quiz Awaits a Verdict

LINCOLN—The case against R. W. Huffman, Gene Shanahan and the Nebraska Theatre for the operation of "Abner Askit Basket," a grocery giveaway quiz program, was submitted last week in district court to Judge E. B. Chappell.

The judge says he hasn't made up his mind about the element of chance in the plan for the game, which will be the deciding factor in whether or not it conflicts with the state's anti-lottery law.

The theatre staff claims it's a game, which can be played, or let alone, as the theatre patrons so desire. Basis of their side of the scrap is that it's a pay off to intelligence in their quiz, not on chance.

Meantime, the temporary injunction against its use in the theatre is still in effect.

"Wind" the Unrivalled Leader in Lincoln

LINCOLN—"Gone With the Wind" took the bows for Filmrow during the past week, and is being held over for a second stab at amusement money. First week saw the house into figures which were 150 per cent higher than the normal tally.

"High Sierra" Tops Par Among DM First Runs

DES MOINES—"High Sierra" dominated the boxoffice scenery among Des Moines first run theatres by holding the Orpheum totals above the house average for the eighth consecutive week. The heavy run, aside from Screeno day Tuesday, was the weekend with lockout business Sunday afternoon and evening. Tickets good at a later date prevented a heavy refund to patrons unable to wait long enough to get seats Sunday. With a double feature and an astrology stage act, the Des Moines could muster only 75 per cent against "High Sierra."

TRIPLETT & DUCKWORTH of the Licking, Licking, Mo., are installing new projection and sound equipment. Licking is near the southern border of Fort Leonard Wood . . . On the Row were George Hayob, Mary Lou, Marshall, Mo.; John L. Whiting, Lido, Downs, Kas.; Glenn Newbold, Temple, Yates Center, Kas.; Mrs. R. J. Booth and the grandson who helps run the theatre, Booth, Rich Hill, Mo.; A. E. Jarboe, Ritz, Cameron, Mo.; R. O. Robison, Grant City, Grant City, Mo.; Gus Diamond, Vogue, of the circuit including Salina and Arkansas City, Kas.; Jim Russell, Strand, Lancaster, Kas.; Lester McCormick and Preston Greer, partners, Majestic, Green Forrest, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cook, Ideal, Halstead, Kas.; Paul Oetting, Lyric, Concordia, Mo.

Charles Coburn, Paramount home office auditor, is here for a few weeks . . . H. J. Griffith, H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., and Harold Harris, general manager, went to Tulsa for the opening of the new Griffith-Southwestern theatre there. Jack Gregory of Altec also went to the opening . . . The Universal branch office sprang a surprise on Larry Klein, office manager, putting on a birthday party in his honor; buffet luncheon was brought into the office, including a birthday cake —no candles on it—no indication of how many would have been there if his number of birthdays were thus publicized.

Universal salesmen of the Kansas City branch were in Chicago for a day attending a regional meeting . . . J. E. Garrison, district manager, Universal, and Mrs. Garrison, left February 17 for a vacation in Florida . . . Otis Cowan, formerly with Griffith Amusement Corp., Oklahoma City, has replaced Vernon McGinnis at Manhattan, Kas., in charge of the three H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., theatres there. McGinnis returns to Griffith-Southwestern Corp. in Tulsa.

"Doc" and Mrs. Lowe were in recently. They are preparing to open the new Star at Lebanon, Mo. . . . The staff of 20th Century-Fox here had a meeting at the Muehlebach February 14, when Felix Jenkins, head of the company's legal department, spoke. Present were George W. Fuller, branch manager here; W. E. Scott, district manager; W. J. Kubitzki, sales manager, with Salesmen H. B. Kinser, Jack Woodward, Charles Knickerbocker; M. A. Tanner, head booker, and Bookers C. W. Decker and R. L. Conn; Cashier C. P. Palermo and C. D. Crawford, advertising sales manager. The general counsel, coming from New York, is visiting all offices, explaining the workings of the consent decree.

Robert E. Lee, formerly with the Fox Theatre, Pittsburg, Kas., has gone to Olathe as assistant to Mrs. S. C. Andrews, owner and manager of the Andrews . . . Ed Allison, Fox Midwest Theatre Corp., manager at Ottawa, Kas., spoke on the motion picture business to the Rotary Club at a recent luncheon meeting . . . Erskine Caldwell, author of the novel "Tobacco Road," was in Kansas City recently on a trip through the agricultural regions.

John McManus, manager of the Midland, and Norman Frescott, advance man for "Ice-Capades of 1941," became acquainted, discovered that they had a common interest in that the families of both lived in Los Angeles; and, further, that they had daughters about the same age. The next chapter of the story was the disclosure, through correspondence, that Dolores Frescott and Daphne McManus were in the same classroom at school.

W. O. Stevens, theatre decorator with Commonwealth Amusement Corp., has had his touch of the flu, and is on the job again . . . It is reported that "Western Union" doubled for the first two days of its run at the Jayhawk, Topeka, the results of anything since "Jesse James."

The mayor of Topeka issued a proclamation for national defense week, February 12 to 22; and the Gem there tied in with "Extra—March of Time 'Arms and the Men, U. S. A.' See Uncle Sam's Gigantic Defense Program" . . . Mike Amrine has a story in the Journal telling how boys are fencing all over Kansas City, now, with foils or wooden sticks—since the showing here of "The Mark of Zorro," and Tyrone Power as the valiant swordsman.

Mo. High Court Exempts Some Houses From Taxes

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—The decision of the Missouri supreme court that modern motion picture theatres are in the same legal category with the opera houses which flourished in 1885 and later, is expected to have far reaching effect throughout the state.

The decision was handed down in a case involving four theatres of the St. Louis Amusement Co. in St. Louis county.

When St. Louis county attempted to impose a tax on the theatres, the company claimed exemption under an old statute, dating back to 1885, relating to the performances in opera houses. When the St. Louis county circuit court at Clayton, Mo., ruled against the company, an appeal was taken to the supreme court.

The high court now reverses the circuit court and directs it to enter a declaratory judgment granting the company the tax exemption it claimed under the 55-year old law.

The statute in question is Section 15,450 of the revised laws of 1939. It provides that no license or other tax shall be levied in any county, village or town of the third or fourth class, or special charter cities with less than 5,000 population, "upon any theatrical or minstrel performance when held in an opera house."

Supreme Judge James M. Douglas, who wrote the opinion, explored at some length the history of the opera house in great cities and small communities, in arriving at the conclusion that the term "opera house" in the statute, was used as a synonym for the word "theatre."

While the case at bar involves only the four houses of the St. Louis Amusement Co. in St. Louis county, the ruling is so sweeping in character it may be possible for all other motion picture theatres in Missouri that are not located in cities of first or second class to claim and obtain similar tax exemption.

About 300 or 400 theatres in Missouri may be affected by the ruling.

ORVILLE Rennie (remember him?), manager of Hastings, Neb., radio station KHAS since it opened last fall as the state's 13th broadcasting link, has resigned and is looking around for a place to settle. He was formerly city manager of Tri-States Theatres in Hastings and Omaha, before radio. Reason for the resignation, it's understood, was a row about commissions . . . News that Hymie Novitsky was fined for jaywalking was a source of amusement to Bob Livingston, whose Capitol is still being host to a policeman and his family every week (it's gone on for 57 weeks now), because Bob used him to fix a ticket for Hymie here . . . News that Evert Cummings is a vice-president in the Greek War Relief campaign.

Down Miami way are the George Monroe Srs., there for two reasons—it's warm, and Hialeah . . . When Eddie Shafton heard that 3,000 applicants for the jobs of army hostesses were turned down because they "misunderstood" the qualifications, he, big man that he is, took the blame for misleading a third of them . . . Some guy was bragging to Sol Yeager about having a car so big he couldn't see his radiator cap. Sol put the gent in his place by saying he couldn't see his either, after he cracked into somebody who horseshoed his auto hood . . . Speaking of auto accidents, there's also Dean Pohlenz, the Journal's film editor, who had one and got booked by the police for an improper turn . . . And also, there's Barney Oldfield, the army man, who was just sued for $2,500 on an auto crash he had in Minnesota way last August.

In case Wally Johnson wondered, nobody heard Sonja Henie asking about him . . . Alvin Hendricks used to be afraid to open his mail for fear he'd find out he was fired, and now he's afraid to open it for fear he'll find he's hired—by Uncle Sam! . . . The Lincoln Theatres Corp. basketball team is getting better, and will continue to improve, Paul Anderson says, if the "Gone With the Wind" type of bookings let up. Boys were so busy ushering last week, they couldn't get in their practice.

Nobody has been able to pin marriage on Vinnie DiFiore yet, and two or three time now, his gals have had him doubled, re-doubled and vulnerable . . . Bob Huffman says Milton Berle is pretty with his new nose, but he'll never be a romantic threat. A romancer, Bob estimates, is one who uses his mouth to gag another, not as the avenue by which a gag becomes articulate.

Probably one of the loudest femme laughs you hear via the Jack Benny program each week comes from Mrs. Bob Livingston, wife of the Capitol manager, because she's on the coast and a good friend of Phil Harris . . . Gus Arnheim, the orchestra leader, has been playing Nebraska, and amazed himself by finding it's the birthplace of one of his most famous one-time girl singers, who went to the films as Shirley Ross . . . Joe Scott, the 20th-Century-Foxer, wondered who got those soldiers to give that 105-pound Valentine made of ice to Sonja Henie.

Start a New One—

Grove, Kinsky Upped Following Cummings

DES MOINES—H. D. Grove, manager of the Fort Theatre in Rock Island, Ill., this week was promoted to a Tri-States Theatres district managership following resignation of Evert Cummings.

Cummings, veteran district chieftain in the Omaha area, is dropping out of the Tri-States organization to head a circuit of his own houses in the Pacific northwest. Joseph Kinsky is the new district manager in Omaha for Tri-States Theatres, succeeding Cummings.

Kinsky comes to Omaha from Davenport, Ia., where he has been head of the eastern Iowa district for Tri-States for the past seven years. Grove takes his place, and A. G. Stolte, Tri-States third district manager, continues to head houses in the Des Moines district.

Prior to joining the A. H. Blank interests, District Manager Kinsky was with the Fox Midwest circuit and during his theatre career managed several of the larger theatres in the Chicago loop area.

Grove has been associated with A. H. Blank in theatre enterprises since before the first world war. He was an operator at the Casino Theatre here when Blank had an interest in that house and handled the Garden Theatre at Davenport for A. H. later.

While managing the Fort at Rock Island, he has filled in for Kinsky at times when the district manager was out of the city. The first move on his program in his new position will be the transfer of Tri-States district offices from the Capitol Theatre in Davenport to the Fort in Rock Island.

OMAHA

GOOD LUCK and farewell to Evert R. Cummings, district manager for Tri-States Theatres in Omaha for a dozen years. Among his many attributes is the fact that he is one of the best dressed men in the film industry. The fellows that worked under Evert in the Omaha district are sorry to see him go, and that's a real tribute to a boss. The only thing Cummings and BOXOFFICE ever disagreed on was the proper tobacco mixture for a pipe.

Carl Kozlik of Alexander Film says business has been very good, in fact January was a record month. Carl lives in Omaha and has the Nebraska territory for Alexander . . . Slim Fraser, the smiling exhibitor from Havelock, Neb., was in town. Also the two cigar-smoking lads, Frank Good of Red Oak, Ia., and Lou Ireland of Logan, Ia. . . . Mike Roth is having the front of his theatre at Anita, Ia., repainted in readiness for spring business.

Exhibitor Shoecraft, the new theatre owner at Walnut, Ia., also owns the town's leading cafe . . . Mary Francis is wearing a pin from one of the Third Infantry lads stationed at Fort Crook. What about the army boy that went to the west coast, Mary? . . . Frank Pace, exhibitor at Malvern, Ia., has acquired a filling station at the north end of the town. Pace has finally found a way to get back at the film peddlers, according to our scouts. He's going to trade gas and oil for films!

Wally Johnson, the fair-haired exhibitor at Friend and Exeter, Neb., is back in these parts after a pleasant six weeks on the west coast. Wally and his girl spotted in one of the larger department stores, and in the household department, too . . . Sid McArdle, United Artists booker, wants to buy a home in the west end of Omaha. A petition against the plan probably will be presented to the city council or somebody by Frank Pavelec, Brandeis operator, and BOXOFFICE, who live in that section of the city.

Herman Fields, Clarinda, Ia., was trying to eat lunch and at the same time listen to the Monogram cutups, Sol Francis and Sol Yeager . . . Bruce Holdrege, exhibitor at Shenandoah, Ia., has had a bad cold, but is recovering . . . Harold Stewart, former operator at Shenandoah, Ia., at the State, is now working at the new Our Theatre at Hawarden, Ia.

George Blackwell, Buddy Harris in New Company

KANSAS CITY—George C. Blackwell of the Kansas City Poster Exchange and Buddy Harris of the Buddy Harris Poster Exchange in Dallas, Tex., have formed a partnership for the operation here of the Bhasco Poster Service.

Blackwell will manage the company's affairs here, while Harris will remain in charge of the Dallas firm.

Organized approximately eight months ago, the Kansas City Poster Exchange has been under the joint management of Blackwell and Jim Weakley.

DES MOINES

GIRL-OF-THE-WEEK: Theresa Sandler at National Screen . . . Theresa tells Joosh stories with a divine accent . . . She credits her talent to her home environment . . . says Theresa: "Mom'n Pop came to this country and they couldn't speak English. They went to school, and when they got out of school, they still couldn't speak English." Theresa says when she telephones home, she can depend on her grandfather, who can't hear so well, to answer, and it goes like this: "Hello, this is Theresa." "What?" "This is Theresa." "Theresa? Theresa ain't home, goodby." Bang!

Chic Sale will soon be asking Elmer Tilton where he wants that privvy put . . . Tilt's bought himself some acres out west of town. Doug Pratt, Columbia's home office representative, was here from NY . . . Dorothy Pratt came along. Gene Melone's father-in-law died week before last. We thought we couldn't mention seeing Joe Smith and Ralph Olson in Chicago one Thursday, but found out later it was on the up'n up . . . Universal was having a sales meeting there.

Down Mexico way Metro is ballyhooed as "Su Compania Amiga" with "Miles De Clientes—Miles De Amigos" . . . at least that's what it says on the letter & Co. received from Branch Manager Carlos E. Niebla regretting that we had failed to look him up when we were in Mexico City. Art Thiele's back from that supply dealers' convention in Chicago. BOXOFFICE seems to be upsetting the Kappler Quads' lives no end . . . Francis refuses to converse with Bert Thomas unless there's a witness present, and Bill got in trouble with Dick for getting Dick in trouble with his girl by bringing BOXOFFICE (the mag, not us) home.

Quoting Mrs. Sy Harlan: "Some anniversary. Sy got a telephone call at midnight and had to spend the whole night at the office." Mary Benjamin has Bert squelched and he won't talk any more—at least not about Mary. Bert says even the Law's picking on him now . . . a squad car followed him all the way home and into his driveway the other night so the cop could threaten Bert with a fine if he didn't mend his driving habits.

BOXOFFICE hears two of the girls down at the office telling how they waited in line at the Orpheum for 30 minutes Sunday and then couldn't get in to see "High Sierra" because of the crowd . . . when she gets home, & Co. pulls this one with the superior cynicism of the all-knowing press: "Heh, heh, heh, Emil tried to tell me today he couldn't get all the customers in Sunday and that for the eighth consecutive week, he's had above-average business. Heh, heh, heh." But Emil gets the last heh, heh, which is reputed to be the best.

Morris Smith, who has just returned from California with his wife and family, has sealed the mouths of his staff . . . the Film Transportation boys have been instructed to be as silent as the tomb . . . Morris, our word of honor, you're fretting up the wrong tree . . . it's not your boys who give out about your doule dealing pitch . . . and Morris, where've you been hiding that pretty Smith girl, Ruth?

Since Bud Moran got back from his Oklahoma holidaisy, it's just been one derned thing after another . . . First there was that 10-day wrestling match with flu bugs and then came the booking department changes . . . But Bud can still say "Sis Hopkins" and smile—plenty. Max Gallin's the guy who'd like to get the Iowa Film drivers and Pan American Follies chorus gals together . . . Max was here advancing the Follies stage show and trying to get his chorines on the coattails of a truckers' convention in order to squeeze an extra picture or two into the news columns.

Memo to Gabe Yorke: When the Minneapolis Star-Journal saw the double page "Picture Story of America" & Co. developed out of your "Land of Liberty" stills for the R&T they wired for permission to use the same layout . . . and the R&T syndicate grabbed for the prints and layout, too, which makes that some punkins of a plant.

As a gesture to BOXOFFICE's recent burst of Americanism, & Co. bought her a book of flag-stamps for letters when he was in Chicago (price, 5c) . . . he forgot she's so busy writing letters she gets paid for that she's no time for personal billeting . . . so that explains, Dear Editor, why we give your plant a treat with a couple of "God Bless America" stamps on our this week's NEWS RUSH . . . Quittin' time scenes around Tri-States: DD on the verge of relaxing . . . Madge Ward administering some salve to Hazel Dunn's eye . . . Virginia Orr taking some last-minute dictation from G. Ralph . . . Georgia Bricker eating peanuts . . . that so-blonde switchboard gal walking out without a word . . . Mrs. Sandquist sitting on a stack of newspapers in DD's office . . . Art Stolte getting be-coated and all ready to go and then stopping to fuss about this'n that first.

Madge Ward's birthday (now don't be like that, we don't know which one) was February 17 and the gals abandoned their Tri-States traditional hanky shower to add a cup and saucer to the Lenox set Madge is promoting . . . Madge will welcome any contributions to this new project at any time. Rose Stolte is fresh back from California where she's been visiting . . . Harry Holdsberg ain't been a-feelin' so good lately . . . he just don't know what's a-ailin' him.

Loudest rumor on the Row: That Speed Lambert, ex-exploiteer for this Metro in this territory, is going to work for Frank Rubel out in California. Sil Vogl, who went to Cedar Rapids recently to bowl, and Virginia Calhoun are the two hot-shots around which the Tri-States Trixies would like to build a bowling team. Wonder if Bob Gottlieb, who is blond like mama but looks like papa, has the DD pep and Hershey Bar's enviable sweet disposition?

Good old Nate Sandler does give a fig for the National Screen kiddies . . . he proved it by sending them a whole box from California. We never visualized Adam as being a red-head but, Adam Marchek at Film Transportation is . . . Adam had to lay the law down to a flat-foot who tried to tell him he couldn't do that when he was unloading film at the Highland Theatre the other day . . . Adam just quoted from Sec. 385 of the drivers' little blue handbook which say you CAN do that.

Cesteen Naylor has been missing his wife ("Dimples") and Judy Ann who was three June 16 . . . they've been in St. Paul and Minneapolis for about six weeks visiting "Dimples'" sister. Kenneth Watson is what's new at Film Transportation in the way of drivers . . . he has the Dubuque route. Morris' gang have had two new Chevie trucks since January . . . they acquired Carl Iserman, the new steno, about the same time . . . We haven't seen Mike Riley for nearly a year, and we were glad to note that he's still got that sunny Riley smile. Robert Van Houten is awfully big to be so bashful.

Lou Patz made the girls make room for him at their table at the Old Colony Luncheonette the other noon, so they let him have the checks . . . now Lou's claiming they rung their week's bill in on him too. Grace Simons is bragging because she has climbed up and down the National Screen steps for so long and all she's done is nearly fall down them so far.

After sobbing his little heart out over being transferred to Cleveland, Bill Scholl received a blue towel and a copy of "Oh Dry Those Tears" from Emil Franke, and the Claytons . . . Bill wrote a right techin' note about how sorrowful he was over leaving DM, considering he wasn't asking for an inch of space. This reminds us of a note we should put down for our pick-up man, Bev (for Beverly, not beverage) Mahon: That man who lives with us is a great admirer of astounding ideas, but the trouble is, he thinks there aren't any . . . we, who have tried to sell him a few of our own now and then, wish to warn you that it's virtually impossible . . . but you can try. (Editor's Note: He went for one didn't he?).

MINNEAPOLIS

ALLEN USHER, Paramount district manager, a visitor . . . Columbia preparing for Exhibitors' Goodwill Playdate campaign, starting March 6 . . . Norman Pyle, M-G-M exploiteer, had Bert Wheeler and other members of the Earl Carroll's "Vanities" cast in tow after the show at the Orpheum last Saturday night. James McKechnie, manager of the troupe and brother of the famous Bill who has led the Cincinnati Reds to a National League pennant twice, was among those present. Earl Carroll himself spent several days in town, coming with the company from California, and on one evening visited the Minnesota Terrace with Manager Bill Sears of the Orpheum.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Film Row included Klug and Klug, Zumbrota, Minn.; Weslie Faulkner, Plum City, Minn.; H. C. Carlson, Big Lake, Minn.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis., and Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn. . . . Universal exchange here making nice showing in Bill Scully anniversary drive. It's in eighth place nationally and climbing . . . Ruth Evans, World Theatre secretary, went to Devils Lake, N. D., to help John Piller, veteran exhibitor, and Mrs. Piller celebrate their thirty-third wedding anniversary.

Abe Kaplan, independent circuit owner, out and around again after fully recovering from his minor operation . . . Norman Bieranger, Warner's special exploiteer, in town . . . Earl Tetting, Minnesota Theatre publicity man, continuing to hold the managerial post there, while Hale Kavanaugh, who handled the exploitation during the Gordie Greene regime, is taking over Tetting's publicity duties . . . Jack Thoma, Columbia exploiteer, in town for a day . . . These are tough days for Warner salesmen, two of them having had their new automobiles smashed in accidents. Charlie Jackson and Ernie Hill were the unlucky ones, but both escaped injury.

Rose Witzman, M-G-M booker's secretary, vacationing in New Orleans . . . Bill Smith, Menominee, Minn., exhibitor, reported home ill with the flu . . . George Miner of Chippewa Falls., Wis., independent circuit owner, passed through en route to Florida where he'll vacation for two months . . . Rud Lohrenz, Warner district manager, a visitor . . . Joe Wolf, Paramount city salesman, had a good year 1939-40, but the current one is even better, he says.

Allen Usher, Paramount district manager, in town . . . Susanna Foster and Dorothy Loehr, the former a Minneapolis girl, at the Orpheum for a personal appearance to exploit their picture "Hard Boiled Canary," visited the Paramount exchange . . . "Nickey" Goldhammer, RKO district manager, visited South Dakota accounts . . . Joe Podoloff, 20th-Fox branch manager, accompanied his new South Dakota salesman, Warren Branton, on a trip through the territory. The latter resigned from National Screen to take the post. He succeeds Harold Lyons who was transferred to the Des Moines branch.

Harry Hirsch and Harry Katz bringing back burlesque to Minneapolis at the Alvin, starting February 28. They have Ann Corio as their initial star . . . Hollywood Advertising Offers New Service

KANSAS CITY—Nat Hechtman announces that his flag and valance business has been absorbed by the Hollywood Advertising Co. of New York. Hechtman is now regional representative, temporarily headquartering at the old address, 118 Southwest Blvd. Samuel D. Steinberg, president of the Hollywood Advertising Co., was here from New York last week to conclude the deal.

The same service will continue except for 40x60 posters from California, according to Hechtman. Orders will be filled from the Chicago office.

"Sky Devils," "Scarface" Combination Clicks

KANSAS CITY—The reissued dual combination of "Sky Devils" and "Scarface" is doing a big volume of business in this territory, according to William Wintroub, manager of Majestic Pictures.

The films are playing the Fox Midwest and Commonwealth theatres. The Fox Apollo doubled its average with a two-week run. Also outstanding business is reported at the Fox theatres in Topeka and Pittsburg.

Lee Sproule Disposing Of Kansas Theatres

WINFIELD, KAS.—Impelled by ill health to retire, Lee Sproule, prominent Kansas exhibitor, has sold his Ritz Theatre here and leased three others.

The Winfield house has been sold to C. H. Zile, a former Fox manager. The houses leased are the Rex at Newton, to Ray Roberson, formerly of Winfield; the Isis at Marysville, to Leonard Smith, and the Mac at McPherson, to George Sproule.

Sales Tax Reduction Proposed in Ohio

COLUMBUS—Good news from the ITO headquarters is contained in the latest service bulletin in which Secretary P. J. Wood informs members that a bill has been introduced into the state legislature providing for a reduction of the state admission tax from the present three per cent, to two per cent. Such a reduction, estimates Wood, would save the theatre owners of Ohio approximately $500,000 annually.

This bill, known as House bill No. 532, was introduced by Representative John T. DeRighter of Cleveland.

The bulletin comments upon the proposed bill in these words: "In view of the splendid financial condition in which the state finds itself, there is considerable sentiment among the business interests of Ohio for a reduction of taxes, and it is our feeling that we are entitled to a lot of consideration because the amusement industry was the first to suffer from emergency taxes, first enacted by the legislature in 1933 when the initial admissions tax of 10 per cent was imposed."

Wood further points out that the motion picture industry is carrying the load of the National Defense Tax upon all admissions above 20 cents and thinks it quite likely that the present Congress will increase this tax to include all admissions of 10 cents or even less.

McDonald Sunday Show Vote Is Invalidated

PITTSBURGH—The November 5 referendum on the question of permitting Sunday shows at McDonald was invalidated by Judge Robert E. Burnside of Washington county. The issue had been defeated at McDonald but the vote was illegal because 364 voters were not given the opportunity to express their desires in the matter.

McDonald is in Washington county, with the exception of one ward which is in Allegheny county. Commissioners of Washington county furnished ballots for the Sunday motion picture issue, but the Allegheny county ward was forgotten. Judge Burnside ruled that this oversight constituted a violation of the Constitution.

Another referendum will be taken in which all municipal voters will be given the privilege of their franchise.

Sunday Shows Win by 12 Votes in Greensburg

GREENSBURG, PA.—By a slender 12-vote margin Sunday motion pictures were approved here, it was disclosed on completion of a recount conducted before Judge J. Hilary Keenan. The issue lost by 57 votes in the count following the referendum last fall. During the recount, 139 ballots were ruled out because of improper markings. Final count showed 3,616 in favor of Sunday shows and 3,604 against.

All Greensburg theatres are controlled by Warner Bros.

Bank Night and Bingo Are Under Fire in Kentucky

FRANKFORT, KY.—In what may prelude a state-wide drive against the games, Jesse K. Lewis, an assistant to Attorney-General Hubert Meredith, has declared that "Bank Night, Bingo and other similar schemes are violative of the laws of Kentucky."

The promotion of the games by "commercial organizations and religious institutions" has made a "mockery and a farce" of the state's gambling laws, Lewis asserted in a letter to a member of the legislature, Rep. William A. Lamkin jr. of Ekron. Either the laws ought to be enforced or repealed, he said.

In 1938 the general assembly passed a bill legalizing Bank Night after a similar bill had been vetoed earlier by Governor Chandler. Two years later the assembly placed a 15 per cent tax on Bank Night prizes, at the same time taking the stand this did not legalize them.

Lewis, who also hit federal officers for permitting the mailing of punch boards which he likewise classified as a gambling device, said the attorney general lacks power to initiate or order local prosecution of gambling violations. That he said was the "statutory duty of local law enforcement officials."

BBB Asks Pittsburgh Trade To Abandon Bank Night

PITTSBURGH—Exhibitors here are being urged to voluntarily abandon Bank Night by the Better Business Bureau.

G. H. Dennison, BBB general manager, petitioned theatre owners and managers, "Re: Bank Night, Bingo, Commercial Lotteries," as follows:

"A recent survey conducted by the Better Business Bureau discloses that Pittsburgh is the only major city in Pennsylvania wherein Bank Night continues to be operated.

"Unfortunately, the continued operation of this lottery has had the effect of encouraging the widespread promotion of other types of commercial lotteries, including Bingo and other forms of gambling.

"Many law-abiding businessmen, theatre operators and retailers have, therefore, been placed at a competitive disadvantage by those who resort to illegal devices to attract patronage and trade.

"Another inevitable by-product of this condition is that the substitution of 'chance' for 'merit' in modern merchandising has encouraged lower standards of business ethics and lower standards of merchandise and service. These things are contrary to the best interests of the buying public.

"To those theatre owners and managers in Allegheny county who are now operating Bank Night or other forms of lotteries, we submit the following important data.

"'On April 14, 1938, the Post Office Department issued a fraud order against the originators of Bank Night (Affiliated Enterprises, Inc.) and its officers and agents as such, at Denver, Colo., and declared Bank Night to be a lottery.

"On October 8, 1940, the superior court of Pennsylvania (Journal Page 7—No. 68—April, 1940) at Philadelphia, affirmed the judgment of the Court of Quarter Sessions of Beaver County, 104, March Term, 1940 (Commonwealth vs. Lund) that Bank Night was a lottery, and on October 28, 1940, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania refused an appeal on this case.

"This information is furnished in the belief that those Allegheny county theatres now operating lotteries will not desire to violate the Pennsylvania Lottery Law, and will take immediate action to end further operation of Bank Night, Lucky Night or other variations of lotteries which may now exist."

Lefton and Leiberfarb Into Military Service

PITTSBURGH—Filmrow's first to sign up with the army are S. David Lefton and Stanley Leiberfarb. They are from the office of Producers Releasing Corp. The former is the oldest of the sons of the Lew Leftons, and the latter is the PRC branch cashier.

Tom Long First Akron Manager to Join Army

AKRON—First of Akron's theatre managers to join the army is Tom Long of the Palace.

Long who came here from Youngstown's Palace two years ago, enlisted under the Selective Service Act and has already been inducted into the service. He visited with relatives in Indianapolis before joining Uncle Sam's fighting forces.

Sid Holland comes to Akron from New York to take over Long's managerial duties.

"Fantasia" Bows in Auto City at $5

DETROIT—"Fantasia" opened on Tuesday at the Wilson in a special showing sponsored by the Detroit Symphony Society at $5 per seat.

The regular opening was preceded by a press preview on Friday, attended by about 1,200 persons, and constituting, in the opinion of publicity men present, the largest turnout of working press representatives ever seen at a local preview.

Critics of local papers and a good representation of leading exhibitors and film men were among those present.

Comment on the picture was the outstanding topic of conversation the next day on Filmrow.

Film Product Piling Up In Pittsburgh Vaults

By ROBT. F. KLINGENSMITH

PITTSBURGH—Product is piling up in film vaults here due to long runs and move-overs of a number of attractions in first-run theatres.

The start of this accumulation dates back to November 14 when the ceiling of the Alvin collapsed, resulting in a product surplus for the Senator and Fulton. This was a rather new experience for the latter house. Meanwhile, holdovers increased.

The Fulton, now showing "Back Street," is scheduled to close around February 26 for the final installations necessary for the "Fantasia" reopening shortly thereafter. The Barry, which formerly offered only independent product, in recent months has been exhibiting productions from RKO, 20th-Fox, Universal, Republic, Monogram, Producers Releasing Corp., state rights films and Paramount reissues.

Monogram, it is understood, will not hold up release on "Her First Romance," starring Edith Fellows, and will book it in the city without a first run. Originally it had been set for the Fulton, but with the "Fantasia" engagement now being prepared and other films awaiting exhibition, Monogram will put its "singing Cinderella" picture into release without the build up of a down town showing.

The Fulton in recent months has used product from Universal, 20th-Fox, M-G-M, Warner-First National, United Artists, Republic, Film Alliance and other state rights distributors. The Senator used only three pictures during the first seven weeks of the year. The Warner has used only one double bill of clear product this year, the other weeks having offered moveover films. The Ritz has offered only two double bill shows with four moveovers. "GWTW" and "Philadelphia Story" have been holdovers at Loew's Penn.

"Duddy" Lefton to Get Bachelor Dinner

Pittsburgh—Friends of Godfrey "Duddy" Lefton, PRC salesman, will honor him at a bachelor dinner, March 10. Arrangements for the event have been made with the management of the William Penn Hotel. The young film man and Miss Iris Spitalny, daughter of the Maurice Spitalnys, will be married March 23.

PITTSBURGH

RAY ALLISON, circuit exhibitor of Cresson, is recuperating in Florida after a three-week illness . . . Bill Clark of the Warner circuit booking department, resigned last week . . . AMPTO has spiffy new letterheads in which the association name is printed on a strip of film . . . The Joseph Gellmans are vacationing in Miami. Allied exhibitor treasurer says "it's a three-week rest" . . . John Finley, formerly of the Harris circuit here, later of the Dipson organization in Wheeling and more recently stationed at Bradford, is the new manager of Dipson's 20th Century, Buffalo, having succeeded Dick Kemper, now vacationing in Florida, who is expected to return to Buffalo as district manager for this circuit.

Charlie Kosco, exhibitor and former film salesman, states our Review Digest, Picture Guide and Index and Shorts Chart is the best in the field. We think so too, Charlie, and we find more members of the trade agreeing every week . . . Joe Zangrelli, formerly of the accessory department at the Warner exchange, is the new assistant booker there, succeeding Milton Frankel, who was recently promoted to a sales post. Frankel, now covering the main line, was involved in an auto accident on his first sales trip; he was uninjured but his car was damaged.

M. N. Shapiro has succeeded Burtus Bishop jr. as assistant chief barker of the Variety Club; Brian McDonald is the second assistant, and Art Morrone is now a member of the board of directors . . . Art England departed last week for Miami and a month's vacation . . . George Jaffe is "reconditioning" at Hot Springs . . . The Andrews Sisters will top the Stanley stage show the week of March 7.

Ed Siegal, local exploiteer for Universal, after closing his advance campaign here for "Back Street" at the Fulton, departed for Cincinnati to introduce "Buck Privates" at the Grand there . . . Mr. and Mrs. William R. Wheat jr. and Mr. and Mrs. William Walker vacationed last week in New Orleans and will spend several weeks motoring through the south . . . Danny Davis has added his amateur shows at the State, Aliquippa; Mary Ann, Burgettstown, and the NuLuna, Sharon . . . Mrs. H. H. Baldensperger, wife of the Sheffield exhibitor, is recuperating after undergoing an operation in Warren General Hospital . . . It's a son for John Lengyel, local projectionist, named Patrick Harry, and a daughter for Joe Mazzei, Gabe Rubin's assistant at the Art Cinema, named Mary Ann.

Joe Gins, Columbia city salesman, is himself again after licking pneumonia. He had been hospitalized for several weeks . . . Archie Fineman contracted a bad cold which all but developed into pneumonia while fighting a fire early Monday-a-week ago when a building adjoining the Paramount, Braddock, was gutted by flames. The theatre was damaged by smoke and water. Fineman was improved this week . . . The French extravaganza, "Folies Bergere," which played a fortnight engagement in the Stanley several years ago, has been booked for a return date at this house opening February 28 . . . A second M-G-M gold button award in the local area for "Escape" showmanship has been pinned on Bill Bryan, of the Casino, Vandergrift, a Manos-Lipsie house.

Warner is adding new steel supports at the Schenley. The circuit's Strand in the Oakland-Schenley district has a new glass front. A new marquee was being erected there this week. The circuit plans some modernization at the New Oakland, which was acquired recently . . . Leo Abernathy, international president of the AFL Billposters' Union, has been assured a fourth term as president of the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union by the retirement of his only opponent, Hunter P. Wharton . . . Lawrence W. Davee, Century projector executive, and William Fannin of International Seating Co., were here on business with Art Morrone . . . Louis J. Bender, Millvale exhibitor, has been ill at his home for several weeks.

Lt. J. M. Roth, son of the Isreal Roths, and formerly stationed at Schuylkill Arsenal, Philadelphia, is now on duty at Camp Lee, Virginia. Lieutenant "Jerry" has ordered BOXOFFICE to keep in touch with the industry . . . Miss Reva Rosenberg, daughter of the M. A. Rosenbergs, has vacationed in Miami Beach for a month . . . Jerry Castelli, Library exhibitor, recently visited in North Bay, Canada . . . Marion Hartner, secretary to Larry Kent at the IATSE office, was a victim in a holdup . . . Etna council is slapping on a $25 annual pinball machine license tax . . . Lowell Calvert, Selznick International representative, was a recent visitor . . . Max Shulgold's Crown Film Co. is distributing a new dual horror show, "Torso Murder Mystery" and "Face at the Window" . . . Miss Lynne B. Monroe was a Filmrow booker the other day from Shinnston, W. Va. . . . A. Sam Marchando, Isabella exhibitor, will take a wife early in March.

Sun-Telegraph has heartily approved proposed legislation which would legalize by local option Sunday bowling and basketball in Pennsylvania. These bills were introduced by Rep. John J. Baker, of the South Side, who this week threw into the hopper another measure permitting ice hockey on Sunday. Rep. Thomas Heatherington of Versailles is co-sponsor of the basketball and bowling measures . . . In 1933, Sunday afternoon baseball and football, subject to community referenda, were legalized, and musical concerts also were authorized. Sunday tennis, polo and motion pictures got the "go" signal in 1935 and two years later Sunday fishing was approved. Baker first introduced his basketball bill in 1937 and it died in committee; an ice sports measure last year also was pickled.

State Legislator Elmer Holland, from the local sixth district, plans to take wrestling out of sports. That is, he has framed a bill which would remove the grunters and groaners from the authority of the state athletic commission. He states: "Professional wrestling isn't a sport. It's a form of entertainment just like the movies, flea circuses and vaudeville" . . .

Aaron Copland, composer-author, who wrote scores for "Of Mice and Men" and "Our Town," lectured here last week on "Music in the Films."

Douglass Montgomery will appear at the Nixon the week of March 3 as "Danny" in "Night Must Fall." A revival of "Blossom Time" is scheduled for the following week and a return engagement of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" opens St. Patrick's Day. Opening March 31 at the Nixon will be Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans in "Twelfth Night."

Pete Dana, Universal manager, and his salesmen, Dave Barnholtz, Lou Hess, Bill Satori and Leo Cantor, were in Cleveland over the last weekend attending the company regional sales conference presided over by Dave Miller, district manager . . . Tommy Beedle, son of Eddie Beedle, was a Filmrow visitor the other day with his dad and Uncle Fred . . . Al Schwalberg and Herman Goldberg of the Warner home office were here this week inspecting progress made to date on the construction of the new exchange building which this company will occupy at the corner of the Blvd. of the Allies and Miltonberger St. in early spring.

Harry M. Kalmine, local chairman of the Greek War Relief Ass'n, met with members of the Pittsburgh area committee Wednesday morning to formulate plans for the drive which is dated for March 25 to 30. All exchange managers are members of the committee under the chairmanship of Harry A. Seed, Warner branch manager.

Construction Restrainer Outgrowth of Contract

DETROIT—Detroit's perennial problem of overseating and over-construction of new theatres, received a history-making solution here when Circuit Judge Guy A. Miller handed down an injunction restraining completion and operation of the new Carmen until February 16, 1945.

The house, being built in Dearborn, was nearly finished and its opening was being discussed for about two weeks hence, with equipment partly installed.

Earlier history of this situation has been reported in detail in BOXOFFICE as it occurred. Briefly, Joseph Stoia and Joseph Miskinis were partners in the Midway and Circle theatres, splitting up in 1939 with Stoia purchasing the property for $135,000. The agreement provided that the partner selling out (Miskinis) would not operate in any way a theatre within four miles of the Circle and Midway for five years, from February 16, 1940.

Stoia complained that Miskinis was building the Carmen within the prohibited area—about four blocks from the Midway. The court found that it was located upon properties acquired by Miskinis and wife. An earlier injunction was granted and Miskinis, as well as Joseph Miskinis jr., who was involved at the time, withdrew from the Carmen project, leaving Gorelic and Marshall as the builders.

In a highly involved series of corporation and other moves elaborated in the decree, Miskinis started two other theatre projects elsewhere—the Carthay and Civic theatres, both under construction, with Gorelic building both for Miskinis. The court therefore concluded:

"It is a normal probability that the Miskinises have somewhere, somehow, an interest in the Carmen . . . It seems very improbable that Miskinis would have advanced in connection with the Carthay and Civic $9,000 or $10,000 more money than enough to pay for the work that had been done upon them. It is much more likely that $9,000 was advanced to pay for work that had already been done somewhere. That amount of work had already been done on the Carmen. It seems a fair conclusion that its apparent advancement was only for the purpose of covering up its true destination.

"I think testimony establishes that Gorelic participated knowingly in Miskinis' scheme by underhand means to evade his solemn contract obligation."

Brandts Acquire Lake From Warner Bros.

CLEVELAND—The Lake, 800-seat downtown Euclid Ave. house, has passed from the Warner circuit into new hands. Harry and William Brandt of New York, in association with Marty and Louis Levine, leased the house and opened it last Saturday with a double feature foreign picture policy.

Following the example of other Brandt houses, the Lake will play continued runs, holding pictures as long as they have the public's support.

Opening program consisted of "The Virgin Bride" and "School for Husbands."

Louis Levine has been named house manager. His assistant is Jerome Lamm.

Present for the opening were Marty Levine and Oliver Unger, sales manager for Hoffberg Productions. Admission scale is the same as other downtown straight picture houses, namely 35 cents and 55 cents.

The Lake has played an intermittent role in the local motion picture scene for the past ten years. It was built by Louis Isreal, independent local exhibitor. Isreal leased it to Warner Bros. who have opened it for short periods every year, but have never kept it open for any continuous length of time.

New lessees of the Lake are confident that Cleveland will support the type of programs they will show. This will consist of both English language foreign-made pictures and foreign language pictures.

Two Socials in February By Cincinnati Variety

CINCINNATI—Variety Club activities for the month of February include two social events.

According to Chief Barker Bill Onie, Saturday, February 22, the club quarters will be turned over to the "Barkerettes," wives and daughters of the members, who will have charge of the evening's entertainment.

On Monday, March 3, a stag indoor picnic will be held in the club rooms at the Netherland Plaza, and from all indications, this will be one of the outstanding socials of the season.

Reservations for both events are particularly gratifying.

"Birth of a Nation" Not for Ohio

Cleveland—The Ohio censor board revoked without comment the approval it last week accorded "The Birth of a Nation," which, for the past 25 years, has met with consistent refusal in its endeavors to gain distribution in Ohio. The board, in previous turndowns, contended that the picture might give rise to race riots.

DETROIT

JAMES M. GAMBLE, stagehand at the Colonial, is a newly-wed; bride is the former Dorothy Gearing . . . J. Stuart Blackton, oldtime Vitagraph head, was in town Sunday with his "Movie Hit Parade" . . . Marshall Templeton is rejoining Jam Handy, specializing in slidefilm production.

Alex Schreiber of Associated Theatres, had to be taken home during the intermission because of illness . . . Jack Ferentz, president of the Musicians' Local, drove clear in from Lansing for the press preview.

WOLVERINE DOINGS:

Ernest Wooster, a new name in Michigan show business, is opening the Kinde at Kinde, long closed . . . Gus Bentley is new owner of the Reading at Reading, formerly operated by E. F. Vetter.

W. E. Lyon, who built the Burton, just outside of Flint, about three years ago, has sold the house to Joseph P. Uvick, who also has a house at Deckerville.

Herman A. Bird has sold the Our at Standish to W. A. Forsythe, owner of the Temple there, and is moving to Evart, where he has taken over the Lyric from F. A. Graham, and is renaming it the Evart and completely remodeling the house.

The army opened the first of their 1,000-seaters at Fort Custer, near Battle Creek, on Thursday.

Shift of Change Dates Builds Up Weekends

DETROIT—Building weekend business has definitely resulted from shifting change dates a month ago at the De Lodder circuit's Aloma. The Wednesday and Friday change days at this neighborhood were moved ahead to Tuesday and Thursday, giving a bigger play for the Thursday-Friday-Saturday bill, with the Sunday change losing one day. This enabled the house to book in stronger pictures for the weekend bill, ten days after the key run, and built patronage among neighborhood patrons who missed a feature at the key house.

To strengthen the shorter Sunday-Monday bill, Book Night has been placed on these two nights, with Enamelware Night on Tuesday and Wednesday. The show starts an hour earlier on Enamelware Night to handle the extra crowd.

Adapt "Old Grey Mare"

HOLLYWOOD—Dorrell and Stuart McGowan are adapting "Old Grey Mare," an Armand Schaefer production for Republic.

CLEVELAND

I J. SCHMERTZ, 20th Century-Fox branch manager, and John D. Kalafat of the Associated Theatres circuit, have been named co-chairmen for the Greek War Relief campaign. They are now formulating plans whereby every theatre in the Cleveland exchange district will be able to share in the raising of funds. The date of the drive is March 25-30.

Charles Albert, Warner theatre department booker, left on Valentine's Day for New Orleans, Dallas and other ports in the south, for a two weeks' vacation . . . Julius Lamm, manager of Warner's Uptown, has been elected vice-president of the Glenville Corner Club, an organization composed of the merchants in the neighborhood.

Oliver Unger, sales manager for Hoffberg Productions, and Marty Levine of New York, were both here for the opening of the Lake Theatre under the banner of Harry and William Brandt . . . "The Baker's Wife," distributed locally by Nate Gerson, was held for a three-week run at the Circle . . . Jerome Lamm has resigned from National Screen Service to take up his duties as assistant manager at the Lake . . . The Tivoli, Akron, came back to H. E. Bickel, owner, last week when Jack Flemm, lessee, presented him with the front door key. Bickel is not opening the house at present.

It is now announced that Martin Smith and J. A. Beidler have taken over the Pantheon Theatre, Toledo, including all present contracts . . . It is assumed that John F. Kumler, former owner, is retiring from business . . . Private Joe Minsky writes his former Vitagraph associates that he is getting used to arising at 5:30 a. m. and going to bed at 10 p. m. and building bridges in between time. Minsky is in the engineers corps.

Bill Dworski, former Warner city manager in Mansfield, has been named manager of the Palace Theatre, Canton. He succeeds Louis Lamm, manager of the Palace for the past six years who resigned to become affiliated with the Associated Theatres circuit as manager of the Capitol in Cleveland.

Bunny Somers, former manager of Warner's Ohio, Sidney, is now managing the Liberty, Cleveland, an Associated circuit house. He takes the place of Bert Diener who resigned on account of poor health.

"Kitty Foyle" and Toledo got on so well together that she extended her stay at the Rivoli to two weeks . . . James Frew, Universal salesman here, has been appointed Universal branch manager in New Orleans. His successor in Cleveland has not been named as yet. Frew came to Cleveland two and a half years ago from Washington, D. C. . . . St. Clairsville Theatre, St. Clairsville, is closed.

Visitors of the week included Jack Shea, booking for the Shea circuit and George Fetig, booking for the Publix circuit . . . Joe Koliski arrived in town last week to fill Private Joe Minsky's shoes as Vitagraph city salesman . . . Samuel D. Shia of the Old Trail Theatre, St. Clairsville, his wife, son and daughter, have all been down with the flu, so last week he packed up and went down to Texas to forget all about it . . . Nate Schultz, Monogram franchise owner, announces that on March 1 reissues of "The Hoosier Schoolboy," starring Mickey Rooney and "Boy of the Streets" starring Jackie Cooper, will be available.

Cleveland Telenews to Conduct Broadcasts

CLEVELAND—Following the successful pattern of the Telenews Theatre in San Francisco, the Cleveland Telenews Theatre on March 3, will start a series of daily broadcasts to originate in the lounge of the theatre.

The first program is called "Speak Up." It will be heard Monday through Friday from 6:15 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. over WCLE. This program is sponsored by the Burt Department Store, which will provide a moderator to handle the questions and answers propounded by the audience.

A special studio is being constructed adjacent to the lounge from which all Telenews broadcasts will be handled. Arrangements have been made to air other Telenews programs over WTAM and WGAR.

Ellis Levy, manager of the San Francisco Telenews, is here to supervise construction of the radio station and assist in arranging for hourly news broadcasts to supplement the news depicted on the screen.

Holden Swiger, formerly manager of de luxe theatres in the Paramount-Publix chain, has been named manager of the Telenews Theatre. Swiger is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University and joined Paramount in 1927. He directed Paramount theatres in Chicago, Indianapolis, Denver and other larger cities. He came to Cleveland from Elyria where, for the past six months he was associated with the Max Greenwald chain.

"Federal Fugitives" Next

CLEVELAND—Lee Goldberg, PRC franchise owner, announces "Federal Fugitives" as the next PRC release. Top roles in the picture are portrayed by Neil Hamilton, Betty Blythe and Victor Varconi.

Text of Ellet Complaint

CLEVELAND—Following is the text of the demand by the Ellet Amusement Co. for arbitration, the initial complaint to come before the local motion picture tribunal:

To: LUKE LYMAN, Clerk of the Tribunal:

The undersigned, in accordance with the rules of Arbitration and Appeals, demands that the controversy hereafter described be submitted to arbitration under the Motion Picture Decree, and files herewith a submission dated February 15th, 1941, in accordance with the provisions of Section XXII, subdivision 9, of said Decree.

1. Statement of Claim and Relief Sought:

Complainant plans to operate as an exhibitor of motion pictures for profit in a moving picture theatre house now under construction, located on the west side of the Akron-Canton Road between Albrecht Avenue and Triplett Boulevard, in the City of Akron, Ohio, to be known as the Ellet Theatre. The theatre will commence operations immediately upon completion of the building on or about March 15, 1941. When completed, the building will constitute a modern stone and brick construction moving picture house with eight hundred (800) seats all located on the main floor.

Complainant desires to operate the Ellet Theatre as a twenty-eight cent (28c) neighborhood house exhibiting moving pictures on an irrespective Akron run basis, namely with the right to exhibit feature moving pictures commencing with the forty-second day after the completion of the Akron first run of the given feature. The Ellet Theatre will exhibit double features from time to time, but its policy of operation will not include gift nights, giveaways, premiums, cut rate tickets, lotteries, et cetera.

Complainant has requested Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Film Distributing Corporation, Loew's, Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., and Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, the distributor-defendants herein, to respectively grant to complainant a license to exhibit feature moving pictures owned by said distributor-defendants in the Ellet Theatre, commencing on or about March 15, 1941, upon such an irrespective Akron run 28c-house basis. The request of complainant has been denied by said distributor-defendants upon the ground that they each entered into a license for the current motion picture season with exhibitor-defendant Hart, together with defendant Co-Operative Theatres of Ohio, Inc., and/or defendant Milton Mooney, acting as booking agents for Hart, with respect to the exhibition of feature moving pictures in the Norka Theatre, 1095-99 East Market Street, Akron, Ohio, and the Rialto Theatre, 3-9 Goodyear Boulevard, Akron, Ohio, each operated by Defendant Hart, whereby there is granted to each of said theatres a seven-day clearance against complainant's Ellet Theatre. The effect of this clearance is to deny to the complainant the right to exhibit a given feature moving picture owned by one of the defendant-distributors until at least seven (7) days after the close of the run of such feature picture in either the Norka or the Rialto Theatre.

Complainant believes that the clearance as granted to the Rialto and Norka Theatres against the Ellet Theatre is an unreasonable one, judged on the basis of each and all of the factors listed in the provisions of Section VIII of that Consent Decree upon which this demand for arbitration is founded.

THEREFORE, complainant asks that the Motion Picture Arbitration Tribunal find:

1. That the said clearance is unreasonable, both as between the Norka Theatre and the Ellet Theatre and as between the Rialto Theatre and the Ellet Theatre;
2. That the Tribunal further find that neither the Norka Theatre nor the Rialto Theatre is entitled to any clearance with respect to the Ellet Theatre;
3. That the Tribunal therefore declare inoperative that provision of the presently existing licenses between the distributor-defendants and defendant Hart, Co-operative Theatres of Ohio, Inc., and/or Milton Mooney, which grants to the Rialto and Norka Theatres any right of clearance with respect to the Ellet Theatre during the life of said licenses;
4. And that the Tribunal further order that no clearance shall be granted by any of the distributor-defendants to either the Rialto or the Norka Theatre against the Ellet Theatre in any licenses which may hereafter be granted by said distributor-defendants for the exhibition of feature moving pictures in either the Norka Theatre or the Rialto Theatre.

Louis Isreal Takes Issue to Arbiters

CLEVELAND—The first complaint of an exhibitor seeking relief from alleged unfair trade practices in this district has been filed with the clerk of the American Arbitration Ass'n.

Louis Isreal, owner of the 800-seat Ellet Theatre now under construction on the outskirts of Akron and president of the Ellet Amusement Co., asks, in his petition, for an irrespective run. At the same time he asks that existing contracts between W. L. Hart, owner of the Norka and Rialto theatres and the distributor-defendants granting seven days' protection to these theatres, be declared inoperative.

Clearance in Akron is by custom established by admission scales. Pictures are generally available to subsequent runs charging 28 cents on the 42nd day after the completion of the Akron first run. Isreal declares that he will charge 28 cents at the Ellet—the same price as prevails at the Norka and Rialto—and therefore, he contests the seven day protection granted these two theatres.

Furthermore, he contends it is unreasonable for the Norka and Rialto to claim protection over the Ellet, which is more than three miles distant, while claiming no protection over nearer theatres.

Defendants in the first arbitration case filed in this district are Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Film Distributing Corporation, Loew's, Inc., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., Twentieth Century-Fox Corporation, W. L. Hart, Co-operative Theatres of Ohio, Inc., Milton Mooney.

Universal Branch Heads Meet With Dave Miller

CLEVELAND—Dave Miller, Universal district manager, held a meeting of the branch managers and salesmen of his district here on Saturday at the Statler Hotel. F. J. McCarthy, eastern sales manager, was present.

Branch managers attending were Joe Kauffman, Cleveland; Pete Dana, Pittsburgh; John Scully, Buffalo; Jere Spandau, Albany, and Peter Rosian, Cincinnati. The meeting was called to discuss new product and to carry out details of matters discussed at the recent Universal sales meeting in Chicago.

Martin Printz Books Three From Pioneer

CLEVELAND — Herbert Ochs and Col. Harry Long, operating Pioneer Film Exchange, have closed a contract with Martin Printz to play three of their pictures first run in Cleveland. They are "Pirate of the Seven Seas," "Among Human Wolves" and "I Met a Murderer."

"Let George Do It," another Pioneer release, played last week at the Palace, Akron, and is booked into the Esquire, Toledo.

Detroit Booking Agents Organize Association

DETROIT—Detroit booking agents have organized the Michigan Theatrical Agents and Bookers Ass'n, a non-profit association. Practically all local bookers are members. Sol Berns is president; Corine Muer, vice-president; Betty Bryden, secretary, and Del Delbridge, treasurer. Directors are Peter J. Iodice, Henry Lueders and Ken Conroy.

Jacobs Distributing Two Novelty Shorts in Ohio

CLEVELAND—M. M. Jacobs of Imperial Pictures has acquired two novelty shorts for northern Ohio distribution. They are "Synchrony No. 2" and "Rhythm and Light." Without the appearance of human beings, these pictures, produced by Mary Ellen Bute, achieve effects through the manipulation of geometrical figures, jewelry and other objects.

Detroit's Variety Inducts Officers

DETROIT—Variety Tent No. 5 inaugurated its new officers, headed by Chief Barker John Howard, who presided, in a ceremony following a banquet in the Esquire Room, Book-Cadillac Hotel.

Charles C. Perry, as national canvassman, inducted the officers, with David Newman, property master, calling upon John E. Flynn, M-G-M district manager at Chicago and first chief barker at Detroit, to initiate the new members taken in.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries spoke, referring eloquently to the golf prowess of Howard, and Val Clare of CKLW took the stand as toastmaster. Major speech was by S. L. A. Marshall, author of "Blitzkrieg," which was published a week ago. It deals with national defense.

Others introduced, some giving brief talks, included: Harry F. Kelley, Michigan secretary of state; Judges Harry Keidan, John P. Scallen and Guy A. Miller; Ted O'Shea, M-G-M division manager; J. J. Maloney, M-G-M district manager; Louis Phillips, Paramount legal department; Harry Goldstein, Paramount district manager; Fred Mandell, owner of the Detroit Lions, and Bob Hall, singing rimester, who pinch-hit for David M. Idzal, assistant chief barker.

A show from Ray Schreiber's Colonial was presented for an hour's entertainment to conclude the evening.

Tablecloth Notes

Charles D. Kidson, who is managing energetic Judge John P. Scallen's campaign, was at our table . . . The judge, incidentally, has a show record way "back when"—he used to represent Bert C. Whitney and other old-timers . . . Adolph and Irving Goldberg seen at separate tables . . . Freddie Bonnem was long on the java . . . Professor Bob Corbin, UDT supervisor, was very impressive in that costume . . . Phil Brestoff, Michigan musical boss, had the jitters over the initiation . . . Retiring Chief Barker Harold C. Robinson surrounded by son Bill, his assistant, Andy Pasananen, and Bill Rick.

Twin Department—Lou Lobar of M-G-M and L. C. Becker, American Seating, are almost twins—till you compare height . . . Ed Carlson and Lou Mitchell of the Kilbride houses exhibited a fondness for romantic songs . . . Jack Hurford of the Fox was about the last to arrive . . . Sol Berns efficiently handling the show for which he was responsible . . . John R. McPherson, National Screen manager, has transferred Variety membership here from St. Louis.

J. Oliver Brooks, Butterfield booker, at the salesmen's table with Ray Cloud, Eddie Westcott, Col. George McCoy and Claire Townsend . . . Assisting the show were Cem Merritt, Jack Broder and Charlie Schneider.

11 Members Are Added By Detroit Variety

DETROIT—The Variety Club is boosting its membership by 11. They include: Paul David Bromberg, accountant, Wisper & Wetsman Theatres; James E. West, theatrical photographer; Clark C. Coulter, Coulter Premiums; Edward Bellew, United Artists exploiteer; Robert Bernstein, M-G-M salesman; Carl L. Krueger, Jam Handy Picture Service; Edward L. Hyman, operating assistant to the president, UDT; Jack Broder, circuit owner; Lester Gruber, night club operator; Robert P. Corbin, UDT supervisor; Clifford E. Giesseman, Altec; and Philip F. Brestoff, musical director, Michigan Theatre.

"Wind" Doubles Pitt Par; "Story" a Swell 185%

PITTSBURGH—"The Philadelphia Story" was told to the tune of a very happy jingle at Loew's Penn boxoffice. Opening an extended run here, the M-G-M hit scored at close to double average for the deluxer. "GWTW" and "This Thing Called Love" continued as strong attractions in their respective third weeks here. The Selznick epic had been moved into the Warner after two big weeks in the Penn, and the Columbia comedy roared ahead in the Senator. "East of the River" was a weak attraction at the Fulton. Ritz showed one of its best grosses in the presentation of a new double bill with Paramount's "Texas Rangers Ride Again" and "A Night at Earl Carroll's." Weather was miserable, cold, slippery, dark and smoggy.

The details:

(Average is 100)

Barry—Devil Bat (PRC); Chamber of Horrors (Mono) 95
Fulton—East of the River (FN)..... 60
Penn—Philadelphia Story (M-G-M) 185
Ritz—Texas Rangers Ride Again (Para't); A Night at Earl Carroll's (Para't).....110

Stanley—Four Mothers (WB), plus Larry Clinton orchestra on stage 95
Warner—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M), 3rd d. t. wk. 200

"Back Street" Stands Out In Spotty Cincy Week

CINCINNATI—"Back Street," after an exceptionally good opening, settled in for a second week. Business was well above average. Other features suffered from lack of interest. The weather was open and mild. Shubert's went over the top with their stage show and film fare, which is increasing steadily in popularity.

Detail for week ended February 13:

Shubert—Play Girl (RKO), plus stage show...120

Dopesters Given Setback By Detroit First Runs

DETROIT—Local wiseacres who have banked on the theory that a picture with strong feminine interest is a surefire boxoffice attraction got a minor jolt when two of the strongest bids of the season in this class failed to stay at their big opening houses for more than one week, although both "Kitty Foyle" and "Back Street" switched to other theatres for a continued first run.

Aside from a prevailing slump, attributed to flu and a puzzling atmosphere of industrial uncertainty locally, the lowdown on the double shift appears to be that both pictures were excellent draws for openers, but exhibitors felt it best to switch them to the smaller supporting houses and bring in fresh film fare, rather than risk another week in the largest theatres.

Thursday opening of "GWTW," which set the all-time record of 21½ weeks here a year ago, at the United Artists, was another important factor making readjustment of booking schedules necessary. Film is considered likely to last several weeks at this writing.

Detail for week ending February 13:

(Average is 100)

"Philadelphia Story" New Cleveland Exemplar

CLEVELAND—It's getting to be an old story, but again "GWTW" was the top percentage picture of the week. In cold cash, however, it was "The Philadelphia Story" that was the winner. The picture caused a mild furore, and fans compared it with "GWTW" in terms of entertainment.

The town's only stage show, "Folies Bergere" with "Tall, Dark and Handsome" on the screen made an excellent showing. "This Thing Called Love" runs on and on and in its third week downtown, taking in more admissions than many new pictures do in a first week. "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" also clicked and wins a move-over run.

The Hanna, only legit house was dark so that the only unusual competition was the Al Sirrat Grotto Circus.

First run business, while not as big as in some recent weeks, was still in the high brackets. Neighborhoods, however, are not getting any tangible results, as yet, from increased employment.

Detail for the week ended February 14:

(Average is 100)

Allen—This Thing Called Love (Col).....110
Third week downtown.
Hippodrome—Mr. and Mrs. Smith (RKO)..... 80
To the Allen for another week.
Palace—Tall, Dark and Handsome (20th-Fox).. 90
Folies Bergere on the stage was the big draw, although the picture was unanimously praised.
State—The Philadelphia Story (M-G-M).....135
Moves to the Stillman for continued run.
Stillman—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M).....160
Fourth week.

Cause of "Decency" Hampered by Radio

Pittsburgh—The "Catholic" on February 13 stated editorially:

"A sharp decline in radio listening interest is reported, as a result of the broadcasters' decision to inflict upon their customers the sort of music they can get most cheaply; plans for 'a quiet evening at home' are being changed to 'let's go to the movies' after work, with the dials proving hopeless in finding the kind of entertainment that was once available.

"Good fortune for the film houses; but it is a matter of grave concern that this situation finds more objectionable movies being offered than in several years."

CINCINNATI

ROBERT SMELTZER, division manager for Warner, spent several days in Cincy with Robert Dunbar, local manager, rounding out plans on the current Sears drive . . . West Virginia friends of Bill Kerr will welcome him as new sales representative in that territory for Warner's. Kerr, formerly with RCA, succeeds George Dillon, resigned . . . West Virginia exhibitors calling this week included Mannie and Louie Shore, from Williamson and War; Eddie Salzberg of Union; J. Crissman, Barboursville, and Gene and Jack Custer, Charleston. Also, Messrs. Keesling and Newbold.

Report comes that W. H. Rogers, Community, Keystone, W. Va., is at the Welsh Clinic for a checkup . . . Mrs. Fon Sexton and her son, A. J. jr., visited. They report an uptrend in business in their Ashland, Ky., houses . . . Maury White, Libson-White interests, returned from a business trip over the weekend in New York . . . Mrs. John Crone is remodeling the Ideal, Columbia Parkway, Cincy, for an early reopening. This marks her return to exhibition after a lapse of several years.

Virgil Jackson is rumored planning a new neighborhood house in the new housing project district at Dayton, Ohio . . . Ralph Kinsler announces the new Shard to be opened in memory of Elmer Shard, prominent Cincinnati exhibitor, and which will be erected in Lockland, Cincinnati suburb, will get under way in April. Kinsler was formerly branch manager for Warner . . . Warren Shafer is adding to his Morehead and Grayson, Ky., houses with a new theatre at Olive Hill. J. Frank Carnahan is expecting to open his new house at Ervine, Ky., in April.

Warner Publicist Bill Bromberg is filling quite a few radio engagements in Cincinnati and Dayton . . . Universal rings the bell again with two salesmen having made 100 per cent sales possibilities in the Bill Scully Drive. Nate LaVene and George Gomersal are leading the nation. For the first time in the history of the company, two leaders come from the same office. Harry Young was awarded a pen and pencil set for the greatest number of sales on "Fugitive" and the reissue, "Next Time We Love."

Columbia bows in "The Exhibitor's Goodwill Campaign, to Do the Damndest Best Business in Thirteen Weeks You Ever Dreamed Of," to quote their attractive folders . . . Lloyd Johnson is constructing a new house at Hyden, Ky., the first theatre for this town . . . Mrs. Carolyn Ducker is the new owner at Butler, Ky., having acquired the house from Max Goldberg . . . "Western Union" opened to terrific business at the RKO Albee.

Metro's Woody Bressler is passing the Perfectos. It's a valentine in the form of a baby girl . . . M-G-M Pep Club entertained with an office social and buffet luncheon . . . Mr. and Mrs. Joe Miller are the proud parents of a boy. Mrs. Miller is the daughter of Jack Goldman, proprietor of the Lincoln and Roosevelt theatres, Cincinnati.

Gold Arbitration Bid Seen as Forerunner

BOSTON—The first of a series of complaints to be filed with the motion picture division of the American Arbitration Ass'n under the guidance of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., was entered last week when Ben Gold, Nashua, N. H., independent, sought to invoke Section 6 of the Code. Gold, as reported by this publication last week, thus became the first New Englander to bring a case before the local board.

Arthur K. Howard, business manager of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., who aided and counselled Gold in his move, declined to state what further steps the local Allied States Ass'n segment plans to take under the American Arbitration Ass'n set up but indicated that he already is assisting a number of other member theatre owners in preparing complaints for filing.

Nashua in Limelight

Gold's complaint again brings up the Nashua, N. H., situation which was thoroughly aired during the three-year hearings of the Morse & Rothenberg Anti-trust Suit in which George S. Ryan, plaintiff's counsel, contended that two Shea houses in Nashua were the only theatres in the New Hampshire city that could buy major product. Morse & Rothenberg was recently able to purchase a run of Columbia, according to Gold, but Gold himself contends that he has been confined exclusively to independent product.

Gold, a member of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and a newcomer to independent ownership ranks, was formerly 11 years with Morse & Rothenberg circuit interest. He spent the past ten years with the chain in Nashua.

Applications for Two Theatres Rejected

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—Applications for two neighborhood theatres have been turned down by the board of appeals on zoning. Three hundred men and women filled the hearing room to voice their opinions for and against the petitions.

For the third time within three months George H. Griffen was denied permission to erect a theatre with stores in the north end. A large delegation of surrounding property owners opposed the petition. Joseph Frouge asked the right to erect a theatre a few blocks away from where the Griffen house was to be located, but after lengthy discussion his application was denied.

Mullin Heads Greek Aid

BOSTON—Martin J. Mullin, M&P Theatres Corp. partner, has been appointed local head of the Amusement Industries Division of the Greek War Relief Ass'n. Adolph Zukor, Paramount executive, is national head of the division.

Several Measures Concern Trade in Massachusetts

BOSTON—Massachusetts legislative business is picking up. A measure to forbid the selling of SRO facilities in Boston motion picture houses has been unofficially tossed, following the recommendation of industry spokesmen. Officially, the measure will have to undergo several routine considerations by both the house and senate, as will the potentially current measure that would necessitate playing of "Star-Spangled Banner" between performances, before being definitely dead.

Numerous public safety measures affecting the industry, including one filed by Eugene McSweeney, head of the department of public safety, are in the works. Also in this year's record lot of bills, mountained by the fact that last year there was no legislative session because of the newly enacted biennial law, included a number of holiday and outdoor advertising measures.

Perhaps the most dangerous bill from an industry standpoint is one brought by Leo J. Sullivan and Thomas P. O'Neill jr., that would set up a film censorship in the state. A hearing on this measure has been tentatively set for March 12.

Wants Beano Licensed

George Solomon, operator of the Columbia in Boston, has petitioned that "the department of public safety be authorized to issue licenses to theatres . . . to conduct Beano and similar games in addition to their regular performances."

This particular bill is assured of industry pros and cons.

"Legislation to further regulate the sale and re-sale of tickets of admission to certain theatrical enterprises, shows, or other public amusements," is being sought by Charles P. Huse jr.

"Legislation relative to the licensing of public entertainments, theatrical exhibitions, amusements, and enterprises on the Lord's Day" is sought in a bill filed by Thomas J. Lane.

Motion picture houses would not be able to sell tickets "for more than the price set forth on the tickets" in a bill brought by George T. Walsh.

Aimed particularly at Shubert interests, Paul McCarthy has brought three bills that would provide "that annual licenses first for theatre ticket agencies be increased and for requiring such agencies to post a bond:" so that, "ticket agencies shall not be connected in any way with theatre ticket agencies selling tickets at a premium:" and, finally, "for legislation to abolish licensing ticket agencies engaged in the re-selling at a premium of tickets for admissions to theatres . . ."

Also of interest to the film sector are numerous measures that would set up lotteries and sweepstakes for the avowed purpose of reducing taxes, financing old age assistance, etc.

Gather at Booth Bill Hearing

New Haven—Unexpectedly early hearing of the two-men-in-a-booth bill before the judiciary committee brought exhibitors from all over the state of Hartford to protest Thursday (Feb. 20). Before the hearing, exhibitors met at luncheon to talk over their line of defense at the Hotel Bond. The judiciary committee now takes the bill and opinions expressed under advisement.

Boston Arbitration Panel Is Selected

BOSTON—The following have been selected as members of the panel of arbitration for the Boston tribunal. Other names may yet be added by the American Arbitration Ass'n:

C. N. Angell, certified public accountant, 40 Broad Street.

HARTFORD—Stirling Hayden, who stars in Paramount's "Virginia," appeared at the local M&P's Allyn last Wednesday.

Tax on Film Rentals Proposed in Conn.

HARTFORD—A state tax on motion picture film rentals by Connecticut theatres would be imposed under the terms of a bill introduced into the state senate here by Senator John L. Sullivan (D) of New Britain.

According to the terms of the proposed bill, when the rent paid for the film is from $500 to $1,000 a week, there would be a five per cent tax, and where the rent exceeds $1,000 a week, the tax would be seven and one-half per cent. If the theatre grosses more than $2,000 per week, under the measure, it would be assumed that the film rental is $500 a week.

Stating that the bill is aimed at circuit theatres, Senator Sullivan declared that a provision permitting deduction of the value of premiums given out by the theatre from the gross is designed to assist the independent situations.

The above bill is the first legislative proposal actually aimed toward the industry in Connecticut.

Harry Goldman Chairman Salesmen's Club Dance

BOSTON—The fifth annual dinner-dance of the Motion Picture Salesmen's Club will be held at the Cocoanut Grove on Sunday, April 20.

Harry I. Goldman of Producers Releasing Corp., president of the organization, is general chairman. Reservations, which are going at six dollars a couple, may be secured from Maynard Sickles of the Capitol Theatre Supply Co., secretary.

Goldman, also chairman of the entertainment committee, has announced that additional talent will be brought in for the affair. He is being assisted in this field by Harry Rosenblatt of M-G-M and Saul Simons of Columbia.

Sickles, in charge of the program committee in addition to his other duties, is being assisted by John Felone of 20th-Fox, Mac Farber of Imperial, Frank Dervin of Universal, Saul Simons of Columbia, and James Connolly of 20th-Fox.

Berg Reports Tickets Move For Cinema Club Dance

BOSTON—Sam Berg, president of the Boston Cinema Club and general chairman in charge of the forthcoming March 15 annual dinner-dance of the fraternity, reported this week that subsequent ticket sales already have been made.

Berg, 20th-Fox head booker here, has been calling a number of special meetings to further plans for the Sunday charitable festivities at the Cocoanut Grove. Reservations are going at five dollars a pair.

75-Year-Old Park Will Be Razed

Bridgeport, Conn.—The Park, three-quarters of a century old and at one time the city's top theatre, is to be torn down, according to Frank Shea, president of the Park Theatre Co., owners of the building.

The house long has been dark except for occasional road companies. Of late, bricks have been falling from the walls onto autos in a nearby parking lot.

Mass. Governor in Tribute To "Land of Liberty"

BOSTON—"On behalf of the Commonwealth I wish to commend the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America for the patriotic service you are performing in presenting the motion picture, 'Land of Liberty,'" Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts said in a letter to Will Hays last week.

"There is certainly no better way of building patriotic values," His Excellency continued, "than by portraying the dramatic story of the birth and development of the democracy of the United States. I am delighted that the film is being shown in Massachusetts."

Charles E. Kurtzman, local Loew's division manager, has announced that a "Land of Liberty" committee has been composed of some one hundred outstanding Bostonians to sponsor the showing of the feature at Loew's State and Orpheum.

McBride Has Tibbetts as Aide at Boston State

BOSTON—Edward McBride, recently manager of Loew's State in Providence, this week officially took over managerial duties of Loew's State in Boston. James Tibbetts, formerly treasurer to Howard Burkhardt at the Orpheum, came into the State, Boston, as assistant to McBride, succeeding Edmund Howard, resigned.

Tom Foley, formerly of Loew's State here, has been appointed Loew's Orpheum assistant treasurer by Charles Kurtzman, division manager. Emil Weretelnyk, also of the Orpheum, has been made treasurer.

Plans for 800-Seater in Concord Await Approval

BOSTON—Plans for a new Colonial-type theatre in Concord have been readied for filing with the state public building department. Julius Meyers is the nominal head of the interests backing the project, set for completion early next fall. The proposed 800-seater, to be known as the Concord Theatre, will be the town's first regular motion picture house.

Week's Batch Passes

BOSTON—No film eliminations were reported last week as the Massachusetts bureau of Sunday censorship approved 38 motion pictures without a hitch.

Cut "This Thing" for Boston City Censor

BOSTON—John Spencer, Boston city censor, moved ahead last week in his recently announced campaign, first reported by this publication.

Spencer contacted local Loew's, Inc., authorities for an interview which resulted in minor deletions in "This Thing Called Love," held over at Loew's State and Orpheum.

The state censorship board gave "This Thing Called Love" a complete bill of health.

Spencer also moved against the Trans Lux, operated by Interstate Theatres Corp., ordering the management to stop distribution of a folder advertising this week's opening of "Virgin Bride" and "School for Husbands." Spencer also requested a special pre-release showing of the Danielle Darrieux feature, scheduled to open last Wednesday.

"The Virgin Bride," renamed French release, was not on the original list of motion pictures that Spencer recently distributed among local theatre operators demanding that he be notified in writing not less than four days before the proposed showing of any of them. A previous Danielle Darrieux vehicle, "Club des Femmes," was included in the order.

Spencer told this publication that his list of 34 motion pictures was largely drawn from Legion of Decency listings although he had added the names of several features from information gathered from National Board of Review reactions.

PROVIDENCE

"BUCK PRIVATES," paired with "Invisible Woman," at RKO-Albee drew such business Saturday that Manager George French had to run an extra late show of the feature to accommodate lobby standees unable to get inside for the last regular show.

Jack Simons, new manager at Loew's State, succeeding Edward H. McBride, shifted to Boston, busy making contracts and friends around town and finding he likes Providence.

Coincidence that the last program to be worked on by three of Albee's front-of-the-house staff due to go into the army next Monday, is "Buck Privates," subjecting the lads to some good-natured kidding.

Paramount, Newport, ran a midnight show February 21, with the entire proceeds to go to British War Relief.

M&P circuit planning enlarging the Strand, Newport. Increased seating capacity reported necessitated by large numbers of men now stationed in Newport's military establishments.

Manager Al Clarke of the Majestic going in for billboard displays in advance plugging of "Strawberry Blonde."

Will Appeal Judgment Accorded Adornos

MIDDLETOWN, CONN.—An appeal to the state supreme court will be made by the S&S Theatres, Inc., et al., and the Middletown Theatres, Inc., et al., in their $269,000 damage suit against Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Adorno, entered by Judge Ernest C. Simpson in the Adornos' favor.

Plaintiffs in the two cases, which were tried together, charged that Adorno had concealed knowledge of a lease he had obtained on a theatre in the Middletown Enterprises combination together with an offer to buy all the theatres involved.

Judge Simpson's judgment was entered in the superior clerk's office here last fortnight as the decision on the hearing held in November.

Community Theatre Group Incorporates in Hartford

HARTFORD—This city of 175,000 persons was one step nearer to having a community playhouse last week.

The Community Theatre Building Corp. of Hartford, Inc., incorporated without capital stock, has been formed to build a non-commercial theatre in Hartford for the legit productions, according to papers filed with the Secretary of State here.

If the corporation can raise $250,000 by public subscription, this city can take its place among many others which have provided non-commercial theatres. Officers of the corporation are: Cedric G. Thompson, president; Samuel Gold, treasurer; and Roswell Hawley, secretary.

Loew's Dollar Club Shows Greenway High in '40

BOSTON—Frederick R. Greenway, who this week left Loew's State in Boston to assume managership of the Palace in Hartford, led the United States last year in securing extra business for his theatre, Loew's Dollar Club summary reveals.

Special football shows counted largely for Greenway's jump on the field. Howard Burkhardt, manager of Loew's Orpheum in Boston, was high in the ratings.

Joseph A. DiPesa, veteran advertising manager for Loew's in Boston, led the country in securing full-page publicity breaks.

Guy Kibbee made a special personal appearance at the Capitol, Maine & New Hampshire Theatres Company house, for the unveiling.

Rising Business Index Keeps Trade Cheered

BOSTON—Theatre business in New England still is far below what experts think it should be, but optimism for the near future continues to run high. Employment and payrolls have not reached such high figures in this territory for years. The continued trend was shown by the present report of the Massachusetts planning board that Bay State industries in December hit the greatest industrial activity since the fall of 1929.

The Massachusetts planning board recorded the activity at 99.1 per cent, better than 10 per cent higher than December of a year ago. The biggest increase took place in new building, the total of which amounts to $26,912,000, exclusive of public works and public utilities. Industrial employment was up seven per cent compared with the previous December, electric power consumption gained 4.1 per cent, shoe production was up 9.4 per cent, and cotton textiles activity mounted 3.1 per cent.

"New orders received by Massachusetts factories during the month were 44 per cent larger," according to the Associated Industries report.

"Business in 1941 will be sustained at present high levels and, in most lines, at considerably higher levels. This will probably be true in 1942," the New England Council surmised, adding, "with the level of business activity in New England closing the year more than 10 per cent above the estimated numeral, it is apparent that in 1941 industrial production in this region will probably be larger than in any year in the past decade."

Hartford Plants Report New Employment High

HARTFORD—On February 1 employes in 82 Hartford county plants numbered 83,600, another new high, compared with 79,936 the month before, a gain of 3,664, or 4.5 per cent, the Manufacturers Ass'n of Hartford reports. On March 1, 1933, there were but 31,707 workers employed in the same plants, it is stated here.

Of the January gain, 2,789 were added at 43 Hartford plants, 586 at 27 New Britain plants, and 289 at 12 Bristol plants. The percentage gains were 5.8 per cent in Hartford to a 50,575 total, 2.8 per cent in New Britain to a 21,308 total, and 2.5 per cent in Bristol to a 11,717 total.

In the eight months since June 1, 1940 (the government started awarding defense contracts to industry on June 13), employment in Hartford county has increased 18,312 or 28.1 per cent, the association reports. Since a year ago, employment has increased 20,542 or 32.6 per cent.

As of February 1 employment in the county stood at 158.7 per cent of the accepted normal at the beginning of 1929, as compared with 151.8 per cent the month before and 119.7 per cent the year before. Man-hours stood at 141.2 per cent of this normal as against 133.5 per cent January 1 and 96.8 per cent February 1, 1940.

Sizeable Audiences Attracted in Boston

BOSTON—Sizeable audiences livened Boston first-run theatres last week with "Kitty Foyle" and "The Saint in Palm Springs," both in their record sixth week, still the main loop sensation. "This Thing Called Love," aided by complimentary reviews and strong word-of-mouth, climbed satisfactorily at the Orpheum and State and was a holdover. "Western Union" was big at the Metropolitan.

Eastern States Coliseum brought in "Ice Follies of 1941" for a week's run.

: Lewin Wonders Why :

BOSTON—"I sometimes wonder why I am now a producer," Albert Lewin, here in advance of "So Ends Our Night," told Harvard students last week.

The former professor of English at the University of Missouri said that he never had any idea of making pictures and that his mind was completely made up to a scholastic career.

"If any members of the Harvard Dramatic Club want to know how to become a film producer," Lewin said, "I shall certainly ask them why they want to."

Lewin, who graduated from New York University and then attended Harvard Graduate School, said that his first film job was as a reader for Sam Goldwyn. He went to M-G-M as a writer, and, later, became an associate producer. He picked as his favorite stars to work with, he said, Carole Lombard and Clark Gable.

Ehrlick Ballys "Fantasia"

BOSTON—Joe Ehrlick has resigned as manager of the Gayety in Boston, E. M. Loew house, to join the local publicity staff for "Fantasia." Ehrlick was assistant publicist at Keith's Memorial when Jack Goldstein, present local "Fantasia" advertising head, covered exploitation for that house. Egmont Frankel, formerly assistant at the Capitol in Lynn, has been appointed Gayety manager by Lou Richmond, E. M. Loew general manager.

Fine for Overcrowding

HARTFORD—Bernard M. Levy of this city was fined $20 and costs in the Hartford police court last Monday as manager of the local Proven Pictures Theatre for overcrowding of the theatre last Sunday afternoon.

Twice a Victim

HARTFORD—With its safe smashed and robbed of $100 several weeks ago, the Schulman's Webster Theatre here was victimized again last Monday night, when thieves took an undisclosed amount of money from a candy vending machine in the theatre.

Back to Regular Policy

NEW BRITAIN, CONN.—The local Capitol, after running daily showings of "Gone With the Wind" over a two-week period, has gone back to its regular policy of playing day and date with the other Warner theatres here, the Embassy and Strand. Joe Bornstein, manager of the Embassy, has been handling the Capitol.

Booking Departures Continue

BOSTON—More booking muddles for subsequent-run and suburban houses were added this week with the selling away of M-G-M's "Wild Man of Borneo" to the M&P Theatres Corp. for a first-run at the Metropolitan.

Selecting Child Fare Problem of Parents

MIDDLETOWN, CONN.—Prof. Ralph D. Pendleton of Wesleyan University, in announcing his "best 20 films of the past three years," asserts that the problem of selecting film fare suitable for children is a responsibility of parents.

His "20 best" list includes: "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," "Baker's Wife," "Fantasia," "Foreign Correspondent," "Gone With the Wind," "Grapes of Wrath," "Harvest," "The Letter," "The Long Voyage Home," "Ninotchka," "Of Mice and Men," "Our Town," "The Philadelphia Story," "Pinocchio," "Pride and Prejudice," "Rebecca," "Stagecoach," "Time in the Sun," "Night Train," and "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

'The movies," he says, "are, of course, far from what they might be; for they are only a half century old as a developing form of art. However, there is a significant gap between 'The Perils of Pauline' and 'Grapes of Wrath.' Already the movies are perhaps the principal vehicle of entertainment in America."

Represents Governor At "Sub" Launching

WAKEFIELD, N. H.—Ansel Sanborn, theatre chain operator in this section, who is winning honors thick and fast these days, has added another to his list.

In his official capacity as a member of the state executive council, he represented Gov. Robert O. Blood at the launching of the new submarine, U. S. S. Marlin, at the Portsmouth Navy Yard.

Films to Schools

BOSTON—The visual education department of the University of New Hampshire has announced that so-called educational films were viewed in New Hampshire schools last year by 72,976 pupils. Better than fifty per cent of the secondary schools in the White Mountain state, according to the same source, have film equipment.

16mm Film Draws

BOSTON—George Kraska, operator of the Fine Arts, has held a 16mm feature-length travelogue for a sixth consecutive week at the motion picture house where he has been projecting it with special equipment. The film is Pat Stanton's "Here Is Ireland."

Fishman Wrenches Leg

NEW HAVEN—Dr. J. B. Fishman of the Fishman circuit has been confined to his home with a wrenched leg ligament.

"Baa, Baa, Back Bay" To Be Unveiled

Boston—Meyer Marcus, assistant to M&P's publicity director, Henry Brown, is helping to write and produce "Baa, Baa, Back Bay," a new revue which was scheduled for unveiling February 20 at the Peabody Playhouse. The film district will be among the local spots to be satirized, it is understood.

: NEW HAMPSHIRE :

THE Strand in Manchester drew a throng of children by staging a big "Cartoon Show." Five cartoons were presented, in addition to the regular film program.

Uncle Bob and His Gang, from radio station WLAW in Lawrence, Mass., were a recent Saturday attraction on the Scenic stage in Rochester.

Further Sunday law changes are being sought in the Vermont legislature, which in 1939 amended the state's "blue laws" to permit charging admission on the Sabbath to shows, baseball games, lectures, etc. A movement has now been started to extend the Sunday privilege to include bowling, roller skating and dramatic presentations. Hotel men are also trying to liberalize their Sunday liquor laws.

Plays to Springfield

BOSTON—Drama returned to Springfield last week when the Playgoers League brought Flora Robson in "Ladies in Retirement" to the Court Square, regular E. M. Loew film house. Some 2,500 attended the matinee and evening performances on the first day, and announcements were forthcoming that such stars as Eddie Dowling, Julie Haydon, and the Lunts might hit Springfield stands. Tom Roberts handled the publicity.

Shaughnessy in Army

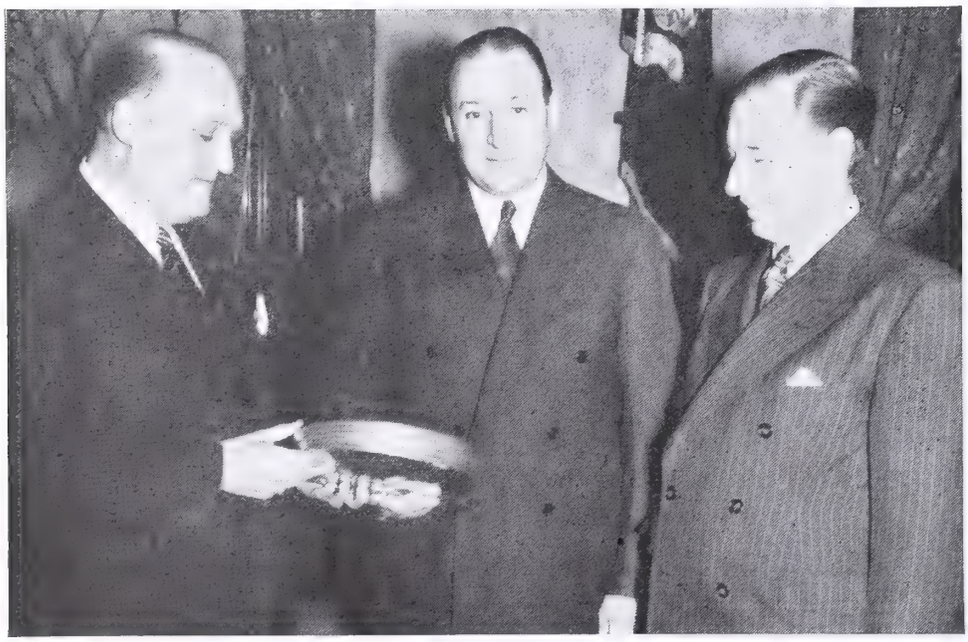
Signed for a "Tough Guy"

HOLLYWOOD—Gladys George and Barton MacLane have been signed by Universal for toplines in "Hit the Road," a "Little Tough Guys" feature to be directed by Joe May.

Legislative Avalanche Is Trade's Pervading Topic

NEW HAVEN—As Connecticut MPTO met Friday at Ceriani's with Arthur Lockwood in from Boston to preside, and Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut met at the Hof Brau Haus, with A. M. Schuman in the chair, exhibitor talk centered mainly on legislation in the state which might affect their interests as a group.

Discussion covered the two-men-in-a-booth bill S. B. 775, which had made a last-day appearance; S. B. 985, the Sullivan-filed bill in blank, which, it was feared had in mind taxation of amusements; several Bingo bills, several anti-copyright association bills, labor, horse racing and other measures. Exhibitors planned to be present at public hearings before the various committees.



In addition to bills already reported, several were filed at the deadline. H. B. 245 would amend Section 2321 of the General Statutes to exempt from inspection, safety and license regulations of motion pictures in this state, machines using only cellulose acetate film not more than 16mm in width, except when such machines shall be used for exhibition in theatres or public places of entertainment regularly used as such and to which an admission fee is charged, such places of entertainment not to include schools, Sunday schools, the Grange, club, church or lodge rooms. Formerly the exemption was for films not more than 100 feet long, one inch wide, requiring maximum of 500 watts to operate the arc, or 1,000 feet long, 1¼ inches wide, using inclosed incandescent lamp.

S. B. 1085-3-1, another bill levying a state franchise tax of 25 per cent of the gross receipts on copyright societies in this state and requiring licensing of such societies, has an additional provision that "any person, firm, association, or corporation who shall request the playing of any copyright musical number, in any public place, with intent and for the purpose of making such rendition a basis for an infringement suit against the proprietor thereof, or any person; or who shall without first obtaining the necessary license therefor attempt by threats of suit or other means either oral or in writing, to compel persons in this state to purchase licenses for the rendition of musical numbers, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor . . . and be liable to a fine of $500 for each offense.

H. B. 923 would appropriate $12,500 to a revolving visual education fund to be used by the state board of education to pay the ordinary recurring expenses and purchase necessary equipment for audio-visual education work.

Among the several Bingo bills is H. B. 436, which would limit the prize to be awarded to any one person or organization in any one week to an intrinsic value of $2.00.

H. B. 695-2-2 would authorize the park commission to permit amateur ball games, free concerts and music, and athletic sports on Sunday. A second new race or color discrimination bill appears in H. B. 1027, which imposes a fine for any such discrimination in hotels, motion picture theatres, and other public buildings.

For Gubernatorial Archives—

Show Shops Hold Firm Before Competition

NEW ORLEANS—There seemed to be no let up in the theatre business despite carnival balls and other social activities. "GWTW" closed a three-week return engagement at Loew's with attendance on a par with the first week, and many turned away on the closing night. "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" packed their grips and transferred from the Orpheum to the Liberty, another Mort Singer house, and did a nice business, while the Orpheum welcomed Ida Lupino in "High Sierra" with crowded houses. "Victory" kept the cashiers busy at the Saenger. "Little Nellie Kelly" reaped in the shekels at the Globe. The ten cent houses with double bills did fairly well. Underlined is "Philadelphia Story" at Loew's with prospects of excellent business.

"GWTW" Holds Lead in Average Dallas Week

DALLAS—A wind and dust storm here during mid-week took some of Elm Street's profit, however, the week was fair yet uneventful. "Gone With the Wind" continued to more than double the gross at the Palace for the second week and was held over at the Tower for a third and final seven days. The much-played "Jesse James" did an average at the Capitol.

One Night in Waco

WACO, TEX.—"The Man Who Came to Dinner" took over the stage of Waco Hall for a one-night stand.

Carolina Theatre Building Activity Seen Mounting

By PAULINE GRIFFITH

CHARLOTTE—Few of the industry outside of the Carolinas and many who reside within its boundaries, realize that there are 526 operating theatres in the two states, with a seating capacity of 246,695. Of this number of theatres 153 are circuit (or chain) operated, the remaining 373 (with no operation of more than five) are controlled by individuals.

The following additional houses are in the course of construction:

For North Carolina Theatres, Inc., (Wilby-Kincey) Lenoir, N. C. (Center to open March 3); Fayetteville, N. C.; Spartanburg, S. C.; Greenville, N. C. (all to open soon). For Alf Miller, Lincolnton, N. C., the Century. Morris Legendre, Legendre circuit, with eight operating in North and South Carolina, will open the Dixie at North Charleston, S. C., sometime in March. This theatre is located about six miles from Charleston proper and is adjacent to the Navy Yards.

Albert Sottile of the Pastime Amusement Company, who has controlled for many years, five theatres in Charleston, S. C., will construct another as soon as plans are completed. The property has been acquired. At Elkin, N. C., Louis Mitchell, who now has the Lyric, is to announce his opening date soon for his yet unnamed new house. There also is a report that there is to be another for this town which will make four.

Conover, N. C. is getting its first theatre with construction to start at once by George Carpenter and associates, who now operate in Valdese, Granite Falls and Madison, all in North Carolina. Ira Smith, operating the Breeze in Beaufort, S. C., has started his second. Mrs. W. A. Mitchell will open her first in Hazelwood, N. C., in early March. W. V. Brockman, who formerly had the Carolina, Allendale, S. C., will, after complete renovation reopen the Westminster of the same name in South Carolina, theatre having been closed for some time. Spartanburg, S. C., is to get a new colored house, details, however, are lacking.

Arbitration Hearing Is Delayed

New Orleans—Hearing date on the first case before the local motion picture arbitration tribunal is not expected to be before next month.

The complaint has been filed by Charles F. Woolner, owner of a drive-in theatre, against Paramount, charging the distributor with refusal to license product.

Arbitration Office in Dallas Ready to Act

DALLAS—Headquarters of the Motion Picture Tribunal, 802 Fidelity Building here, where arbitration cases will be heard under terms of the consent decree, are all ready for activity but so far no action is in immediate sight.

C. C. Williams, clerk of the Tribunal, has been on duty in the office for several weeks along with Miss Bonnie Newburn, office secretary for that body.

Williams declined to give out any information in advance of any case that may be filed. He said, however, that none has been filed up to this time. It is understood, however, that several exhibitors have taken forms on which to file cases.

Arbiters have been named for this territory, but Williams said he was not at liberty to give their names at this time.

R&R Affiliates Open Mineral Wells House

MINERAL WELLS, TEX.—The new Ritz was opened here Wednesday night by the Resort Amusement Company which includes Mack Dunn, J. W. Courtney and an affiliation with the Robb & Rowley-United circuit with headquarters in Dallas.

Within the next few days another new house will be opened here. It will seat 1,000, and is being constructed by Phil Isley of Dallas.

Atlanta Jumps Into Lead In Ned Depinet Drive

ATLANTA—The local RKO exchange, headed by H. M. Lyons, leads all branches in the United States and Canada in the second week of the Ned Depinet Drive. The next four branches, in the order of their standing, are: Buffalo, E. Lux, manager; Boston, R. C. Cropper, manager; Philadelphia, C. Zagrans, manager, and Washington, R. J. Folliard, manager.

Jenkins Divisional Head For Greek War Relief

ATLANTA—William K. Jenkins has been appointed division chairman of the amusement industry for the Greek War Relief Fund. Jenkins is a member of the firm of Lucas & Jenkins, operators of a large group of Georgia theatres.

Roy M. Avey, manager of Metro's Atlanta branch, has been named co-chairman for this territory for distributors.

These appointments were announced by Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board of directors of Paramount Pictures, Inc., and who is chairman for the entire motion picture industry war relief effort.

Production Advisory Board Is Proposed

DALLAS—Urging closer cooperation between exhibitor and producer, Richard A. Rowland proposed a board be formed of 12 exhibitors representing all parts of the country to work with producers along lines of public tastes, in a short address at the Variety Club luncheon.

Such a plan, he said, has been close to his heart for many years. He came to Dallas for a special trade screening of his new picture, "Cheers for Miss Bishop," which was shown during the morning at the Tower. After a visit to all United Artists exchange centers, with Dallas his last stop, the producer returned to Hollywood Monday.

The exhibitor board, suggested by Rowland, would work hand in hand with producers who would learn from the board just what types of stories the public wants. The producers, he said, would then endeavor to lay their plans along these lines. In making a picture, the story, in his opinion, is the primary consideration and should be considered ahead of stars, director, producer, writers or production, he said.

Jones and Youngblood Plan San Angelo House

SAN ANGELO, TEX.—Construction of a seventh theatre here and remodeling of the Rex for vaudeville are latest expansion moves announced here by John D. Jones and H. L. Youngblood, of Concho Theatres, Inc., affiliates of the Robb & Rowley circuit. These new theatre moves are inspired by national defense activities here which takes in training of additional soldiers and construction payrolls.

Vaudeville was last seen here during the Ranger and Eastland oil booms of years ago with these towns affording a circuit that Jones brought into San Angelo, the stand then being the old Crystal long since closed. Now with army centers at Brownwood, Mineral Wells, Abilene, Corpus and other places, the same sort of circuit is in the process of forming.

The Rex, located at 121 N. Chadbourne, is already equipped with a large stage and dressing rooms. Its remodeling, however, will start within the next few days. Location of the new theatre is still undetermined but preliminary plans call for around 400 seats and expenditure of about $12,000.

Crescent Plans Revamp Job in Clarksville

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.—Crescent Amusement Co. is having the local architectural firm of Speight & Hibbs prepare plans for remodeling the old Lillian Theatre at Franklin and First Street, purchased by its present owners three years ago from Goldberg Amusement Co.

Besides new interior seating and decorations, a new front and marquee will be built and complete new equipment installed.

Concerning Florida

By A. JULES BENEDIC

MIAMI—As we pilot the Plymouth over the Tamiami trail, and meander into Miami, conviction grows that our fellow-columnist, one W. Winchell, hit the nail on the head when he said this Florida metropolis is the "hot-spot" of the nation.

BENEDIC

Our Plymouth is piloting perfectly, by the way, but the word "our" is used advisedly, as the instant trip is under the auspices and through the courtesy of the First National Bank, a sound institution in Kansas City, with assets running into the millions. (This is free, as we may be around in the early summer for a loan.)

Theatres in Miami and environs are numerous enough, to be sure, but not so plentiful as hotels and nite-spots, with entertainment carried to the nth degree; even the hamburger joints giving you a song and dance along with a dime slice of a steer that never saw Texas. Taking up these matters ad seratim, an insight into the food situation, for example, is given by a little old lady who runs an eating joint out near our modest menage in 34th street, NW:

Plethora of "Ham an'" Joints

"I got a respectable place with no jukes or nothing, mister," she says, "and I'm getting along fine until six other joints put in near me. One of these places has an open-air stage, an emcee and a coupl'a girls who claim they once sang over the radio in Waterloo. Maybe folks out in Iowa is easier to please; at any rate, the singing gets on the nerves of my patrons, who come here to eat."

Investigation reveals some 3,000 licenses issued to restaurant keepers, cafes, roadside joints and the like. With competition keen, the local purveyors are copying Club Bali, Club Esquire and like swankier spots, and giving girls along with the giggle-soup and sandwiches. Indeed, a walk along Seventh avenue, in the semi-suburban section, showed three sandwich salons with al fresco setups similar to med shows, with entertainment on a par with the "more medicine, doctor!" stooges.

Maybe there aren't 3,000 hotels in Miami, the Beach and the like, but the figure seems close to that, and in this connection, Frank Rogers tells a screamingly funny story about one of the hotels, which, just recently, counted 18 guests and 250 employes. Not that some of the places are doing good business; you either have it or haven't it, in this man's town, and the visitors are plentiful, with a longer season in prospect. It's just simply that, particularly at the Beach, they are killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

What we started to talk about was the theatrical situation, which is summed up by George Hoover, city manager for Paramount, as follows:

"Defense industries may be keeping the folks at home a little later than in past years, but we feel that the present Miami season will be longer than usual and, in the final analysis, as good as last year, which was a good year. Then, too, the latter half of February is registering substantial gains in visitors over a similar period in January."

A like opinion was given by W. A. Klements of Wometco, controlling, like Paramount, about a score of theatres in the Greater Miami area. Mr. Klements sees business getting better as the season progresses.

Not Rosy to Rogers

Frank Rogers, authoritative Sparks spokesman, in speaking of theatre business over Florida, excluding Miami, where the Sparks interests do not operate, sees figures off from last year, especially in the St. Pete and Tampa areas. He agrees with others that the expected "killing" for the 1941 season will fail to materialize, that is, for any line of business over the state.

We enter the Edison, a suburban operation run by John Cunningham, our one-time M-G-M side-kick, and his partner, Charles K. Hollander. Both tell us of the new operation in Fort Lauderdale, the Warner Theatre, which they plan to open approximately April 22. It's a $65,000 investment, John says, and will be ultra-modern in every respect.

We piroutte to the Parkway, an Aaron Courshon operation which recently added new seats and other improvements, and find Sol M. Taplan in the pilot's seat . . . Numerous trips to the Tivoli fail to locate Charlie Walder, a mighty busy man, apparently . . . At the Drive-In we renew acquaintance with Ira Loew, brother of E. M. Loew, the Boston circuit operator. The latter was due in for an extended Miami visit, we learn. Ira's mighty busy now with preparations for his third anniversary celebration, to last for a week. The millionth car entering the drive-in, incidentally, will be presented with an engraved plaque good for free admission for a year. The Drive-In soon will world-premiere an arctic exploration picture, with Lieut. Earl Rossman in personal appearances. Rossman for years was an aide to Sir Hubert Wilkins, polar explorer, and was also royal photographer for Haile Selassie.

Upstage Antics At Boca Raton

Eliminating a planned visit to Key West, we bump to Boca Raton, site of a club that occupies acres of ground and is assessed at $13,000,000, and, recovering somewhat from the surrounding grandeur, meet W. T. Keenan, who has the film booking in charge for one of the most unique theatres in the world. In the spacious block-long club that is really a glorified hotel, we are ushered into an auditorium where selected pictures are shown tri-weekly during the season, at no charge to the guests. There are two separate mechanical set-ups, with the second projecting the same films in the open-air for the benefit of employes. Only a few outstanding hits are picked from the producers, the club paying about three times a normal price for selectivity. Membership fees in this millionaires' paradise range from $5,000 up, we understand, and we confided to Mr. Keenan that we intend later to spend at least a weekend here on a guest card, or as soon as we prepare the K. C. counting-room against the resultant expense account shock.

We clip to Clewiston and once-over the new Cinema Dixie Crystal, pride of the Okeechobee area, and brainchild of Mary Hayes Davis, veteran theatre woman who holds forth here, at Venice, and at Moore Haven and LaBelle. Mrs. Davis is justly proud of the new theatre, which is billed to open approximately March 1. The building is architected by C. A. Cone of West Palm Beach and the contractor is Earl Anderson of Fort Myers.

Quartet for Fort Myers

Thoughts while filming the flora and fauna of Florida: Fort Myers should be plentifully supplied with theatres soon, what with the opening May 1 of Sparks' Edison, honoring Thomas A. Edison; its present two Sparks houses and the new house that will be erected by Messrs. Jack and Copeland of the Warner Bros. setup . . . Slipping into Sarasota, home of Ringling Circus, Bill Hart, Sparks pilot, says the third house here will be named the Art . . . Mr. Desquin of the Punta Gorda setup likes bowling alleys; he owns a half dozen of 'em! . . . Slamming into Sebring reminded us of the time when "Uncle Charlie" Morrison, now a Sparks' pilot at Gainesville, owned the setup.

Even in the drug stores, they gamble at Miami . . . H. G. Culbreth of the Gilbert at Okeechobee combines the theatre with a flourishing Chevrolet setup . . . Watch for a photo of Freddy Case and his canine friend, Pal, real soon. Both live at Pompano . . . Speaking of Pompano recalls the marvelous change in this east-coaster since our last visit. Now they have a swanky tavern set up on the beach, with a $1.25 table de hote that draws tourists like flies . . . As we effervesce through the Everglades, we run across a number of Seminole villages, at present unoccupied. Inquiry reveals that the Indians who formerly occupied the joints have moved into houses with modern plumbing, etc. The tourist business has been good, recently, it seems.

Ran across the track of C. O. Jeffers, the Alexander Film man, but didn't meet him . . . R. R. Bair, former Indianapolis circuit owner, now living the life of Riley at Fort Lauderdale . . . John L. Pope of the New Theatre at Lake Placid has one of the smallest towns and smallest theatres in the State; treat him right on film prices, boys! . . . Oranges so plentiful the growers invite you to step inside and pick a few! . . . Speaking of oranges recalls that in all our travels we never did see them picked by good-looking gals in muchly abbreviated overalls, as depicted by the Florida State Chamber of Commerce. We noted an individual picking oranges in one grove and headed the car that way. Investigation revealed he was a Mexican named Jesus Morales, and would never take a prize at any beauty show.

Martin Chain Undertakes To Build Seven Houses

COLUMBUS, GA.—An extensive construction campaign that will add seven new theatres during the year has been undertaken by the Martin Theatres chain, operating in Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

Under construction at the present time are four houses: A 1,000-seater in Milledgeville, Ga., to be named the Co-Ed; a 900-seater in Valdosta, Ga.; a theatre to seat 1,050 in Roanoke, Ala., and a de-luxer, to seat 1,350, in Childersburg, Ala.

Proposed building has been set for Lake City, Fla., where the circuit has purchased a lot and plans a 1,250-seat house; for Dothan, Ala., where a 2,000-seater is planned, and for Americus, Ga., where a lot has been acquired for an 1,800-seat house.

During 1940 Martin Theatres built six houses and remodeled three. The new houses were erected in Carrollton, Canton, Valdosta, Andalusia, Douglas and Perry. A policy of the chain is to have two houses in every town of over 4,000 population—one a large house for all-week operation and the other smaller, and operated on weekends.

British Aid Premiere In Dallas March 8

DALLAS—Likely to be one of the biggest events of the year, is the coming premiere for Britain scheduled March 8 in Fair Park Auditorium presenting a "gigantic" stage and screen show. It will also be the southwestern premiere of "The Hard-Boiled Canary," and Paramount is sending its stars, Allan Jones, Susanna Foster and others, for personal appearances. The Dallas Symphony orchestra will be part of the show.

Interstate Theatres are cooperating in the sale of tickets for the big show, prices being $2.00 matinee and $2.50 at night. Sales of tickets in blocks as high as 100 each, are reported. The Fair Park engagement is in charge of British War Relief offices here at 1601 Commerce and at Knox and McKinney.

Tennessee Legislature Thanks Tony Sudekum

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The Tennessee legislature, which concluded its biennial session Saturday, by resolution thanked Tony Sudekum, president of the Crescent Amusement Co. for loan of films during the past two years for use in the state penitentiary and other state institutions. No laws were passed by the session affecting operation of theatres in the state.

Plan Ice Rink

DALLAS—Ice Sports, Inc., a proposed $150,000 corporation, is in process of organization here with Clarence E. Linz at the helm. The new company intends to operate a large rink, 100x200 feet, to be located in the Live Stock Arena at Fair Park and ready by June. Seats will be provided for 7,500 and there will be a tea room, cafe, soft drink bar and lounge in connection.

INFORMATION here is that C. C. Dues and W. H. M. Watson will open the Mission in El Paso around March 1 . . . H. R. White is the new operator of the White at Celeste. He is a son-in-law of E. L. Black, well-known former exhibitor. The Celeste show was opened last year by R. E. Blevins.

Chester "Chet" Humphries, owner of the Log Cabin in Oklahoma City, the Ritz at Britton and the Pix at Wewoka, was here during the week with Homer Gimlin, his manager and associate in Wewoka. Gimlin recently sold his interest in the State at Altus to his partner, M. R. Allen, before going with Humphries.

Dick Potter jr., the handsome young son of R. J. "Dick" Potter, booker for the U. S. Army Motion Picture Service, was down on Harwood Street the other day with his father meeting new and old friends. The son is a student at Woodrow High and finishes next year.

E. S. Olsmith, Universal manager, arrived early in the week from Chicago where he attended the company's national sales convention. Another conventioneer was A. G. "Smitty" Smith, National Theatre Supply Co. manager, who was in New York for that organization's annual sales confab.

A. H. Truitt, owner of the Star at Amarillo and his assistant manager, Roy DeVinney, were here for booking purposes Tuesday. Truitt said all the trees in his town which went down early this winter under tons of ice, haven't put on any new branches as yet . . . W. H. Frye of Forney, who recently sold the Star there to Mrs. Laura Travis, was here Monday.

Corp. J. W. Bates, Company F, 144th Infantry, Camp Bowie, Brownwood, Tex., was on the Row in uniform on short leave. Before going to camp he worked for the Buddy Harris Poster exchange . . . C. V. Caver, owner of the Rita here, has been a flu victim three times in one season. On the Row Monday along with an associate, J. Preston Tate of Comanche, Caver was feeling almost up to par.

Ed Dorbandt, co-owner of the Dixie and Liberty at Athens, among visiting bookers. The last representative of the Athens shows here was Will Dorbandt, Ed's brother, who was in town about two weeks ago. It seems they take turns on visiting the exchanges.

Ben Golding of the Rex and Texas in Amarillo was here on a booking trip. Besides his theatres, Ben is custodian of fishing and entertainment rights on a government lake in the Amarillo area.

M. K. McDaniel of the Lamar at LeMarque, O. T. McGinley of the Ritz at McGregor, and B. F. Fordtran, Alamo in Bellville, were among the week's visiting showmen.

R. W. Bandy, the 20th-Fox ad sales manager, has resigned to enter the insurance business and Wayne Love moves up in the department to succeed him. In turn, C. B. Alexander succeeds Love.

Indes Catch Spirit Of Theatre Spurts

Sebring, Fla.—Even the small town indes are catching the spirit of this theatre-building wave inundating Florida.

Sebring in summer has a population of 2,000, with a few hundreds of winter visitors. Heretofore boasting of but a single theatre—the Circle—operated by the Floyd-Stein interests, now it seems, unless present plans are changed, the town will have four; three devoted to white, one to colored patronage.

Circuit owners of the Circle have announced a new theatre, the Florida, construction on which was to have begun this week. In the meantime, C. F. Schroeder and A. William "Bill" Jones, are putting finishing touches on the Sebring, due to open in early March. It will seat up to 500. Schroeder is a local lumberman; Jones a former "legit" actor, with experience also in films.

Schroeder and Jones recently reopened the Palm in the Negro quarter, a house formerly known as the Lincoln.

MIAMI

SPECIAL events for every night of the week are marking the seven day birthday celebration now being staged by the huge Miami Drive-In Theatre. Interest concentrates on the Tuesday evening show which will mark the day on which this world's largest outdoor theatre was opened to the public in 1938. E. M. Loew is down from Boston for the celebration and is advising his brother, Ira Loew, district manager for the Loew interests, on matters pertaining to the anniversary week programs.

A personal birthday anniversary of outstanding interest is being celebrated by Al Weiss jr., youngest veteran theatreman in the area. Young Carolyn Lee is assisting in this celebration when she makes her first personal appearance there as "Virginia" opens at this big Flagler Street house.

Prominent parts in Hollywood's annual fete, its Fiesta Tropical, February 28, are being played by both the Florida Theatre and its manager, Paul Robinson. Voting for fiesta king is being concluded this week with announcement of the king and his introduction of his queen taking place at a special midnight show Friday. Candidates for members of the queen's court will appear on the Florida stage with three to be selected from the high 12.

NELSON CLAYBAUGH, co-owner of the Penn Theatre here, was a consistent spectator at the Golden Gloves bouts . . . Chuck Ferris and Bob Busch had a good opening of their new Uptown at 12th and Hudson last week. Ferris is operator and Busch manager of the new neighborhood house.

The State Theatre is now using more and more spot announcement radio advertising over KOCY as Manager Bob Pfotenhauer states after checking up, it was found that the spot announcements very definitely pulled business to the theatre's boxoffice.

Work is expected to begin soon on Tulsa's newest suburban theatre, The Pines, to be operated by Griffith-Southwestern Theatres, Inc. Mrs. Joseph Strobel owns the property and will erect the building on terms of a long lease with the company. Griffith is understood considering building a drive-in at Tulsa on Highway 66 near the ball park there.

Construction of the crypt and garden at the Will Rogers Memorial, Claremore, where the body of the humorist-actor will eventually lie, has moved well past the preliminary stage.

Paul Jones of Standard Theatres had his picture taken last week . . . We'd like to go calling on Mr. Stribling at the Rialto oftener but that stairway leading up to his office is too much for our girth; neither yours truly nor Morris Loewenstein could manage it. Dunno about Morris though . . . he manages to get around pretty well in that "spacious" office of his.

L. C. Griffith, chief barker of Tent 22 here of the Variety Clubs of America, issued a bulletin to all members last week pointing out that the national convention is scheduled for Charlotte, N. C., March 10, and urged that all members of the state organization attend.

There are several "bees" buzzing around on new theatres for Oklahoma City this spring. One involves Standard, with much pow-wowing reportedly going on between Standard's men and a local banker over a spot at Southwest 29th and Walker for a very nice new house to supplement Standard's Circle. Right now the deal is cool due to speculation on what's happened to Lewis Barton's proposed Redskin a few blocks down the street. The latter has basement dug and materials on the property but has been that way for months.

Warner Bros. Acquire $25,000 in War Bonds

TORONTO—Warner Bros., through its Canadian company, Vitagraph, Ltd., has made a purchase of Canadian war bonds to the value of $25,000 which have been offered by the Dominion government in recent months. They are of the non-interest bearing type, which means that no income is derived by bondholders and are intended for purchasers who desire to place money at the disposal of the government without interest.

This is in line with the proposal that the eight major producing companies of the United States should invest in the next Canadian war loan which is to be floated in June, the suggestion having been thrown out that each of the big companies should take a block of at least $100,000 worth of the new bonds which are expected to provide 3⅛ per cent interest, apart from the profit which may accrue to the extent of 10 per cent by reason of the rate of exchange in favor of U. S. funds.

It has been suggested that it would be good business for the U. S. film industry to invest in the next Canadian loan because of the fact that an average of $6,000,000 per year is taken from the country by the U. S. companies, this amount being surplus revenue from Canadian rentals. In several other parts of the British Empire, including Great Britain, only 50 per cent of such revenue can be exported because of exchange conditions during the war.

Warner anticipated the war loan proposal by taking $25,000 worth of the non-interest bonds as a gesture of goodwill.

Independent Cooperative Circuit Takes Shape

TORONTO—The organization of Consolidated Theatres Ass'n, a co-operative circuit of independent theatres in Ontario, has been completed and the officers of the group have been announced as follows:

Morris Weiss of the Colony, Toronto, president; Barney Goldhar, Paramount Theatre, vice-president; Gus Solway, Bloordale, treasurer, and Harry Romberg, Metro Theatre, secretary. The general manager is Harry S. Dahn, who was formerly an executive of Famous Players Canadian Corp.

In addition to a group of theatres in Toronto, the association has lined up a number of out-of-town exhibitors in Ontario, the latest being the Alexander at Wallaceburg, owned by Tony Allevato, and the Kingsway of Islington, the proprietor of which is L. E. Farrow.

Amateur Night Draws

EDMONTON—Amateur night at the Princess, newly organized under the management of Fred Tickwell, is proving especially attractive to patrons, the manager reports.

Odeon Dominion 'Invasion' Launched in Vancouver

VANCOUVER—The "invasion" of the Dominion by the Odeon Theatres chain of England has been launched here with the acquisition of four local theatres in a move admittedly the beginning of coast-to-coast expansion.

The entry was made via Odeon Theatres of Canada in securing the nearly completed Vogue, the Plaza, Paradise and Dunbar. Negotiations are said to be in progress for the Rio, Fraser and Kingsway.

William J. Long, supervisor in British Columbia for Odeon Theatres in Canada, confirmed the plan to acquire a string of houses from coast to coast. The company, he said, will take over a theatre in every city or town of any importance in British Columbia. Where theatres are not available or suitable for purchase, it will build houses, he said.

Although closely allied to the British corporation of the same name, the Canadian firm is controlled entirely by Canadian interest, according to Long.

The Odeon executive formerly was connected in the Edmonton theatrical business, and is known throughout the Dominion industry. J. Howard Boothe, local independent exhibitor, will be associated with Long in an executive capacity.

Jack L. Hunter Heads Toronto Film Board

Toronto—Jack L. Hunter, veteran Ontario branch manager of Paramount Film Service, Ltd., is president of the Toronto film board of trade for 1941, it has been announced. The annual elections resulted in the selection of T. J. Gould, Toronto branch manager of Regal Films, Ltd., as vice-president, and E. H. Wells as permanent secretary.

The committee comprises Frank H. Fisher, of the office of Empire-Universal-Films, Ltd.; H. J. Bailey of 20th Century-Fox Corp., Ltd., and M. Plottel of RKO Distributing Corp. of Canada, Ltd.

"GWTW" Leads "NWMP" As Dominion's Favorite

TORONTO—According to a fan poll conducted by a Toronto daily newspaper, the most popular feature in the Dominion during 1940 was "Gone With the Wind," which was appreciably above the next choice, "North West Mounted Police." Film fans were invited to make their own listings of pictures up to 10 in number and there were only 92 ballots which did not include "Wind."

Close behind "North West Mounted Police" for third place was "Rebecca" and next in order were the following: "Foreign Correspondent," "The Mortal Storm," "Waterloo Bridge," "All This, and Heaven Too," "Boom Town," "Northwest Passage" and "Our Town." This voting completes the cycle of "best" pictures for 1940 to be compiled by Toronto publications, the previous selections having been made by exhibitors and also by compilations of box-office records.

The fan popularity vote does not include a number of pictures which have been nominated for Academy awards because they had not yet played in Canadian situations, these including "The Letter," "Kitty Foyle," "The Long Voyage Home" and "The Philadelphia Story," while "The Great Dictator" had appeared on the screen of only two theatres in Canada during 1940 and both of these were outside of Toronto.

For the Canadian fan vote, prizes were offered in cooperation with the newspaper by Famous Players Canadian Corp., Toronto Loew's and the Uptown and Imperial Theatres, 24 contestants being rewarded with prizes.

At the Chicago Convention—

TORONTO

IN TORONTO over last weekend for patriotic purposes were Gracie Allen and George Burns, who ripped things loose at Massey Music Hall, and Walter Huston, native of the city, who was giving a portrayal of Abraham Lincoln to help Canada's war endeavors . . . The officers and employes of Paramount Film Service, Ltd., have been organized 100 per cent in pledges to invest a percentage of their salaries in government war certificates until the end of the war, according to Jack Hunter, Ontario branch manager.

Airman R. Rathbone, son of Basil Rathbone, screen actor, who has been training with the Royal Canadian Air Force at Windsor, Ont., passed through Toronto on his way to an air station in western Canada. Richard Barron of the Grand, Calgary, has reported at the No. 1 Eglinton Training Depot, Toronto, as a start in his course to become a war pilot. He is the son of J. B. Barron, a Calgary exhibitor for many years . . . In answer to the question, put to several officials on Toronto's Filmrow, as to why there were not many out-of-town exhibitors doing the rounds, the answers summed up to the following: "They are too busy making money." That may be only one side of the story.

Harry J. Allen, general manager of Grand National Films, Ltd., returned to Toronto from a business trip to Montreal and reported that no further developments had taken place for Canadian distribution of the product of Producers Releasing Corp. . . . H. C. D. Main, general supervisor of Hanson Theatres Corp., made a tour of inspection of theatres of the circuit in the Niagara district, picking a rainy spell for the drive . . . Harry S. Dahn, general manager of Consolidated Theatres Ass'n, Toronto, is elated over the news that he has become a grandfather, a son having been born to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dahn of Montreal. Gordon is the manager of the York in that city.

Joe Holliday, former manager of the Circle in North Toronto, has joined the war industrial sphere and is now helping to turn out fighting airplanes at the De-Havilland plant. Lieut. Don Cooper, son of Col. John A. Cooper, chairman of the motion Picture Distributors Ass'n, has gained his promotion in the field. Serving with the Royal Canadian Artillery somewhere across the Atlantic, he has been promoted to the rank of captain . . . Leo M. Devaney, general manager of RKO Distributing Corp. of Canada, Ltd., returned to Toronto headquarters for a temporary stay after having made a tour of offices in the United States as captain of the Ned Depinet sales drive which will be in full swing for a number of weeks.

Claire Hague, Canadian Universal representative, General Manager Alf Perry of Empire-Universal Films and Vice-President Paul Nathanson of the same company, attended the annual convention of Universal in Chicago. O. R. Hanson, president of several big companies in Toronto, has been away on a vacation following his business tour of the western provinces . . . Jake Miles, president of Western Theatres, Ltd., Winnipeg, passed through Toronto on his way to Florida for a winter holiday. Western Theatres are affiliated with Famous Players Canadian Corp.

President A. J. Laurie of Esquire Films, Ltd., Toronto, has timed the Canadian release of "It's on Ice," British feature starring George Formby, to coincide with the start of the National Hockey League playoffs late in March, the theme of the picture being hockey . . . Lester Montgomery at the Toronto Casino has received commendation for the patriotic pageant he staged during the past week to boost the government's war certificate compaign. He had a line of girls wearing large replicas of war savings stamps and, for a finale, a parade of the flags of the Allies including the United States.

James I. Foy, general manager of Sovereign Film Distributors, has returned to Toronto headoffice after inspecting the company branches as far west as Vancouver . . . Some distraction was caused during the performance of "This Thing Called Love" at the big Imperial, Toronto, when Louis Simon, age 67, died suddenly of a heart attack. A prominent manufacturer, he was accompanied to the theatre by his wife and son . . . George Robinson, a sound engineer of General Theatre Supply Co., Ltd., Toronto, has resigned to join the colors, having become a member of the Royal Canadian Air Force in which his technical training will be particularly appropriate.

Sam Firestone, proprietor of the Aster and Esquire, Toronto, has paid $27,500 for the Mayfair on Jane Street, the block including two stores. The vendor was Abraham Polakoff, a popular exhibitor for many years . . . Charlie Stephenson, wide-awake manager of the Century at Kitchener, Ont., advises BOXOFFICE that all 14 of his staff have signed pledges to make regular purchases of war savings stamps as their bit in helping to finance the war.

Wolfe Cohen, district manager of Warner Bros., arranged a private screening of the British picture, "Christmas Under Fire," for Mrs. D. W. Melhuish, an English refugee widow, and other members of the family, because her grandson appeared in an important bit as a soloist of the King's College Chapel Choir. Gross rentals of the film are being turned over to British war relief . . . When he was in Toronto, Richard A. Rowland, film producer, revealed he has completed preparations for the making of a feature dealing with English family life in the war which will include the evacuation from Dunkirk. Rowland, who came for a special screening of "Cheers for Miss Bishop," was given a welcome by Mayor Conboy.

Jules Wolfe has been kept busy at the headoffice of Bloom & Fine Theatres, Toronto, in lining up the pledges for war savings stamps from all employes of the chain, many of whom will receive a percentage of stamps instead of cash in their weekly pay envelopes . . . Syd Taube, pioneer film man of Toronto, and Mrs. Taube continue to have an enjoyable holiday in Hollywood where they have been meeting many former Canadians . . . H. J. Allaster, who has spent a lifetime in theatres and is a member of the Canadian Picture Pioneers, has been elected president of Local 105 at London, Ont., of the IATSE and Motion Picture Operators' Union.

497 Films Pass Before Censor

Toronto—Figures for the past calendar year, recently compiled, show that the Ontario film censor board viewed 455 features from the United States during the 12 months and 42 feature-length pictures from the United Kingdom, for a total of 497. During the previous year the board examined 654 features but many of these were of French and other foreign origin, the number of which has fallen off considerably because of the war difficulties.

The totals for 1941 reveal that 91½ per cent of English-language features are produced in the United States. The percentage of British features has increased slightly because of the output of pictures dealing with phases of the war, including semi-official films.

The Irish Maintain Strict Neutrality

Montreal — Irish film distributors are confronted with severe censorship.

No newsreel may contain pictures of the rulers of any belligerent nation or their flags or politicians.

No British propaganda or patriotic films can be shown any more than can similar pictures from Germany or Italy.

Illustrating the inflexibility of the censors was the order to cut out momentary appearances of Sir Kingsley Wood and President Roosevelt in different newsreels, and a 12-inch cut in another reel because it showed a Union Jack on a ship in the background of a shot of liners in New York harbor.

Complain of Cut Rates At Fingold Theatres

TORONTO—A trade problem has developed in connection with the operation of two theatres in small towns of western Ontario allegedly with the offer of bargain shows and heavy programs, the situation having come to the official attention of the industry's heads in Toronto.

The two theatres, which are owned by S. Fingold, are the Roxy at Chesley and the Roxy at Mount Forest. At one of these houses particularly, it is charged, the policy has been adopted of admitting two persons for the price of one ticket during the first half of the week and of presenting three features and one short during the last three days, with one show each night starting at 7:30. The nearest opposition for the Chesley Theatre is the Paramount, an independent house at Hanover, 28 miles away. The stand has been taken that the procedure is unnecessary.

MONTREAL

ROMANCE has once again centered on Filmrow, Cupid's dart striking popular Helen Druxerman of Columbia who was the recipient of a presentation on the eve of her departure to be married. Miss Druxerman was entertained at a tea attended by all the Filmrow girls and by executives of the distributors and of Consolidated Theatres and United Amusement Corp. A special screening was given in her honor. Her successor at Columbia is her sister, Ethel, formerly of Grand National.

John Grierson is scheduled to speak on "Propaganda" before Montreal Canadian Club. Grierson is Canada's national film commissioner and was famed on the other side of the Atlantic as a pioneer of the documentary film. He is a Scotsman . . . News brought from Paris by a girl refugee says there is no real night life there now, but theatres are doing fairly well. Yvonne Primtemps is drawing about $750 a week at the Michodiere and the "Folies Bergere" is paying salaries up to $1,000. Midnight is curfew hour.

France Film Co. has laid an accusation against the former manager of the Beaubien, Georges Emile Perreault, charging him with theft of $267. He pleaded not guilty before Judge Amedee Monet and was remanded on $500 bail . . . Sympathy is being expressed with A. Adilson, proprietor of the Roxy, Ste. Agathe, whose mother died recently . . . Complete coverage of the Victory Mass, celebrated in historic Notre Dame, Montreal, required the attendance of over 20 technicians from Associated Screen News.

Filmrow learned with regret of the sudden demise of George Munro, shipper for many years at United Artists, who dropped dead. His successor is Harry Dolman, formerly with Grand National and Warner Bros. . . . Ike Sourkes, formerly with Warner and Grand National, has joined Empire-Universal as salesman . . . Larry Druxerman, salesman for Empire-Universal, will go west for the same concern.

Ross Beesley and Roy Tash of Associated Screen News covered the visit of J. A. D. MacCurdy to an airplane factory and to the Uplands Service Flying School. He was the first pilot to fly a plane in the British Empire over 30 years ago. Recently he was named purchasing agent for the aircraft construction branch of the department of munitions and supply. Tash also filmed the RCAF bombing and gunnery school in operation, and Beesley, with Bob Martin, covered the visit of the governor-general to a Montreal munitions plant . . . Tourist stills for ASN are being taken at Quebec by Charles Wilkinson.

"This Is England," a British documentary, has been acquired by a United States company for distribution in Canada and the United States, and also in Latin America. The film, according to the BBC, "gives a view of the damage done in Britain by indiscriminate bombing, and the efforts made in British factories to enable the British defenders to hit back" . . . Albert E. Glazer, former district manager and engineer-in-charge of Premier Operating Corp. theatres at Tillsonburg, Ont., had the job of flying a picture to Camp Borden to entertain the airmen, and liked what he saw so well that he joined the air force. He is attached to the signals (radio) division. The picture he flew in to camp was "The Lion Has Wings."

Helen Mencken, American actress, called on Mayor Adhemar Raynault and recalled incidents in her marriage to former Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York, who, she said, never wanted to be mayor, but an actor. She told Raynault that Jimmy is in line for a job as censor of motion pictures, assisting the czar of the industry, Will Hays.

Eugene Maynard, manager of the Savoy and the Outremont, arranged a good drawing event when he brought to the Outremont "Ken Soble's Good Humor Contest" winners, with Doug Romaine as master of ceremonies . . . Bob Edge, famous angler, showed 1,600 feet of Technicolor film of the battle of fishermen against finny monsters of the deep at the annual gathering of the Anglers' Ass'n of Montreal.

Filmrow Bowling League is witnessing some exciting contests. United Amusement leads for the moment, with Consolidated Theatres and Paramount tied for second place, one game behind . . . Filmrow visitors include: D. O'Connor of the O'Connor, Huntingdon; Charles Magnan of the Malartic, Malartic; Mr. and Mrs. Chouinard of the Princess, Quebec, and Albert Bey of the Cinema, Thetford Mines.

Theatre Construction in Ontario Firmly Paced

TORONTO—Construction, both underway and proposed, changes in ownership and operation, and equipment installations are currently prevalent throughout Ontario.

John Allen, proprietor of the Tivoli, Ont., for some years, has constructed a theatre at Niagara-on-the-Lake which will open shortly. There is no other theatre in the town, which has become increasingly important in recent months because of its military garrison. On the other hand, Famous Players Canadian Corp. is completing a theatre, the Park, in Welland which is close to Thorold.

The Hanson interests of Toronto have taken over the Cartier in Timmins, northern Ontario, this house having previously been operated by the Cinema Rousson-Trudeau Limitee. Hanson now has the Goldfields, Palace, New Empire and Cartier theatres in Timmins. A short time ago, the Allen chain acquired the LaSalle in Kirkland Lake from the Rousson-Trudeau company, the latter having now withdrawn from the active operation of theatres, it is announced.

The Strand, in downtown Toronto, through M. Axler, has installed two new projectors and lamps which were purchased from the General Theatre Supply Co.

Famous Players is well advanced with the construction of a new theatre in Chatham, Ont., which is to be called the Park, to be operated along with its Capitol in that city. Another theatre, to be called the Centre, is being erected in Chatham by 20th Century Theatres, Toronto, which is headed by N. A. Taylor.

Plans for the erection of a new house in Cornwall by the Palace Amusement Co., Ltd., have been held in abeyance. The company, which is headed by Clarence Markell and is a subsidiary of Famous Players, operates the Capitol and Palace in that town.

Consideration has been given to the erection of another theatre at Timmins, to be known as the Broadway, by Broadway Theatres Timmins, Ltd., to seat 800. The company is headed by O. R. Hanson of Toronto. Timmins is a thriving mining town.

Robert Hambleton of Simcoe, Ont., has confirmed the information that he is going ahead with the construction of a theatre at Norwich, Ont. Hambleton has two theatres in Simcoe and two in Tillsonburg.

Musical Fee-Sharing Objective Interests

TORONTO—Theatremen are watching with keen interest the dual between the Canadian Performing Right Society and Broadcast Music, (Canada) Inc., over the question of sharing the fee which has been laid down for the annual licensing of radio stations in the Dominion for royalties because of its possible effect on the seat tax paid annually by theatres for the use of musical works. BMI of Canada wants a share of the levy on broadcasters now collected by the Society on the basis of eight cents per receiving set on the ground that it provides an outlet for authors and composers who cannot get into Ascap which is linked with the Canadian Society, the latter now holding exclusive rights in the collecting of the royalty fee in the Dominion.

The Society has applied to the copyright appeal board for permission to raise the tax from 8 cents to 14 cents per receiving set but opposition has developed to this demand, apart from the request of BMI for a share in the takings. The board has reserved judgment in the case.

Oliviers in London

MONTREAL—Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh are in London. Olivier has signed to play in "49th Parallel" before joining the air force. Miss Leigh will go on the stage.

OTTAWA

THE work of increasing the capacity of the Elgin by 100 seats has been completed under the supervision of Manager Lloyd M. Mills, who is now getting ready for the redecorating of the theatre and changes in the lighting system, after which a block of stores will be erected on the parking lot adjacent to the theatre entrance, the new building to conform with the design of the Elgin. Meantime he is busy with the presentation of "This Thing Called Love" which looks as if it will run for three or four weeks.

Vern Hudson, manager of the Avalon in the Globe district of Ottawa, staged a variety show of four acts for one evening last week in conjunction with a double film bill and this will become a regular weekly feature, he has announced . . . "The Philadelphia Story," based on the M-G-M film story and illustrated with stills from the picture, has been published as a serial in the Ottawa Journal, this being the first time that the newspaper has ever printed a film narrative.

Isser Singerman has been busy with "Gone With the Wind" at the Imperial, to which the picture was immediately transferred after its run at the Ottawa Regent where it was held over for several days by Manager Angelo Stevens . . . Jack Murray, famed as one of the original members of the Canadian Dumbells, passed away in his 56th year following a heart attack. The Dumbells made their start as a concert party behind the Western Front in the last war and then toured practically every theatre in the Dominion for approximately 15 years after the Armistice.

A radio adaptation of "The Mortal Storm" was scheduled for presentation over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. last night, February 21, under the direction of Rai Purdy, and the film version of Nazi policies is appearing regularly at local theatres . . . R. B. "Babe" Berezin, native of Ottawa, has been appointed manager of the Regent at Sudbury, Ontario, which was recently taken over by 20th Century Theatres, Ltd. Berezin joined the staff of the Ottawa Elgin when it opened three years ago.

The municipal council of Cornwall, Ont., has put a ban on tag days for the remainder of 1941, regardless of the patriotic or charity cause, in the belief that the tag stunt has been greatly overdone. Cornwall had a blackout rehearsal the other night and Manager Clarence Markell of the Capitol and Palace reported little inconvenience to theatre patrons.

National Film Society Hit by "Arty" Dearth

TORONTO—The National Film Society of Canada is having a tough time of it because of a dearth of "arty" foreign films due to the war and distress signals have already been sent up by branches of the organization in different cities after a brave attempt to carry on during the second winter of the international conflict.

Product Earning Holdovers

Toronto — The past week has been featured by holdovers in leading theatres of Toronto, thus indicating that business is well up to scratch—and that the films are worth while. "This Thing Called Love" registered a record for the season at the Imperial by playing its fourth week against strong opposition. "Gone With the Wind" continued for a third week at Loew's at popular prices, while "Kitty Foyle" went into its second week at the Uptown.

The opposition included the Ballet Russe on the stage of the Royal Alexandra where an extra matinee was put on to take care of the extra demand; a big patriotic concert in Massey Music Hall and a couple of important professional hockey matches.

VANCOUVER

SID TAUBE of the Moving Picture Pioneers Ass'n in Vancouver on his way east from Los Angeles . . . Frank Kershaw from Winnipeg here for a short visit . . . G. G. Baiss of the Capitol Duncan in to complete advance bookings.

Jimmie Haworth of the Rio Theatre, Ladysmith, around Filmrow carefully selecting his advance bookings . . . The Film Exchange Table Tennis Club successfully stood off their return challenge match with the C. P. R., winning with great ease. Owen Bird, Don Findlay and Ray Tarling never lost a game.

Great interest is being displayed by exhibitors over a short released by Empire Universal Films, titled "Mastery of the Sea." This subject is a vivid study of the work of the British Navy particularly in convoying shipping to and from Great Britain.

Adam Klein has reopened the Legion Hall at Agassiz, B. C.

Loew's Theatres Reduce Arrears on Preferred

MONTREAL—Arrears on preferred stock of Marcus Loew's Theatres, Ltd., will be reduced to $5.25 a share following payment of a dividend of $1.75 a share just declared in addition to the regular quarterly $1.75, payable March 31 to shareholders of record March 15.

Since 1937, the company has been reducing preferred arrears which had accumulated during the period 1922 to 1934 inclusive. Last year's disbursement of $14 a share contracted with $31.50 paid in 1939, and $8.75 a share distributed in 1938 and also in 1937.

Although net profit of $94,508 for the fiscal year ended August, 1930, was below the previous year on account of increased taxes, it was sufficient to cover dividend requirements.

WINNIPEG

LOCAL houses were turned over to the war effort Saturday morning when a special children's show was held to which admission was in the form of bundles of rags. These were handed over to the Patriotic Salvage Corps to be sold, the proceeds going towards buying mobile kitchen units for use in Great Britain.

At the Capitol, Harold Bishop has been presenting his return engagement of "GWTW" to packed houses. It is now in its second week and going strong . . . The national film board, under the direction of John Grierson, will make a documentary film of the central volunteer bureau, according to announcement made at the board meeting of the bureau by Mrs. Gordon Konantz, chairman.

Grand National's "Mein Kampf" has been playing to good houses here since its introduction a few weeks ago. After two fine weeks at the Starland, the film played simultaneously last week at the Furby and the College.

J. M. Beaudet, music director of the CBC for Canada, told the press this week that the CBC can play both B. M. I. and Ascap on a Canadian program, but exchange programs to the United States must be B. M. I. Speaking about the influence of the war on music broadcast over CBC, Mr. Beaudet said the war had not affected the type of music played.

Eddie Newman has been running a smart campaign of teaser ads in connection with his forthcoming showing of "Dulcy" . . . The George Formby film, "It's in the Air," is doing sensational business at the Bijou where Garnet Wright has taken it into its fourth straight week.

The film last week at Don Gauld's sneak-preview at the Uptown was "Comrade X." The film played to the large house which has become standard at these previews.

Blackout Rehearsal Idea Is Abandoned

TORONTO—After considerable bickering between rival authorities, the War Savings Stamps Campaign Committee of Toronto finally decided to call off the blackout rehearsal which had been planned for February 19 locally, differences having arisen between federal government officials and the municipal fathers. The theatres had arranged to participate in the blackout and it had been decided to issue special pass-out checks to patrons so that they could watch the outdoor performance but the whole stunt has been cancelled for keeps.

Set Designer Trains

MONTREAL—A United States architect, Harlon Buettner, who helped design the sets for "Three Smart Girls" and "The Great Ziegfeld" is at Malton, Ont., one of nine pilots receiving instruction on multi-engine aircraft through a scheme voluntarily undertaken by Dominion Skyways training to supply some of the 250 pilots needed by aid observer schools.

From the Press

MINNEDOSA, MAN.—The destruction of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Asper's Lyric here by fire, occasioned an editorial in the Minnedosa Tribune that was a kudo to theatres in general. The paper called the theatre a "fourth corner of contact with the world." The others it listed as the telephone, the radio and the newspaper. The fire, starting in the booth, is estimated to have done damage to the extent of $18,000.

LONDON, ONT. — The London Theatre Managers' Ass'n, headed by W. K. Trudell, manager of the Capitol, is cooperating in pushing the sale of war savings certificates, by freely lending the facilities of its houses.

SUDBURY, ONT.—R. "Babe" Berezin, assistant manager of the Elgin in Ottawa, has been upped to the helm of the Regent Theatre by 20th Century Theatres, Ltd.

NEW GLASGOW, N. S.—Manager N. W. Mason of the Roseland Theatre Co., Ltd., obtained a news story by advertising that the New Glasgow either has or will present every one of the pictures voted the ten best in 1940.

LONDON, ONT.—Harold J. Allaster has been elected president of Local 105 of the IATSE. Allaster for 13 years has been business agent for the projectionists' union.

SASKATCHEWAN

REGINA'S five theatres chose a committee of five to look after plans for selling stamps to theatre employes in the city. Most of the employes have already signed pledges to have money for the stamps taken out of their pay and the committee is now formulating plans for get-togethers of the theatre staffs in the way of parties, dances and so on to raise more money for Canada's war effort. Members of the committee are: Charles Baird, assistant manager, Capitol; Charles Horning, assistant manager, Met; Peter Kosh, doorman, Rex; Mary Graham, cashier, Grand; Joe Schacter, Roxy.

Saskatoon theatres, the Capitol, Daylight, Ritz, Roxy and Tivoli, are aiding in the current drive to sell war saving stamps and certificates by permitting special speakers to be heard during programs.

Nat Rothstein celebrated his 20 years of exhibiting in Assiniboia the other day by installing new sound equipment in his Olympia Theatre. Hearing aid devices also have been installed.

Wide Distribution for "Canada Carries On"

MONTREAL—To be shown at commercial rates in 900 Canadian theatres is but the start of the journey for films in the "Canada Carries On" series. When they have been handled by regular film theatres, 16-millimeter copies are made.

In the United Kingdom, national film board productions in this series are shown in at least 1,000 theatres. From 600 to 800 Australian and New Zealand theatres show each release and other parts of the Empire also use the service.

United States interest in the films is heartening, film board officials say. When one is completed the negative is made available to the five newsreel companies at New York, and they take from it such sections as they wish to incorporate in their regular releases, to show the development of Canada's war effort.

"Canada Carries On" pictures are produced by the national film board for G. H. Lash, director of public information.

Films German Prisoners Arriving for Internment

MONTREAL—German prisoners of war arriving at an eastern Canadian port were filmed by Ross Beesley of Associated Screen News. Bob Martin of the same organization covered a flight to the Laurentians on the ski special air service; Arnold Hague returned, after three years in Vancouver, to help relieve the pressure of assignments on ASN cameramen in eastern Canada, and covered the snowshoers convention in Quebec, while Roy Tash pictured the Canadian Red Cross preparations for shipment of parcels to Canadian war prisoners in Germany.

Picture Pioneers Add Quartet to Roster

TORONTO—The Canadian Picture Pioneers has secured four more new members, bringing the roll of trade veterans up to 180, the qualification being that they must have been identified with the film industry for at least 25 years. The president is Clair Hague, of Toronto.

Through its Canadian motion picture war services committee the Pioneers are taking an active and aggressive part in the promotion of the current War Savings Stamp Campaign as a feature of their policy to lend all possible aid to the Canadian Government in the war effort.

R. L. Vallee Reopens Sherbrooke Premiere

SHERBROOKE, QUE.—On the occasion of opening his renovated Premiere Theatre, R. L. Vallee received a full page of publicity in the local daily.

Congratulatory ads from neighboring firms and from those that serviced the theatre in equipment and decorations made up the page, as did a biographical sketch.

Vallee is a veteran showman, having been in the trade for 30 years.

Former Manager Wins $680 Judgment Against Theatre

MONTREAL—Judgment for $680 was given in the superior court by Justice Alfred Forest in favor of Joachim Donat Germain against Mrs. Louis Desrosiers, proprietor of the Perron Theatre. Plaintiff sued for damages caused because of dismissal on October 13, 1938, as manager of the theatre, after he had been engaged the previous July 22 on a five-year contract at $50 a week.

Under the terms of the contract plaintiff was to give all his time to the position. Mrs. Desrosiers claimed he was incompetent, and made a public scandal by devoting too much of his time to a married niece of his employer.

His Lordship came to the conclusion that his dismissal had not been justified. He pointed out that Mrs. Desrosiers had authorized a trip by the two of them to Kitchener, Ont., a few days before the contract to study moving picture conditions. It was evident to His Lordship that family quarrels had been responsible for the charge against Germain.

As to Germain's competency, His Lordship said that there had been no concealment in this respect, that Mrs. Desrosiers had recognized that he was not an expert and before taking over the position she had sent him to study the cinema at such centers as Granby, Magog, St. Hyacinthe and Asbestos.

Germain sued for $9,999 damages. His Lordship said that after his dismissal he had obtained other employment, which for a time had not reimbursed him to the extent of $50 a week. He allowed him $680 as compensation, but beyond that period no damages were allowed, seeing that Germain has been making as much money in another position as he would have obtained under the contract.

: Unity the Aim :

OTTAWA—British propaganda films were not used as an instrument of hate and did not utilize "loud music," declared John Grierson of London, England, Dominion film commissioner, in an address before the Canadian Authors Ass'n at the Chelsea Club in which he emphasized the value of the screen in cementing unity in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

With respect to Canadian government films, Grierson asserted that the wartime motion pictures had performed valuable service in making the people conscious of the worth of their own country. The new Canadian war films contained patriotic logic and appealed to the subconscious mind of the people.

German propaganda films, captured by the British armed forces, were among the most perfectly prepared and were an indication of the importance placed upon propaganda by the enemy country, Grierson said. The value of moving pictures in war was first realized by Great Britain shortly after the start of the First Great War.

Many Nazi Films Intercepted

Ottawa—The National Film Board has been handling a considerable quantity of Nazi propaganda films which has been seized by the British contraband control at various stations on the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, the confiscated prints having been forwarded to the Dominion government for examination and use for a purpose for which they were not intended by the Hitlerites.

Some of the films have been made available to film producers of the United States after editorial surveillance while a portion have been turned over to the military authorities for study because of the information provided in the pictures.

A recent shipment bound for South America by an unstated route and intercepted by British warships was of particular interest because they included pictures from the air of London under fire, a record of an aerial attack on a convoy and the destructive effect of Royal Air Force raids on objectives in Occupied France.

Hamilton Theatre Fire Is Being Investigated

TORONTO—Twentieth Century Theatres, Ltd., is investigating a fire in the Century, a unit of its chain in Hamilton, Ont., the stage of which was discovered in flames in the early morning of February 14. The most damage was done around the screen, at the foot of which a number of matches were found after the blaze had been extinguished. The matches were turned over to fire department investigators for examination.

The Century was acquired only a few months ago. Previously it had been operated as the Lyric for many years for vaudeville, stage shows and pictures by R. T. Stewart, pioneer showman, and it had been remodeled throughout by the new company, Inter-City Theatres, Ltd., a subsidiary of 20th Century headed by Nat Taylor.

Nathanson Stock Option Again Is Extended

MONTREAL—Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd., has notified the Montreal Stock Exchange that the option granted N. L. Nathanson, president of the company, on April 15, 1936, has again been extended. The option covers the right to purchase 11,000 shares at $16 per share. Previously extended to January 31, 1941, it has now been extended to April 30, 1941.

New School Theatre

MONTREAL—By converting two classrooms into one through removing the partitions and by blacking out the windows, the Peace Centennial School of Montreal has created at little cost a motion picture hall seating 270 pupils. Educational and old entertainment films are planned.

Famous Players Reviews War Service Highlights

MONTREAL—Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd., has issued a statement reviewing the highlights of its past year's war service and pledging further service. The statement, which urges the patrons of theatres to buy war certificates and thus "serve by saving," is signed by N. L. Nathanson, president. It reads:

"We too have been privileged to serve. Famous Players is proud that during the past year its theatres aided materially in Canada's war effort, and, through entertaining millions of theatre-goers, contributed in no small measure to maintaining the morale of the Canadian people in these troubled times.

"At performances given in motion picture theatres across Canada on the night of July 15, 1940, approximately 560,000 Canadians bought more than $700,000 worth of War Savings Stamps and Certificates. Every theatre operated by Famous Players participated in this campaign.

"Famous Players theatres cooperated with the Canadian Motion Picture War Services Committee in the Rodeo at the Toronto Coliseum in November, 1940, at which £5,000 was raised and remitted to the Lord Mayor of London for his fund for air raid victims.

"Three Famous Players theatres in Regina joined in the world premiere of 'North West Mounted Police,' the entire proceeds being donated to the Canadian Red Cross.

"During the year many of Hollywood's stars gave most generously of their services to aid in Canada's war work, including such artists as Anna Neagle, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Ned Sparks, Vivien Leigh, Laurence Olivier and Maureen O'Sullivan, who appeared at the "Stamp" shows; the singing cowboy, Gene Autry, at the Rodeo; Madeleine Carroll, Lynne Overman, Preston Foster and Robert Preston, whose personal appearances aided the Canadian Red Cross."

The statement ends with the promise: "We pledge ourselves to further service until victory has been achieved."

Edmonton Managers Talk War Savings Campaign

EDMONTON—The part to be played by Edmonton theatres in Canada's dominion-wide February war savings drive was the only subject up for discussion at the regular weekly meeting of the theatre managers under the chairmanship of Walter Wilson of the Capitol.

Plans were made for a special meeting to be attended by all theatre employes to determine the amount each could afford to contribute to war savings. Ray Staples, chairman of the Edmonton War Savings committee, will be principal speaker.

Campaign for "Mr. Smith"

WINNIPEG—Invitation cards, ostensibly sent by the star, and calls to all the Smiths in the phone book were the methods used by Jack Randall of the College to publicize his booking of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

Murphy, Read Earn Campaign Buttons

NEW YORK—M-G-M has awarded Honor Roll Buttons to David Murphy, State Theatre, Altoona, Pa., and John P. Read, Riviera, St. Paul, Minn., for their outstanding campaigns for "Flight Command" and "Land of Liberty," respectively.

Highlights of Murphy's campaign follow.

Two parades to theatre, including newsboys wearing aviator cloth helmets. Local radio station used Cinemakwiz three times, with cash and guest tickets to winners. 5,000 heralds inserted in Sunday papers. Sidewalks stencilled with giant plane figure and film copy. Model plane contest in cooperation with YMCA and NYA.

Highlights of Read's "Land of Liberty" campaign:

Special advance screening for federal, state and city officials. Also, social, educational and religious leaders. Daily radio announcements from news commentators for eight days before opening. Proclamation issued by mayor. American Legion parade to theatre on opening day, including drum and bugle corps and ten-foot banner. Two hundred block one-sheets posted in special locations all over town.

Inexpensive Tiein With Popular Radio Quiz

OKLAHOMA CITY—The State Theatre and radio station WKY are participating in a program take-off of the quiz shows that have been gaining listening audiences by leaps and bounds.

The show, called "Smarty-Party," is aired three evening times weekly, and features a board of "incompetents" who are armed with dictionaries, encyclopedias, almanacs and reference books in their sessions before the mike.

Listeners call in questions and if the "incompetents" cannot answer them in two minutes the listener is sent a pair of tickets to see the current attraction at the State.

The pass deal is the only obligation on the part of the theatre in the tie-up.

Sells the Duals

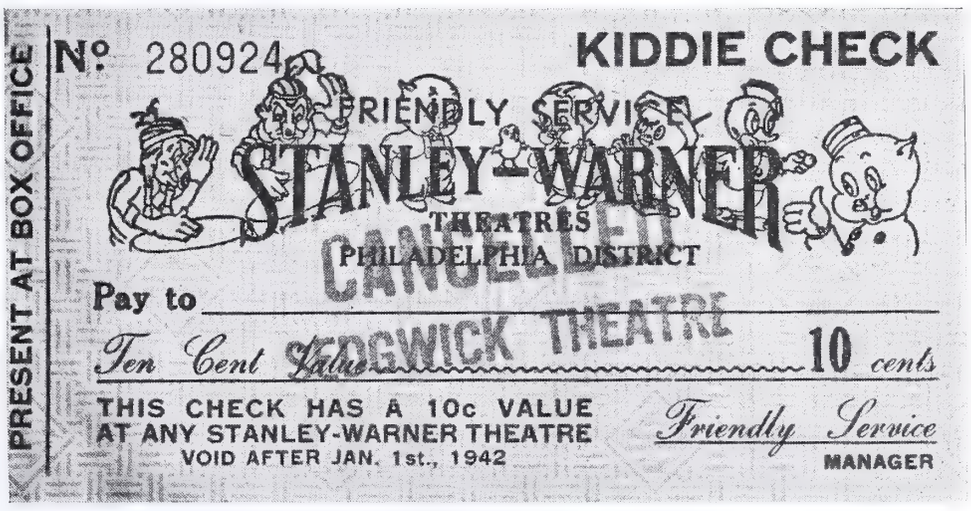
ALLENTOWN, PA.—Recognizing the at-least-present permanence of double features, Nick Todorov, advertising director for Wilmer & Vincent here, proceeds to market the duals. Beneath the marquee of his State Theatre, just above the boxoffice, are several panels that list the bills playing. A large easel alongside the boxoffice reminds all and sundry that "the biggest and best show value in Allentown" is just inside, where is "always two big first-run feature hits!" Price schedule completes the board.

Draws a Crowd—

An animated lobby display that Stanley Benford of the Colonial in Philadelphia made for "Here Comes the Navy." The small battleships are on an endless belt and keep moving. The larger ship in the foreground is stationary. The bull's eye on this ship is cut out and behind it is a break-switch which, when hit, causes all action to stop. Patrons who were interested were offered a pistol and three darts with which to try their luck. There was a crowd around the display all week.

4-H Club Mention Aid "Barnyard Follies"

Butte, Mont.—A boxoffice lineup was the result of a 4-H Club tieup on "Barnyard Follies" arranged by M. Clyde Anderson, manager of the American.



Anderson sent a letter to all the teachers in the county a week in advance of his booking, stressing the 4-H Club activities shown in the picture, and asking them to notify their students. Usherettes and cashiers wore short gingham kiddie dresses and carried signs on their backs telling about the opening. He engaged several hay-racks, which carried advertisements announcing that all patrons who called the American Theatre would be given a free ride to the house to see the picture.

Fifteen Cleveland Houses Offer "Melody Ranch"

CLEVELAND—Fifteen neighborhood houses cooperated in a day-and-date engagement of "Melody Ranch," starring Gene Autry. A giant newspaper ad was preceded by teaser ads in selling the show.

Motion picture pages of the dailies ran photos and stories a month in advance, and the local radio station carrying the Autry Sunday night broadcasts plugged the engagement well in advance.

Special flash lobby displays were constructed in all 15 theatres.

A Means to Bulk Sales—

A specimen of the Kiddie Check (printed up on check book paper) that the Stanley-Warner houses in and about Philadelphia have been using with considerable success. In this particular instance, Manager William E. Yurasko of the Sedgwick Theatre in Philadelphia effected a tieup with a local music house that now mails out the checks to youngsters on their birthdays. The merchant stands all expense of mailing. The Kiddie Checks have been sold in books to parents; to philanthropists who treat the inmates of children's homes and the like; and to cooperating merchants for their mailing lists.

FOUR WIVES—Passes to people submitting the most novel birth announcements. Paste up as a lobby display.

A contest in the newspaper hunting the town's largest family. They submit family group photos and the winning group is guest of the theatre.

Two girls canvassed houses, asking: "Pardon me, but could you tell me what picture is starting at the (theatre) on (playdate)?" When the householder fumbled, the ladies chirped, "Sorry, if you had told me it was 'Four Wives' I would have given you a pass to see it."

MR. AND MRS. SMITH—Guest tickets to the Smiths in the phone book. A newspaper contest "What do you think are the ten best rules for married couples?" Ducats to the 25 best letters. A committee of six bachelors were the judges.

THEY KNEW WHAT THEY WANTED—A large placard in a jewelry store window read: "'They Knew What They Wanted' so they went to (name of store)."

THE LETTER—A giant postcard in the lobby addressed to Bette Davis, inviting patrons to sign their names under the following message: "The undersigned patrons of this theatre after seeing your great performance in 'The Letter' feel that you are again the leading contender for the Academy Award honors . . ."

SECOND CHORUS—Two dancing instructors taken to a nearby encampment to demonstrate the new number "Dig-It" introduced in the film, to the soldiers. Also dance contest held on the stage.

KITTY FOYLE—Breakfast show for white collar girls. Coffee and doughnuts served after screening. Five thousand blotters in offices. Busses and taxis placarded. Fashion stills in dress and hat shops.

KITTY FOYLE—A baggage truck, promoted from Railway Express and painted up for the occasion, loaded with several trunks, also promoted, made a lobby display. Large tags on the trunks read: "'Kitty Foyle'—in care of the (theatre name)." This was three weeks in advance. The second week large cards on the truck read "'Kitty Foyle' is coming soon." The final week the cards read "'Kitty Foyle' is coming Friday."

KITTY FOYLE—A fashion show was sponsored by a local fur and dress shop, featuring the gowns worn in the film. A book window tieup including stills, with a department store.

ESCAPE—Chained to the boxoffice was a man dressed in convict suit and a card next to him informing: "I tried to escape to see 'Escape'."

LITTLE NELLIE KELLY—A little girl from an orphanage was selected as a "lady-for-a-day," outfitted, driven about in a chauffeured limousine, received the keys to the city from the mayor and had a luncheon tendered her. All the dailies covered the stunt.

DR. KILDARE'S CRISIS—Man in doctor's attire, with medical bag and various instruments handed out 3,000 name cards, reading "Dr. James Kildare. Office hours 11 A. M.—10 P. M. daily." Theatre advertising on inside of paper fold. Love quiz from press book over radio three days.

DOWN ARGENTINE WAY—Title was lettered in red ink on a newspaper and a boy carried it on board street cars at busy times.

ARISE, MY LOVE—A bed in the lobby with the figure of a girl lying in it. A standee of Ray Milland with arm outstretched, at end of bed, beckoning to arise. A night table with a lamp and clock, cold cream jar and lipstick nearby complete the display. Card gives cast and title.

SANDY GETS HER MAN—A three-or-four-year-old youngster delivered an invitation to the newly elected fire chief and his staff, to attend the showing as guests of the theatre. Taking a reporter along netted a two-column picture in the paper.

HE STAYED FOR BREAKFAST—A local photographer took pictures of patrons free in lobby. Ladies photographed at a breakfast table with a cut-out of Melvyn Douglas seated opposite. Men photographed at the table with a cut-out of Loretta Young opposite them. Over 1,200 were taken, developed and mailed to the patrons several days before the opening of the picture, at no cost to the theatre.

DISPATCH FROM REUTER'S—A flash front made up by the use of newspaper headlines and action photos. Also pictures of famous pigeons secured from a local Homing Pigeon Club. Display slanted to show the different methods of gathering news, from pigeon to modern newspaper.

LUCKY PARTNERS—A board in the lobby displayed various "good luck" charms on it. Copy read: "Bring in a lucky charm different from any of those posted on this board and you will receive a free ticket to see 'Lucky Partners.'"

LAND OF LIBERTY—Newspapers cooperated with special British War Relief editions, devoting front page to picture. Mayor issued proclamation urging attendance. Leading organizations participated in activities. Newspapers carried no price tags, but asked readers to pay as much as they chose for the special edition. Proceeds of the performance went to war relief agencies.

PHILADELPHIA STORY—Fifteen merchants tied in on an eight-page newspaper section which carried scenes on the picture and their ads. The theatre provided several passes to go to those finding their names in the ads.

HERE COMES THE NAVY—An usher, dressed as a sailor, went about town placarded: "See the entire U. S. Fleet thunder into action in (title, cast, playdate)."

ARIZONA—A letter from the governor of Arizona to the mayor of Sheboygan, on the occasion of the film's booking here, was reprinted in the papers.

FLIGHT COMMAND—A print of the film arranged to come in by air, with a committee of the local Aviation Club meeting the plane. News stories and pictures made the papers.

FLIGHT COMMAND—Model airplanes, appropriately lettered, hanging from the ceiling in advance of run.

Opinions on the Current Short Subjects

SHORTS REVIEWS

The Rodeo Goes to Town

20th-Fox (Sports Review) 10 Mins.

Fair. Behind-the-scenes activities of men and animals that make rodeos an exciting spectacle. Cowboys rehearse quadrilles, break broncs, bulldog steers, rope calves. And, later, they open at Madison Square Garden.

What a Little Sneeze Will Do

20th-Fox (Terry-Toon) 7 Mins.

Average. A cartoon pig sneezes and is beset by friends who offer all sorts of aid. He arrives home loaded down with bottles, pillboxes. He even dreams of bottles and pillboxes. At length, he awakes. Never once is it unfamiliar.

Forbidden Passage

M-G-M (Crime Does Not Pay) 21 Mins.

Fair dramatic offering. Dealing with the smuggling into this country of aliens who are sometimes dumped overboard when the immigration service grows hot on the chase, this subject warns that it is better to await a quota number than risk sub rosa transportation and illegal entry.

Gene Krupa and His Orchestra

Paramount (Headliner) 11 Mins.

Good band item. Gene Krupa beats out hot licks on the skins, the rest of the band makes hot jive and a boy and girl sing capably. "Perfidia" is the number best played. Others are "Jungle Madness," "Call of the Canyon," and "Hamtramck." The jitterbugs will jitter.

More About Nostradamus

M-G-M (Miniature) 11 Mins.

First rate. The 16th century doctor whose "future book" called the turn on many world-shaking events is glossed over biographically and more of his predictions are shown in relation to present day developments. This is the kind of stuff, it seems, that audiences relish.

Red Men on Parade

M-G-M (FitzPatrick Traveltalk) 9 Mins.

Good. Ceremonies, dances and an exhibition of Indian arts and crafts at a recent annual inter-tribal meeting in New Mexico has been fashioned into a colorful, interesting short. The Technicolor footage concludes with a rodeo.

Third Dimensional Murder

M-G-M (Special-Metroscopix) 7 Mins.

Excellent. Once this was called Audioscopicks. Under the new name it is just as potent entertainment, as likely to shake the house loose from the foundations when the shrieks and howls start coming. Pete Smith goes out into the night to investigate a murder. Arriving at an old house he almost runs into a fallen telegraph pole (first shriek), an old witch thrusts a spider into his face, Frankenstein reaches for him, a skeleton looms menacingly, Frankenstein hurls masonry from a roof then molten lead, then a huge pot. By this time Smith is ready for the booby hatch and is apparently headed that way when the skeleton removes its skull and hurls it straight at Smith who is also the eye of the camera. It comes with colored glasses. Can't miss.

Whispers

M-G-M (Passing Parade) 10 Mins.

Eyeopening topic. There should be a fine response to this short. Dealing with the tragedy, results and slick purposes on which whispering campaigns have been launched, herein is shown a brief insight on how it is done amateurishly and professionally to befuddle the fools who would lend an ear. It has that "different" quality.

That's easy . . . I've got M-G-M!
Lucky you, Joe!
Don't I know it, Ben!
They're pretty HOT right now.
Never better, I'm doing okay.
Holding over "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary"?
You bet! It's the best yet!
They claim every Hardy is the best yet!
They generally do—and they generally are!

(Have another, Joe?
Don't mind if I do, Ben!)

It's amazing how that M-G-M crowd keep it up.
Well, that's an old story.
But when you think of just the past few weeks—
Yes, it's been a merry-go-round since Christmas!
"Comrade X" and "Flight Command," for instance?
"Philadelphia Story," "Come Live With Me" too.

How does the Spring stuff look, Joe?
On paper March and April look terrific!
And they'll probably look colossal on the screen!
Wally Beery's "Bad Man" for instance, to start.
And "Ziegfeld Girl"—I hear it's the last word!
The reports say it's better than "Great Ziegfeld"!

(Fill 'em up please!
Happy days!)

Who's in it, Joe?
Jimmy Stewart, Garland, Lamarr, Lana Turner.
Oh boy!
And just about 50 others! And the songs are great!
I'll bet it's an eyeful!
Sure, and just when you think they can't top it—
You mean a bigger show?
I think "Men of Boys Town" will top 'em all!
Tracy and Rooney again?
Exactly! Reliable sources tell me it's sensational!.
Gosh, y' gotta hand it to that outfit!
Greatest in the history of show business!
And Friendly!
You said it!

(One more, Ben?
Okay Joe, nightcap.)

BOXOFFICE The Pulse of the Motion Picture Industry

Hang On And Enjoy It

IF YOU accept the results of the survey, what stems out of it is much on the interesting side.

First, the survey. Conducted by the National Radio Film Commentators' Circle, headed by David Lowe of Station WNEW in New York, it appears eighty-seven per cent of sponsored film commentators on the air are engaged by exhibitors for that job. Polled were one hundred and seventy-eight film chatterers appearing over stations in all of the states, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Secondly, conclusions. Whether resigned to it or discouraged about further fighting is not easily determinable, but the fact is the theatreman has been singularly quiet of late on the subject of radio competition. This checkup, on the other side of the picture, would seem to indicate he is getting smart about a situation that has riled him for years.

And, thirdly, the moral: If he can't stop the sails of the windmill from moving with the breeze, he might just as well hang on and enjoy the ride.

There is a parallel for this. In the earlier days of broadcasting, probably no single group waged more of a determined fight against newscasting than the newspaper publishers. They were, of course, worried about encroachments on their circulation and their reprisals took form in whittling down space devoted to radio in their own columns; there, at least, was one effective means at their disposal.

Then the Swing

RADIO grew, and rapidly. And to a point where newspaper owners, being smart about this matter anyway, decided to tie in. The outcome was purchase in wholesale of radio stations so that today an interesting proportion of the slightly less than one thousand broadcasting outlets around the country is owned by the daily press.

Obviously, there is a lesson here for the picture business. In fact, that lesson apparently is partially learned, as the tally of the commentators' circle indicates. This reminds, too, of a handful of remarks which found their way onto this page several weeks ago relative to the undoubted, rising tide of television.

Your observer then recommended that full attention be paid to the development. He suggested a courtship on the basis of winning the girl and, if not that, of becoming one of her very good boy friends. With radio, it's the identical idea. If the two mediums continue to work together, as frequently they have in the past and as inevitably they must in the future, a mutuality keyed to both points of view can, and will, result.

From Texas

THIS desk's mailbag disgorges a variety of matters. Business beefs by individually disgruntled exhibitors, ideas on the impractical side. Frequently, serious and thoughtful observations like one from Roy L. Walker, president of the Theatre Owners Protective Ass'n, Texas affiliate of the MPTOA. The typewriter now defers to his:

"I was just wondering if it has ever occurred to you the great joke in this consent decree.

"First: The suit was brought to divorce distribution from exhibition. The consent decree legalizes distributor-owned theatres and gives them the right to acquire more theatres if necessary to protect their investment.

"Second: The suit was brought to abolish block booking of pictures, and the decree legalizes block booking. Of course, they put a limit, but, nevertheless, it is block booking. Not only legalizes the five distributors in the selling in block, it authorized the continuance of the suit against the other three for selling in block.

"Third: The suit was brought against the eight companies claiming they had a monopoly of the business, and the consent decree gives the five companies a complete monopoly on seventy-five per cent of feature production and eighty-seven and one half per cent of the gross income.

"In my limited experience as an attorney, I never heard of a suit being brought alleging certain things to be illegal and then, by agreement, those very things receiving the approval of the department of justice.

"Just my idea handed to you for what it is worth."

LIGHTNING LIQUIDATION AIMED UNDER BLOCKS OF FIVE SALES

Scramble for Playdates Seen; Stress on Quick Deals Anticipated

NEW YORK—The fastest liquidation of product that the industry has ever known appears to be moving out of the realm of the speculative into the realm of the expected once new selling under the decree gets actively under way.

Experts in distribution, admittedly guessing largely about actual procedure via the new system, are beginning to envision the wildest sort of scramble for playdates. With five companies under the cloak of the decree—they are, of course, Loew's, Paramount, RKO, 20th Century-Fox and Warner—and five out—they are Columbia, Monogram, Republic, UA and Universal—the expectation is that the sales force which gets the playing time will be the one that strikes deals with the exhibitor first. Nobody is going to wait, the presumption goes.

Will Apply to All

All of this naturally applies to those theatre accounts not identified with the five consenting majors. And, exempted, also, are closed towns where the situation naturally is pretty much in the hands of the controlling theatreman. But in competitive situations the expectancy is that the average operator will have the widest product availabilities that probably he has experienced in his history.

In a number of directions, considerable attention continues to be directed toward the working out of a feasible plan whereby blocks of five can be sold with actual theatre dates. One hurdle in this connection is the difficulty of fixing the length of key runs while, obviously without this information, dates for all runs beyond key engagements cannot be set by the calendar. What may come out, however, is an endeavor to work out a scheme under which the idea of making film deals, plus actual dates, can be crystallized the moment the termination of the key run is determined.

Sees Price Determining

One attorney who had been active during the NRA days and latterly on the decree feels the present clearance system is "unscientific" and predicts a "radical change." He foresees the new order predicated on price rather than clearance and feels that this easily could result in switches in product from one theatre to another so that the public, accustomed to seeing one line of product in a given theatre, may find that same product playing a theatre which did not previously run it. Further, he views it as a distinct possibility that mediocre product playing a given theatre may be eliminated, to some extent, on the ground such given theatre will no

AAA Panels Rise To Total of 558

New York—The American Arbitration Association has designated an initial panel of 15 arbitrators in New Haven and 10 in Seattle, bringing its appointive list thus far throughout the United States to 558. There will be additions in these two cities as in the other 27 thus far named. Albany and Indianapolis are yet to come.

UA Discussing Series Of Regional Meetings

NEW YORK—UA sales executives are discussing a series of regional meetings with plans to be decided in the next few weeks. Last year, two meetings were held, one in Chicago and the other in New York.

Product details have not been completed, as yet. Murray Silverstone has been on the coast the past few weeks contacting UA producers on their plans for the coming year.

Richard A. Rowland, who recently completed "Cheers for Miss Bishop," and Dave Loew and Albert Lewin, who made "So Ends Our Night," have returned to California after making trips to the field in connection with their pictures.

Re-Trial of Gov't Charges Pondered

NEW YORK—Responsible legal opinion reads into a triple damage suit for $900,000 filed by the Hillside Amusement Co., operating the Mayfair at Hillside, N. J., against the majors, their subsidiaries and the Hays organization the possibility of compelling the company defendants to defend many of the charges filed against them in the all-industry suit.

This interpretation traces to the employment, in almost identical language, of the government's original complaint by the plaintiff.

It is pointed out that, while theatre divorcement is not possible for a single plaintiff to seek, action at large against the majors on this point might follow if the court should rule for the suing party in this instance.

The Hillside Amusement action is being brought, curiously enough, by a firm of lawyers whose senior member is also a man named Hays. The firm is Hays, Podell and Shulman and the Podell in it is David L., former assistant to the attorney general and at one time connected with the Way Out for "Sneak" Previews Seen Feasible Under Decree

NEW YORK—Although strict adherence to the decree indicates the "Big Five" would be precluded from indulging in sneak previews to the extent currently practiced, circumvention is possible if they show the film in advance at one of their own affiliated theatres or publicly label it a roadshow attraction, according to authoritative interpretation.

Section III of the decree explicitly states no consenting defendant "shall license or offer for license a feature motion picture for public exhibition within the United States of America at which an admission fee is to be charged until the feature has been trade shown within the exchange district in which the public exhibition is to be held."

Impliedly, at least, this section would prohibit sneaks before typical audiences which pay an admission. However, the "Big Five" in all probability need not concern themselves with this section if they show a film in advance of general release at their own theatres, because they are not even bound to trade show in advance to their own theatres' film buyers.

Section XIV of the decree states: "Nothing contained in this decree shall be construed to limit or affect the right of any distributor defendant, prior to the general release of a motion picture, to roadshow such picture or to license or otherwise arrange for the roadshowing of such picture upon such terms and conditions as may be fixed by the distributor." Road show is defined in the decree as "an exhibition at a theatre where a majority of the main floor seats for each evening performance are reserved and sold at an admission price of not less than $1."

Thus, if any of the "Big Five" should desire to sneak preview a film that falls into this category the theory goes it is free to do so without violating the decree.

Monogram's Financing Deal Almost Complete

NEW YORK—Negotiations for the financing of Monogram's 1941-42 production budget are nearing completion with Pathe Laboratories slated to provide the necessary funds. W. Ray Johnston, president, and Trem Carr, director, have been in town the past two weeks on the discussions, which are to wind up next week.

Columnists Treating Films More Kindly

NEW YORK—The country's newspaper columnists, as a trend, displayed the most markedly increased favorable comment toward the industry during 1940, registering 27.8 per cent of the total, as compared with 23.7 per cent in the two preceding years. The annual analysis of press comment computed by the MPPDA reveals this.

Last year favorable press comment of an all-inclusive nature was tabulated at 61.9 per cent out of a possible 100 per cent, running second to a high of 65.3 per cent in 1939. The third best year was 1938, with 60.9 per cent.

Observing high points of favorable press comment that led to 1939 taking first place were the industry's 50th anniversary campaign while 1938 was helped along with the "Motion Pictures Are Your Greatest Entertainment" plan, the report notes that in 1940 there was no such promotional campaign.

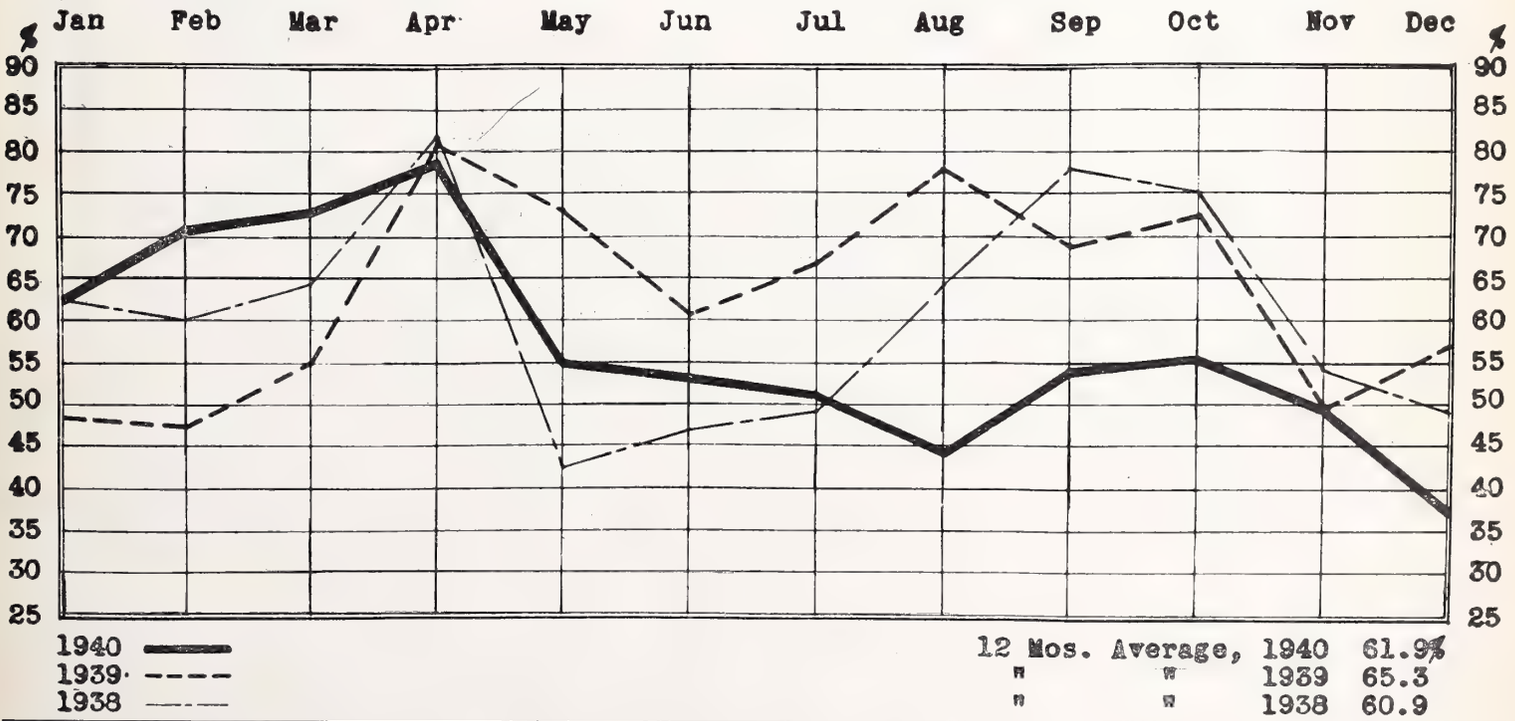
A breakdown of press attitude toward the industry last year is cited as follows: The first three months got off to a favorable start as a result of the campaign against the Neely bill. Added factors in March were three speeches by Will H. Hays and the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences awards. Some adverse comment on "Primrose Path" and "Strange Cargo" was "lost in the chorus of favorable press reactions to industry activities as a whole," the report states.

Adverse criticism loomed large for May, principally as a result of an article in the Saturday Evening Post by Samuel Goldwyn criticizing giveaways, double features and other industry practices; comment by Jimmy Fidler on what he called "another cycle of risque pictures," and a speech by David O. Selznick in the course of which he said that low-grade pictures of popular appeal, referred to elsewhere as "trash," helped to pay for better pictures of smaller drawing power at the box-office.

In addition to the customary summer doldrums, there was some criticism of propaganda in newsreels in June and more along the lines advanced by Goldwyn and Fidler in both June and July. The latter month also brought unfavorable comment on a release from the treasury department on the salaries paid to leading industry figures. A drop in August was due in part to comment by the Dies committee on "Reds" in Hollywood, further comment on disproportionate salaries and the Gallup poll made at the request of Goldwyn.

One of the factors responsible for the rise of favorable comment in September, which continued into October, was the statement by Hays outlining fall product. The banning of "The Ramparts We Watch" in Pennsylvania brought industry support by editorial writers who condemned censorship. These continued into October. Another favorable factor was the speech delivered by Hays before the DAR at French Lick, Ind.

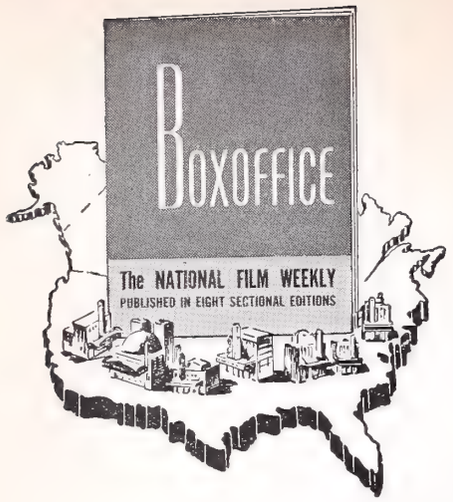
These favorable items are alleged in the report to have offset adverse comment occasioned by criticism of too much drinking depicted in films, alleged PCA laxity in certain pictures, and the statement of Rev. John J. McClafferty to the Legion of Decency meeting in Richmond that "there is a retrogression toward accepting immoral situations as permissible" on the screen.



A drop in November was due to several influences, chief among which was the protest by Archbishops of the Catholic Church against what they termed the "increasingly objectionable tendencies which lately have become manifest in films." When the LOD renewed its pledge in December to attend only pictures on the organization's national list there was further comment on the Bishops' criticism. Criticism of PCA rulings continued in November and December.

The survey notes that the beginning of 1941 shows a "sharp rise" in favorable comment due largely to the "Land of Liberty" campaign and Hays' letter to Senator Burton K. Wheeler categorically denying that "the motion picture industry is carrying on a violent propaganda campaign intending to incite the American people to the point where they will become involved in a war."

Ceremonies to Mark Appeals Board Debut



NEW YORK—Formal opening of the arbitration appeals board offices on the 12th floor of the RCA Building will take place March 12 with the AAA tendering a reception in the afternoon to Van Vechten Veeder, George W. Alger and Albert Putnam to which exhibitor leaders from this area and ranking sales executives of the "Big Five" have been invited.

The exhibitors, both affiliated and independent, will include: Joseph Bernhard, Warner; Harry Brandt; Lawrence Bolognino, Consolidated; Leo Brecher; Max Cohen, Cinema Circuit; Sam Dembow, Leon Netter and Leonard Goldenson, Paramount; Si Fabian; Al Hovel, Century; Joseph R. Vogel and Charles C. Moskowitz, Loew's; John J. O'Connor, RKO; Walter Reade; Samuel Rinzler, Randforce; Leon Rosenblatt, Rosenblatt & Welt; Joe Seider, Prudential Playhouses; George P. Skouras, Spyros Skouras, and Sam Strassberg, Interboro Circuit.

It Was Most Favorable in April: Then It Slid—

This graph traces the course of press comment on the industry for the last three years. The high point in 1940 was reached in April in the trail of Will Hays' annual report. An MPPDA analysis reveals 36.3 per cent of the published material was editorial, 27.8 per cent columnist and 35.9 *per cent news. Men and Events

JOE BERNHARD was telling the AMPA he would like to read something on the plus side of the business. No doubt, he will be interested in a roundup of ideas which appeared recently in the magazine of the National Board of Review.

Those thoughts hold together because they make sense. And, while it is nice to be able to accommodate Joe, what follows makes this column for reasons beyond courtesy. As, hopefully, you will note:

"Whatever we are in politics, world events are making our producers isolationists to the extent that the business they have to attend to is pretty much here at home. Our own audiences, being about all they can conveniently reach, are all they have to please. With some adjustments to counter balance the shrinking, or vanishing, of old world income, they appear to be going ahead with schedules as ambitious as ever, which will be necessary to keep the theatre supplied with attractive entertainment if the generally expected boom in earnings among their countrymen makes more, or more frequent, moviegoers. Unless the trade prophets are whistling hopefully for their own morale, [we interject to remark they positively are not] we'll have plenty of movies this year and movies made chiefly for our own pleasure, without too many bows, either complimentary or conciliatory, to foreign customers."

That's good point number one. Further:

"There's the consent decree to put into working order and the result of it in production and distribution still to be seen. What it will mean to the public is all in the future, with perhaps some disillusionment among people who think their own private complaints can be settled by legislation. Other troubles are sure to spring up; the picture industry has always been the whipping boy for all ports of dissatisfactions and, though it isn't a boy any longer, it's still one of our most convenient scapegoats. The congenital grandma never realizes when a little boy has grown up. And the movies are always at hand for anyone with an axe to grind or bury in something. [And that sounds as if someone's been reading our mind, not to ignore BOXOFFICE]."

Discussing propaganda, the article correctly points out films may have to struggle for their freedom "along with other means by which men express themselves" and observes: "But we find it hard to believe, that the excesses of the last war will be repeated." For ourselves, we wish we could be more certain.

On the production situation at large, the verdict is 1940 was an assuring promise for 1941. Also:

"Intelligence and respect for intelligence exist plentifully in Hollywood and any howler who denies it just doesn't get around much among the theatres. Look at either boxoffice or critics' polls for the last year, compare the product of the American studios with the product of any other industry that depends on mass consumption to keep it going and no reasonable person has any ground for complaint."

Aside to Bernhard: Feeling any better now?

Re Arbitration

FROM an unnamed city comes the reaction of an executive of a large corporation who had been asked to join the arbitration panel in his city:

"Not me. It might interfere with a deal involving thousands for my own company, not to mention the fact I know nothing about the film business and no one could conscientiously render a sensible and unbiased opinion without knowing the inside workings of that business."

Many within the industry, of course, are troubled by the same possibility.

When the New York panel was inducted, Paul Felix Warburg, chairman of the AAA administrative committee on arbitration under the decree, expressed full confidence that arbitrators are equal to the responsibility of giving fair decisions. "The decisions you will reach will be based entirely on horse sense," said he.

Many within the industry are counting on that.

Thin Under the Skin

THE dictators are no fellows to be laughed off easily. Yet there comes a time when the fury of their ideology ends in amusing results. Witness the dispatch from Rome wherein Paolo Lorenzino, nephew of the late Carlo Lorenzino, author of "Pinocchio," asked the Italian ministry of popular (?) culture to sue Walt Disney for libel. The charge would be a distortion of the Pinocchio character by tuning up the long-nosed one in a manner which would mistake him for an American.

If there is any conclusion in this, it would be that the Italians can't take it. See the headlines of your local newspaper, too.

Nine O'Clock Plan Reaches Albany

Albany, N. Y.—One of the first known instances of the extension of the so-called 9 o'clock plan on duals beyond New York is in effect at Fabian's Palace. Designed to meet objections of single feature adherents in double feature houses, the idea, of course, is to screen the top picture at 9 p. m., thereby allowing an early getaway from the theatre. The Palace launched the idea with "This Thing Called Love" Monday through Wednesday.

Set Up Field Men To Handle Shorts

NEW YORK—Six district representatives for special handling of shorts under the decree have been appointed by Oscar A. Morgan, Paramount head of that department and the newsreel.

Richard Scheinbaum has the Chicago district; James Harris, Boston; J. J. Curry, Los Angeles; Ed Ugast, New York; Saul Jacobs, Philadelphia; Max Stahl, Cleveland.

Other appointments are being made for Atlanta, Dallas, Kansas City and Denver.

Curry had been with the company as branch manager in Oklahoma City before retiring due to ill health. He has recovered sufficiently to return to the field.

Scheinbaum and Harris have been salesmen with the company since 1933, the former in Milwaukee and Indianapolis, and Harris in Boston.

Ugast, before joining UA and RKO foreign departments, was ad sales supervisor at Paramount under Mel Sauer and James Clark, later going into the foreign department.

Jacobs has served as general manager for Paramount in Trinidad, while Stahl was formerly with UA, Educational and recently an exhibitor in the Illinois territory.

Several weeks ago Manny Reiner, who has been with M-G-M, Warner, Monogram and publicity head for the Quiz Kids, was named publicity and advertising manager for the department, with Monroe Goodman, formerly assistant to Morgan when he was southern division manager, as Morgan's assistant.

On Again; Boren Asks U. S. Probe

WASHINGTON—The first congressional attack of 1941 on the film industry was launched by Oklahoma's Representative Lyle H. Boren (Dem.), who introduced a resolution calling for the creation of a special committee to investigate the industry.

Specifically, Boren would have five members of the House probe the practices and methods involved in the production, sale, leasing, distribution and exhibition of pictures, but he would also have the inquiry extend to the use of films as a medium "for influencing economic, political and social patterns of American life."

The Oklahoma Congressman has for some years been on the Neely bandwagon, and at one time last Congress was considering the introduction of his own legislation, which would entirely reorganize the industry. The bill never was submitted to the House, but Boren took an active part in the hearings on the Neely bill before the House interstate and foreign commerce committee, of which he is a member.

So far, there has been little indication that Administration leaders in Congress will be sympathetic to any investigations other than those involving national defense matters and that attitude, together with a feeling that the industry ought to be left alone until the effects of the consent decree can be gauged, is seen as making adoption of the Boren resolution difficult.

Harry M. Durning Elected Director of Atlas Corp.

NEW YORK—Harry M. Durning, collector of the port of New York, has been elected a director of Atlas Corp., which holds substantial interests in Paramount and RKO. He is also chairman of the finance committee of the New York Fire Insurance Co., and a director of several other corporations, including the Howe Sound Co., Underwood-Elliott-Fisher Co., Telautograph Corp. and the Permutit Co.

It's Up to Hollywood

New York—The deciding factor in MPTOA's openly expressed desire to hold its annual convention in Hollywood rests with the majors' attitude toward throwing open the studio gates and preview doors to the members who attend. This is something they are known to be opposed to on general grounds.

The organization presumably could justify the imposition of the extra expense of the coast trek upon its members if it promised them the first intimate glimpse of the product they will be getting under blocks of five selling, but needs the studios' sanction for this. MPTOA leaders feel, it is said, such a conclave would be highly successful for this reason. In all probability the session, if finally decided for Hollywood, could not be held until at least the middle of May, at which time some of the 1941-42 product will have reached the camera stage.

Flashes From the News Front

Clearance Plaint in Evansville, Wis.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Evansville Theatre, Inc., operator of the Rex in Evansville, Wis., has complained to the arbitration board that Paramount is giving unreasonable clearance to the Jeffris in Janesville, Wis., operated by the Jeffris Theatre Co. This is the first arbitration action in the Milwaukee territory.

Interstate Dismissal Motion Denied

BOSTON — A motion of the Interstate Theatre Corp. that the U. S. district court of Vermont dismiss the anti-trust suit brought against it by Tegu's Palace Theatre, Inc., on the ground Interstate does not transact business in Vermont, was denied by Federal Judge Harland B. Howe.

Try Cassil Suit March 10

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—The $452,775 anti-trust damage suit by the Frank Cassils against Dubinsky Bros. Enterprises and major distributors alleging conspiracy to prevent the Cassils from obtaining first-run product, probably will be tried at the federal court term here beginning March 10, Judge Otis has indicated.

Two Tax Measures Fail

LINCOLN, NEB.—The Nebraska legislature rejected two measures leveled at the industry. One was a proposal to tax every 10-cent or fraction of ticket cost, 10 per cent. This was to apply to cosmetics, gasoline, soft drinks and cigarettes as well. The other bill would have licensed all exchanges in the state $1,000 annually, and $1 per reel for each one distributed in the state.

Television to Get FCC Eye

NEW YORK—The next hearing before the FCC in Washington on March 20 is expected to revolve about the setting of television standards and rules of commercialization.

To Show How Majors "Dominate" Industry

WASHINGTON—The major companies exemplify one of a number of methods by which large organizations dominate whole industries, the temporary national economic committee is to be told in a monograph now being prepared by its economic staff.

The report, now nearing completion, is expected to present an exhaustive study of the industry as it operated prior to the consent decree, as an example of the ability of a few large corporations to control a whole field of industrial activity.

Although the TNEC did not include motion pictures in the several major industries which it probed in its investigation of monopoly, it was held by economists on the staff to be one in which study would pay a rich reward.

Title-Protection Suit

PHILADELPHIA—Warner, in a move to protect its production of "One Foot in Heaven," best-seller by Hartzell Spence, has filed an action in common pleas court here for an injunction to restrain Macre-Smith, Philadelphia publishers, from publishing a book by Percival Christopher Wren under the title, "Two Feet From Heaven." Warner's complaint asserts the Wren title is being used to gain the goodwill established by the Spence title and that the public will be deceived into believing the forthcoming film is based upon the Wren book.

Anti-Decree Hearing March 5

MINNEAPOLIS—The first public hearing on Northwest Allied's anti-consent decree bill will be held by a Minnesota state senate committee, Wednesday, March 5. The measure would require distributors in Minnesota to offer for license their company's entire season's product output.

Aims New Ascap Blow

RALEIGH, N. C.—Ascap and other such organizations would be subject to a maximum of $300 in fees and 15 per cent of gross intake under the terms of a bill being prepared for introduction in the house by Representative Ed T. Tonissen of Charlotte. The measure would impose a $100 annual state license fee, plus 15 per cent of the gross, and would permit county and city governments each to levy a similar license fee at their discretion.

Buys Canadian Bonds

NEW YORK—Warner is the first distributor known to have purchased Canadian war bonds which the Canadian government is suggesting each company with interests in that country take up to $100,000 each. While Warner, which took $25,000 worth, is the first under the wire, it is said in responsible quarters that it is only a matter of a short time before each of the other distributors will take substantial blocks of the suggested quota.

More Kansas Restrictions

TOPEKA, KAS.—Senate Bill 240, introduced in the Kansas legislature by Senator Dale, applying to small theatres, has the new provision that when a theatre has a single aisle, in the middle, the aisle must be 44 inches wide, and no more than six seats may intervene between any seat and the aisle.

Delay "Doe" L. A. Bow

LOS ANGELES—Local premiere of "Meet John Doe" at the Warner and Downtown simultaneously has been deferred from March 6 to March 12. The New York opening at the Rivoli and Hollywood on Broadway will be about the same time, depending on the run of "Back Street" at the Rivoli. The Hollywood thus reverts to its original name.

Hears Defense in Crescent Action

NASHVILLE—Defendants' motions objecting to most of the charges against them as "irrelevant and immaterial" were heard Monday by Federal Judge Elmer D. Davis in the government's anti-trust suit against the Crescent Amusement Co., et al. The plea for the defense was made by George H. Armistead jr. at the hearing, which was moved up four days from the date originally set.

Overruling by the judge of the defendants' plea would clear the case of all pending motions and pave the way for a hearing of the suit on its merits.

On the same day, Judge Davis heard the plea of "Little 3" attorneys seeking the dismissal of Columbia, Universal and United Artists from the suit. There was no intimation as to when a ruling on the plea would be made.

What the Studios Are Doing

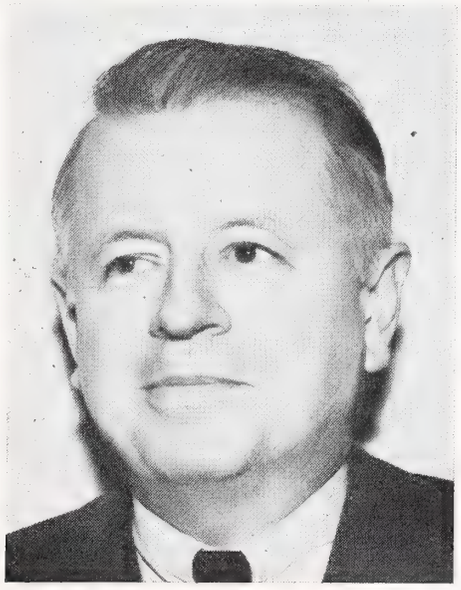
Republic Schedule Sharp Boost Over Last Year

HOLLYWOOD—The $15,000,000 production budget for 1941-42, announced for Republic by Herbert J. Yates, board chairman, and James R. Grainger, president, represents an increase of approximately 50 per cent above 1940-41 expenditures. The line-up of features is boosted four over the current season's 62. The new schedule includes 32 westerns and four serials. The complete list of titles will be announced at a New York regional meeting, after parleys have been held in Kansas City and Atlanta. Earlier, Yates had announced plans to expend $100,000 on fan magazine advertising, first time the company has used this medium, and $400,000 in trade paper advertising for Republic's 1941-42 product . . . Following the four regional meetings, Yates, Grainger and a representative of Donahue & Coe, advertising agency handling the Republic account, will visit 33 key American and six key Canadian cities, meeting with exhibitors, distributors, newspapermen and others to discuss the company's plans for next year . . . Some 50 western territory exchange managers, bookers and salesmen attended the local meeting.

Production at High Pitch as March Opens

March is roaring in like a lion insofar as production pace is concerned. Set for camera work thus far this month are 34 features, with nine more already set to follow in April . . . Leading the pack is Paramount, with eight starters . . . In second spot are Columbia, Republic and Warner, with four each . ... 20th Century-Fox will roll three, as will United Artists and M-G-M . . . Universal and RKO Radio have two each on schedule and Monogram is preparing one.

Release Violations Change Academy News Rules



Because, in the past, certain publications violated specified release dates on advance information concerning winners of the various Awards, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences handled the affair differently at its 13th annual Awards banquet, February 27 . . . No advance announcement was given the press, which did not know who the winners in any classification were until the Oscars were presented from the rostrum.

No Change Planned In Sneak Previews

Although a comparatively obscure consent decree clause may, a strict interpretation might indicate, affect Hollywood's so-called sneak previews, no change is contemplated in the system by which unbiased audience reaction to new product is gained. That is the consensus among studio publicity directors and executive personnel who have studied the clause, which rules no motion picture may be screened, for profit, before exhibitors have seen it at a formal trade showing . . . Those in authority hold that the phrase "for profit" eliminates sneaks from the ruling because studios do not charge rental for the film being previewed, the producer receives no profit and any additional revenue resulting from the showing goes to the theatre operator . . . They point out also the name of the sneak is never advertised, and in the majority of instances the distribution branch of the company involved is not even notified such a screening has been scheduled.

Writers Ask $150 Minimum; Metro on Story-Buying Spree

The Screen Writers Guild will request a $150 minimum weekly salary for film scripters when negotiations with producers for a new basic agreement begin shortly . . . M-G-M went on a story-purchasing spree to bob up with "Cimarron" and "Rio Rita," both of which it bought from RKO Radio . . . "If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson, from David O. Selznick . . . "Odor of Violets" from Baynard Kendrick . . . "The Road Away From Home," from Richard English and Clifford Dowdey . . . "Southern Cross," by Osso and Edgar Van Eyss, went to Columbia . . . Warner bought Stephen Longstreet's "The Gay Sisters" to star Bette Davis . . . John T. Neville's "I Give My Life" went to Producer E. B. Derr . . . RKO Radio grabbed "Journey Into Fear," a novel by Eric Ambler, and will star Michele Morgan, with David Hempstead producing.

Re-elected—

Y. Frank Freeman will guide the destinies of the producers association for a second term. As its president he serves as "spokesman" for Hollywood in all official matters. Freeman is a Paramount vice-president and is in charge of studio operations for that company.

20th-Fox LeBaron Pact Runs for Two Years

Twentieth Century-Fox's contract with William LeBaron, recently-resigned Paramount executive producer, runs two years. He will head a production unit . . . Paramount ticketed Rufus LeMaire as aide to B. G. DeSylva, new executive producer . . . Producers Releasing Corp., spurred by a $1,000,000 trade deal wherein Consolidated Film Industries will finance and process its 1941-42 schedule, is readying a picture-making boom which will find three features and two westerns rolling this month. . . . George W. Weeks, producer of the "Range Busters" westerns for Monogram, will produce an additional series of eight sagebrushers, to be called "The Four Horsemen," for the 1941-42 program . . . Major-General J. O. Mauborgne, chief signal officer of the U. S. Army, spent two days here viewing two completed training shorts made for the War Department by the Academy Research Council. Darryl F. Zanuck, lieutenant-colonel in the signal corps and in charge of production of the training films, accompanied General Mauborgne back to Washington to deliver the shorts.

Sandrich Helms Crosby's Next; Title-Changers Still Busy

Paramount has assigned Mark Sandrich to produce and direct an untitled Irving Berlin musical in which Bing Crosby will be starred . . . Ralph Murphy will direct "Twin Beds" for Edward Small, to be released by United Artists . . . Kenneth Macgowan draws the production reins on 20th Century-Fox's "Flight Surgeon" . . . Vincent Sherman is piloting Warner's anti-Nazi story, "Underground" . . . Title-changers revised Paramount's "Little Miss Muffett" to "Nurses Don't Tell," while Columbia's "Show Business" is now known as "Time Out for Rhythm" . . . Paramount's horror entry, "Among the Living," will be directed by Stuart Heisler.

Silks and Sables For "John Doe"

Silk hats and sables will be taken out of the mothballs by Hollywood's elite when Warner gives the Frank Capra-Robert Riskin production, "Meet John Doe," its world premiere at the Hollywood Theatre here March 12. The reserved-seat affair will precede day-date showings, at advanced prices, at the Hollywood and Downtown.

Tropical Honolulu has been chosen as the setting for the world premiere of Harold Lloyd's first RKO Radio production, "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob." The feature, with George Murphy and Lucille Ball toplining the cast, will be screened March 4 at the Hawaii Theatre in the island metropolis.

Twentieth Century-Fox is planning a Mexico City premiere for "Blood and Sand," the Tyrone Power starrer, although the date has not been set as yet.

Monogram's "Ridin' the Cherokee Trail," starring Tex Ritter, was premiered at the Tryon, Charlotte, N. C., February 24.

Republic Moves In on '42; 66 Features, 4 Up on '41

LOS ANGELES—Republic will expend $15,000,000—an increase of approximately 50 per cent over the current season's budget—on a program of 66 features for the 1941-42 season, executives and exchange personnel were informed by Herbert J. Yates, chairman of the board, and James R. Grainger, general sales manager, in the first of a series of regional sales meetings. Initial session was held at the company's North Hollywood studio.

The new season's program represents an increase of four features over the 1940-41 lineup of 62. A complete list of titles will be announced by Yates and Grainger at a regional session in New York, March 6-7. Broken down as to groups, the lineup looks like this:

Six DeLuxe—two more than in 1940-41—budgeted at from $750,000 to $1,000,000 each.

Fourteen Anniversary Specials—also an increase of two—to be made at a cost of from $250,000 to $500,000 per picture.

Ten Jubilees at $150,000 each.

Two "Premiere" Gene Autry westerns at not less than $500,000 each.

Six Autry-Smiley Burnette westerns at $175,000 each.

Eight Roy Rogers sagebrushers at $100,000 each.

Eight Don Barry westerns at a total cost of $600,000.

Eight "Three Mesquiteers" sagebrushers at a total cost of $600,000.

Four serials, at an average cost of $250,000 each.

The local sales meeting wound up February 25, and was attended by H. J. Yates, M. J. Siegel, president of Republic Productions; J. T. Sheffield, northwest franchise holder; Ed Walton, branch manager of the Seattle office; J. H. Sheffield, Portland manager; Gene Gerbase, Denver manager; E. M. Loy, Butte; G. S. Pinnell, Salt Lake City; Sid Weisbaum, San Francisco, and Francis Bateman, Los Angeles.

The first day of the local conclave was devoted to a discussion of advertising and exploitation campaigns on forthcoming pictures. At least four current films will be heavily ballyhooed, it was announced, including "Sis Hopkins," "Lady From New Orleans," "Down Mexico Way" and "Mr. District Attorney." "Sis Hopkins" and "Lady From New Orleans" will be given gala world premieres, the former in a city not yet selected, the latter in New Orleans. "Mr. District Attorney," now in production, is being given a budget boost of $50,000. An exploitation tieup on it has been worked out with Bristol-Myers, sponsor of the radio program on which the film is based.

The second gathering was held in Kansas City Thursday and Friday with Grainger presiding. There, in attendance were Yates, Lloyd Rust, Dallas branch manager; Nat Steinberg, St. Louis; F. R. Moran, Des Moines; C. F. Reese, Omaha; R. F. Withers, Kansas City franchise holder; Gilbert Nathanson, Minneapolis franchise holder; and Sol Davis, franchise owner in Oklahoma City.

The President Talks—

Thursday evening, the Chief Executive spoke from Washington to the Academy awards dinner held at the Los Angeles Biltmore. He was presented by Walter Wanger, president of the Academy. The address was broadcast from 11:45 P. M. to midnight, E.S.T., over the three major networks and marked the first time in latter day annals that the industry had been directly addressed by a presidential incumbent.

ATLANTA—On Monday and Tuesday, Republic franchise holders and branch managers in the south will hold a meeting on next season's plans here. James R. Grainger, president and general sales manager, will preside with H. J. Yates of the home office, A. C. Bromberg, southern division franchise holder; L. V. Seicshnaydre, New Orleans manager; W. M. Snelson, Memphis; Henry Glover, Atlanta; J. H. Dillon, Charlotte, and H. V. Laird, Tampa, in attendance.

NEW YORK—Fourth and final Republic sales meeting will be held March 6-7 with James R. Grainger presiding. In attendance will be H. J. Yates, Arthur Newman, Albany; Jack Bellman, Buffalo; Morris Epstein, New York; M. E. Morey, Boston; Sam Seletsky, New Haven; Max Gillis, Philadelphia; Sam Seplowin, Detroit; Jake Flax, Washington; J. H. Alexander, Pittsburgh; Nat Lefton, Cleveland; Sam Gorrel, Cleveland, and George Kirby, Cincinnati.

It is expected a Canadian meeting will be held also, but that is to be determined later.

Grainger, sometime next week, is scheduled to announce acquisition of several more franchise holders. The last was Dallas, which gave the company direct control of exchanges with more than a 50 per cent revenue of the country.

The company is also planning to extensively nationally advertise its "De Luxe" and a number of its "Anniversary" productions.

Following the New York conference, Yates and Grainger will embark on a tour of 33 key American and six key Canadian cities, accompanied by a representative of Donahue & Coe, advertising agency now handling the Republic account. During this junket, it was announced, they will confer with exhibitors, distributors, newspapermen and others, discussing Republic's 1941-42 program.

Sees High Incomes Boosting Attendance

NEW YORK—Theatre attendance during 1941 "will far surpass that of 1940," states Poor's Publishing Co., financial publishers, in one of its periodic industry surveys. The reason given for the increased attendance prediction is "higher consumer incomes occasioned by war-stimulated activity in this country."

The survey notes that, inasmuch as preliminary estimates place 1941 national income at 83.6 billion dollars, nearly 13 per cent larger than that of 1940, "the improvement in prospect for 1941 is expected to be sufficient to offset any losses suffered from the foreign markets. For, even should so much as a 50 per cent decline in foreign film rentals be suffered, a rise of less than seven per cent in total United States boxoffice receipts in rentals would prove compensatory."

The survey states a "trend worth noticing is the inclination of the motion picture public to favor single, rather than double feature programs." Should the industry decide that the time is ripe to discontinue the practice of servicing the double feature market and to concentrate on the production of fewer, but better quality, single features, closer control over operating costs might easily result, it is maintained.

Notwithstanding adverse conditions arising from the European war, indications are that no reduction in producton costs has been effected and prospects are "that no important change in production costs will occur in the near future," the survey adds. It also takes the view that although prospects indicate satisfactory increases in domestic theatre attendance, "there is small incentive for building new film outlets or enlarging present ones."

"This Thing" Changes End Legion Fight

New York—Telegraphic changes in "This Thing Called Love," eliminating Legion of Decency objections, have resulted in lifting the picture out of the condemned and into the "B," or objectionable in part, listing. The Legion's campaign against the attraction consequently is brought to an end.

Nat'l Theatres Meet Slated for March 6

NEW YORK—Spyros Skouras has finally set the week of March 6 as the annual meeting dates at Lake Arrowhead, Calif., for the National Theatres divisional managers. At the meeting, another annual drive, to start Easter Week and wind up July 4, will be announced.

Harry Huffman, Denver city district manager, took top honors in the 17-week drive from September 1 to December 28 for which $25,000 in awards are being made. Second place went to Charles Thall with his San Francisco first-run houses. George Bowser's coast district in southern California finished a close third.

Al Finke collected fourth place money for his Portland district, followed by Bob Selig, who was awarded fifth prize for the fine showing of his southern Colorado and New Mexico units. Dick Spier, managing the Oakland-East Bay district in northern California, maintained his splendid record of previous drives by coming in sixth. Seventh and eighth places went to John Hamrick and Thornton Sargent, respectively. Hamrick has the Seattle district, and Sargent has Los Angeles first runs.

Ray Davis, in charge of northern Colorado and Nebraska, attained ninth position. The remaining four districts were awarded special prizes.

Hal Seitel, operating the Peninsula district in northern California; Dick Dickson, manager of the Beach district in Los Angeles; Hall Naetz of the Montana district, and Fred Souttar of the Illinois district all were given special prizes.

Among those who will attend the coast sessions are Rick Ricketson, Denver; Harold J. Fitzgerald and E. L. Alperson, Milwaukee; E. C. Rhoden, Kansas City; Charles Skouras and Charles A. Buckley, Los Angeles; Arch Bowles, San Francisco; Al Finke, Portland; Frank Newman, Seattle, and from the home office William T. Powers, Harry T. Cox, Edward Zabel, Milton Hossfeld, Aubrey Schenck, Skouras and John Healy. Hossfeld has been on the coast for the past month, having taken his vacation there and spending the extra time working at the FWC offices with Larry Kent, chief buyer and booker for the coast circuits.

Interstate Washes Up Suits

DALLAS—The last of a series of anti-trust suits against the Interstate circuit, alleging price-fixing on the part of the circuit to the detriment of H. N. Jorgenson, an independent, has been settled out of court. Details were not announced.

Circuit Men in New York Bubbling With Optimism

NEW YORK — Paraphrasing somebody's sage observation it's a case here of New York going as the nation goes on the business outlook for 1941. Majority opinion unites in agreeing something akin to the good old times lies ahead. As the situation is appraised:

A high Loew circuit executive, giving his unidentified view on out-of-New York theatre operations, believes the money poured into the national defense program must leave its favorable mark on exhibition. He is careful enough to point out, at the same time, that the industry is not reaping such benefits yet, what with Mr. Average Working Man first paying off debts, then buying necessities and converting whatever leftovers may be around into terms of amusement.

Defense Program a Hypo

But he argues that in periods of depressions, this industry is the first to feel the effects and that, similarly, in periods reflecting upturns, theatres feel them last. Whether or not this holds true generally, furthermore, appears to be beside the point. Rather it is the point that the Loew organization, via this spokesman, feels this way about it all.

There are definite signs on the other hand. In towns where new army camps have blossomed or have sprung up anew, general business apparently and already has increased. Many of these camps have their own houses and, while prevailing theatre outlets do not directly benefit, they, nevertheless, do because greater purchasing power prevailing in the areas in which cantonments are located makes it possible for the population involved to spend more on amusements in the houses they normally would patronize.

In Norfolk and Newport News, Va. and Portsmouth, N. H., the government is spending hundreds of millions. There, theatre business is reported to have picked up nicely.

Netter Predicts Upswing

And now the approach of another high executive, attached to another major chain:

"Business should rise in the future. The money being spent on national defense has not hit the theatres yet. Not noticeably so, at any rate, but we are confident. On the other hand, there are apparent contradictions. In some areas, Washington is spending huge sums, but signs of improvement in theatre business have not been forthcoming. This goes for Michigan and parts of California. We have been trying to figure this out, but without success thus far."

Leon D. Netter, Paramount circuit executive, holds to the opinion an upsurge will assert itself in the spring and summer. He figures by that time defense expenditures will be working in full swing, many currently unemployed will have returned to work, their debts paid off and a return to the picture show once more part of their routine.

E. C. Grainger, president and general manager of Shea theatres operating 50 houses in 20 Pennsylvania, Ohio and New England sections, holds the defense program is bound to help business. "We have theatres in a lot of industrial towns. When the money gets into circulation, we will get some of it. Christmas week was fair, but New Year's week was exceptionally good. There are no signs now of business being any better," he observes.

Simon H. Fabian, operating 40 houses upstate and in metropolitan area, says there should be a definite upturn if the quality of pictures holds up. "There is a tremendous amount of money being spent. We haven't felt any of the new spending yet, but I feel the upturn will definitely come," he believes.

William White, general manager of the Skouras circuit, does not think the Skouras circuit will be affected for the next six months. "When the spending spree does come, it will hit us with a bang," he feels. "The first area to feel it will be New Jersey where the clothing and war materials factories are busy but living accommodations scarce in towns where the factories are located. The next area to feel it will be Nassau county where a campaign has already been started to get new patronage from the airplane plants.

Rinzler: "Future Looks Brighter"

"We are just beginning to feel a slight touch of the new business, and if it continues, it should develop to good proportions. As far as New York and the Bronx are concerned, it has always been that, when people have money, they go downtown rather than spend it in the neighborhood."

Sam Rinzler, head of Randforce which operates a large Brooklyn circuit: "The future must look brighter, if the money being spent in department stores is any criterion. I look forward to better business. New York, you know, is the last to feel any upturn in business."

Laurence Bolognino, operating head of Consolidated, which has 20 houses in the metropolitan area, says the year started out nicely and looks "all right. My guess is as good as any other and it looks good. The last part of 1940 showed no improvement, but with the turn of the new year business has come back to life."

Max A. Cohen, head of the Cinema circuit: "It looks lousy to me. We are not getting any of the money being spent. There has been a drop in receipts in this territory and I can't see any reason for optimism."

Urges Joint Price Increase

Joe Katsch, who operates a handful of theatres in the metropolitan area: "I think things will be much better. There is less unemployment and there is more money to spend. It looks like as if we will have a little prosperity. The money being spent on defense will be reflected at the boxoffice and I think the time is right for all theatres in the local area to get together and increase admissions by five cents. New York is the only city in the country where you can buy amusements so cheap. Things are bound to be better."

LeBaron in Full Authority Over Unit for 20th-Fox

NEW YORK—Deal whereby William LeBaron joins 20th Century-Fox as a producer continues the decentralization of that studio's authority, according to a Hollywood dispatch to the New York Times.

"LeBaron will be the only full producer on that lot, except for Darryl F. Zanuck and Sol M. Wurtzel and will have full authority over his own pictures, from original story selection to editing, according to the studio," states the Times.

"Until recently all Fox pictures have been made under the direct supervision of Zanuck or Wurtzel, but during the season the company agreed to distribute Howard Hughes' independently made 'The Outlaw' and negotiated a deal with an autonomous unit formed by Charles Boyer, Ronald Colman, Irene Dunne, Anatole Litvak and Lewis Milestone."

Convention Planning Will Bring Depinet

NEW YORK—Ned E. Depinet, vice-president in charge of RKO distribution, is due back from the coast next Monday when it is expected he will plan for the company's annual sales convention.

George J. Schaefer, president, returned to the studio by plane during the week after a short visit east. Both home office executives are outlining the contemplated program under the first year's operation of the decree.

"Kidnaping Gorillas" Allowed a License

NEW YORK—The board of regents has reversed Irwin Esmond, director of the state's censorship bureau, in authorizing a license for "Kidnaping Gorillas" and at the same time sustained Esmond's ban on "Life on the Hortobagy."

Re-Trial of Government Charges Is Pondered

department of justice in the prosecution of the all-industry action. Podell, however, dropped out of the picture prior to the start of the trial June 3, 1940.

The papers thus far filed launch a terrific attack on the Hays organization, charging that group is maintained and controlled by the other defendants for purposes of effecting a monopoly in the business and that it has diverted the attention of the public and the government from the alleged improper and illegal activities of the defendants. Further, the MPPDA is accused of having blocked legislation in congress and the various states which might have alleviated the situation charged.

The complaint sets forth that of the 92 cities in the United States with a population of 100,000 or over, only four—Tulsa, Okla., Fall River, Mass., Tacoma, Wash., and Fort Wayne, Ind.—have no affiliated theatres. A monopoly in 200 of 283 cities with populations ranging from 25,000 to 100,000 is similarly charged. These cities return the majority of theatre income, it is held.

The plaintiff lists 14 separate points in which it accuses the majors of having violated the Sherman act. The charges are these:

1. Agreeing on rental terms and percentages to be paid by independents.
2. Fixing clearance, protection and runs in the United States.
3. Discrimination in favor of affiliated theatres on clearance, playdates, runs and zoning.
4. Obligating independents to pay score charges.
5. Making illegal cross-licensing agreements among themselves.
6. Excluding independent producers from screen time on major film companies theatres.
7. Preventing independent theatres from competing on a fair basis with the majors.
8. Threatening independents by building or acquiring theatres in opposition.
9. Pooling resources of two or more majors against a strong independent.
10. Dividing product among themselves to prevent the independent from securing any.
11. Pooling in the operation of each others' theatres.
12. Monopolizing 80 per cent of all cities with populations of 100,000 or less.
13. Creating a 100 per cent monopoly in all cities whose population is 1,000,000 or over.
14. Compelling independents to pay more for pictures than affiliated theatres.

Other charges include forcing of shorts and newsreels, cancellations, moveovers, forcing of double featuring, contract modifications, elimination of features already booked and arbitrary, unconscionable and discriminatory film rentals.

The plaintiff devotes a minimum of space to its own complaint, charging that Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corp. imposed unreasonable clearance on runs, protection and zoning against it and that it became impossible for the plaintiff and other independents to operate in successful opposition to Warner or secure first or preferred run pictures. The Mayfair, it is alleged, was placed in an inferior position as a result and was forced to pay score charges to all defendants except Columbia, UA and Universal, with the producer-exhibitors claiming these charges were applying as royalties to RCA, Western Electric and Erpi. This statement is false, the plaintiff claims.

The Mayfair lost profits and patronage and has been damaged to the extent of $300,000, it is claimed. Three times that amount is asked. Members of the department of justice refuse comment on the suit, preferring to study it before making any statement.

Lightning Liquidation Is Expected Under Decree

longer be compelled to indulge in full line buys but have available the product of 10 companies. The rest of this theory goes that, as a companion piece of greater selectivity, there may result the gradual elimination of by-products, such as games and giveaways.

Another attorney professes mystification over the reason for what appears to be a rising tide of clearance complaints under the arbitration provisions of the decree. "Under the new order of selling and with clearance, as now constituted, moved into the background, this activity looks like an effort in the direction of a lost cause."

Another possibility is the removal from blocks of individually strong attractions for solo sale, coupled with a push by the distributor for extended playing time and an effort to include a couple of shorts in order to round out a strong, single bill program. The angle on shorts, and newsreels, which cannot be forced with features under the decree, is to sell them on a "goodwill" basis.

Building, Remodeling Up, Reports RCA Sales Chief

CAMDEN, N. J.—Many new theatres are being built and scores of existing houses are undergoing refurbishing, reports Homer B. Snook, sales manager of RCA Photophone reproducers.

"Back of increased business is generally improved business conditions everywhere, which have reflected themselves in improved boxoffice receipts and, to some respect, the national defense program which is concentrating larger numbers of trainees in areas not now served by large theatres," he states. He also declares equipment sales are considerably ahead of the same period of 1940.

Republic PICTURE

Says Studios Ignore Their Customers

PRINCETON, N. J.—On the basis of a poll to ascertain the best-liked pictures of 1940, only one of which—"Rebecca"—was nominated for the Academy award, the American Institute of Public opinion draws the conclusion there "Apparently is considerable difference of opinion between Hollywood and its customers."

The 10 nominated by the Academy were "All This, and Heaven Too," "Foreign Correspondent," "Kitty Foyle," "The Grapes of Wrath," "Our Town," "Rebecca," "The Great Dictator," "The Letter," "The Long Voyage Home" and "The Philadelphia Story." But the winning six in the Gallup poll, according to rank, turn out to be "Boom Town," "Knute Rockne," "Rebecca," "Northwest Passage," "Strike Up the Band" and "The Fighting 69th." Only in the instance of "Rebecca" does the same attraction appear in both groupings.

The Gallup survey was confined to pictures released between January 1 and November 30, all thereafter being ruled off "because they had not had time to reach audiences throughout the country." This, it is pointed out, ruled off three which had been nominated for top honors by the Academy, "The Great Dictator," "Kitty Foyle" and "The Philadelphia Story," as well as "North West Mounted Police" which was released in December and, therefore, not nominated.

A list of more than 100 top grossing attractions was shown to the poll participants, each one being asked, "Are there any pictures here which you especially liked?"

"Frequent" goers, or those who attend once a week or more, were queried. So were "infrequent" goers, or those who attend less than once a week. The first classification picked "Boom Town," "Knute Rockne," "Northwest Passage," "Rebecca," "Strike Up the Band" and "The Fighting 69th." The second group selected "Rebecca," "Boom Town," "Northwest Passage," "Knute Rockne," "The Fighting 69th" and "All This, and Heaven Too." Male voters selected "Knute Rockne," "Boom Town," "Northwest Passage," "The Fighting 69th," "The Sea Hawk" and "Strike Up the Band" in the order given. Women selected "Rebecca," "All This, and Heaven Too," "Boom Town," "My Favorite Wife," "Strike Up the Band" and "Waterloo Bridge."

Men and women differed widely, according to the poll. "All This, and Heaven Too," for example, ranked second with women and 39th with men; "My Favorite Wife" finished fourth among women and 34th with men. "Knute Rockne" and "The Fighting 69th," however, were more popular with men than with women.

Ascap Signs Decree; Air Peace Seen Near

New York—Suit brought by the government against Ascap for alleged violation of the Sherman act has been withdrawn with the signing of a consent decree. This, say department of justice spokesmen, paves the way for a peaceful settlement of the Ascap difficulties with major broadcasting networks.

Suit in La Crosse Ends in Dismissal

MADISON, WIS.—In handing down a decision dismissing the La Crosse Theatres anti-trust suit for triple damages, Federal Judge Stone exonerated the defendants, Paramount, 20th-Fox, UA, Welworth Theatres and Minnesota Amusements.

Counsel for the plaintiff on October 30, 1940, after putting two witnesses on the stand before a jury, interrupted the case due to illness. Trial was resumed February 17 before Judge Stone and a new jury, but during the course of the hearings plaintiff's attorney again sought a continuance for new evidence.

Not only did the court deny the continuance, but the case was thrown out on its merits and each of the individual defendants cleared of any charge of conspiracy, as alleged.

The contention of the defendants was that sales of their product to Welworth in preference to La Crosse Theatres was of their own separate judgment and not the result of collusion or conspiracy among them. The court's ruling sustained this defense, dismissing the complaint and at the same time marking an important victory for the defendants.

Louis Phillips of the Paramount home office worked with local and Chicago counsel on the defense legal lineup. The case took three weeks less than anticipated.

AAA Says Only Two Refused

New York—Any national activity that deals in large numbers invariably produces sidelights worthy of mention.

And so it is with the selection of local panels that will hear complaints at arbitration film tribunals. The AAA states that of the 400 odd business and professional men who were selected as arbitrators—at the fixed $10 per diem fee, of course—only two declined. They did so, it is asserted, because they felt the $10 fee was too small for men of their calibre. However, they finally capitulated.

It seems further that of the number of men, probably reaching close to 1,000, who were approached and who were deemed desirable as arbitrators, a large block said they were sorry, but just couldn't. Of this block, 75 per cent declined because they said their time was consumed in national defense problems.

Opinions on Current Productions, and Exploitips for Selling to the Public

FEATURE REVIEWS

In Old Colorado F Western

Paramount (4052) 67 Minutes Rel. ——

Although Hopalong Cassidy gets away from his usual stamping ground, geographically, he doesn't deviate one bit from his well-established system for delivering top notch action entertainment to the sagebrush fans. This is the third in the current season's series—and, incidentally, the 38th to date. In every department it compares favorably with the general average of its many predecessors. William Boyd, of course, portrays the redoubtable "Hoppy," with his two buddies, "Lucky" and "California," completing the well-known triumvirate and supplying additional action and comedy, respectively. The humor content of this chapter is stepped up several points through the use of Cliff Nazarro, the double-talk man. The production is convincingly framed and displays Harry Sherman's meticulous attention to details and atmosphere and his flare for selecting scenically appropriate backgrounds. The story has "Hoppy" coming to Colorado to buy a herd of cattle for the Bar 20 ranch. He settles an unwarranted feud between ranchers and nesters, and runs to earth the undercover villains who have been preying on both factions. Directed by Howard Bretherton.

William Boyd, Russell Hayden, Andy Clyde, Margaret Hayes, Morris Ankrum, Sarah Padden, Cliff Nazarro.

EXPLOITIPS: The "Hopalong Cassidy" series is so well known to action fans that mention of the "Cassidy" name should be made on the marquee. Otherwise employ the usual western-film exploitation tactics, including tieups with bookstores on the Clarence E. Mulford novels from which these pictures are made; dressing attendants as cowhands, making over the lobby in sagebrush style, and staging a juvenile "rodeo" at matinee performances.

CATCHLINES: It's Your Old Pal Hoppy . . . Back Again in Another Thrilling Tale of the Old West.

Hoppy Finds Himself in Strange Territory . . . But It Doesn't Stop Him From Foiling Villainy in His Usual Two-Fisted Style.

Ellery Queen's Penthouse Mystery F Melodrama

Columbia (——) 68 Minutes Rel. Mar. 24, '41

Second in the series being produced by Larry Darmour from the popular detective novels, this incorporates suspense, intrigue, comedy and thrills in sufficient quantities to insure its popularity among action-seekers. Its most noteworthy asset is a well-selected and capable cast, with Ralph Bellamy repeating in the title role and Margaret Lindsay and Charley Grapewin again portraying his secretary and the inspector of police respectively. The screenplay, and the action therein, are clean-cut and logical. Noel Madison, a soldier of fortune, is deputized by the Chinese government to bring some valuable jewels into the United States and sell them, the money to go for Chinese relief. No sooner does he arrive in New York than he is murdered. Whereupon Ellery and his father, Inspector Queen, with the dubious assistance of Ellery's secretary, Nikki Porter, set out to unravel the mystery, with, of course, ultimate success. Directed by James Hogan.

Ralph Bellamy, Margaret Lindsay, Charley Grapewin, James Burke, Anna May Wong, Noel Madison, Frank Albertson.

EXPLOITIPS: The exploitation problem on this one should be considerably easier, since it is the second in the series, and since there are millions who have been familiarized with the character through reading scores of "Ellery Queen" books and listening to the radio program. Be sure to arrange tieups on the sleuth novels with libraries and bookstores. Give Ralph Bellamy and Margaret Lindsay the title credits on the marquee. Prepare a lobby display of famed screen sleuths with Bellamy, as "Ellery Queen," given the most prominent position. Form an "Ellery Queen" Junior Detective Club for your juvenile patrons, giving them inexpensive badges and membership cards.

Ridin' the Cherokee Trail F Western

Monogram (4053) 61 Minutes Rel. Feb. 6, '41

By returning to the time-honored formula for crooning cowhands, this Tex Ritter adventure shows considerable improvement over the chapter which immediately preceded it. As middle-scale western fare it will serve in the market for which it was made. Ritter, as usual, is a Texas Ranger assigned to nab the bad hombre of the Cherokee Strip, which arrest can be accomplished only through luring the bandit chief across the Texas border. There is the normal amount of shooting, slugging, singing and galloping before the villain steps into the trap and is brought to justice. The musical moments are supplied by Ritter and the Tennessee Ramblers. Directed by Spencer G. Bennet.

Tex Ritter, "Arkansas Slim" Andrews, Forrest Taylor, Betty Miles, Jack Roper, Fred Burns, Bruce Nolan.

EXPLOITIPS: Tex Ritter and his comedy side-kick, "Arkansas Slim" Andrews, are the marquee and advertising names. Attention of your customers should also be called to the presence in the cast of the Tennessee Ramblers, radio stars and phonograph recording artists. Plug them and Ritter through local music stores. Make over the lobby in the usual western style and employ the reliable forms of ballyhoo as used for previous sagebrushers.

CATCHLINES: It's Tex Ritter Again . . . In His Most Exciting Western Adventure.

The Lone Rider Rides On F Western

Producers Releasing Corp. (——) 61 Minutes Rel. Jan. 10, '41

First of the "Lone Rider" series is a strictly routine offering without particular distinction. Music saves it somewhat. It is played loud and long. George Houston is not up to regulation cowboy hero standards. He lacks a drawl and his acting talents need polish. Hillary Brooke, the feminine lead, sounds like a Park Avenue drawing roomer. Obviously a rush job, many of the sequences were filmed in overcast weather which could not wholly spoil the excellent scenic background. The formula yarn is the familiar treatment of the murdered parents surviving child who grows up with revenge in his heart. In due time, he finds a gang of crooked landgrabbers at the bottom of the trouble and settles accounts accordingly.

George Houston, Hillary Brooke, Al St. John, Karl Hackett, Tom London.

EXPLOITIPS: Plug the songs in the film. John Lange and Lew Porter wrote them. They also wrote the recently popular "Little Red Fox." Tieups are indicated here for music stores. Start an amateur reviewers contest. Post the winning essays prominently in the lobby and give the writers passes for their efforts.

CATCHLINES: A New Western Character Rides Into This Theatre Soon . . . He's George Houston . . . And He's Riding the Trail of Adventure.

"The Lone Rider" . . . He Rides Hard, Shoots Straight and Fights to the Finish.

Prairie Pioneers F Western

Republic (065) 58 Minutes Rel. Feb. 16, '41

Herein the Three Mesquiteers come to the rescue of the persecuted and hounded, circa 1853, locale, California, where the Spanish dons are trying to prevent crooks from stealing their land and where pioneers are still pouring in to settle or to dig up a mess of gold. Chalk it up as an average Three Mesquiteer exercise in western action melodramatics. The usual quota of gunfire, fisticuffs and leather pounding is thrown in, also a unique brand of Spanish-English dialect. The tale comes to a head when, after a series of contributing sequences have unreeled, the son of Don Miguel faces a firing squad because he has been framed with a murder. Our Three Heroes knock the props from under the skullduggery.

Robert Livingston, Bob Steele, Rufe Davis, Esther Estrella, Robert Kellard.

EXPLOITIPS: Dress up three ballyhoo men as cowboys and have them ride up and down the main street. Print throwaways with silhouettes of the trio, preferably an action scene, and enclose them in the envelopes in which the weekly program is mailed.

CATCHLINES: Your Favorite Action Trio Rides to New Adventures as "Prairie Pioneers."

Andy Hardy's Private Secretary F
Comedy-Drama

M-G-M (126) 100 Minutes Rel. Feb. 21, '41

In which the youngest of the famous Hardy clan—in the person of Mickey Rooney—very nearly doesn't graduate from high school, but manages barely to scrape through after the expected romantic, hilarious and academic complications. The feature is well up to par for the series and can be expected to account for itself with honors in revenue. Otherwise it is notable because it marks the film debut of Kathryn Grayson, youthful actress and singer, who definitely impresses, looks to be of certain star calibre and performs the amazing feat of stealing a scene or two away from Master Rooney—which in itself is no mean accomplishment. The only criticism which might possibly be directed against the entry is that it is a bit lengthy. Andy, president of the senior class, author of the annual play and chairman of every other committee, is too busy to study—with the result that he flunks his English examination. He is further beset by woe when Polly, his girl-friend, waxes jealous because he has hired young Miss Grayson as his secretary. However, one of the usual man-to-man talks with Judge Hardy, plus some concentrated study, clears up the dilemma. George B. Seitz directed.

Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Kathryn Grayson, Ann Rutherford, Ian Hunter, Fay Holden, Todd Karns.

EXPLOITIPS: Pursue the exploitation procedure adopted for previous Hardy Family pictures—preparing special mailing pieces for all families named Hardy; stressing the family angle by having the Hardys endorse such local products as food, furniture, clothing, etc. Give Kathryn Grayson an exploitation buildup as a new singing star. Take advertisements in high school papers. Invite the school's senior class to attend a showing as your guests. Prepare throwsheets written in shorthand, translated on the reverse side.

Nice Girl? F
Comedy With Music

Universal (——) 90 Minutes Rel. Feb. 21, '41

This is a rather sharp departure in story material and productional treatment from immediately preceding Deanna Durbin features. There is no apparent reason, however, why it shouldn't prove just as popular and profitable as other films in which she has been starred. The gifted young songbird, who has attained womanhood with such remarkable grace and development of her natural abilities as an actress, isn't afforded so much opportunity to display her vocal talents. Rather, her part was designed to accent her Thespic qualities. Noteworthy is the fact that the remaining cast is more impressive and admittedly more expensive than has ever before been assembled in her support, which factor will undoubtedly go a long way in alleviating the disappointment of fans who might decry the paucity of music. The film is a wholesome comedy of small city atmosphere and leaning toward formula in its romantic motivation. Robert Benchley, an absent-minded professor, has three daughters, of which Deanna is one. They all make a play for Franchot Tone, a colorful explorer who visits their father, and Deanna finds herself in an embarrassing spot because of an unfounded report of her engagement. Tone comes to the rescue and Deanna returns to her shy small-town sweetheart. William Seiter's understanding direction must be credited for a large portion of the picture's assets.

Deanna Durbin, Franchot Tone, Walter Brennan, Robert Stack, Robert Benchley, Helen Broderick, Ann Gillis.

EXPLOITIPS: Deanna Durbin and Franchot Tone are the marquee names in this one, while Robert Benchley is worthy of supporting mention. Promote a contest among high schools for the selection of their favorite "Nice Girl" and have the winner attend a showing of the picture as the guest of honor. Miss Durbin's ability as a songstress suggests a contest on the stage for amateur songbirds.

CATCHLINES: Deanna's Gayer and More Charming Than Ever . . . And She Has a Brand-New Boy Friend . . . Handsome Franchot Tone.

Tobacco Road F
Drama

20th Century-Fox (133) 84 Minutes Rel. Mar. 7, '41

Darryl F. Zanuck's screen version of the record-shattering stage hit is an expertly produced, magnificently enacted feature. The obscenity and objectionable sex sequences of the original have been eliminated but the screenplay retains and accentuates its pathos and scattered humorous situations. Charles Grapewin is superb in his portrayal of Jeeter Lester, the Georgia cracker, whose great love for the land of his forefathers is overshadowed only by his shiftlessness and aversion to labor. In fact, every member of the cast is ideally suited to his role and delivers a notable performance. Among those who are prepared to judge the offering solely on its merits as an exhibit of better motion picture making, the film should win wide patronage and praise. Among the more squeamish, however, its sordidness, and it had to be sordid not to completely sacrifice its identity, may prove a barrier. A further possible objection may come from those who look askance at the manner in which religion is treated and who might easily accuse such treatment of bordering on burlesque. In view of which elements, the picture's overall boxoffice fate is difficult to predict. Grosses will probably vary in accordance with localities and types of audiences. John Ford directed.

Charley Grapewin, Marjorie Rambeau, Gene Tierney, William Tracy, Elizabeth Patterson, Dana Andrews.

EXPLOITIPS: Transform lobby and theatre front into a hillbilly settlement, with attendants dressed as mountaineers. Make up narrow, arrow-shaped tack cards reading "This Way to Tobacco Road" and post them on all streets in the vicinity. Point out that the picture was made from the stage play which has had more than 3,000 performances, breaking all theatrical records.

The Hard-Boiled Canary F
Drama With Music

Paramount (4020) 80 Minutes Rel. Mar. 7, '41

An experimental sally into the field of culture, the picture has many moments of rare entertainment to offer music lovers and, because of its preponderantly juvenile cast, may possess a dramatic appeal to youngsters. The film's maximum possibilities were lost somewhere in the maze of a naive, maudlin, over-length story, freighted with improbable and unacceptable situations. Using the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich., as its locale, the feature enlists the services of scores of talented amateur youngsters, all of whom are amazingly splendid musicians and many of whom display an aptitude for acting which proves both surprising and refreshing. The established Thespians do the best they can with the meager material furnished them. Allan Jones and Susanna Foster, in the toplines, predominate because of their respective abilities as singers. Young Miss Foster, a burlesque show entertainer, is rescued in a raid by Jones, whose father is the managing director of the music camp, in which she is placed and where she attains fame and popularity, but only after an endless series of sequences which try and test her character. Produced and directed by Andrew L. Stone.

Allan Jones, Susanna Foster, Margaret Lindsay, Lynne Overman, Grace Bradley, William Collier sr., Heimo Haitto.

EXPLOITIPS: Stress the musical angles in your selling campaign on this one. Allan Jones and Susanna Foster have both gained renown through their vocal abilities, while Dolly Loehr, a juvenile pianist, is another name to plug. Promote a contest for young amateur musicians on the stage of the theatre, with music teachers of local schools selected to serve as judges. Hold a special matinee performance for aspiring young musicians, admitted at special rates when accompanied by their teachers.

ROOSEVELT PRAISES FILMS FOR PROMOTING SOLIDARITY

Newsreels Service, Trade Defense Cooperation Also Are Lauded

HOLLYWOOD—One of the most important contributions the motion picture can make to the national defense program is in the promotion of solidarity "among all the people of the Americas," President Franklin Delano Roosevelt told the industry and the nation Thursday night in a three-way network broadcast from Washington to open the 13th annual banquet of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The President expressed the government's appreciation for the cooperation of the industry in "helping the people of this hemisphere to come to know each other better."

Cites Newsreels

The newsreels, he said, have performed a "great service" in acquainting the public with the implications of the lend-lease bill.

Highlights of the President's address:

"The American motion picture as a national and international force is a phenomenon of our own generation. Within living memory we have seen it born and grow up into full maturity. We have seen the American motion picture become foremost throughout the world. We have seen it reflect our civilization throughout the rest of the world—the aims and aspirations and ideals of a free people and of freedom.

"That is the real reason that some governments do not want our American films exhibited in their countries. Dictators—those who enforce the totalitarian form of government—think it a dangerous thing for their unfortunate peoples to know that in our democracy officers of the government are the servants, never the masters, of the people.

"We have been seeking to affirm our faith in the western world through a wider exchange of culture, of education, of thought and of free expression among the various nations of this hemisphere. Your industry has utilized its vast resources of talent and facilities in a sincere effort to help the people of this hemisphere come to know each other.

"Our government has invited you to do your share of the job of interpreting the people of the western hemisphere to one another. And all of us in all the 21 American republics are grateful that your response is so immediate and so wholehearted.

"I do not minimize the importance of the motion picture industry as the most popular medium of mass entertainment. But tonight I want to place the chief emphasis on the service you can render in promoting solidarity among all the people of the Americas.

"For all this and for your splendid cooperation with all who are directing the expansion of our defense forces, I am glad to thank you. In the weeks and months that lie ahead, we in Washington know we shall have your continued aid and support."

Academy Chooses "Rebecca," James Stewart, Ginger Rogers

Meeting for the 13th consecutive year at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Science's annual Awards Banquet, Hollywood's creative workers acclaimed "Rebecca," produced by David O. Selznick for United Artists, the outstanding motion picture made during 1940.

The 12,000 members of the industry who participated in one of the film colony's most distinguished and significant yearly functions presented James Stewart the best-actor accolade for his performance in "The Philadelphia Story," produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Ginger Rogers was named best actress as a result of her work in "Kitty Foyle," produced by RKO Radio.

President Opens Dinner

Occasion was further enhanced by an address of welcome and congratulation via radio from President Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking from the White House in Washington over the three major networks. Winners were announced, and the famous gold trophies were presented, at the Biltmore Bowl in the Biltmore Hotel on the evening of February 27. Presentations to the winning actors and actresses were made by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, and Bob Hope served as master of ceremonies. Stars, executives and other industry notables on hand to extend plaudits to the recipients of the coveted statuettes made the affair a sell-out.

Other winners included:

Walter Brennan, chosen as the best actor in a supporting role, for his work in "The Westerner," a Samuel Goldwyn production. Named as best actress in a supporting role was Jane Darwell as a result of her portrayal in "The Grapes of Wrath," a 20th Century-Fox production.

John Ford for Direction

For the best achievement in direction:

John Ford, pilot of "The Grapes of Wrath."

For the best original motion picture story:

Benjamin Glazer and John S. Toldy, authors of "Arise, My Love." Donald Ogden Stewart received the best screenplay award for "The Philadelphia Story." For the best original screenplay, the writer or writers of which are also the authors of the original story, the award went to Preston Sturges for "The Great McGinty."

For the art direction achievement in black-and-white films:

Cedric Gibbons and Paul Groesse for "Pride and Prejudice." Winner of the art direction award for color films was Vincent Korda, for "The Thief of Bagdad." Recognition for the best achievement in film editing went to Anne Bauchens for "North West Mounted Police."

His camera work on "Rebecca" won top honors for George Barnes in the black-and-white cinematography division. The color photography winner was George Perinal, who handled the cameras on "The Thief of Bagdad."

In the music field, the best original score, with primary emphasis on original composition, was deemed that written by Ned Washington and Leigh Harline for "Pinocchio." Selected as the best musical score without regard to source was that done by Alfred Newman for "Tin Pan Alley." "When You Wish Upon a Star" in "Pinocchio," was chosen as the best song, the citation going to its authors, Ned Washington and Leigh Harline.

"Milky Way" was named the outstanding cartoon subject produced during the year. It was made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Winner of the award as best short subject of 1,000 feet or less in length was "Quicker'n a Wink," a Pete Smith production. Selected as the best short subject in the 1,000 to 3,000 feet division was "Teddy, the Rough Rider," a Warner Brothers release.

The sound recording in "Strike Up the Band" won top honors for Douglas Shearer. In the special effects classification the award went to Lawrence Butler and Jack Whitney for "The Thief of Bagdad."

Special Award to Bob Hope

Recipients of special awards, named as the result of conferences between the awards committee and the Academy's board of governors, were Bob Hope who received a special plaque for his many contributions to charitable undertakings for building goodwill for the industry; and to Col. Nathan Levinson for outstanding service to the industry and the army during the past nine years, which made possible the present efficient mobilization of the production of army training films.

No award was made of the Irving Thalberg memorial this year.

"Less Than Half as Many Cost $11,000,000 More"

By EARLE A. DYER

WASHINGTON—Motion picture producers in 1939 turned out less than half as many features as they did in 1937 but spent over $11,000,000 more in their production, it is shown by preliminary figures just released by the U. S. census bureau.

Issuing its first report on the 1940 census of film production, the bureau disclosed that 520 features, 27 of them in color, cost $132,186,453 in 1939, compared with $120,820,554 expended on 1,097 features, 12 of which were in color, in 1937.

On the basis of the boxoffice receipts of $673,045,000 recently reported by the bureau for the exhibition branch of the industry, the motion picture theatres of the country took in approximately $4 for every $1 spent in the production of features, shorts, educational and news films.

More Firms Producing

The 1940 canvass shows that in the preceding year a total of 178 producing establishments were in operation, their total expenditures being $215,664,929, compared with 83 establishments spending $197,741,358 in 1937.

"Although the production of motion pictures is not a manufacturing industry, its commercial importance is so great that data in regard to it have been collected at the biennial censuses of manufactures for 1921 and subsequent years," the bureau explains, pointing out that since the first survey, when expenditures for 1921 were found to be $77,000,000 the dollar cost of film production has trebled.

"The unique nature of the picture production industry is indicated in the census report," Acting Director Vergil D. Reed comments. "More than $93,000,000 was paid out in executive, supervisory, clerical and star salaries, representing nearly 50 per cent of all production costs. Wages paid to skilled and unskilled manual labor amounted to less than half of the salaries paid to executives and creative talent."

Employment and Salaries Down

While the number of salaried officers and employes was cut sharply between 1937 and 1939, from 13,060 to 9,635, salary payments showed only one-third as great a decline, from $102,393,327 to $93,341,137, the report discloses. On the other hand, the average number of wage earners increased 24 per cent, from 19,338 to 24,052, but wage payments rose only 23 per cent, from $37,157,753 to $45,735,926.

Other expenditures were $43,051,733 for studio supplies, containers for films, fuel, and energy, compared with $35,574,879 in 1937; $3,644,889 for contract work compared with $7,012,657, and $29,891,244 for other expenses compared with $15,602,742.

Only slightly more than half of the country's producing establishments were located in California, but the 93 in operation in that state in 1939 spent $186,848,971, or some 85 per cent of the national total. In 1937, there were 35 establishments with expenditures of $171,943,349.

Sixty-five of the California establishments were located in the city of Los Angeles and reported expenditures of $95,320,051, compared with $87,765,452 reported by 24 in 1937; and 23 were located in Los Angeles county, their expenditures of $91,448,650 comparing with $84,177,897 reported by 11 establishments in 1937. In the San Francisco area, the bureau reported five establishments with expenditures of $80,270.

Gain in N. Y. Establishments

California accounted in 1939 for 30,263 of the total of 33,687 persons engaged in the industry and for $130,981,076 of the total of $139,077,063 paid out for salaries and wages.

New York was reported as having 43 establishments with expenditures of $18,059,670 in 1939, against 21 with expenditures of $16,377,532 in 1937. In 1939 a total of 1,845 persons were engaged in the state and salary and wage payments aggregated $4,874,802.

The only other states to have more than two producing establishments in 1939 were Illinois, nine with expenditures of $499,152; Michigan, five with expenditures of $1,765,472 and Missouri, five with expenditures of $166,876. There were 23 establishments in all other states, with Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania each reporting two, and Iowa, Maryland, Texas, Washington and Wisconsin reporting one each.

Light December Trading By Company Officials

WASHINGTON—The final December report of the securities and exchange commission on transactions by corporation officers and directors in the stocks of their companies shows only operations by two Universal corporation officials.

The SEC reported that Preston Davie, New York, director, acquired 400 common voting trust certificates and Peyton Gibson, New York, officer, acquired 100 certificates. At the close of the year Davie was reported as holding 3,000 and Gibson 1,400 certificates. Standard Capital Co. was reported as holding 26,500 voting trust certificates and 111,283 warrants.

AAA Panels Named In Two More Keys

New York—The American Arbitration Association during the week listed partial panels for two more cities, Seattle and New Haven. This leaves two to go. Detail on Seattle on page 88-A. On New Haven, page 113.

NSS Sues Casanave; Casanave Sues NSS

NEW YORK—Herman Robbins and Toby Gruen, as directors of National Screen Service, have filed a civil action in supreme court against Charles L. Casanave and National Screen Accessories, subsidiary of the parent company in which Casanave has a 30 per cent stock interest and a contract as vice-president and general manager which runs for 11 more years.

The plaintiffs assert Casanave borrowed $30,000 from NSS in 1935 with which to purchase a 50 per cent interest in American Display Co., jointly operated by Casanave and Harry A. Samwick, and one year later sold that interest to Advertising Accessories. The complaint alleges Casanave then consummated a deal between the two companies by which American Display was to manufacture all product distributed by Advertising Accessories but that in so doing he allegedly committed fraudulent acts and secretly obtained a 109 per cent overage for himself on all business done between both firms.

Four Causes of Action

Actually, there are four causes of action in the complaint, all based on the charge Casanave "made divers false representations and entered into divers secret and undisclosed agreements in violation of his duty as an officer and director" of NSA . . . "whereby the plaintiff corporation and the defendant corporation have been injured and deprived of secret profits" alleged to have been personally accumulated by Casanave. Nowhere is Samwick made a party defendant.

The plaintiffs seek in excess of $45,000, representing sums allegedly unlawfully received by Casanave, that he be compelled to hold in trust all future money acquired as a result of the deal between American Display and Advertising Accessories, the sum of $5,000 alleged to be a "kickback" in a stock transfer, and an accounting by reason of the losses alleged to have been sustained by NSS and AA.

Casanave has filed a counter suit in which he seeks a declaratory judgment declaring his acts to have been legal and proper and charging that a "conspiracy" was entered into between directors of NSS and subsidiaries to the detriment of AA. He also charges the parent company has made improper allegations against subsidiary companies and asks the appointment of a master to ascertain the financial status of NSS insofar as "illegal practices" have been committed.

Nat'l Theatres Advance Guard Heads for Coast

LOS ANGELES—Due here Monday from New York in advance of the annual meeting of National Theatres divisional operating heads for the week of March 6 are William T. Powers, Edward Zabel, Harry T. Cox, Aubrey Schenck and Peter Lundgren. Spyros Skouras will fly in from the east later.

BROADWAY

THE social season took a long stride forward Saturday evening when about 900 members, guests and distributor representatives jammed the main ballroom of the Hotel Astor for the eighth annual dinner dance and show of the ITOA. There were no speeches. Instead there were two orchestras — Eli Dantzig tooting domestic type music and Zito, dispensing the rhumba variety. Then a flock of Broadway stage and visiting screen personalities. The ballroom decorations, carried out in the patriotic hues of red, white and blue, evoked considerable comment from the guests. Credit for the arrangements goes to Dave Weinstock . . . Paul Ash, Roxy orchestra maestro, has a piece of the House of Chan . . . Edward Casanave, brother of Charles, is no longer with Advertising Accessories . . . Walter Gould was in Florida for the weekend to visit his family . . . George Dembow was home very early Wednesday and for an excellent reason—it was Mrs. Dembow's birthday.

Joseph A. McConville, Columbia's foreign manager, returned to Florida over the weekend en route for a month's business trip to Central America. He is repeating the first leg of the same journey he began on February 21, which took him as far as Florida, but when he was informed of the accident involving Jack Segal, his assistant, he returned here immediately. Latest word at the General Hospital at Paterson, where Segal is confined, is that he is showing signs of improvement, but will be laid up for some time . . . Leo Pillot of Monroe Greenthal's staff has taken to skiing and has two very blurred photographs and nine bone bruises to prove it . . . Leonard Picker, Columbia attorney, is due back Monday from a second installment of Miami, the first having been cut short by business.

Herman Sussman has gone to Miami. He's the upstate exhibitor who is an uncle of Bill Sussman, eastern division head for 20th-Fox. Incidentally, Bill plans to resume his tour of exchanges on the decree. Fred Pride, attorney who had been accompanying him, was in Madison for the past two weeks on the La Crosse case. Now that it's over, Sussman and Pride will get together again . . . Henry S. Griffing, attorney for Griffith circuit in Oklahoma City, was in Washington conferring with department of justice representatives on the anti-trust suit pending against the circuit . . . Fred Schwartz and Charles Stern spent the weekend in Lake Placid . . . William White's wife was discharged over the weekend from a local hospital after an operation.

Jay Eisenberg, Loew attorney, lost his mother-in-law the other day . . . Morris Epstein, local Republic branch manager, is back from Miami Beach, but says his wife continues in the winter resort for the balance of the season . . . Homer S. Cummings was in Washington for an important conference, the import of which will become known in a few days . . . Julius Gordon of Jefferson Amusement Co. has been in town from Beaumont, Tex., for Paramount home office conferences . . . Arthur Willi, RKO talent scout, has been upstate catching a couple of shows . . . Cliff Lewis is in town after a cross-country tour with Susanna Foster.

Phil Seletsky and Walter Higgins, film buyers for Mullin & Pinanski, are back in Boston after a three-day session here working out a "Gone With the Wind" deal with Edwin Aaron and Harold Postman of M-G-M . . . Ben Jacobson of Marvin Schenck's staff was confined to his Century Hotel penthouse with a bad cold, while Milton Weiss was the middleman for such items as food and cigarettes . . . Leonard Palumbo of Warner's foreign publicity staff was also on the sick list . . . M. L. Simons, editor of M-G-M's The Distributor, is back from three days in Charlotte on company business . . . Estelle Schrott, formerly eastern publicity representative for Walter Wanger, has finished a novel, "High Noon," which can be seen or heard about through her agents, Ruth and Maxwell Aley. It's a story about Americans in South America. Meanwhile, Estelle is in Mexico City for a two months' holiday . . . Jerry Sager of Loew's publicity staff is recuperating at home from pleurisy.

Martin Moskowitz gets four stars for that one-reel short he produced. It's called "Our Mom," with Lowell Thomas handling the commentary. It was previewed at the Moskowitz Manse the evening of February 21, when Mom celebrated her 77th . . . Eddie Golden has gone back to the coast after several weeks here arranging for his two feature independent productions to be released by Monogram . . . Lester Krieger, Warner Philadelphia circuit booker, paid the home offices one of his regular visits during the week . . . Harry Royster and Harold Greenberg, who formerly made their headquarters at the Paramount home office, are now quartered in Poughkeepsie where they will supervise operations of the Netco circuit . . . Eddie Hyman is in from Detroit and now making his office on the ninth floor of the Paramount Building . . . Abe Leff, his daughter married, has gone to Miami with his wife for a vacation.

Mort Spring returns Monday from Tucson, Ariz., to find his office newly painted . . . Arthur Loew is visiting his son there and then will head for the M-G-M studios . . . Jean Birkahan, M-G-M managing director in Bulgaria, is here after a trip which took him 100 days. He's glad to be here, despite the arduous journey . . . Dorothy Kennedy, Loew receptionist on the seventh floor, has been home ill for about two weeks . . . Bob O'Donnell of the Interstate circuit was in town the latter part of the week . . . Emerson Yorke, shorts subject producer, will make a one-reeler "Big Game of Alaska" for the U. S. Forest Service . . . Nick Schenck and Dave Bernstein the other lunch hour arm-and-arming in a brief walk around Radio City . . . Lou Anger, who has been reported in town, is not expected for a few weeks yet . . . Irving Greenfield, Loew attorney, is Miami-Beaching it for a couple of weeks.

Joe Vogel and Harry Bernstein left Friday for Miami and Havana and a couple of weeks rest . . . Dave Snaper, Jersey exhibitor, is in Hot Springs, Ark., recuperating from a recent illness . . . Harry Brandt leaves for Miami March 4 . . . Joe Lee gets back Monday and on Tuesday Harry Buxbaum will head for the same southern resort . . . On March 21, Moe Sanders will begin his Miami vacationing . . . Dick Kearny of the Feiber & Shea office made a trip to Ohio, Pennsylvania and upstate

Making P. A. Trip—

Wendy Barrie, tall and blonde, arrives in New York from the coast to make personal appearances at Loew's State. She plays one of the leads in "Repent at Leisure."

The Oscar Levants: A Family Album—

Having finished a role in "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" for Paramount, Oscar Levant—he writes and plays music and appears in the "Information, Please" air show of course—arrives in New York with his family. Mrs. L. is the former June Gale. The cutie is Marcia, age four months.

RCA's RKO Holdings Top Six Millions

NEW YORK—RCA lists RKO stock holdings in its asset column at $6,614,434 although indicated market values, as of December 31, 1940 and based on then stock and curb market quotations, are reported at $3,284,302.

The $6,614,434 figure is RCA's investment at cost. Today it is represented by 44,757 and 106/1,000 shares of RKO $100 par value six per cent convertible preferred on which dividends are cumulative from February 1, 1940, as well as 316,328 2/24 shares of $1 par value common and 555,253 3/4 option warrants received in 1940 upon termination proceedings under 77-B. These blocks were transferred to RCA for the 555,254 1/10 shares of old common and $4,485,550.21 in debentures previously held.

The detail on this stock portfolio was divulged with release of RCA's annual report for the year ending Dec. 31, 1940. It shows a consolidated net of $9,113,156, or an increase of $1,030,345 over the preceding year.

Wanger Planning Three Features for 1941-42

HOLLYWOOD—Walter Wanger plans three for 1941-42 release. "Sundown," a Saturday Evening Post story by Barre Lyndon, will be first with Henry Hathaway directing. Second will be "The Eagle Squadron," dealing with Americans flying with the RAF. The third has not been determined, but "So Gallantly Gleaming" has been postponed.

Leo Abrams Takes Over In Gotham for NSS

NEW YORK—Leo Abrams, most recently short subjects sales manager at Universal, is now New York exchange manager for National Screen. This is a new post and was created, George F. Dembow, general sales manager, declares, because the home office personnel was not able to devote the time necessary to its supervision.

In fact, Morton Van Praag, who is midwestern district manager, had been doubling by spending considerable of his time in this territory in addition to other duties. The appointment of Abrams frees Van Praag to pursue his midwestern activities more fully and to take up other special assignments as they arise.

Van Praag Spending Two Weeks in Chicago Area

CHICAGO—Morton Van Praag, National Screen district manager, is here from New York to spend about two weeks in this territory. He had made his headquarters here until a few months ago when he was shifted to New York.

20th-Fox Dividend

NEW YORK—The board of directors of 20th Century-Fox at its meeting Thursday declared a cash dividend of 37½ cents per share for the first quarter of 1941 on the outstanding preferred payable March 31, 1941 to stockholders of record at the close of business March 17, 1941.

Goes to Paramount

NEW YORK—Universal has sold "Nice Girl?" to the Paramount for a run starting March 26. "Spring Parade," the last Durbin, played the Rivoli.

It's Miami and It's Genuine—

A case of distributor and exhibitor getting together, for once, anyway. The fancy regalia is worn by E. M. Saunders, western sales manager of M-G-M; Jack Bowen, New York district manager for that company; William A. Scully, general sales manager of Universal, and A. C. Hayman, Buffalo and Niagara Falls exhibitor. The place is the dockside at Miami after a foray into the Gulf Stream which netted 32 fish and a half, including dolphin, king, bonita and shark. Scully and Hayman both struggled with a 200 pound shark for two hours and lost him.

Capital Board Busy With Trade Plaints

WASHINGTON — Indications that the Washington area is a hot-bed of clearance disputes and that exhibitors are losing no time in having them straightened out under the arbitration setup of the consent decree are seen in the fact that the three cases so far filed with the Washington office of the American Arbitration Ass'n involve that subject.

The third case, filed February 24, was brought by Westway Theatre, Inc., Baltimore, against Loew's, Inc., Vitagraph and 20th Century-Fox, protesting the 14-day clearance granted the Edgewood, operated by the Frank H. Durkee Theatre Enterprises, and involving also the Alph and Irving theatres.

The petition asserts that the Westway, opened in April, 1939, has lost money as a result of the clearance granted the other three houses, and asks that it be permitted to play day and date "with other theatres of its class."

Of the three cases so far filed in this area, two are from Baltimore, both protesting clearance given Durkee houses. The first case, filed by the Walbrook Theatre against Vitagraph and 20th Century-Fox, protesting the seven-day clearance granted the Ambassador, Forest and Gwynn theatres, was the first case to be filed in the country and has progressed to the point where a list of ten names has been sent to the parties involved for selection of an arbitrator. Each party will list the names of persons most acceptable and Harold B. Barton, clerk of the Washington office, will make the final selection from the nominations on March 4, after which a date will be set for hearing.

File Briefs on Remittance Allocations With Arbiter

NEW YORK—Counsel for M-G-M has filed briefs and Joseph H. Hazen, representing the other seven majors, have submitted counter briefs to Milton J. Handler, arbiter in the dispute on allocation of remittances from England for the year starting November 1, 1940. There is no indication when a decision will be handed down.

Seeks Day and Date for Forum in Metuchen

NEW YORK—The third complaint filed with the local arbitration tribunal is by Monseigneur Enterprises, of which Jack Davis is president, and which operates the Forum, Metuchen, N. J. It is against the "Big Five." The complaint charges the Forum is forced to accept unfair clearance imposed by the Paramount, Oxford and Strand in Plainfield. Davis seeks day and date availability.

New Clearance Action Before Boston Board

BOSTON—Garbose Bros., operators of the York and Capitol at Athol, Mass., have filed a demand for arbitration here. They named the "Big Five" and charged product is not available until it has played first run in Boston and Fitchburg. Day-and-date runs with those cities is sought on the ground the York and Capitol are first-run accounts.

Will Study Damage Suit Potentialities

NEW YORK—Before any complaints are filed for arbitration by the recently organized new Allied of New York unit, each will be examined and studied with an eye to filing a case in court for damages, it is stated by a spokesman for the unit.

The new unit is temporarily making its headquarters with Allied of New Jersey. Harry Kridel, who owns the Mayfair, Hillside, N. J., recently filed an anti-trust suit alleging many of the same charges of the government's complaint against all the majors.

The theory behind the law suit angle is that arbitration may prove the solution in some cases, but in others which may be more involved may give the exhibitor an opportunity to recover some of the money he has allegedly lost in so-called unfair clearance and protection by major circuits.

From all appearances, the strength of the newest Allied unit will center upstate, it is believed, although a number of independents locally are actively engaged in furthering a membership drive in these parts.

: The Esquire, Great Neck Complaint :

NEW YORK—Herbert Scheftel, president of the Esquire-Great Neck Corp., operating the Squire in that Long Island town, has filed a clearance complaint with the arbitration tribunal, charging the Great Neck Playhouse, operated by Skouras, enjoys unreasonable clearance of 30 days over his house and seeking relief in the form of "fair and reasonable clearance."

This, the second complaint to be filed locally, is held up by the AAA as a presentation made in model form. The text, consequently, is published:

To Clerk of the New York Tribunal:

The undersigned, in accordance with the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals, demands that the controversy hereinafter described be submitted to arbitration under the Motion Picture Consent Decree and files herewith a Submission dated Feb. 20, 1941, in accordance with the provisions of Section XXII, subdivision 9, of said Decree.

1. Statement of Claim and Relief Sought:

Complainant is the Esquire-Great Neck Corporation, a New York corporation, with offices at 32 East 57th St., New York City. It owns and operates the "Squire Theatre," located at 111-117 Middle Neck Road, Great Neck, Long Island, which was constructed for the showing of feature motion pictures.

The claim is that the "Distributors" hereinafter named have refused to rent and license feature motion pictures to the complainant for exhibition at the Squire Theatre except upon a "clearance" of at least 30 days after the last exhibition of such pictures at a theatre known as "The Great Neck Playhouse," located at 104 Middle Neck Road, Great Neck, Long Island, and which is owned by the Skouras Theatres Corp.

This "clearance" condition is unreasonable. It prevents the complainant from profitably operating its theatre as a feature motion picture theatre and is tantamount to a destruction of the complainant's right to use its property free of unreasonable trade restraints and impositions.

The complainant seeks relief of this and other unreasonable "clearance" conditions and an award directing the hereinafter named "Distributors" to desist from insisting upon any such "clearance" and to rent and license feature motion pictures to the complainant upon such terms and conditions as this Tribunal may deem fair and reasonable.

2. Name and Address of Each Distributor Against Whom This Complaint Is Made:

Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Bldg.; Paramount Film Distributing Corp., Paramount Bldg.; Loew's, Inc., 1540 Broadway; Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp., 1270 6th Ave.; RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., 321 W. 44th St.; Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., 321 W. 44th St.; Vitagraph, Inc., 321 W. 44th St.; 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., 444 West 56th St., all New York City.

3. Name and Address of Each Theatre Involved in Controversy:

Squire Theatre, 111-117 Middle Neck Road, Great Neck, Long Island; Great Neck Playhouse, 104 Middle Neck Road, Great Neck, Long Island.

4. Name and Address of Each Other Exhibitor Whose Property Complainant Believes May Be Affected by an Award in the Arbitration Proceeding:

Skouras Theatres Corp., with offices at 1501 Broadway, New York City, which owns and operates the aforementioned Great Neck Playhouse, located at 104 Middle Neck Road, Great Neck, Long Island.

Dated: February 20, 1941.
Date of Filing: February 21, 1941.
Filing Fee Received: $10.00.

Address: 32 East 57th St., New York City.

Skouras, Warner Settle N. J. Clearance Tiff

NEW YORK—Skouras and Warner have settled their clearance differences in Suffern and Paterson, N. J. A number of weeks ago, Skouras closed its theatre in Suffern for three days when it could not date "The Letter" because of the Warner protection.

While RKO is taking credit for adopting the 9 p. m. last feature plan locally, Skouras claims the Beacon, Port Washington, experimented with the idea as far back as three years ago and for the past two years the Glen Cove, Port Chester and Great Neck have been operating on this idea while the Forest Hills was recently added to the list.

Atlas Is Optimistic Over RKO Future

NEW YORK—Atlas Corp., in its annual financial report for the year ended December 31, 1940, regards its investment in RKO as "optimistic as to its long term outlook," while admitting the company "is now suffering from loss of some foreign markets as a result of the war and as yet has not had sufficient time to adjust itself to a cessation of long-continued reorganization proceedings."

The report reveals Atlas, as of December 31, owned approximately 28 per cent of preferred and 39 per cent of common of RKO, including 120,000 shares of common to be received under allowances made by the court in connection with the reorganization.

Among assets, Atlas lists the 120,000 common shares at a valuation of $450,000, based on December 31, 1940 market quotations. This stock which has not yet been received and $190,561 paid to Atlas in December, 1940 represents the allowance made to Atlas by the district court in connection with the RKO reorganization.

An application made by a former stockholder for leave to appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals was denied by that court, but the time for petition to the United States supreme court for certiorari in respect of such denials has not yet expired.

"Counsel advise that the probability of changing the allowance made by the district court is remote," the report states.

Deep in Amusements

Amusement stocks represent approximately 14 per cent and head the list of general market securities held by Atlas. The listing reveals, among preferred stocks held, 10,000 shares of Walt Disney Productions six per cent cumulative convertible valued at $97,500, and the following of RKO: 7,000 shares of KAO seven per cent cumulative convertible voting trust certificates, $728,875, and 35,481 RKO six per cent cumulative convertible, $1,525,694.

Among common stocks held are 1,001,126 shares of RKO valued at $3,754,224, and 327,811 shares of RKO option warrants valued at $102,441.

The report notes Atlas paid fees during 1940 of $284,050 to Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett for legal services, of which amount $200,000 was for services rendered over a period of several years in connection with the RKO reorganization.

Atlas reports net income of $2,521,022, with surplus at December 31 of $19,888,631. An annual stockholders' meeting will be held April 2.

Herman Starr Doing Well Following Appendectomy

NEW YORK—Herman Starr, New Jersey Skouras division manager, is coming along nicely after an emergency appendectomy and is expected shortly to leave Murray Hill Hospital. Notis Komenos, assistant, is pinch hitting for Starr.

Seven Men to Supervise N. Y. Allied Activities

NEW YORK—A six-man board of directors and a business manager will supervise the activities of the New York unit of National Allied, dispensing with the election of a president and other officers, it was decided at a meeting held at Allied of New Jersey headquarters. The setup will function similar to that of Eastern Pennsylvania, headed by Sidney Samuelson.

Three units will be represented on the board—Max Cohen of Brooklyn and Robert Goldblatt from New York; Leonard Rosenthal and Abe Stone from Albany, and two others from Buffalo to be chosen at a unit meeting March 18.

"La. Purchase" to Para't

HOLLYWOOD—Buddy De Sylva, producer of "Louisiana Purchase," New York musical comedy success, has sold to Buddy De Sylva, Paramount executive producer, the film rights at a reported $150,000.

REVIEW FLASHES

FOOTSTEPS IN THE DARK (WB)—Errol Flynn forsakes swashbuckling and action to play the debonair amateur detective and solve a murder-mystery which specializes in comedy rather than suspense. His performance as a dilettante sleuth is noteworthy as are other elements of the feature, which sums up as an acceptable parcel of diverting entertainment. Robert Lord produced; Lloyd Bacon directed.

GREAT TRAIN ROBBERY, THE (Rep)—On the hokum side from start to finish, "The Great Train Robbery," titled like an earlier and historical namesake, is a solid, more-than-adequate supporting feature. Most of the drama takes place in cleverly handled sequences that constantly keep the action elements in the fore. Cast includes Bob Steele, Claire Carleton, Milburn Stone. Joe Kane directed.

LADY EVE, THE (Para't)—In the sophisticated romantic-comedy vein, this has seldom been equalled this season. Written and directed by Preston Sturges, who was responsible for "The Great McGinty," it looks like a certain success wherever smart, sparkling entertainment is in demand. Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda are co-starred.

MELODY FOR THREE (RKO)—This can be recommended without reservation to fans of the "Dr. Christian" series starring Jean Hersholt, for it possesses the same blend of down-to-earth hokum and comedy which characterized its predecessors. Additionally it presents a promising juvenile player, by name Schuyler Standish, who performs miracles with a violin. William Stephens produced; Erle C. Kenton directed.

Educative Force of Pictures Is Lauded

ATLANTIC CITY—Observations made in various centers throughout the country proved conclusively that, where motion pictures have been used in the presentation of educational material, a greater knowledge of the subject has been gained by students and the vital factor of retention has been heightened and strengthened, delegates to the 71st annual convention of the National Education Ass'n were told by Nathan D. Golden, chief of the motion picture division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

Besides their function to educate as well as entertain, films also can be highly effective during and after the building up of the country's defense program, he added. In this respect he cited figures to illustrate the vast facilities available at colleges and schools for the mass training of specialized crafts in the interest of national defense.

Touching upon activities of industrial organizations which have sponsored educational films for gratis distribution to schools, Golden said: "Some of these companies have had a sufficiently broad vision to eliminate direct advertising and selling elements from their films. In such cases their efforts to reach the educational field have been notably successful. Others, having included a burdensome amount of advertising or blatant sales 'lugs,' have found that, to them, most educational channels of distribution have been closed."

He declared the industry "is now rendering valuable assistance" to the defense program in producing films that will aid in the field of cultural relations and in the training of armed forces, and concluded with:

"The motion picture, in its capacity as a significant aid to defense measures, should not and will not be used as propaganda. The industry fully realizes that motion pictures, to be really useful in carrying out their true defense objectives, must be enlightening, instructive, and devoid of any intent to sway the individual opinions of the persons who enjoy them and benefit substantially from them."

Ships to Have Portable Sound-Picture Units

WASHINGTON—Purchase of 500 portable sound-motion-picture units at $300 each, to be used for motion picture exhibition on ships under war-time conditions, is provided for in an appropriation of $150,000 included in a supplemental money bill now before Congress.

The fund was approved by the house appropriations committee after Captain F. U. Lake of the bureau of navigation explained that the equipment is to be used for showings below decks when ships are darkened. Ordinarily the motion picture shows are given on deck.

"Motion pictures are a vital factor in morale and this equipment has been urgently requested by the commander-in-chief, United States Fleet," Captain Lake said.

May Seek '37 Tax Refund In 20th-Fox GB Loss

NEW YORK—Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th-Fox, in a letter to all stockholders, advises they have grounds to seek refunds on 1937 taxes because of a loss of $4,997,962.99 sustained on the sale of 50 per cent of its holdings in Metropolis & Bradford Trust, which owned GB control, to Loew's.

Pointing out that 20th-Fox distributed $1,450,024.02 in preferred dividends and $4,304,679.04 in common dividends in 1937, the letter to stockholders goes on to say:

"The corporation had net income for the year 1937 substantially in excess of the aggregate dividends mentioned above. It also had a substantial corporate surplus. It is probable that most of our stockholders included the above mentioned dividends in their gross income for income tax purposes.

Taxable Conditions

"Under the income tax laws, dividends are taxable to the stockholders only if they come (a) out of the earnings or profits accumulated after Feb. 28, 1913, or (b) out of the earnings or profits of the current year. The aforementioned dividends did not come from '(a)' above because for income tax purposes no account is taken of past recapitalizations, reorganizations, etc., and as to whether they came from '(b)' above, a question has recently been raised.

"You were advised in the annual report of the corporation for the year 1936 that the corporation had, in the plan of reorganization, dated June 21, 1933, provided a reserve for the revaluation of investments in the amount of $14,500,000 and that such reserve had during the year 1936 been written off of the investment in Metropolis & Bradford Trust Co., Ltd. In 1937 your corporation sold to Loew's, Inc., one-half interest in the corporation's direct and indirect investment in Metropolis & Bradford Trust Co., Ltd., which, in turn, owned stock in Gaumont British Picture Corp.

Loss Realized in 1937

"Under the federal income tax law the loss with respect to the aforementioned investment was not realized until 1937 when the sale thereof was made. It would seem that for income tax purposes the corporation realized a loss in the aforementioned sale to Loew's, Inc., in the sum of $4,997,962.99, although only $2,000 thereof was available to the corporation as a deduction for income tax purposes. There is a possibility that this capital loss, from the standpoint of taxable distributions to the stockholders, had the effect of reducing the amount of earnings or profits in 1937.

"If you included your 1937 dividends from this corporation in your gross income for 1937 income tax purposes you may wish to file a refund claim in order to protect your right to the refund if it should ultimately be determined that some part of the dividends was not taxable income to the shareholders.

"We do not know the formula the bureau of internal revenue would use in determining which particular dividend, or what part, if any, of each dividend, was free from income tax.

"We call your attention to the fact that there is a statutory limitation upon the time within which a refund claim may be filed, so that prompt action on your part may be necessary."

It is understood Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board, paid a tax of $425,000 on the common dividend received and also on the $35,000 preferred dividend. All of the common dividend was paid out of capital, while part of the preferred was paid from capital. This is significant in view of the fact the government is questioning his 1937 tax figures and may wind up refunding the 20th-Fox chieftain a substantial sum. The treasury department here is now checking into the matter and will most likely have a decision before the alleged charges against Schenck are aired before a jury in the local federal court.

Hearings on SPG Petition Postponed Until March 5

NEW YORK—Hearings before the NLRB on the petition of the Screen Publicists Guild to be named collecting bargaining agency for advertising and publicity men and women in New York, were postponed Wednesday to March 5. At that time, Warner and Loew's, whose examination was slated before Dan Baker, trial examiner, must appear with complete records.

Testimony of other companies was concluded last Monday after 15 days of hearings, starting January 23. Ordered to appear had been UA, Columbia, 20th-Fox, RKO, Paramount and Universal, but the probability now is the remainder of the procedure will be speeded.

Representatives of the companies thus far heard again have refused request of the SPG for a consent election, thus following a similar refusal at the outset of the hearings. Meanwhile, SPG maintains it represents more than 90 per cent of eligible publicity department employes in New York.

Producer counsel has been emphasizing the contention artists are not to be considered part of publicity department staffs, while SPG counsel has been opposing this. With the exception of staffs handling foreign publicity, the companies have stipulated acceptance of all other classifications of employes in advertising and publicity departments.

Macgowan Quits Fox Job To Direct Unity Group

HOLLYWOOD — Kenneth Macgowan has resigned a $2,500 a week producership at 20th Century-Fox to become non-theatrical director for the South American Unity Committee at $8,000 yearly. He will headquarter in New York.

Broadway Managers Say Product Weak

NEW YORK—Strong, but not sizzling, is the report of the Broadway managers, despite a big lift from the Washington's Birthday holiday, which, climatically speaking, was perfect. The same, however, cannot be said of the calibre of product on display. In fact, the weakness of a few is seen in the fact they got by only on account of the holiday and were replaced after a week.

Into this category fall "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," at the Music Hall, which brought in "So Ends Our Night"; "Go West" at the Capitol, now tenanting "Come Live With Me"; and "You're the One," out at the Paramount in favor of "The Lady Eve."

"Fantasia" and "Story" Take Philly Honors

PHILADELPHIA—"Fantasia" was the big news last week, getting one of the biggest send-offs in years. Some of the reviews were unfavorable, while others went so far as to call Disney a second Da Vinci, all of which brought out the curious fans. Opening was bought out by the Junior League. "Gone With the Wind" completed a smashing fourth week, but was moved to the Keith's because of product jam.

Ampa Names Committee To Nominate Officers

NEW YORK—A nominating committee to bring in a slate of officers for Ampa, elections on whom will take place April 24, was selected at a business meeting. It consists of John C. Flinn, Ray Gallagher, S. Barret McCormick, Ed McNamee, Charles Alicoate, Joel Swensen and Hortense Schorr, and "Hap" Hadley as alternate. The committee must make its report not later than April 10.

Yorke-Chrysler Suit Tops a Slow Week

NEW YORK—Emerson Yorke has applied to the supreme court for permission to examine Arthur Loucks and John Norling before trial. All three are film producers, with the plaintiff claiming he introduced the defendants to the Chrysler Company for whom they made two stereoscopic shorts. Defendants were paid $100,000 and plaintiff wants $3,750. Defense claims deal was for one film and that Yorke was paid in full.

Application has been made to the supreme court by Minnie Saltzman-Stevens, 62-year-old former Wagnerian soprano of the Metropolitan, to examine officers and directors of Columbia before trial in connection with a $100,000 suit against it. Plaintiff claims Columbia used a photo of her in "I'll Take Romance" without permission. Columbia has entered a general denial.

Suit by Perfume Company

RKO has applied to the supreme court to dismiss a suit by the Caron Corp., manufacturers of perfume. Plaintiff seeks an injunction against "Primrose Path," claiming the picture shows one of its products in connection with a prostitute. RKO is claiming failure to state a cause of action in seeking dismissal.

Federal Judge Henry Warren Goddard has ordered trial of Henry Rose's suit against Marc Connelly, Arthur Kober and Mitchell Grayson for March 4, despite a plea by Kober for additional time. Plaintiff claims "Having Wonderful Time" was stolen from his unpublished play, "Silent Shears." Kober claimed he just secured a four-week job with Samuel Goldwyn to do the screenplay on "Little Foxes" and would be unavailable till April 1, but the court ruled there had been sufficient delays already.

Charles Leach, affable manager of Ross Federal Service, made a one-day business trip to New York . . . Hellman's Palace, Troy, has a tieup with the three Empire Super Markets for 25 prizes on a Saturday "Quiz Night."

Rosenthal's State, Troy, stages a Friday Amateur Night sponsored by a local insurance man . . . Metro raking in the shekels with a dozen prints of "Gone With the Wind" . . . Herman Ripps, M-G-M branch manager, weekended in New York with Mrs. Ripps and their baby boy. Youngster will be brought here in the spring.

Childrens Admissions for 'GWTW' Upped by Loew's

NEW YORK—Childrens admission price for "Gone With the Wind" at Loew houses will be 25 cents, an increase of 10 cents over current scales. The matinee price will be 40 cents and evening admissions will be 55 cents. Nine metropolitan neighborhood houses open with the film March 6 and a week later 16 other houses will begin playing it. In the week of March 20, there will be 26 houses showing film on split and full weeks. The week of March 27 will wind up the engagement in four additional houses.

Consolidated Amusement String Value $600,000

NEW YORK—Purchase price for Consolidated Amusement's string of 20 theatres in the metropolitan area is said to be $600,000 cash. Julius Joelson, former local independent circuit operator and more recently in New England, is understood to have virtually closed for the circuit.

Metro's Far Eastern and Bulgarian Heads Resign

NEW YORK—Morey Marcus, general manager for M-G-M in Japan and China, and Jean Birkahan, branch manager in Sofia, Bulgaria, have resigned as a result of the European situation. Both are in New York, the former for some months, while the latter recently arrived.

Assign Bradbury Foote

HOLLYWOOD—Bradbury Foote will script "Squatter's Rights" for Producer Harry Rapf at Metro.

Jackter in Charge of Columbia Campaign

NEW YORK—Rube Jackter, assistant sales manager, will be chairman of the company's committee in charge of "Columbia Exhibitors' Goodwill Campaign," sales drive which started Saturday and terminates May 30. His aide-de-camps will be Louis Astor, Louis Weinberg, Max Weisfeldt, Maurice Grad, Henry Kaufman and George Josephs. A series of awards, as usual, will go to winning branches.

Briskin to Hollywood

NEW YORK—Samuel J. Briskin, Columbia studio executive, left for Hollywood Friday after conferring here several days with Jack Cohn.

Union County Grand Jury Orders Bingo Stopped

ELIZABETH, N. J.—The Union county grand jury held in a presentment that Bingo is gambling and must be stopped, regardless of the purpose for which it is played.

The Tabs Society, Catholic organization, and the Elks Club were chief sponsors of the game.

Silverstone Back

NEW YORK—Murray Silverstone, UA executive head, is back from an extended Hollywood trip during which discussions leading to a termination of Samuel Goldwyn's association with the company were discussed, but not finally consummated.

Erpi Executive Tells of Improvement in Orient

NEW YORK—Returning after a five-year assignment in the Orient, R. E. Warn, assistant manager for Erpi of Australia, stated theatre business in the Far East, including the Malay States, Straits Settlements, New Zealand and Australia, has shown considerable improvement in the past few months.

New theatres are being constructed in Batavia. The Patanakorn, to seat 2,000, is being built in Bangkok, while improvements continue to be made in other houses, he said.

With plans set to sail for New Zealand in April, Warn and his wife are now here for a brief visit, then will go to Washington, Houston, and a few other points.

Michigan Gridiron Star To Make Columbia Film

NEW YORK—Columbia has signed Tommy Harmon, 21-year-old Michigan football star, for a one picture deal at $13,500, with Harmon to report to the studio after graduation in June. A deal is on the fire for Harmon's running mate at Michigan, Mike Evaskaveski, to appear with him. The Everett Crosby Agency is handling. On completion of the Columbia contract Harmon will probably land at WJR, Detroit, as a sports commentator.

For Economical Air Conditioning and Refrigeration

COMPARE THESE 10 CARRIER FEATURES

1. Wide range of capacities up to 1000 tons.
2. Wide range of temperatures as low as minus 130°F.
3. Applicable to all refrigeration requirements.
4. Dependability proved by hundreds of installations.
5. Minimum power consumption and unusually small refrigerant loss.
6. Low maintenance cost through simplicity in design.
7. Compact — no special foundations necessary.
8. Superior operating performance inherent in machine.
9. Refrigerant with highest A. S. R. E. safety rating.
10. Oil economy with small charge and negligible losses.

What This Engineering Achievement Means to Your Theatre

You don't have to be told about the benefits of air conditioning . . . how it keeps the box office working overtime . . . how it cuts cleaning bills almost to nothing . . . how it pays for itself in new profits within just a few years. But perhaps you don't fully realize the long record of performance of Carrier Centrifugal Refrigerating Machines in reducing the operating and maintenance costs of air conditioning. Here are just a few of these records in theatres: E. F. Albee, Cincinnati —13 years; the Allyn, Hartford— 12 years; the Ambassador, St. Louis —15 years; the Byrd, Richmond, Va.—12½ years; the Capitol, Shamokin, Pa.—14½ years; the Clinton, Columbus—14 years; the Coliseum, New York—14 years; and the Fabian in Hoboken, N. House Appeal a Point of Issue Under the Consent Decree

Exhibitors who have read the rules of arbitration to apply under the Consent Decree must have noticed that for the first time in moving picture trade relations, house attraction and operating efficiency become practically a condition of contract.

There's a strong inference of this in Section VI. of the decree from which we quote: ". . . if the exhibitor can satisfy reasonable minimum standards of theatre operation."

There's even more significance in Section VIII. where in paragraph (3) we find: "The character and location of the theatres involved, including size, type of entertainment, appointments, etc."

But in a sub-paragraph (C) of Section X. we find the strongest possible implication wherein "the character, appearance and condition of each, including its furnishings, equipment and conveniences" is referred to.

That physical condition and appearance of theatre properties will be a strong point of arbitration under the decree is a rather foregone conclusion. One major producer-distributor has already announced the completion of a theatre survey with expressed intent to permit only theatres in good condition to play his product.

As the original and a long consistent advocate of the boxoffice value of house attraction, we can now see no good reason for disagreement with these protective provisions of the code.

Since the public has so volubly expressed its preference for the comforting effects of the modern theatre, and so positively its distaste for the other kind, we believe most exhibitors will now try to put their houses in proper shape to qualify — and with a margin to spare.

The Refrigerative Form of Air Conditioning for Theatres

SUCCESSFUL methods for the systematic control, regulation and distribution of temperature in moving picture theatres have finally simmered down to a comparatively few recognized means, the choice of which depends in large measure upon the object to be arrived at.

The question is whether the theatre owner wants to make his patrons comfortable at all times and in all seasons, during hot spells, cold snaps or the muggy weather often encountered in between. Or does he merely wish to make his house meet the extremes of the weather variation which nature has seen fit to provide?

To go all out for complete air conditioning; or to barely provide enough of it to get by during the peak periods of necessity. The choice should be made between these two possible objectives before the selection of a system or method is ever attempted, regardless of the size or situation of the theatre.

If it is decided to do the job completely and finally, with intent to solve the air conditioning problem permanently, then the next logical step is an engineering survey and a careful study of all conditions relating to the project, such as structural limitations, dimensional data, local weather conditions, power costs and any other contingencies that may have a possible bearing on the means of accomplishing the objective—a completely air conditioned theatre; or a partial solution for temporary relief.

The Method Discussed

In this instance we shall discuss one method of arriving at the goal which records of performance seem to have confirmed as one of the best, if not the best, method of air conditioning theatres for comfortable occupancy at all times of the year. We refer to the centrifugal (refrigeration) type of weather-making machinery which lends itself admirably to a wide variety of industrial purposes and is particularly adapted to theatre air conditioning.

Whereas formerly this type of machinery was considered too elaborate and costly for the average condition of theatre operation, and especially for theatres of smaller capacity, product engineering and specialization in manufacture have now practically removed that impression, and today we find the centrifugal refrigeration method most successfully used in small-sized theatres, where long-standing air conditioning problems have finally been met completely and satisfactorily solved.

The centrifugal refrigeration method of air conditioning, as represented in modern machinery of latest development, is quite easily and understandably described. In certain equipments adapted to theatre use, increased efficiencies have been achieved by improvements in the centrifugal compressor, evaporator and condenser, the three major parts in addition to which all equipment is included to make each machine a complete self-contained and compact unit. Horsepower has been reduced by 10 per cent to 15 per cent for all sizes of machines. Sound level of operation has been lowered, external appearance greatly improved, and the refrigerant pump has been eliminated.

The new special extruded extended surface tube is used in the evaporator and condenser for high efficiency, economy and further compactness in design. The lineal feet of tube required for a given capacity have been reduced by 50 per cent or more. This has led to a great reduction in the size of the evaporator and condenser.

Economy Factors

The new tube surface is not only economical and space-saving, but it also makes possible an efficient evaporator for a refrigerant recirculating pump, motor and distributing system. The special tubes are so designed that they may be removed and Exterior view of Loew's Mt. Vernon Theatre superimposed on a view of the auditorium. The Mt. Vernon is one of three Loew's Greater New York houses completely air conditioned by the centrifugal refrigeration method last Spring and the interim results are said to have fully substantiated all claims made for the modern type of systems installed in this theatre as well as the Plaza in Corona, L. I., and the Sheridan in Greenwich Village, N. Y. (Photos courtesy Carrier Corp.)

Cover Plate

An intimate view of the heart of a modern air conditioning system of the type referred to in this article. A close-up picture of the weather-making machine in Loew's Mt. Vernon Theatre, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., comprising Carrier's latest Model 17-M, an improved centrifugal machine for comfort air conditioning; a 150-horsepower unit with a maximum capacity of 160 tons of cooling effect. Identical equipments were installed in two other Loew's theatres, the Plaza in Corona, Long Island, and the Sheridan in Greenwich Village, N. Y. (Photo courtesy Carrier Corp.)

replaced without disturbing the tube bundle.

Available equipment in one of the most popular centrifugal lines now includes 24 compressor sizes, nine evaporators and nine condensers. The three elements—compressor, condenser, and evaporator—have the same relative location in the assembly; therefore, irrespective of size, each refrigeration machine in this line is similar in appearance.

The line referred to represents years of experience in designing and installing this type of refrigeration for industrial processing, air conditioning and low temperature requirements. Installed machines range in refrigerating capacities from 60-ton units to 1,100-ton units, and produce temperatures from minus 100 degrees Fahrenheit to those needed for comfort air conditioning in theatres.

The refrigerant used is non-toxic, non explosive, non-inflammable, highly efficient, listed in Group 1, by American Standard Safety Code for Mechanical Refrigeration. The modern machines are compact, self-contained units, comprising evaporator, centrifugal multi-stage compressor and condenser on a single foundation.

The compressor rotor is statically and dynamically balanced. Impellers are lead coated. The complete oiling system with pump is integral with compressor.

Advantages Defined

Certain advantages for greater economy, ease of installation and higher efficiency are characteristic in the new centrifugal systems. As enumerated by a leading manufacturer who has pioneered in the development, these advantages are as follows:

(1) Easily installed, compact, relatively light weight. Machines are designed for simplicity of assembly. Erection consists only of bolting a few parts together.

(2) Any standard drive is applicable. Synchonous motor, induction motor, slip-ring motor, or steam turbine may be used for driving compressor.

(3) Improved heat balance. The centrifugal machine may be fitted into plant heat balance when driven by a suitable steam turbine. It may be driven by high pressure steam and supply low pressure steam for heating or other industrial purposes, by low pressure exhaust steam, operating, condensing, or a combination of the two. The steam turbine exhausts clean steam, free from contaminating oil.

(4) High, sustained efficiency. Two shaft bearings and a thrust bearing are only rubbing parts. No valves or piston rings to wear and replace. Oil and liquid refrigerant are not intermingled, eliminating fouling of heat transfer surfaces.

(5) Easily maintained. Wearing parts are few and are readily accessible without progressive dismantling of machines.

(6) Superior operating characteristics. Capacity can be varied economically over a wide range by comparatively slight changes in speed. The temperature of the brine leaving the cooler can be controlled automatically, within close limits, with either steam or electric drive, by means of speed control.

(7) Less supervision required. Inherent constant temperature characteristic requires few adjustments and hence less supervision. Because of inherent constant temperature stability, constant speed may be employed with comparatively minor adjustments for temperature control.

(8) Operates with negligible vibration and no shock. Massive foundations are unnecessary, moving parts are light in weight and in perfect dynamic balance.

(9) Machines are safe. Safe low pressure refrigerant. Moving parts are enclosed. Cooler operates under vacuum, condenser slightly above atmospheric pressure.

Three Cases in Point

Year 'round comfort air conditioning by the refrigeration method is employed most successfully in three of Loew's, Inc., Greater New York theatres, the Mt. Vernon in Mt. Vernon, the Plaza in Corona, Long Island, and the Sheridan in Greenwich Village. The installations were made last Spring and operating efficiency and cost records have since confirmed the good judgment of the owners in selecting this type of equipment.

Pictures of the Mt. Vernon Theatre installation are presented here. It as well as each of the two other houses referred to is equipped with a 150 h.p. centrifugal refrigerating plant, consisting of a compressor of latest type complete with water cooler and condenser arranged for cooling tower operation.

These centrifugal machines, operating as refrigerating units with coolers and condensers, act to chill water at approximately 46 degreees Fahrenheit. The water is then piped to the various fan systems in which are located the fin type chilled water coils, over which is drawn the air that is to be dehumidified, cooled and later distributed within and throughout the theatre for utmost comfort to the patrons.

The centrifugal machine has long been known to have the desirable characteristic of "floating on the load." By this is meant that with small reductions in load in the theatre, which, of course, are liable to occur many times during the day, the centrifugal machine tends to follow this reduction in the brake housepower requirements for driving the machine.

New Features of System

Many new features of the refrigeration method of air conditioning which now attract the theatre buyer include a reduction in the over-all dimensions of the machinery, a greater selection of sizes to fit the individual requirements, improved performance and efficiency, elimination of the need for a liquor pump on the cooler, and the embodiment of a standard economizer with every machine to reduce the brake horsepower per ton requirements.

Thus with capacities to suit the requirements of all theatres, from the largest to the smallest, now available, and at costs well within the means of all profitably operated theatres, the small capacity houses are no longer denied the use of an air conditioning method that has created a new conception of year 'round comfort regulation for theatre patrons, whose appreciation of the value of air conditioning has risen sharply and will continue to rise.

Proper outlets to direct the conditioned air are an economy as well as a comfort element for the patrons. They eliminate waste by controlling the flow of this comfortized atmosphere.

TRADEWINDS

A MONTHLY WEATHERVANE ON CURRENT EVENTS IN THIS AND OTHER INDUSTRIES AFFECTING THE INTERESTS OF THEATRE OPERATION.

Dealers and Manufacturers Hold Pow Wows in Worthy Purpose

Two important events in theatre equipment circles took place recently, both of which may be considered as harbingers of better service and greater satisfaction to the theatre industry at large.

The independent theatre equipment dealers, until recently quite dormant as to organization activity, gathered in Chicago on February 8th for a 3-day session. Some 25 delegates were present at the inaugural meeting in which a new organization, the Theatre Equipment Dealers Protective Association was formed and placed under the direction of Harry W. Graham, of Graham Bros., of Denver, Colo., who was elected Executive Secretary of the group, which will be materially augmented by the addition of new members.

Some 25 manufacturers renewed acquaintanceship with their distributors at this meeting and discussed product, policies and price structures and other problems of sales and service arising under the government's defense program and resultant increased business activity.

Concurrently National Theatre Supply Company summoned its branch managers to New York (February 9-14) for another of its regular round table discussions of service problems and demonstrations of equipment with the design of improving the service to their customers.

The meeting was attended by manufacturers of the most important products distributed through National who participated in the 6-day program, presided over by the company's president, Walter E. Green. The meeting was said to be entirely educational in its aims.

Unlike customary dealer-manufacturer gatherings of the past, wherein better service to the customer has been a subject of secondary discussion, the two current meetings were characterized by a very worthy purpose to improve the services of dealership in all particulars.

It is mighty encouraging to observe that theatre equipment manufacturers and their dealers have finally begun to merchandise their wares.—THE EDITOR.

Apartment Villages in Large Cities create ready-made movie sites

SMALL towns, with all their intimately pleasant characteristics, are not uncommon within our large cities in this day and age. We are encountering this new community spirit—a new social plan prompted by modern ways of living on a higher scale to be shared by groups in a leveled income bracket. The housing project, designed originally as a slum clearance measure and since deemed practical for middle-class families as well, has brought new and higher standards of living to the major elements of large city populations.

In every large city throughout the country, we have seen developed during the past several years apartment villages, some Government sponsored, others privately owned, and in every case the modern community homes have brought a higher standard of living for the money expended for rent by their tenants. The satisfaction and pride of occupancy inherent in these large housing projects—whether for the very low wage-earning groups or the middle-class elements, who found they could get more for their rent-money in these modern community apartments—is one of the success elements which have made them more popular and profitable than was even hoped for by their protagonists.

Trend to Better Living

That this new housing trend is highly important to theatre people cannot be denied. With the higher standard in living conditions comes also a demand for higher standards in entertainment and the places in which these better housed populations will seek their amusement. In almost every case of a new housing project, there is need also for a new or enlarged moving picture theatre of the proper type—modern and functional, yet not necessarily overpretentious.

New housing projects in large cities provide practically ready-made patronage for theatres located adjacent thereto, inasmuch as the mushroom growth and expansion of such a group of potential patrons can almost invariably keep a theatre well filled from those residing in the community alone. It must be remembered that such projects within a large city often house more families than does the average small town.

For the past several years this publication has noted and called attention to the new trend in large city housing and its resultant effect upon the entertainment phase. It has been our belief that large-scale public housing is greatly influential upon theatre appearance and efficiency in metropolitan areas and thus upon the community house wherever it may be located—in proximity to middle-class homes in large cities or in average small towns throughout the country.

Entertainment a Necessity

Because of the nature of large housing projects in cities, i. e., that they are almost always situated in areas lately cleared of slums or on sites which were formerly unoccupied, it almost necessarily follows that a new theatre will have to be constructed to accommodate the large incoming population which immediately enters the so-favored district. And because of the modern efficiency of the apartment homes, only the most modern and functionally efficient theatre can be expected to satisfy these enlightened tenants.

For this reason, modern housing precepts and modern community theatre construction go hand in hand insofar as public appeal is concerned. When the lower and middle classes are better housed, they must also be conveniently and comfortably entertained. We can be proud that modern showmen are quick to take cognizance of this fact and provide handsomely for these ready-made audiences. The community theatres being constructed to accommodate housing project tenants are in almost every case outstanding examples of modernity and efficiency, which, of course, is highly essential if they are to compete with the charms of these modern firesides.

A study of a modern housing project brings to light many things of interest to theatre owners who believe in keeping abreast of the living habits and customs of the general public and their potential patrons. Modern living has influence on even the least of us in even the remote locations, and this new trend in big city living will have repercussions on even the small towns and hamlets of the country.

Loew's new American Theatre (foreground) is one of the chief contributions to better living in Parkchester, new apartment community of 12,200 families now being completed by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in the Bronx, New York. This view was photographed a few days after opening of the theatre on December 26, 1940. The thoroughfare is East Avenue.

A Planned Community

So let us now consider Parkchester. Here is an extraordinary housing project, the like of which has never before been seen in the United States. Parkchester is the modern conception of a completely planned community, providing modern housing at lowest practicable rentals, and furthermore, achieving sanitary wholesomeness, convenience and beauty.

Located in the densely populated East Bronx section of New York City, Parkchester is a complete community which is larger than the average small city. It occupies 129 acres and its 51 apartment buildings range in height from six to twelve stories. The 58 buildings in all which comprise the project, however, cover only 35.5 acres or 27.4 per cent of the land. Landscaped and recreational areas account for 66.6 acres or 51.4 per cent of the land; streets or parkways cover the remaining 27.4 acres or 21.2 per cent of the site.

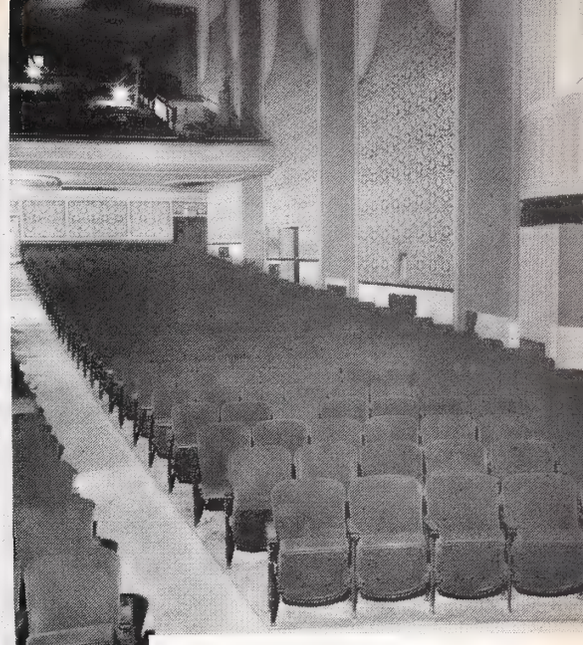
As yet, Parkchester is unfinished, despite the fact that it is already a functioning community. Since March 1st of last year, families have begun to move into the progressively finished buildings, and when the project is finally completed some time during the present year it will have housing accommodations for 12,200 families or about 40,000 persons. Nowhere else in the world perhaps will so large a population enjoy such uniformly modern living conditions.



Parkchester was conceived and built by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company to provide for families of the middle income group, whose incomes range from about $1,800 to $4,500 a year. It contains apartments of the highest standards at the lowest possible rentals, and emphasis was laid on wholesome outdoor environment—a factor which has been sadly missing in the living conditions of this class in large cities heretofore.

Recreational Provisions

The community's spacious open areas will contain several thousand newly-planted trees, handsome lawns and a wealth of shrubbery. The plan provides many play areas and much outdoor play equipment also is included. In addition, upon final completion there will be about 200 stores of the highest type, which will be located in a major shopping center and in "neighborhood" shopping areas. Macy's only New York branch will be opened in Parkchester within a short time.

At the very outset when plans were in first consideration, a modern motion picture theatre was contemplated by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company as a most necessary adjunct to the huge housing development. And in all promotion of the project to potential tenants the modern theatre was placed high among the advantages as an appeal factor.

At left—Entire mural and cove decorations on sides of orchestra walls of Loew's new American Theatre, in Parkchester, a new housing development in the Bronx, N. Y. Above—Side view of orchestra and balcony showing comfortable seating facilities and a portion of the mural decorations in the new community playhouse.

Loew's new American Theatre was opened with much music and pageantry in Parkchester on December 26th to add a final flair and fillip to the outstanding project. With their own entertainment facilities right on the grounds, the well-housed tenants now have all that can be desired in modern living.

The theatre is centrally located and architecturally a most important part of the housing plan. The house seats 2,000 persons and is modern to the minute in design and functional equipment. John and Drew Eberson were consulting architects to the Board of Design of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in its construction.

In every respect, the new American Theatre is a model community playhouse. Its attractive exterior serves as a beacon of brilliance for the entire neighborhood and the interior is an ensemble of refined decorative appeal. Modern murals and effective cove lighting highlight the comfort and convenience of its functional furnishings. The amusement facilities here are entirely complementary to the wide scope of Parkchester's housing accomplishment; a factor which is of major importance to builders of theatres in any community.

Doob and Harry Karasik, of Loew's Theatres, at the opening of Loew's new American Theatre, Parkchester, East Bronx, N. Y. The Borough President is seen cutting the ribbon which surrounds the cellophane wrapped boxoffice, a fitting Christmas present to the new tenants of Parkchester.

A much higher degree of experience and skill on the part of the air conditioning engineer and contractor is required to design a winter air distributing system than is required for a summer air distributing system—yet many theatre men think only in terms of summer cooling.

Automatic temperature controls take all the guess-work and foolishness out of the operation of an air conditioning system. They promote economy also.

Give Us FRESH AIR!.... or elsewhere we'll go for it

by ANSEL M. MOORE

WE, THE PEOPLE, SPEAK! And with finality we here and now inform you gentlemen of the great moving picture industry that we will no longer go for (or to) stuffy, ill-smelling, germ-infested theatres.

We, the People, protest against the seeming indifference of some of you toward our physical well-being in the winter time. Yet you do expect our patronage, perhaps on the theory that we've nothing better to do for our indoor pastime.

But men who think so, that's just where you're wrong. We can not only find other forms of diversion, relaxation and pleasantry; but since we're noticeably becoming movie-minded again, we can actually and quite readily find what we want in some other theatre nowadays. Maybe not right in our immediate neighborhood, as we'd prefer it, but not too far away to be within driving range.

So you still think (or don't you?) that air conditioning is simply a hot weather expedient—a thing to be thought of and exploited to our gullibility during only three or four months of the year. If you think so, gentlemen, you're wrong there too.

Here's Your Cue

Comfortable occupancy is a year-round contingency with us come Winter, Spring, Summer and Fall and with each of these seasons and in between them we demand pure, fresh air, tempered to the normal requirements of comfort, health and sanitation. If we don't get it at your house we can (and do) go elsewhere.

We, the People, have no doubt that most of you have already begun to think of cooling us off in June, July and August, 1941. This is the time of year when as a matter of habit you all turn almost instinctively to tender thoughts of how to intrigue our summer fancies and take in more of our shekels during the hot spell. Don't get us wrong. We appreciate your brief seasonal concern and we'll still show it at your boxoffices this summer. But what burns us up is that you fellows "blow hot and cold" on the subject of theatre air conditioning.

Some of you who have good air conditioning systems (and not too many have them) allow them to lie dormant and unattended during about nine months of the year. But with the call of the first Robin you fellows who put it off again last summer begin to bestir yourselves and warm up to the subject. By mid-summer (if you're lucky with deliveries and installations) you'll get something done—if you don't go and put it off again.

Then after awhile when Old Man Heat and his playmate Humidity begin to bear down heavily on your boxoffice receipts you'll drag out the icicle-festooned banners and with pictures of icebergs and polar bears, try blatantly, but not very subtly, to proclaim to Us, the People, that you've really got air conditioning in your place of business.

Frankly, most of us no longer fall for this perpetration of fraud on the fair name of air conditioning. To appeal to us effectively your house must give us comfort in January as well as in July. We don't compromise on mere summer cooling, whether you propose to do it by cold storage, clammy air circulation or any other contrivance you choose to foist upon us in the good name of air conditioning.

Give us Fresh Air, Gentlemen, properly tempered, frequently changed and fairly distributed to all parts of your theatre. Give it to us not in cold blasts or heat waves, but through a system that is efficient for your locality in all sorts of weather and during all seasons of the year.

Just Between Us

Now, We the People, want to let you in on a little secret. It may be news to many of you. In case you are already aware of it, this may still serve as a reminder. We have learned that the secret of being comfortable and at ease lies in our not being conscious of what causes us to be comfortable. That may sound funny to some of you but it's a fact, nevertheless.

When we enter a modern theatre, a night spot or a nifty eating place where everything is in apple pie order we at once settle into a calm and appreciative concern for what is to be set before us. It may be a screenplay, a strip tease or a sizzling steak. If we're made comfortable at the start our complete enjoyment of the fare is practically assured.

On the other hand, such aggravating distractions as drafty air distribution, intermingled with chills, hot flashes, clamminess and nauseating odors causes us to immediately become hypercritical of the whole layout, including the house, the merchandise and the management.

We, the People, ever more frequently nowadays find ourselves in places of business (theatres too) where we don't even give a thought to our physical condition. There is nothing amiss in such places to remind us to look for discomfort, nor are we greatly interested at the moment in knowing what makes us so comfortable.

Afterwards, perhaps on the way home, we begin to recall how the place appealed to us. Come to think of it now, everything seemed to have centered on one objective: To make us want to come back again. The details, overlooked at the time, because of the business that brought us there, are now recalled, point by point. The place had—yes, you've guessed it—House Appeal.

The Happy Medium

In the attainment of this thing called House Appeal, there is a happy medium with respect to air conditioning that many theatre owners seem to have missed, and the omission is dangerous. We, the People, like fresh air—but not too much of it and no less of it than it takes to keep us comfortable. Its ministrations must be governed by good common sense, which we know, of course, isn't always exercised around the average theatre. Knowing this, air conditioning engineers have devised automatic control, a godsend to temperature regulation and its beneficiaries. It may never be possible to exactly please all of Us, the People, all of the time in the matter of heat and cold regulation. The average theatre audience is usually about evenly divided between the hot and cold blooded patrons among us with a few extremes on each outer end of a scale running to norm at the middle.

Automatic (hands off) control of an efficient year-round air conditioning system of adequate capacity range to suit all seasons and with effective distribution to all parts of the house, is just about what the faithful old family doctor would order for Us, the People, if he were consulted professionally in the prescription of air conditioning systems for your theatres.

We've accused you of "blowing hot and cold" on this air conditioning problem. Now we want to qualify that accusation and let someone else share with you the blame for it. So here and now we make air conditioning manufacturers with their rush-season selling methods and long "rest periods" an accessory before the fact. Very few manufacturers of equipment make any concerted effort to sell theatre air conditioning outside the so-called "theatre cooling season." Ask them why and they'll tell you a bit sheepishly that "It's no use. Theatre owners won't buy our equipment

Porcelains, Glasses and Plastics.... Our Modern Allies

by BILL J. MOORE*

THE Architectural profession knows possibly better than all others, how history repeats itself in periods, styles and materials. Yet, periods, styles and materials are often disguised in a new era to such an extent that they are hardly to be recognized.

As an illustration of an old material coming back popularly to be used in an entirely different manner, we cite porcelain enamel. Porcelain enamel is very, very old. It has been made and used so long its origin was lost centuries ago.

Thousands of years ago nations of the Orient, China especially, were making porcelain enamel. The larger metropolitan museums, art schools and some private collections still have porcelain enameled art objects hundreds and thousands of years old, all in perfect state of preservation.

But, in spite of the fact that the art of making porcelain objects has been known all this time, it was left to the present generation to find a new use for this old material in applying it to theatre building construction.

Still another ancient material, glass, has come out of hiding and presented itself in an entirely different form, for the architect to use and present to this new era, with originality, permanence of color, and flexibility of design in forms and styles so different and yet simulating so nearly the ancient arts of the glass blower.

The glass blower in days gone by created forms, shapes and effects most beautiful, yet they were impractical for use as a building material. These old shapes and forms are being recreated today in very much the same styles, but of a much stronger and more durable product, with strength to withstand modern day strains on building materials; thus the history of styles and materials repeats itself in glass.

However, in the midst of an age in which history is continually repeating itself, we designers are presented with an apparently new and different material, the plastics. While there are numerous plastics on the American market today, most of these materials have very much in common with the new adaptations of porcelains and glass. They have strength, permanence of color and offer flexibility to the architect in designing for the needs of his client today.

Thus, today, as during the colorful "Regency" period of English history, the architect is called on to give his client new, colorful and elegant designs to satisfy the present desire for glistening brilliance in building construction. In order to do this, he must have numerous materials with which he can accomplish his purpose of obtaining strength, durability, permanent color, light and originality in his building designs.

Porcelain enamel, glass and plastics have all the characteristics mentioned above and the following things in common, namely:

(1) Porcelain enamel is merely powdered glass fused to metal by means of intense heat.

(2) Glass, plastics and metal come from heat and special processes applied to substances of the earth.

(3) All three, glass, plastics and porcelain enamel can be formed or molded to practically any size, shape or form.

We theatre architects feel that these materials are "Modern Allies" combined together to fight with us against the cold, formal and dingy buildings of an era gone by.

Good Lining Protects Carpet Over Concrete

Many modern fireproof theatres have carpet laid right over concrete sub-floors; thus saving the price of hardwood flooring for rooms which are to be fully carpeted. On this basis alone, the carpet pays for itself, not to mention later savings in costlier upkeep for wood floors, such as refinishing, polishing and so forth.

Good carpet lining is essential always and especially so when carpeting over concrete. First, because it is impossible to tell just what chemical action the concrete may have on the back of the carpet in case of accidental dampness. Second, because concrete is hard.

Announcing the New

IRWIN CLIPPER

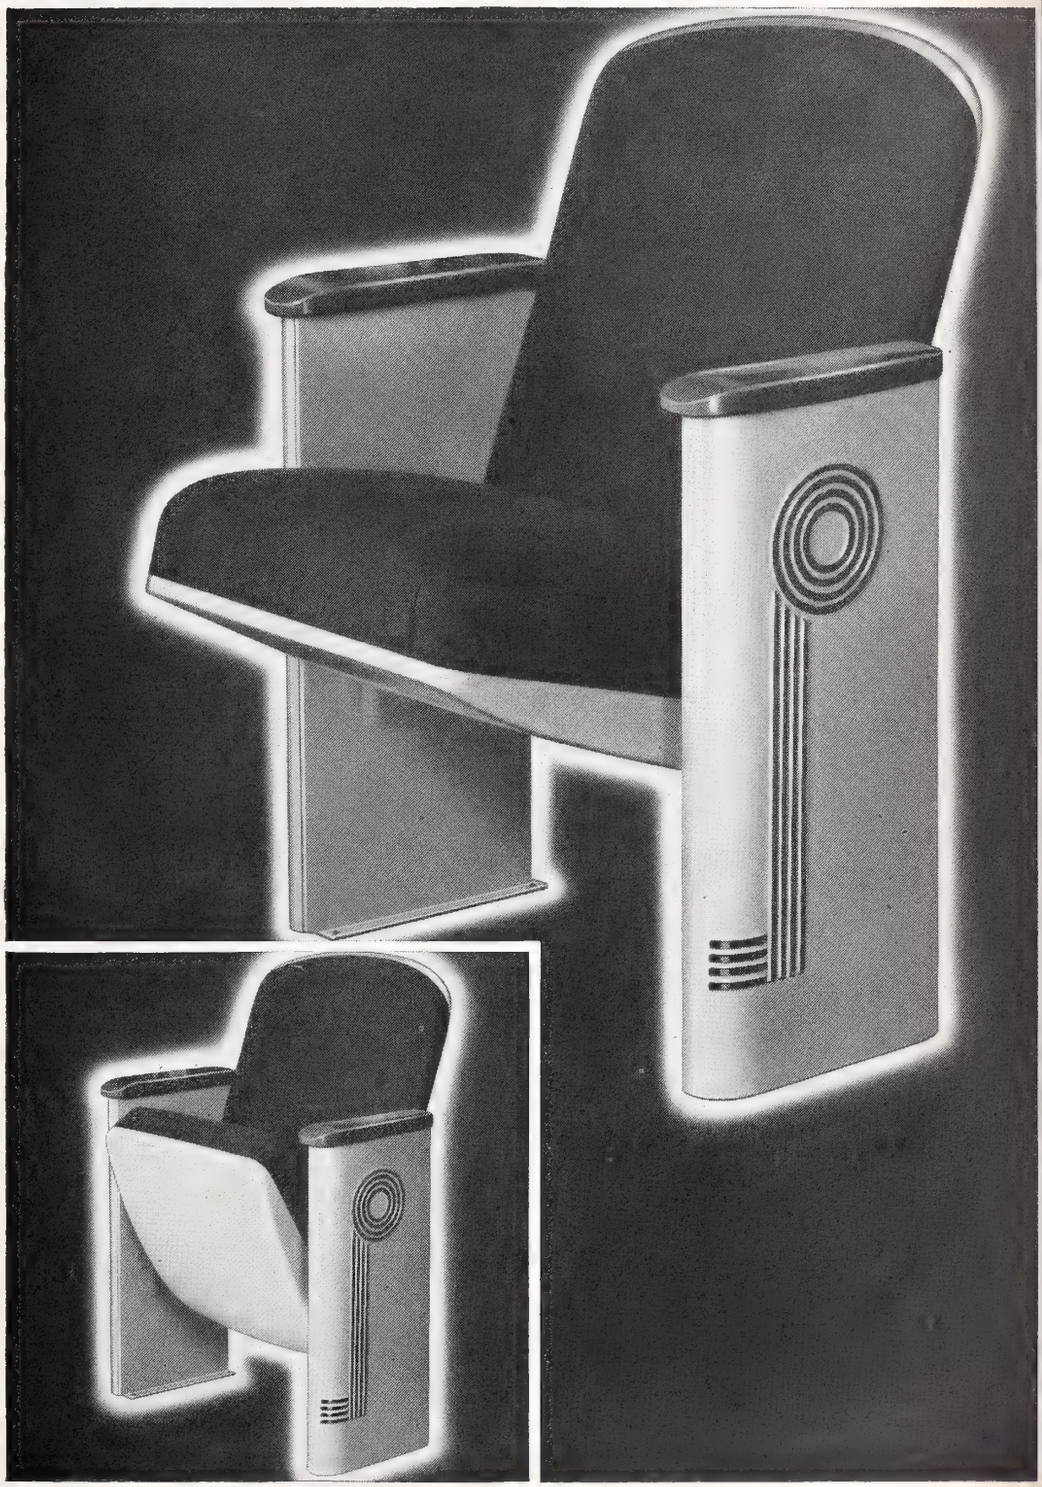
A chair that offers the latest and finest developments in theatre seating — at extremely moderate price!

This exceedingly fine new chair has been specifically developed for the "high quality, low cost" buyer — the man who wants all the boxoffice drawing power that good seating can contribute without paying a premium price for it. Note the beauty of its design and the highlights of construction given below:

Steel Seat Bucket completely encloses under side and edges of seat.

No Screws or Bolts Exposed anywhere on the chair.

Full Steel Back Panel with rolled edges covering and protecting the edges of back upholstery. Available with extension of back panel to protect seat covering from feet of occupants in the rear.



Seats—Unusually Wide and Deep. Available with the exclusive new FLEX-STEEL spring construction — the last word in comfort and durability.

Steel Panel Center Standard — full depth and extending to the floor with smooth tubular edges.

Back and Seat Upholstery quickly and easily replaceable.

Arm Rests attached without use of screws.

Seats and Backs align perfectly in all installations.

AIR CONDITIONING

DEVOTED TO A BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF TEMPERATURE CONTROL IN THEATRES

Co-ordination of Parts Makes a Competent Air Conditioning System

by GORDON H. SIMMONS*

I AM a curious, nomadic sort of a cuss. Even when I am physically inert tho' that is seldom, the mind and the spirit in me wanders over the face of the earth. Only this I know and that is, in some way, some how, I must do something that will make me realize that I am a success, that I have lived victoriously, or something.

It is not enough to be born, marry and have children, make a sufficient amount of money and then die. It is hardly enough to have friends and accumulate a little knowledge. I have some of both. I have received too much at the hands of my friends, too much from Nature itself, to just "take it and quit."

I want to give back part of it. I don't want to stop feeling that I am a debtor to Life. I want to think I've added some small thing to the ease and the joy of living. I want to be remembered for something when I'm dead.

I'm too old to place much faith in knowledge. Too young to have much wisdom. And too ignorant to write about the deep things I have discovered in humanity and in Nature. Like a child who sees a rainbow in the sky yet has no words with which to describe it poetically.

Hope I've Helped

To those of you who have read my platitudes about air conditioning, let me say that while I might know how to make myself physically comfortable, I do not necessarily know how to make myself spiritually so. But I have derived pleasure out of serving some of you and that helps.

I do hope that air conditioning practice in theatre circles has been somewhat improved and that maybe I've helped to improve it. Furthermore, I hope that you have relaxed somewhat on the "price" angle in the interest of obtaining better air conditioning quality. I hope also that I have mitigated somewhat the confusion in the minds of many of you as to what really constitutes proper air conditioning.

I have tried to show you that winter air conditioning is important too. Tried to impress upon you the importance of winter fresh air in your houses. Tried to make you realize that real air conditioning, both summer and winter, makes the cash register ring up faster in the boxoffice the whole year 'round.

But when I appeal to your financial interest, I am merely baiting a hook with which to catch you by. I am just as much interested in those customers in your house as I am in you and I want to bring them some comfort too.

I am too prone to say what I think and too inept with words to say it diplomatically. A theatre owner once asked me to estimate the cost of an air conditioning system for him. He had unusually good local conditions favoring an inexpensive installation so I told him I thought it could be done for $1,500. He smiled sardonically and said, "I can do it for far less than that." I am afraid I replied in pretty drastic style.

A Jack-Leg Job

I said I had seen too many jobs done by theatre owners "for less." Told him that the jobs I had inspected proved to me that what theatre owners did not know about air conditioning would fill a great big book. That a theatre owner might install a good job if he had a proper plan and followed it, but that the kind of a job he would do for less than $1,500, either with or without a plan, couldn't afford comfort to the occupants of a doghouse, much less the patrons of a movie theatre. This is being sarcastic, I suppose, but I do not mean to be. There are certain elements required as ingredients for a good air conditioning system, just like making a pie, that cannot be bought for less. At present prices, anyhow.

This man had 52-degree water and a small house. So I figured about as follows: (Prices may have since gone up).

Cleaning the air (filters)	$ 100
Moving the air (blower)	165
(motor)	125
Cooling the air (coils)	600
Controlling the air (dampers and controls)	200
Distributing the air (ducts, pipe work and installation)	400
	$1,590

Leave out or cheapen any item of the above essential items and he's got no job. But put the job in the way I would specify and it would be an inexpensive one, yet no one would dare to call it cheap. I don't do cheap work. There is already too much of it being done and I don't like competition.

Every one of the items of equipment called for in the above estimate is made by nationally known manufacturers, as well known to the air conditioning industry as Paramount in Hollywood is known to you.

If you never made a pie before, you had better follow a recipe and use good ingredients. And whether or not you ever installed an air conditioning job before, you had better have an engineers' plan and specifications. Now I have already supplied many of these and often at my own cost. But I can't get anywhere by assisting you one at a time. I must work on you en masse. I must establish criteria and succinctly say what each item of equipment must do to properly play its part.

Repetition

Deliberately repeating what I've said many times before, a minimum of 20 c.f.m. per seat and a maximum of 30 c.f.m. per seat can be used, depending upon locality. This establishes the capacity of the blower. The usual air velocity through a filter is 250 ft. per minute, which establishes the filter size and capacity. The usual velocity of air through a cooling coil is 500 ft. per minute, so if you wanted to cool 10,000 c.f.m of air per minute you would need 20 square feet of coils.

But the depth of those coils, that is the number of rows deep, depends upon who makes them as well as the temperature of the cooling medium. It can be cold water if available, or it can be a refrigerant gas. The depth of the coils depends too upon the amount of fresh air you propose to use.

Now the amount of calculation necessary to ascertain the proper depth of coil for you to use on your job, is so involved and complicated that it would be utterly useless for me to even try to discuss it with you in print. Nor could I do it at all unless I knew WHO makes the coil. Any attempt to buy a cheap coil does not give you a cheap job, it generally just gives you no job at all.

There are some coils on the market that can be used for heating as well as cooling when supplied with hot water or steam from a suitable boiler. Any coil made out of thin copper strips and then dipped into a bath of solder to hold them together, but which can stand no more than 30 lbs. pressure, is most unsuitable. If any coil offered you looks like your automobile radiator, lay off of it as if it were the plague. Many of them are efficient, I suppose. But too many of them have sprung leaks. They are not structurally built to stand up under continued use. I could give the roll call of good ones, but should I leave one out I might get my ears burned off.

School of Experience

I persist in wondering about many things. I wander all over the land inspecting the good and the bad about air conditioning while wondering how I can convey my findings to you in a manner that will save you from making the mistakes I've seen made.

There is so much about theatre air conditioning that is unconstitutional. Many indoor climatic conditions that wreck the constitution of a healthy man. In one instance I was put to bed for a week, and I am a pretty tough hombre. This has happened to me once before. Years ago, I went to bed with cramps occasioned by one of my own air conditioning jobs in a tavern. I no longer drink 50-degree beer in a 70-degree atmosphere and then take a brisk walk out-of-doors when it is 100 degrees in the shade. "Experience is a hard school but fools will learn in no other."

I cannot see that the average job has improved very much in quality since one of my own put me to bed. Nor can I find that the ideals of engineering practice in regard to it have been raised very much either. Learned engineers discuss temperature and humidity, air movement, air distribution and methods of cleaning it as if that were all. There is a quality about air conditioning not measurable by instruments that does bring refreshment instead of lassitude.

It is possible for a patron to walk in and out of doors with impunity without having the feeling that somebody has hit him in the head with a brick. If you walk out of your house on a hot day and promptly feel miserable, your air conditioning system (if you have one) is a flop and I don't care if the archangel himself installed it. Your patrons will not enjoy it any more than you do. Yet you charge them for undergoing such treatment, under the guise of good air conditioning.

Still, there are some theatre air conditioning jobs whose maintained excellence of operation actually proves that real air conditioning is here. And strange as it may seem, these jobs often cost less than some of the ones complained of. Not only that, but their operating cost is less and their repair bills are lower.

The Why of a System

Even if I were able to make you thoroughly understand the functions of each part of an air conditioning system, this would not be enough. Nor would it be necessary. These parts must not function as separate units. Not any more than your hands and your feet. Your hands and your feet are coordinated so that they implicitly obey your will. You don't think of them ordinarily as separate parts of your anatomy.

And so, the very minute that any part of your air conditioning system starts to function independently, you haven't got a "system." Nor air conditioning either.

The coordination of the essential parts of a system is the essential thing about it. No factory manufactures coordination as something that can be shipped to you in a box. An automobile is a coordinated thing when you get it. But you have to drive it. If you don't coordinate your driving you're liable to wrap yourself around a telegraph pole. You have to furnish the brains. But an air conditioning system is a bit different—it has to have brains built into it so that it will run itself, because experience has proved that when theatre owners or their

Simmons' Q & A Corner

Problems presented herein are bona fide and are not imaginary concoctions for the purpose of misrepresenting reader interest. Original signed letters are on file for examination, subject to the approval of correspondents.

Air distribution is a subject of common complaint among theatre owners who write me. Inadequate provision and cheap installation is usually the cause. The following letter from a theatre owner out in Western Kansas is typical of the troubles I've seen:

The Letter: "I am having some trouble with my air conditioning system and am enclosing sketch of layout with information.

"I do not use this in my heating system at all so this phase of it will not need to be considered.

"The building is built of cement blocks and lined with an insulating board called . . . and is similar to the other standard insulating boards.

"If there is any more information you need I will do my best to furnish it. Our elevation here is 2,500 feet and it is rather dry most of the time.—F. D. M."

My Answer: "I assume that you have an adequate amount of cooling and are only troubled with air distribution. Now throwing air from stage-end a distance of 100 ft. is hard to do. What your job requires is an overhead duct system.

"If you cannot install overhead ducts, I would specify very special air diffusion grilles to replace the ones you have. And while your air distribution would be greatly improved, your condition would not be entirely cured.

"Based on the information you furnished me about your blower, I guess you are supplying 20,000 c.f.m. for 360 seats. And you are bound to get 'breeze' in an auditorium 100 ft. x 24 ft. x 15 ft. (av.) ceiling. Besides, handling 10,000 c.f.m. through a single grille (you have two) is an engineering feat in itself.

"The maximum air I would handle on a job your size would be 10,000 c.f.m. or 5,000 c.f.m. through each grille. But if your system was slowed up to deliver this little air, you might not get very much cooling. In fact, the type of system you have requires 'breeze' in order to work at all.

"Now I can better distribute our breeze if that is what you want. You probably have strong drafts or wind blowing on certain sections of seats in your house. All we can do is 'zephyr' your customers instead of trying to blow some of them out of their seats.

"If that is what you want, please let me know. But if the rear of your house is sultry when crowded, I should know this too. I think that it is.

"At the moment, I am air conditioning a prominent restaurant that is 100 ft. deep. I must introduce my air at one end and suck it out at the other end. I cannot depend on blowing the air because of many decorative ceiling obstructions. I only have a 10 ft. 6 in. ceiling height.

"I realize my neck is stuck way out. But I can usually secure results by doing things I dare not preach about. For instance, I am using a very low volume of air of very high quality. The dew point of this air will be close to 40 degrees F. And the restaurant might be at a temperature of 85 degrees while the customers feel delightfully cool. This is a higher grade of air conditioning than is possibly installed in any theatre. It costs no more; but theatre owners just don't know about it. Such jobs require a high degree of engineering skill and I'd hesitate to handle such a job entirely by mail.

"I probably could have installed such a job for you for the money you have already paid. But since you must now use what you have, I can only alleviate a condition instead of entirely curing it.

"If you will check me on the c.f.m. delivered by your blowers, give me the size of your present air supply grilles, also their distance from each side wall, I can possibly give you a recommendation. I note that you failed to enclose stamp for reply. You now owe me two. I'm a stamp collector.

"What saves your situation is the dryness of your climate. Should you have a stuffy condition in the rear of a crowded house, you'd better measure the temperature of the water in your air washer pan as this establishes for me the "dew point" of the air you are using. I'd also like to know the temperature of the air leaving it. Also your outside temperature on the day you make your other temperature readings.

"This is all I need in order to diagnose. But without such information, I would only be guessing. Still, at times I am a pretty good Guesstimator. If I could guess as good on a horse race, I'd quit air conditioning.—G. H. S."

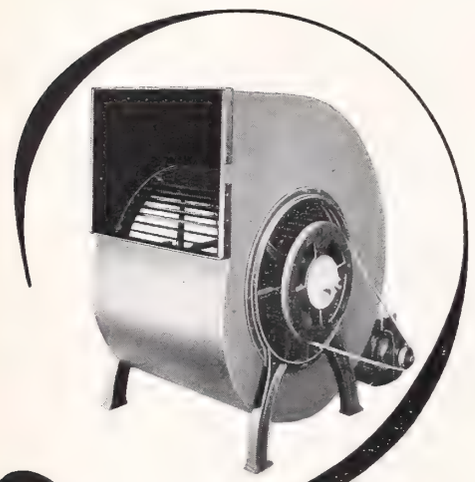
employes try to drive their air conditioning plants by hand, unaided by controlled regulation, they usually drive their patrons to distraction—or to another theatre down the street.

It so happens that proper air conditioning calls for the use of so many of the laws of physics that you theatre owners are not expected, nor do you need, to know them. Practically no contractors and very few equipment salesmen seem to know them, either. But we engineers do and it is our job to practically apply them. Sometimes it is quite a job, believe you me.

To sum it all up, simply, what is required for a proper air conditioning system is to hold inside atmospheric conditions at some constant value regardless the vagaries of the outside weather. And while there may be many ways and different equipment offered to do it with, these ways and all equipment must conform to the physical laws governing or else—you've got a sour job.

You Can't Gyp Nature



I never saw such an attempt in any industry and by so many men, who should know better, to jump back fences and circumvent the laws of Nature by installing air conditioning systems that were damned at their inception.

Human nature being what it is, somebody is going to sell you something if you are in the market to buy. And when you tell a salesman or a contractor to "sharpen his pencil," don't think for a minute that he is going to shave his profit entirely out of the deal. He'll just whittle some of the value out of it—something vital that should go into the job in the interest of securing a proper result. Thus he sharpens his pencil the better to stab you with.

A great many letters I write theatre owners when they ask for advice about something recommended to them as a "big money-saver," is to say in reply, "You can't do that!" Naturally I give my reasons. Being forewarned is being forearmed. We can do this much for you. Maybe we can help prevent mistakes. Is this worthwhile? That's for you to say.

In conclusion, a few "Don'ts"—simple suggestions to save you from trouble: Don't try to air condition your house with a ¼ h.p. motor for your blower. Don't blow air from the rear and down somebody's neck. Don't dump it in the auditorium from the stage-end either, through two open spouts six to eight feet from the floor. Don't use less than 20 c.f.m. per person for auditorium only, and if you are in the Deep South, you might have to use 30 c.f.m. of air. Don't freeze your customers on a hot day by keeping the temperature at 70 degrees. Don't fail to do something about the humidity. If you don't know what to do, you might ask. Don't overlook your air distribution; it's vital. Don't ask anybody for a set of plans unless you really intend to buy something. Good plans are expensive, even when you don't use 'em.

Don't blow the patrons out of their seats in summer and suffocate them in winter and then expect them to come back in spring and fall, when conditions are not so drastic. Give them proper air conditioning the year 'round.

worried about the draft?

Movie patrons are the most fickle people in the world. Sometimes even a few wafts of extra hot or cold air carry them right out to be seen no more!...Then there's objectionable stale air, and improper humidity...nothing like these to pull patrons out of a theatre. (As if you didn't know!)

Now if you're worried about one of these conditions, or any combination of them, turn to General Electric. All the improved apparatus you need for a 1941 air conditioning system can be had through G-E—condensing units, controls, compressors; water conserving devices; oil or gas fired units for winter air conditioning—whatever you need!

Get an all year 'round, efficient system by the world's largest electrical manufacturer—who has gained an enviable reputation in commercial refrigeration and air conditioning through 25 years of research, manufacture, sales and installation.

There's a complete G-E brochure, "Air Conditioning for Business," that you should own. Send for yours today. Read it, and then call in your local engineer or contractor to discuss a G-E installation. It's the first step toward making your air conditioning headaches disappear!

FACTORIES AT WORK

A series of introductions to theatre equipment manufacturers and the methods behind their products.

A Peep Into the Fiery Furnace and the Production of Plate Glass

THERE'S something extra thrilling about a factory inspection tour where fiery furnaces gape and offer a blistering threat to all of us wide-eyed and curious explorers of production phenomena who come to look and learn. We always enter with a suspicion that we're doing something dangerous and inevitably we emerge feeling considerably smaller in stature and filled with wonder at the marvels we've seen wrought.

It was decided among us that for this trip we'd brave a temperature of 2,635 degrees Fahrenheit (we wouldn't actually be there, but we'd be mighty close) to find out how plate glass and its very near relative, structural glass, are manufactured at the No. 4 Works of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company at Ford City, Pa.

But first, we decided to check up on the history of glass-making as a sort of ground-work for our sight-seeing investigations. We learned that this industry has a life story which went back for its beginnings thousands of years before the Christian era. It was something whose discovery or invention is obscured by time, but its production has maintained the romance of antiquity. However, we do know that it was used principally in the olden days for its artistic and decorative value and had very little more practical use.

Historical Notations

Glass as we know it today is a relatively new product. Its combination of beauty with transparency and usefulness is of comparative recent discovery. From antiquity to the Middle Ages in Europe and thence to America, where its manufacture was unable to gain a real foothold until as recently as fifty years ago, glass-making has had a romantic history.

The corporate life of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, one of the pioneers in this industry in America, had its beginning in 1883. Prior to that time attempts to manufacture plate glass in this country had been unsuccessful because of inefficient equipment, shortage of skilled labor, insufficient capital or bad management. However, the raw materials from which glass was made were abundant in America, and finally, through training, a number of skilled glass artisans were painstakingly developed.

Today, America leads the world in flat glass production and there has been no interruption in the progress of this industry. The modern miracle of polished plate glass and related products as they are turned out today through the application of mass production methods have proved themselves of great benefit to the public as well as to all industry.

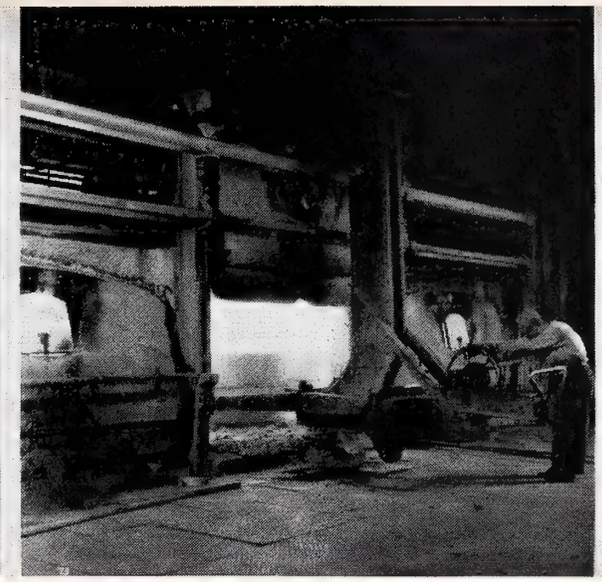
SOURCE: Clean silica sand is thus obtained from both open pit and under-ground mining. View of a sand mine operation in Missouri.

Glamour of Operation

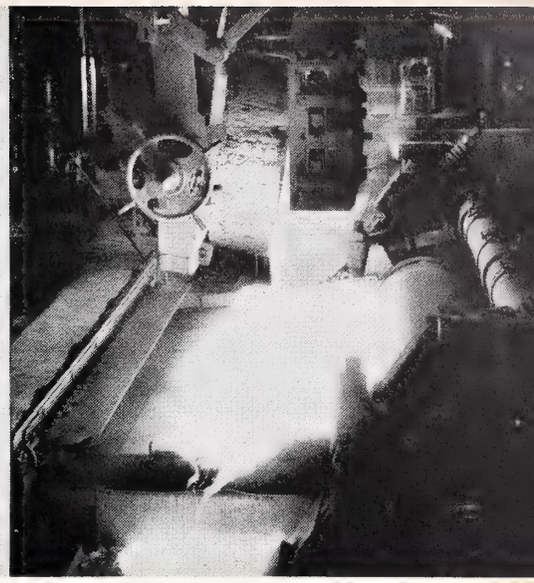
Now we were ready for our inspection of a plate glass plant in actual operation. The color and glamour of such an experience can only be hinted at here, but a practical explanation of what goes on in a modern glass factory can well be gained from words of description and the photographs here shown.

We learn first that there is one characteristic of plate glass manufacture in which it differs from all other types of flat glass—that is that all plate glass is ground and polished. Further, there are two chief methods of plate glass manufacture—the pot casting and the continuous methods—which are essentially alike save for the preliminary processes involved. The older of the two, the pot casting method, is used primarily for making plate glass and structural glass of larger size and thickness, while the continuous method is generally employed for making plate glass of smaller size and thickness.

Next, we examine the raw materials which go into the making of plate glass. The main ingredient is sand; clean silica sand which is obtained both from open pit and underground mining, and which is carefully graded. With the sand is mixed limestone, soda ash, salt cake, arsenic, charcoal and common table salt in varying amounts. The final ingredient is cullet, or broken glass, enormous piles of which may be seen glistening in the sun around any glass plant. Together, these raw materials form the "batch" from which plate glass is made.



The Batch Is Fired



The pot-casting method involves the use of huge pots or crucibles, in which the "batch" is melted in the furnaces. Having been heated to furnace temperatures, the pots, composed of scientifically conditioned fire clays to withstand the enormous heat, are placed in the furnace and then loaded with "batch" by means of a long-handled ladle. During 36 to 48 hours in the furnace, the pots must be refilled several times since the "batch" shrinks as it melts and each pot must be full of molten glass at the end of the melting. It is during this time that the furnace attains its maximum heat of about 2,635 degrees Fahrenheit.

At the end of the melting period, a huge crane-operated pair of tongs removes each pot-full of molten glass, which is now red hot and incandescent from the terrific heat and the glowing, orange-red "taffy" which it contains is extremely beautiful and brilliant with color. From here the pots are placed in a smaller furnace called the soaking pit to prepare the "metal" exactly for casting.

The giant tongs again grasp a pot and lift it over the forming rolls, tilt it, and the molten glass pours into the shallow hopper formed by the rolls. The forming rolls are like the rollers on a clothes wringer, except that they are very much bigger and longer. The molten glass, usually cast at a temperature of 2,000 to 2,050 degrees, emerges from between the rollers as a wide flat plate of glowing hot glass, the thickness of which is determined by the distance separating the rolls.

From the casting rolls, the plate passes on a slowly moving table into the annealing oven where it is cooled gradually. The annealing oven is many hundreds of feet long and the glass plate passes through it very slowly, consuming about an hour and three quarters in its journey. Upon its emergence from this process, the glass is cut into large sections by skilled workmen, after having been carefully inspected by men sitting in the very mouth of the oven, whose job it is to watch for defects and destroy marred portions of the plate.

How It Looks Now

At this stage, we examine a plate of glass to see just what it looks like now. It is not the clear, brilliant material we are used to thinking of when we say "plate glass." Rather, it is rough surfaced and almost opaque. But the process is only half completed, as we learn from our informant.

Now a moving belt takes the sections of rough glass to another part of the plant where each section is lifted by vacuum disks onto a moving table coated with plaster of Paris and passed to the battery of grinding and polishing machines. Each grinding machine consists of an enormous metal disk, shod with iron runners, which revolves at high speed over the surface of the glass. Between the grinding disk and the glass, sand mixed with water is used as an abrasive.

As the glass progresses from one grinder to another, the abrasive sand becomes finer in texture until the last few grinders are fed with emery down to a consistency of talcum powder. Polishing then is accomplished by similar revolving disks, shod with thick felt pads instead of iron, and iron oxide, or "rouge," is used as the polishing agent. The grinding and polishing processes are repeated on the other surface of the plate of glass and the final steps in the process consist merely of a bath in muriatic acid and careful inspection for imperfections or flaws. Then the plates are marked and cut to desired sizes—and the glass is ready for shipment to the user.

Thus our inspection of another of the theatre's basic supply sources ended. As a user of plate and structural glass for both exteriors and interiors, the modern moving picture theatre is one of the prime beneficiaries of the glass producers' art. And so, this pictorial plant inspection tour would seem to be highly in order and of intrinsic educational value to theatre owners, their managers, their architects and others who are called upon frequently to exercise the privilege of product selection. We found it decidedly so.

THRU THE PLANT

(1) How silica sand, soda ash, limestone, and other raw materials are assembled in the plate glass factories in bins. Each batch of materials to be used for glass making is weighed with the same care a good housewife uses in making a cake. Workman is here seen using the delicate scale. He is protected from dust by a special mask.

(2) The batch is now placed in large clay pots and shoved into a huge furnace as shown by the action here.

(3) After the batch is melted sufficiently it is carried by means of cranes to this set of rollers. The mixture is poured between the rollers which flatten it to the desired thickness. This picture shows glass being poured from the pot into the rollers.

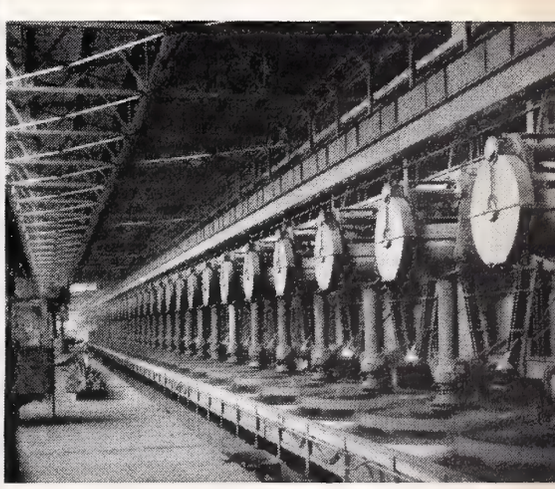
(4) After passing through the rolls the hot glass is immediately run on rollers into the annealing oven, which is essentially a long brick tunnel through which the glass slowly rolls. In this manner it is carefully and slowly cooled and emerges from the rear end as rough glass.



(5) The rough glass is fastened to the tops of huge cast iron tables with plaster of Paris. Note action of workers in foreground. These are then pushed under a large battery of revolving grinding and polishing wheels.

(6) Sand of increasing fineness is used as an abrasive as the glass passes under them. The last polishing step is effected under felt-lined wheels where the glass is polished with the use of rouge (iron oxide).

HOW MUCH COST TO INSTALL AIR CONDITIONING

THE answer to this question is what the exhibitor seems to want more than anything else. It determines how much money he will have to raise to equip his theatre. At the same time, it is the most difficult question for the expert engineer or contractor to answer. These experts have a well-founded fear of answering this question. They may know quite well what is the average cost to set for installing air conditioning in what they call a normal theatre. But, they have learned from bitter experience that these guesses cannot always be right and that the exhibitor has all too frequently misled himself by accepting these figures as representing actual equipment firm prices.

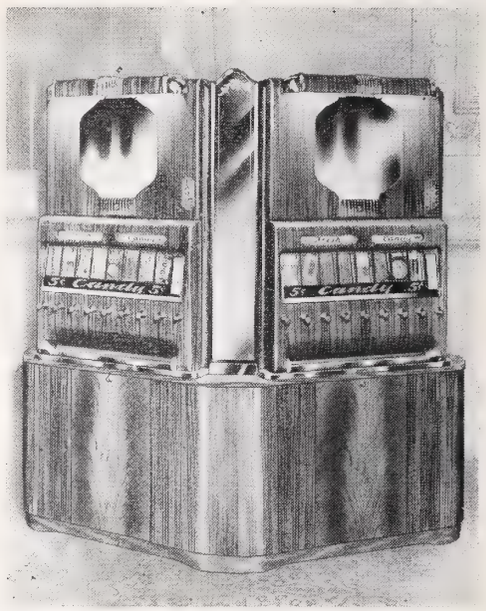
The reason why prices cannot be pulled out of the air is that cost of a theatre installation may be divided into ten major items, each of which will vary down or up for many reasons. The expert engineer or contractor cannot tell what it will cost to equip a theatre until after he has spent many hours examining it and has taken many bids from sub-contractors. These bids will cover such things as plumbing electric wiring, plastering, building alteration work and so forth.

Therefore, if the theatre owner is not to mislead himself by published figures, he must understand that they are worked out for a theatre in which a normal is assumed for every one of the ten variables. He may say that his theatre is normal; that it is just like somebody else's theatre, but it must be remembered that this is a complex problem.

It must be remembered also that while there is vast difference between the requirements of a de luxe house and a small neighborhood theatre, there is also a vast difference between the requirements of various small neighborhood houses.

"Here's the chair we bought!"

"and it's the Ideal Chair for your theatre. We know positively that installing the Ideal Aristocrat Chair increases your business.



We looked at all the lines of seating made, but Ideal had a finer looking chair, a more comfortable chair, one that obviously was better made . . . would last longer, had more of the desirable features. Yet it actually cost no more than the others!"

You, too, should write for literature. There's an Ideal Chair to fit every budget . . . "built to excel, not just to compete."

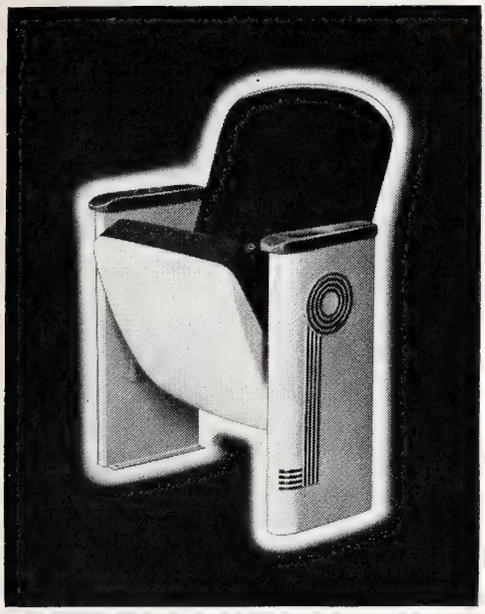
DeLuxe Candy Vendor For Theatres Introduced



(Photo courtesy Stoner Corporation).

A new, larger and more beautiful "Univendor" for theatres has been announced by the manufacturers of this practical "extra-profit" device. Among the added advantages claimed for the new model are larger selection, since the unit now contains 16 columns for various bars and packaged confections; 320 bar capacity; noiseless, sound-proofed operation, and a storage compartment in the base at front. Standard equipment also includes a slug-detector mechanism, fluorescent heatless lighting and three attractively designed mirrors. A new kind of finish simulates natural wood, making it easily adaptable to most any theatre interior decoration.

After a theatre is air conditioned properly, the fact should be broadcast and advertised to the general public by all the means at its owner's disposal. Promote those healthful conditions to the patrons, both regular and potential.

TWO NEW CHAIR MODELS ANNOUNCED BY IRWIN

A chair of completely new design and construction, known as the Irwin Clipper, is announced as the latest addition to the line of Irwin Seating Company. It is offered in two classifications, the Standard Clipper and the Clipper DeLuxe.

The Standard Clipper has a smooth steel back panel with top edge rolled over to protect the upholstering material. The center standards are of the closed panel, embossed steel type with tubular front and rear posts. Aisle standards are of steel corresponding in design to the center standard. Seats are zigger-spring type with enclosing steel seat bucket, and a compensating seat lifter is optional. No screws or bolts are exposed any place on the chair and arm rests are attached by a new method eliminating the use of screws and simplifying installation. Compensation is made on both the seats and backs of all wider than usual chairs so that seats and backs of all installations may line up properly.

The Clipper DeLuxe is equipped with a full length embossed steel back which protects the rear edge of the seat. Center standards are of closed steel design and are so manufactured that the chair backs are attached to center standards with concealed fastening. This it is claimed makes the chair back and center standards appear to be one continuous steel member. The aisle standards are of attractive design, available in either steel or cast iron.

The seats are of an entirely new flex-steel spring type, an exclusive feature, and are so constructed that approximately 75 per cent of the surface area of the seat is directly supported by the springs. This is said to insure long life and eliminate the danger of springs pocketing. The upholstering material on both seat and back is easily recoverable. The new model is all steel and no tacks are used in its construction.

The grilles and tip ends of the air conditioning system, which cost less than five per cent of the total cost, are of equal importance to the rest of the system put together.

until hot weather begins to bite 'em in the boxoffice."

Maybe they're right. But just why the creators of year-round temperature control don't see fit to more intensively promote the sale of their ware the whole year 'round is quite a mystery to Us, the People, to whom Fresh Air is not merely a passing summer fantasy, but a "must" contingency of regular patronage in every weather-changing month of the year.

If you're going in for air conditioning, gentlemen, it will pay you to go all the way.

PLANNING

INTERESTING CASE HISTORIES ON CURRENT MODERN THEATRE PROJECTS

An Experienced Showman Builds a Theatre of Quality and Good Taste

IT'S ALWAYS good news to hear that a theatre operating veteran has built a new house in which to carry on his chosen profession and life's work. That shows progress and foresight as well as faith in the future of the moving picture industry. Fortunately, we're hearing a lot of such good news lately. It seems that there are practically few moss-backs among our veteran theatre operators any more, and days were when seasoned showmen were wont to weep in their beers over the good old times and do absolutely nothing to improve the present.

A decade and a half in theatre business is not such a long time. But anyone who has stayed with it that long and withstood the tests of the past 15 slack and uncertain years certainly deserves rating as a veteran.

Out in Los Angeles, a showman with that many years in the game to his credit decided to build a new and modern house in which to practice his profession. The man is Ben Mohi. His new theatre, a pride and joy of a small but smart neighborhood house, is the Picfair, opened on January 21 and now doing nicely, thanks to growing public interest in such projects.

Mr. Mohi knew what he wanted in a new theatre from his experience of the past and he also knew that planning in advance would bring about his principal objective —a picture theatre to attract patronage. Hence the new Picfair shows genuine evidence of astute planning in the beauty of form, efficiency of furnishings and equipment and general functionalism of its design and construction.

Impressive Exterior

The exterior of the new Picfair is in monolithic form, simple and unprepossessing, yet an ideal background for the theatre's impressive luminous display. A high-standing illuminated beacon at one side of the theatre's facade, ideally located at a corner intersection of streets, serves to spot this site as the most brilliant in its neighborhood.

A dazzling V-shaped marquee with modern multi-size changeable silhouette letters makes the program display both highly legible and graphically smart in appearance. For further spectacle, the marquee is neonized in several colors and block letters form name signs on either side of its angles. Dignified display is also to be noted in the recessed and illuminated poster cases which line the entrance lobby. The centrally located boxoffice is a smartly attractive element of ornamentation as well as a convenience for the patrons.

The foyer of the new Picfair is both commodious and comfortable. Because of a wide expanse of luxurious carpeting in a modern scroll pattern, spaciousness is the predominating factor. With this lovely floor covering as a basis, a smart decorative scheme is achieved simply and colorfully, having its main elements of ornamentation on the modern flush doors and a wainscot and ceiling border treatment in contrasting colors.

Furniture in this foyer is loungey and modern in form and of a type which would be suitable in a fine home or clubroom. A modern drinking fountain also is conveniently located here. Lighting in the foyer is indirect and highly complimentary to the decorative scheme. A stairway to upper regions of the house is completely carpeted and made decoratively an important element of the scheme by an interestingly designed metal handrailing.

Comfort Pronounced

The auditorium of Ben Mohi's new theatre promotes comfort as its stock in trade. The auditorium seats 800 persons and it was its owner's purpose to see that all of these patrons are seated comfortably at all times and at ease in proper atmospheric conditions. Decoratively too, the Picfair auditorium is dedicated to relaxation.

Abstract scenic treatments in side wall panels are restful to the eyes, yet colorful enough to harmonize with the more gayly

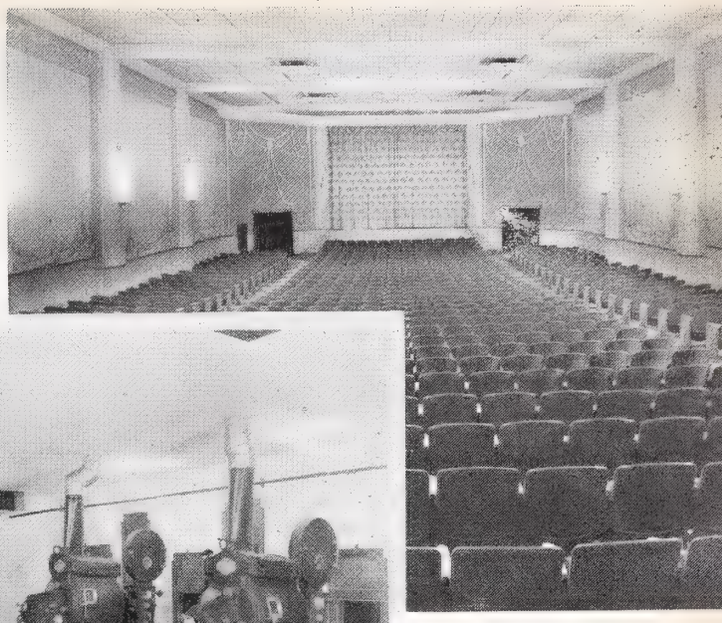
Monolithic in form, brilliant in illumination and outstanding as an element of refined program exploitation, the exterior of Ben Mohi's Picfair Theatre in Los Angeles, bespeaks quality, but belies its real economy of construction. Functionalism evident even here at the facade is to be found throughout this new medium-sized neighborhood theatre. Spaciousness and luxuriousness of furnishings are highlights of the Picfair's foyer shown below. The rich carpet so purposefully used here and inviting pieces of furniture which might grace a home or fine club, lend an air of quiet repose to this important part of the house. (All photos courtesy B. F. Shearer Company).

colored seat upholstery and aisle carpet. At the proscenium, or those walls which border the stage, white cords with tassels are effectively draped to give a neoclassic feeling to the interior decoration. The gleaming stage curtain of rich material attracts the eye immediately to this focal point

Seating in the new Picfair is a true reflection of comfort in every sense of the word. Of the latest design for correct posture, the 800 theatre chairs installed in this house provide a remarkable medium for relaxation. Deeply upholstered in a krinkly surfaced mohair, they are luxurious in feeling as well as looks. The aisle standards for this installation were stunningly contrived to fit the modern scheme and their selection seems to mirror somewhat the interesting scroll design of carpets used in the house.

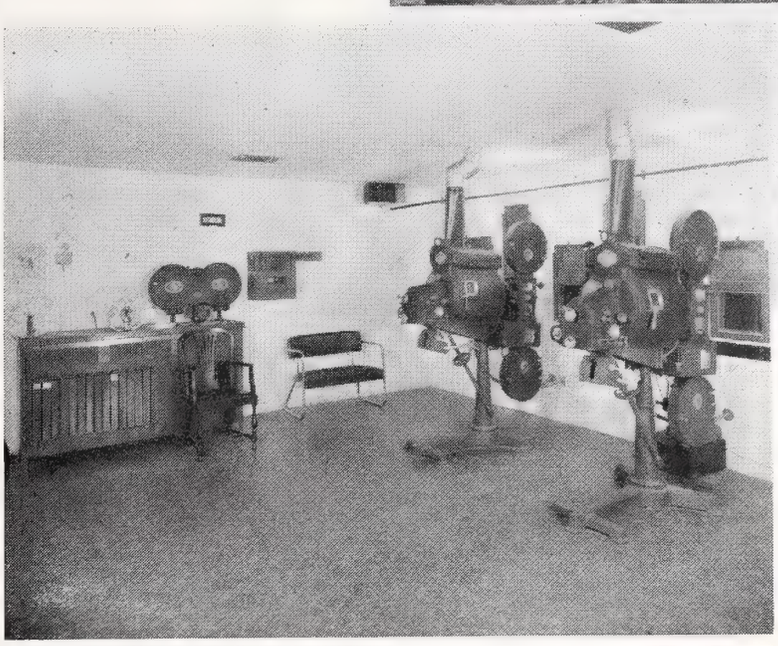
Lighting in the auditorium emanates from large modern fixtures located on pilasters along the side walls. The illumination is indirect in form, spreading a glow through translucent glass columns mounted on metal fittings. The ceiling has an interesting stencil treatment on acoustical material for proper sound effects. Ventilating outlets in the ceiling also are cunningly contrived to detract as little as possible from the decorative effect in the auditorium.

The Projection Room



Outstanding in the new Picfair Theatre is its projection room. Despite the fact that this part of the house is not intended for the eyes of patrons, here is a projection room which is a model in every respect. Spacious, clean and neat in every particular, the room itself shows the importance Mr. Mohi attributes to good projection of the entertainment he offers his patronage.

The equipment and furnishings to be found in his projection room are of the very latest type. Projectors and sound equipment, projection lamps and miscellaneous equipment to make the projectionists' work finer and more easy of accomplishment were selected by Mr. Mohi and his standards of picture presentation reach new heights in the Picfair.



Quality, efficiency and functionalism are evident in good measure throughout this new house. The Picfair Theatre is a very fine example of what many of our veteran showmen consider a smart investment nowadays. It's the type of medium-sized house which will be a profit-maker from the day its doors are opened to the public and for many years to come. And it will wear well, too, because it's made of quality and good taste, characteristics of our modern materials of today.

THEATRE PLANNING GUIDE

Through the cooperation of our affiliated architects, leading manufacturers, their engineers, designers, dealers, contractors and others, a majority of whom are active members of The Modern Theatre Planning Institute, we are prepared to assist the theatre-owner in selection and application of all commodities and services needed in remodeling and modernizing by placing him in touch with dependable sources of supply. As sponsor of the Institute, we strive to impartially relay each inquiry only to sources of reliable information. However, we do not guarantee all statements or claims made in connection with products offered.

MODERN CONTOUR IN FRONT DESIGN EMPHASIZED

The flowing modern lines which grace the new Circle Theatre in Brighton, Mass., a Paramount affiliate house, are heightened in beauty of effect and made functional by brilliant display. A large curved marquee and an augmenting straight attraction board are brightly lighted and fitted with modern silhouette changeable letters in 10- and 16-inch sizes for variety of effect. Seating Worries May Be Delegated to Experts

In the seating or reseating of a theatre there are innumerable technical problems relating to floor materials and construction, inclines, riser heights, row spacing, sightlines, aislelights, acoustics and installation difficulties. However, the engineering staffs of our large theatre chair manufacturing companies possess unequalled experience in this highly specialized field. And their advisory assistance is available without charge. Expensive errors may be avoided by consulting with these experts in the early stages of planning. It has often been found that such preliminary engineering service can sometimes save in building costs more than the price of the seating.

Midget Soda Fountain Adapted to Theatre Use

A new idea created to meet the exacting demands of the large location with little space to spare is introduced in "Konfecto," a new self-selling confection-fountain unit. It is termed the world's smallest fountain, occupying only five and one-half by eight feet of floor space, yet containing all necessary elements to create sales and having a streamlined appearance which makes it attractive to customers.

The model pictured features a refrigerated candy unit, eight ice cream flavor containers, display shelves for candy and cigarettes, soft drink coolers, a carbonator which provides ample carbonated water at less than one cent per gallon, a 19-foot serving counter, sanitary cup dispensers, endless moving film message, built-in radio, clock, and cash register. Units for hot popcorn and toasted nuts are optional.

Simplified installation requires only a plumbing connection, since the unit plugs into regular 110-volt socket, a. c. or d. c. The new unit is said to be readily adaptable to theatre use as an "extra profit" medium, inasmuch as its appeal to the public is apparent and its size makes it applicable to small locations.

Perfume Disseminator a Nicety for Restrooms

An electric perfume disseminator is a low cost method of creating a pleasant atmosphere in the theatre rest room or lounge. It will require no more current than a 15-watt light bulb and but a small amount of highly concentrated perfume to keep the air in a pleasingly fragrant condition throughout an entire evening's performance.

Unpleasant odors quickly disappear and are replaced by an inviting fragrance of natural flowers, the exhilarating tang of the woods or the sophisticated aroma of the Orient. The perfume disseminator has also been found quite effective in auditoriums to create an atmosphere for the pictures shown by using a fragrance suggestive of the locale.

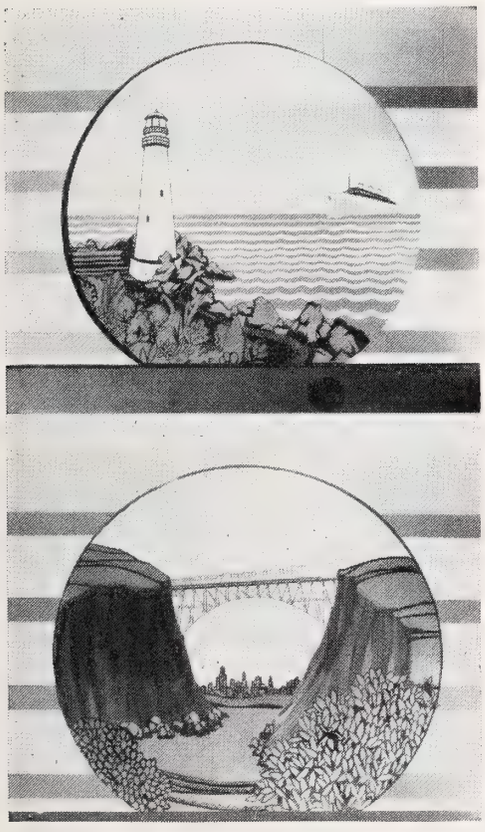
When summer heat waves strike, the temperature of a theatre becomes as great a customer draw as does the program. With good air conditioning the year 'round, this will hold true in moderate weather as well.

LOW-COST SOUND SYSTEM FITS CURRENT NEED

A NEW motion picture sound reproducing system especially designed to meet the needs of the small theatre operator at a price within his reach, has uncovered a huge replacement market among independent exhibitors, according to Homer B. Snook, manager of RCA Photophone reproducer sales.

The system, known as the PG-134, has been greeted with unprecedented enthusiasm in the field despite the fact that its introduction was virtually unheralded, Mr. Snook said. It provides in standard equipment many features heretofore confined to systems designed only for larger theatres.

"The small theatre operator has always been able to get good sound equipment for his house, but only at a price far in excess of what it should be," Mr. Snook said. "And then he found he had equipment of greater capabilities than he needed to employ because of the size of his theatre.



"The new system gives the small operator everything he needs for high quality sound reproduction at a price below that of any standard equipment he has ever been offered. The skill of design engineers, backed by the long history of the company in every field of sound recording and reproduction, has made this possible in the face of increasing costs."

The new system incorporates soundheads equipped with the rotary stabilizer mechanism. Its amplifier has high fidelity frequency response and adequate reserve power. The loudspeaker system is of the well-known two-way type and is designed for minimum backstage requirements. The treble tones are reproduced by a cellular horn while the bass tones are handled by a large folded baffle.

The best "double-feature" a theatre owner can offer his patrons is a good picture program plus a fine place in which to view it. Functional Planning implies this.

Perfect air conditioning bought without regard to price cannot take the place of good showmanship, house appeal and a good picture program—but it surely can help a lot.

BLACK LIGHTED

Two black lighted murals, cleverly empanelled on the side walls of the 560-seat Beacon Theatre at Omaha, Nebraska, add artistic beauty and interest to the modern wall treatment given this recently modernized theatre, the property of Walter Creal. Fluorescent aisle carpets, new chairs and a modern year-round air conditioning system provide an interesting study of the functional planning employed in this $10,000 theatre remodeling project. Theatre Carpet Buyers Should Become Style and Beauty Conscious

by HELEN KENT

IF IT were always remembered by the purchaser of theatre carpet that he is not buying just floor-covering material but that instead he is buying beauty by the yard, he would have much greater satisfaction on all points. The richness, texture and wealth of color inherent in fine carpeting makes it a property of beauty rather more than anything else, despite the fact that its function in the theatre embodies many other features as well.

Beauty has never come cheaply and when attempts to cheapen it are made, it seldom retains all those elements which contributed to its value. This is true of carpeting as of many other quality materials whose creation is based on beauty. It is a tenet which should be borne in mind by the purchaser who expects to derive the most value from the money expended.

Insofar as a theatre installation of carpeting is concerned, the primary reason for the purchase is to impress the public. And it is the beauty of the carpet selected which serves most readily in this respect. The general public may subconsciously note the quietening effect of a theatre's carpet; it may remark about the softness underfoot. But it is the beauty of pattern, coloring and style which elicits the public's "ohs and ahs" and that invaluable word-of-mouth advertising that results when a new carpet installation is made in a theatre.

Style Makes Impressions

Style in theatre carpet thus becomes the motivating element in its purchase followed closely thereafter by the quality factors which will give it luxury and long life under hard usage. And since style is an ever-changing motivation, the subject deserves careful consideration and study at the time a carpet purchase is contemplated. It is a factor which cannot be left to chance, nor to prior experience, since timeliness is its most important ally.

Inasmuch as carpet serves as the very basis of an interior decorative scheme, and this is particularly true of theatres, wherein furnishings are usually quite simple and necessarily harmonious, it deserves prime attention by theatre men as a large item of attraction power. From carpet, color may be picked up to provide a handsome color scheme for a room or indeed the entire interior decorative scheme. Most theatre carpetings are designed for brilliant color effect with this purpose in mind.

In interior decoration, carpeting is a major item, inasmuch as the floor area is considerably larger than any other surface which is treated as a unit. Walls and ceiling surfaces may be broken up decoratively and this is done effectively; but we have yet to discover a more beautifully effective treatment for the floor area than completely unbroken surfaces of luxurious carpet in appropriate pattern and colors.

Carpet Suggests Colors

For this reason, interior decorators often advise that carpeting be selected first in planning a decorative and color scheme, and particularly is this the simplest method of approach by the more inexperienced. The carpet will usually suggest colors for wall and ceiling treatment, furniture upholstery, draperies and the incidental furnishings, and a good basis will have been formed upon which to build the decoration.

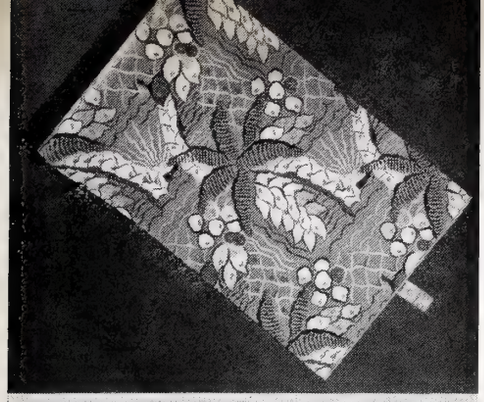
Not only may colors be determined for a decorative scheme by selecting them from the chosen carpet, but design style also may be suggested. Design trends are just as evident in carpeting as in any other medium of interior decoration. The scroll or geometric pattern will often suggest certain modern treatments, the all-over leaf or floral motif may suggest a more conventional decor, the Chinese design in carpet may be adaptable to many intermediate moods, or a Grecian key design variation will immediately suggest neoclassic treatment.

All of these decorative motives are extremely practicable and most popular in theatre interior adaptations today. The fact that the carpet weavers can supply inspiration for each of them in many variations of design makes the interior decorator's work much simpler. Then when one considers that each carpet pattern is available in many combinations of colors, it is evident at once that the beauty problem in carpeting is perhaps one of the most easily solved of any that confront the puzzled theatre man who wants to redecorate his house completely or merely recarpet it in harmony with an existing decorative scheme.

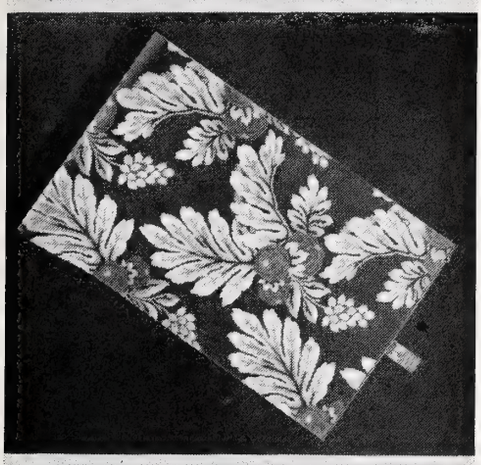
One of the nicest things about purchasing carpet today is that beauty of design does not necessarily add to the cost. After the purchaser has selected the quality he desires in the wool, weave and dyes which make up the cost factors of this material, his only concern can then be with the beauty of design which has little if anything to do with cost.

The carpet mill representatives at all times have in stock a wide selection of successful designs for whatever purpose may be desired. If nothing else, they will serve as a source of real inspiration. It may be that the exactly right carpet design will be found at once—or, if there is a special color scheme to consider, the pattern selected can then be produced in colors to harmonize exactly with existing requirements. Finally, there is always the original design creation to be considered and this can usually be had at slight extra cost which will be repaid in individuality and originality.

Current Design Trends



Some of the latest design trends, particularly applicable to theatre use, that are being offered by one of the leading carpet manufacturers are shown here. They are of a high quality weave with a luxurious sheen and long wearability. Just the value determinants so necessary in theatre situations where traffic conditions are almost abusive to this luxury material. In order, we will discuss their design applications as we see them.



Design No. 1: A tropical pattern, very gay, with palm trees, sunbursts and citrus fruit interwoven to form a bright color treatment and warm design motif. This would appear to be ideal carpeting for a theatre wherein the warmth of sunlight is badly needed. It would be most effective when used with wall treatments predominantly yellow and orange. Simple blond wood or rattan furnishings for lounge or lobby would complement this carpet and in turn be highlighted by it. This pattern is most colorful and it would suggest many shades to be used for other parts of the interior color scheme. However, because of its boldness it would be wise to have walls, upholstery materials and draperies to be used with it in more subdued harmonious shades of the vivid colors found in the carpet.

Design No. 2: The conventional leaf and fruit pattern which is highly adaptable to almost any situation wherein a too definite style trend is not followed. The dark background of this pattern makes it serviceable, while the rather large design motif in bright colors gives just enough warmth and life to make it adaptable to the dimly lighted interiors of a theatre. Offering several distinct colors and shadings, it will suggest many color schemes which will be effective, and because of its conventionality, almost any style of furnishings may be used with this carpet pattern.

DESIGN NO. 3: A modern pattern with subdued coloring. The stylized floral design and geometric balancing motives make this pattern particularly fitting for the more timid who like modern but who dislike its sometimes garish treatments. This simple design suggests brighter decorative applications in walls and ceilings, furnishings and draperies, since the subdued shades which make up its pattern will be most complemented by more vivid accessories. Modern furnishings or conventional will be equally at home on such a background.

DESIGN NO. 4. The modern scroll pattern is varied and highly effective in numerous situations. This treatment is particularly stunning by reason of its effective highlights. The whirling lines in white or light tone stand out against a background of deeper shading for practical purposes. Because this particular pattern is composed of only three color tones, it is quite adaptable to many contrasts in decorative color schemes. It is highly applicable to theatre use, lending itself effectively to modern furnishings from chrome and leather to highly polished wood and luxury materials, and then again it would be just as suitable with neo-classic or conventional furnishings. This type of pattern is equally good looking in wide expanses or in runners for the aisles of the auditorium.

DESIGN NO. 5: An all-over modern leaf design with lots of color, vivacity and warmth. Such a carpet pattern is so gay in itself that decoration may be more subdued. Colors selected from this pattern will best be those which do not predominate, thus to complement all parts of the decorative scheme more equally. Simplicity of furnishings will be most appropriate for the interior which this carpet graces. Modern metal or bamboo furniture with plain textured upholstery and plain draperies in a tone from the depths of this carpet would be highly complementary.

This is just a simple analysis of several new carpet patterns and what they can mean to the decorative scheme. To others they may suggest an entirely different approach in the problem of harmonizing many elements which contribute to beauty. When it is realized that building an interior decorative scheme from the ground up is logical and easy to accomplish with a bit of thought, it becomes obvious at once how important integral beauty and quality of carpet really is. Hence it is wise to give this beautifying element a chance when carpet selection becomes the business at hand.

Determination of Load For Air Conditioning

A preliminary to the actual selection of equipment, whether for summer or winter air conditioning, is the determination of the load to be imposed on that equipment. This calls for accurate information as to the design of the building, its size, construction, use, occupancy, seasonal climatic conditions of the locality, etc.

The first question to be considered is "What are the most desirable conditions to be maintained within a theatre during the summer." In a word, the problem is not entirely technical but must take into consideration the physiological effect upon the human body, with a view of avoiding shock to the human system.

On the other hand, practical considerations from a design standpoint compel the selection of a definite outside atmospheric condition and a definite inside condition before any load determinations can be made. It then becomes a matter of selecting equipment that not only has the capacity to handle the calculated load, but that also lends itself to the greatest flexibility of control in order to meet changes in outside conditions and any reasonable change that may be desirable within the space being conditioned.

It would not be practical to determine the load on the basis of maximum outside conditions, for such conditions would be of short duration. It is well to use conditions that represent an average and which can be considered as "recommended design conditions" for various localities.

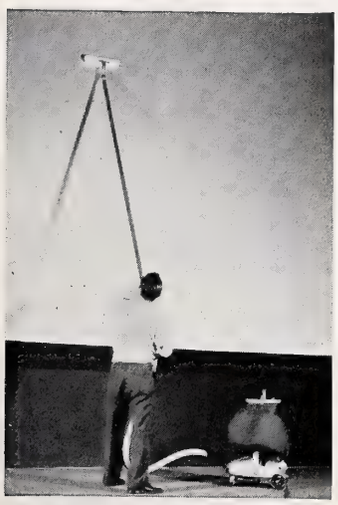
MANAGER DEMONSTRATES LURE OF LOVE SEAT



Nate Cohan, manager of the Tosa Theatre in Wauwatosa, a suburb of Milwaukee, and Miss Mickey Burns smilingly demonstrated the patron appeal of newly installed "love seats" for the edification of readers of the Milwaukee "Journal." (Acme photo).

IN A CLEVER publicity stunt which snared front page position in the Milwaukee Journal recently, Manager Nate Cohan of the Tosa Theatre in Wauwatosa, Wisconsin, promoted the installation of new theatre chairs which included 28 doubles, or "love seats."

A well-written, human interest story accompanied the picture and in it were brought out the many advantages of this new type chair for theatre patrons—pointing out also its appeal to the "broad-beamed" as well as the "woo pitchers."

Manager Cohan reports that there is considerable rivalry for the occupancy of his 28 love seats.

INTERMEDIARY CHAIR MODELS INTRODUCED

"BODIFORM" "ZEPHYR" "COMMODORE"

IN A NEW line of seating models just now being introduced, American Seating Company claims to have aroused a new principle in plans for theatre seating. It is possible to outfit the theatre with more than one style or grade of chair—each to suit the condition called for, such as for example, balconies and loges, and portions of the main floor where seats with special comfort or design features may be called for. Yet all the chairs may be of the same general appearance and styling and strictly in keeping with the decorative scheme of the interior.

Between the "Bodiform," ace model of the American line, employing the new "popliteal" seat feature and the "Avion," popular low-cost model, has been introduced three intermediate jobs: The "Zephyr" combines the seat of the "Avion" with the back of the "Bodiform" and an end standard of its own. The "Commodore" combines the "Avion" standard and back with the "Bodiform" seat. The "Zenith" (not illustrated) is practically the "Zephyr" with a specially designed short back to make it more suitable for balconies.

All are standard stock models carried ready for the application of upholstery and finish and it is thus claimed that delivery and installation can be made in shortest possible time.

Impure Air Comparable to Stagnant Water

You wouldn't knowingly ask your patrons to drink stagnant or impure water in your theatre, because the disastrous effects it might cause are universally known facts. Yet, often unknowingly they are compelled to breathe foul, street contaminated and odor laden air that is almost as dangerous to health as drinking impure water while they are in your theatre.

Dangers similar to those existing in impure water lurk in the air that theatre patrons breathe when nothing is done to purify and circulate fresh air within public gathering places. These ever present, unnoticed impurities are unquestionably responsible for much ill health for patrons, and poor repute for the theatre that is suspected of harboring bad air conditions.

But on the other hand, the theatre that is properly air conditioned can boast of greater precaution for patrons' health than almost any place they may gather. This is one of the selling and promotional points in favor of modern year-round air conditioning.

Ideal Seating Observes Its Twentieth Birthday

The Ideal Seating Company played host to all employes and their wives, numbering about 250, at a banquet in the Hotel Pantlind Grill Room in Grand Rapids, Mich., February 1st. The occasion was the celebration of the company's completion of 20 years in business.

Nathan Snyder, attorney of the firm of Cleland and Snyder, acted as Master of Ceremonies. The law firm has been legal representative for the seating company since its inception. The principal speaker of the evening was Mayor George Welsh of Grand Rapids. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Cleland, Mr. Morris Berman of the Morris Berman Accounting firm, which also has been associated with the seating company since its beginning, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kanton.

William A. Gedris, president of Ideal Seating Company, addressed the gathering, tendering the thanks of the organization to the loyal employes who have served them so well over a period of years. Sterling silver merit buttons were awarded employes who have been with the company five years or more. Those who have been with the company ten years or more received gold buttons.

The Hall Quartet sang several numbers during the evening. Following the banquet the employes attended a basketball game at the Y. M. C. A. between the Ideal Seating Company team and the Precision Parts team of Holland, Michigan.

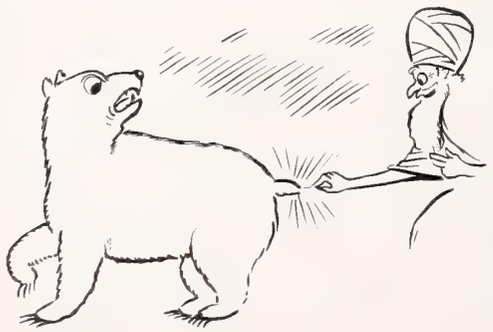
PRACTICAL DISCUSSIONS ON MODERN PROJECTION AND SOUND PRACTICES

" . . . grave suspicions should be aroused."

A Good Doctor Diagnoses the Ailment Ere He Starts Dosing It

by DON L. TURNER*



DOES your child cry its head off when it's teething? Are you suffering from gout? Would you like to get rid of freckles? Would you enjoy drinking 20 highballs — without getting tight?

If you lived in Persia, during the thirteenth century, it would be a simple matter, to the medicos of the period, to set you right on all these counts. To make an infant's teething easy and painless, you hung the kidney of a fox around baby's neck. You ground up the hoof of an ox, mixed it with olive oil and honey—and lo! your freckles disappeared in a jiffy. Blood of a panther fixed your gout. Yes, and to drink a tank-full, and still not get plastered? The Persian doctor said:

"If a man puts a hair from the tail of a bear upon his ear, and keeps it there, however much he drinks, he will never become intoxicated."

Since that time, fortunately, medical science has discovered that the human body is an extremely complicated mechanism, and that a large amount of medical knowledge is needed to diagnose what's wrong with the patient, to say nothing of curing it. Nowadays, the science of diagnosis must take account of obscure causes, rather than merely applying a remedy to the trouble that appears on the surface.

" . . . he will never become intoxicated."

Same With Sound

The science of maintaining sound in the theatre at a high level of quality leans just as heavily upon diagnostic ability. In this field, the apparent, the seemingly obvious cause of trouble is particularly deceptive in the way it obscures what is really wrong. The service records, containing the engineers' reports of thousands of cases of emergency breakdowns in the sound equipment, show that in over 50 per cent of emergency cases, the obvious trouble actually is not the real cause of the trouble. The real trouble is hidden; its nature is often not even suspected by the projectionist attempting to analyze it.

For example, when the sound suddenly dies, a hasty checkup of the equipment reveals that one or more of the vacuum tubes have burned out. Obvious conclusion: The tubes are at fault. The tubes are replaced. Shortly afterward, the sound again disappears and the new tubes also burn out. Only then does it become apparent that a scientific diagnosis of the rest of the equipment must be made, to find the real root of the trouble.

Many sound system troubles are of this nature. A part will develop a defect not easily detected. This defect, in turn, will place an overload on other parts and cause one or more of them to fail. These secondary failures promptly proceed to make things worse by presenting misleading symptoms.

Sound failure, for instance, may be the result of an intermittent short-circuit developing between the plate and the filament of a rectifier tube in the main amplifier. Such a short-circuit causes excessive current to flow, and a burned-out power transformer and blown fuses usually result. First off, the open fuses are located. New ones are installed, but they proceed to blow out the moment the amplifier is turned on. Further search reveals a defective power transformer, which is probably badly overheated and may be smoking or dripping sealing compound. A new transformer is ordered and installed. Everything tests okay and the amplifier is starting up. Then—after a short period, the same trouble starts all over again!

Defects in Hiding

What's wrong? The transformer obviously was bad, and on the surface it appeared that surely it was causing the whole botheration. But the actual answer lies in a hidden defect in the rectifier tube. The defect was such that the short-circuit between filament and plate develops only when the tube has become hot after a period of operation—and possibly, after it was subject to a certain type of vibration.

Then, when the amplifier was turned off after the transformer failure, the tube cooled, and the short-circuit cleared automatically. It tested okay, and was considered in good condition—but later, when the amplifier was started up and the tube became hot again, the short-circuit promptly reappeared, and the whole cycle repeated itself.

The flare-up of a vacuum tube is often the first evidence that a vital part, buried somewhere in the apparatus, is acting up. Even sudden failure, or some indication of abnormal tube operation, should be accepted as a warning, and the associated circuits examined carefully. Since tube replacement represents a costly item in maintenance, the wisdom of careful examination of the whole mechanism becomes increasingly evident.

Not long ago, an engineer received an emergency call which aptly illustrates this. The telephone call reported: First, no sound. Then, the 43 type amplifier was registering excessive plate current. Also, the two 242-C vacuum tubes had burned out. Tracing the trouble to its source, the service engineer found that the C-1 bypass condenser had short-circuited, thus throwing a short across the grid bias resistor. This cut out the grid bias potential and permitted excessive plate current to flow. This, in turn, burned out two tubes in a row, and in each case, caused loss of sound.

" . . . high-line voltage is the hissing villain."

Mechanical Research

Another emergency call developed this situation: The fuses in the system would not hold. The theatre had installed two replacement 5Z3 rectifier tubes, and they, too, had burned out. The engineer traced the source of the trouble to two SN-508 filter condensers which had broken down. They placed a short circuit across the 5Z3 tube, causing excessive plate current and flash-over, which damaged the tube and made the AC supply fuses blow.

Whenever vacuum tubes are found to be short-lived, suspicions should be aroused. Thorough exploration for hidden causes should be made.

The most common cause of short life in vacuum tubes is the result of operation at either excessive or at subnormal potentials (or current) resulting from the voltage of the incoming line. In many parts of the country, there has been a tendency on the part of power companies to increase line voltages. In some places, it reaches 125 volts. Many older sound systems were designed for 110-volt operation; they do not possess tapped power transformers to compensate for higher line voltage, the way modern equipment does. Where rheostat facilities are available, the filament current of vacuum tubes should be checked several times each day, and maintained at exactly the specified point, because the filament supply will vary as a result of batteries discharging, variation in load on the incoming line, or heating of power conversion equipment.

Fuses Flash Danger

This same high line voltage is the villain of the play in cases where condensers, resistors and transformers fail. When electrical parts operate at higher than normal temperature or when condensers and transformers start to leak compound, that doesn't necessarily mean that they are poorly designed. The line voltage should be checked immediately.

Another thing that constitutes a genuine

Why are so many moderate sized theatres installing the new intermediate capacity high intensity projection arc lamps?	Because today, much more light, snow-white light, is absolutely necessary to the satisfactory projection of colored pictures and present dense black and white films.
Does this mean that low intensity lamps can no longer be used satisfactorily?	It does. Furthermore, there is no longer a reason for theaters with screens up to 18 feet in width denying themselves the vivid brilliancy of high intensity projection.
But why didn't they replace their low intensities with high intensities before now?	Because, up to the time the Strong Utility was introduced, the operating cost was considered prohibitive by many of them.
How much more light does the Strong Utility project?	Twice as much as any low intensity lamp, but this is not all . . . it projects light of the same characteristics as that used in the studios where the pictures are shot.
. . . and does this doubling in light double the operating cost?	No. Strong has made it possible at an increased combined current and carbon cost of less than 2c an hour.
Who sells Strong Utility lamps?	Your Independent Theatre Supply Dealer. He'll arrange a demonstration in your theatre without obligation.
Who manufactures them?	The Strong Electric Corporation, 2501 Lagrange Street, Toledo, Ohio.

A Good Doctor Diagnoses the Ailment Ere He Starts Dosing It

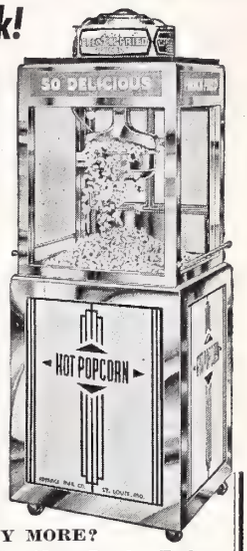
danger signal: Fuses. When the sound goes off, and a blown fuse is discovered, it isn't enough simply to replace the fuse. A fuse of recommended value will seldom blow out unless some irregular condition develops in the circuit that it feeds. When a fuse blows, and especially when a fuse blows frequently, every part of the circuit should be carefully examined.

An emergency call from a Minneapolis theatre illustrates this type of trouble. When the engineer looked into the trouble, he found that the DC field current of the stage horns was being obtained from the arc generator, and the 3-ampere fuses had been reported "blowing periodically." The engineer's first check-up revealed that everything tested in order, and the operation seemed entirely normal. But the "doctor" wasn't satisfied—he decided to dig deeper into the situation. As a result of some brilliant diagnosis, he found out what was wrong.



An electrolytic condenser with a grounded case was connected on the load side of the temperamental fuse as a filter for the circuit. Any slight leakage from the arc lamp—which was also grounded—would cause excessive current to flow through this particular fuse only and cause it to burn out. As a temporary correction, the condenser was shifted to the generator side of the fuse, until the projectionist had time to replace the insulators which were responsible for the leakage in the arc lamp.

In dealing with these hidden troubles, often far removed from the symptoms exhibited, the sound service engineer relies upon intimate knowledge of the relationship of every component part of the circuit, as well as upon the experience he has had in getting at the root of similar troubles which he has encountered in other theatres. When the audience is restively sitting before a dark screen, and there's a truck-load of nervous tension in the manager's office and the projection room, the service engineer's sure quick thinking, based on his years of experience, makes it possible for him to put his finger instantly, on what really is causing the trouble—enabling him to do what is necessary to make the show hit the sheet again in a matter of minutes or even seconds.

Air conditioning is a sound, high-grade, fast-paying investment for the exhibitor. It goes to work immediately toward increasing his business and continues to pay dividends throughout its natural life.

Both winter and summer air conditioning with a good distributing system has a drawing power of great value and a value which will increase as the public learns more about air conditioning.

HOW TO GET GREATER EFFICIENCY FROM YOUR PRESENT PROJECTOR

You can greatly increase the efficiency of your projector with a Bausch & Lomb f:2 Super Cinephor—the projection lens which actually delivers 25% more light on the screen. A new process of treating lens surfaces to minimize reflections puts to work the light previously lost (4 to 6% at each air to glass surface). The new f:2 lens has the light efficiency that hitherto would only have been possible at f:1.79.

The result of this increased light on the screen is a marked gain in contrast and crispness. Shadow detail is not diluted by distributed light. Color films have greater purity and brilliance.

If you want greater projection efficiency—better image quality—write for details to Bausch & Lomb Optical Co., 720 St. Paul Street, Rochester, N. Y.

Distribution of Air in Theatre Auditoria

Proper auditorium ventilation is now recognized as a combination of temperature, air motion and distribution, humidity, dust, bacteria, odors and carbon dioxide. Air motion and distribution is second only to temperature in importance. The Synthetic Air Chart adopted by the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers takes into account all of these factors and makes it possible to arrive at an average which will show the percentage of perfect ventilation obtained in any given installation.

Modern practice shows that eight cubic feet of fresh air per minute per person is ample to keep the air in an auditorium free of odors; and to maintain body heat and to balance the outdoor heat of a warm summer's day, about 20 cubic feet per minute per person must be introduced. The accurate amount becomes an engineering problem.

Of the 20 cubic feet per minute per person introduced, 12 cubic feet may be recirculated, economizing heat in winter and cooling in summer. If too much air is recirculated, odors will result; and when smoking is to be allowed, much more new air must be introduced.

Carpeting Applied as Decorative Cosmetic

On the theory that interiors, as well as female faces, can be transformed through the use of proper make-up, Charles P. Cochrane Company is emphasizing this cosmetic influence in the promotion and display of its new carpet patterns. That rugs and carpets serve in interior decoration much the same purpose as do rouge, powder and lipstick for milady's face is brought out cleverly by the carpet company.

Many of the new carpet designs are likened by this company to certain beauticians' items, such as "beauty essentials," "foundations," and "stimulants." The new fashion trend makes this analogy particularly fitting and centers interest on the vast decorative possibilities of modern carpet for interiors of all types.

Two Photophone Men Assigned New Duties

M. J. "Mike" Yahr, formerly Commercial Engineer at Camden headquarters, has been assigned to the newly created position of Product Manager at the Indianapolis plant. Carl Johnson, after 11 years in the RCA service organization, has been appointed to Mr. Yahr's former position.

Mr. Yahr attended the college of the City of New York before he joined the company in 1929, soon after its formation, as a field engineer in the Midwest. After about two years at this post he was placed in charge of cataloging and parts at Camden; later he was promoted to assistant manager of service contract sales. His elevation to commercial engineer came four years ago.

Mr. Johnson joined the RCA service organization in 1930. Assigned first to San Francisco, he subsequently had charge of service operations in widely scattered locations throughout the country.

END UNCOMFORTABLE AIR CONDITIONS IN YOUR THEATRE WITH ANEMOSTAT DRAFTLESS AIR DIFFUSERS!

Ceiling ANEMOSTATS installed in both Orchestra and Lobby of new Hollywood Theatre, Sioux Falls, S. D.—Harold Spitznagel, Architect; Rose & Harris, Engineers.

"NO AIR CONDITIONING SYSTEM IS BETTER THAN ITS AIR DISTRIBUTION"

DRAFTS, wide temperature differences and other uncomfortable conditions in a theatre that has an air conditioning, air heating, cooling or ventilating system, are invariably due to one thing—inadequate means of introducing and distributing the air from the system.

With old fashioned grilles or registers, which merely cover the duct openings while permitting the air to pass through, you are bound to get swiftly moving currents of air, marked variations in temperature and improper air distribution.

You can end these conditions quickly and at reasonable cost by simply equipping all air supply outlets with modern, scientifically designed ANEMOSTATS. These units take the high velocity air from the ducts and diffuse it in a way that positively eliminates drafts and equalizes temperature and humidity throughout the entire conditioned or ventilated area.

ANEMOSTATS have ended air distribution troubles for many theatres all over the country. In newly installed systems their use is now practically a rule.

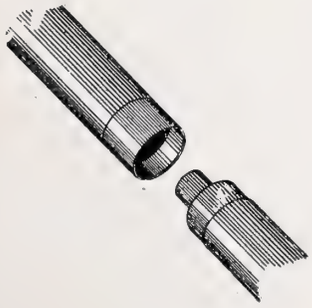
News of what's NEW in Modern Theatre Equipment



36 DUO-COLOR SILHOUETTE LETTERS — For novel marquee display and attraction board innovation, a new silhouette letter is now available which adds color to legibility of theatre front advertising. A colored Catalin section is set into an aluminum frame on the face of the letter, which is practically unbreakable. If used with fluorescent lighting and bulbs are flashed on and off, it gives the effect alternately of a solid silhouette letter and a letter with Neon illuminated center.

37 DROLL CARBON ECONOMIZER—A scientifically engineered process that reduces projector carbon costs from 10 to 25 per cent, by "saving the stubs." No short lengths of carbon to throw away. Simply insert fresh carbon into the burnt stub of previous trim, using copper sleeve for contact. The stub is consumed, sleeve and all, giving light of unaltered quality and intensity. No machinery or parts to buy. Merely order projector carbons processed and ready to use.

38 PLANDAIRE DIFFUSERS —A new ceiling type high velocity air diffusing element for no-draft air distribution. Attractively designed and engineered for high efficiency it enhances the decorative treatment of the room, fits well into the architectural scheme and serves to eliminate unsightly air outlets commonly used. Adjustability is a feature, permitting regulation of air flow where the design of the room or other conditions necessitate adjustment to secure the proper air flow pattern. Obtainable at reasonable cost.

39 SMALL PROJECTION LAMP—A new projection arc lamp of the universal type to work on either low intensity, the one-kilowatt arc or the small Suprex carbon trims now popularly used in small and medium-sized theatres. The housing is cast in one solid piece, with adaptors to fit all standard projectors and the mechanism features a carbon feed of the double screw type. Low first cost, economy of operation and efficiency are emphasized by the manufacturer.

40 DOREX ODOR ABSORBERS — For application to existing or new air conditioning systems. Employing specially processed, activated cocoanut shell carbon the canisters here illustrated serve to absorb, or, more simply, to extract and hold odorous gases and vapors in a condensed state. Upon saturation the carbon may be economically reactivated and used again. When applied to recirculated air, they permit a reduction in outdoor air supply of from 3 to 5 cubic feet per minute per occupant, thereby providing air conditioning comfort at considerably reduced operating cost.

41 SWIVELIER—A new and complete line of universally adjustable sockets and lamp units for focalized lighting. Among its advantages and adaptations for the theatre field are: The Swivelier socket is adjustable to full 90-degree right angle; it can be rotated to complete a 360 degree full circle when adjusted at any angle. Wires cannot twist due to a special stop, and the unit will stay put in any position. Patented construction compensates for wear due to friction and the unit is approved by Underwriter's Laboratories.

42 STYLO-PLASTIC—A new plastic compound to simplify and beautify the art of sign making. For poster lettering in bold relief and thickness, providing the third dimension by adding depth and artistic treatment to signs of any style, the material is said to be superior to embossing or processing, at very low cost per sign. The new sign-making material is available in ½-pint cans in eight standard colors and 40 other shades can be provided on special orders. Special introductory offers are now in effect.

Thad Barrows of Boston expresses high approval of Simplex E-7

INSTALLED IN THE METROPOLITAN, BOSTON

Where progressive management recognizes good projection as a basic essential of efficient showmanship

METROPOLITAN THEATRE

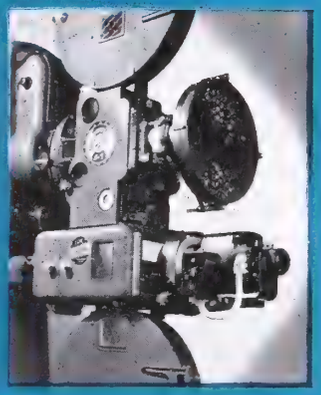
BOSTON, MASS.

International Projector Corp.
92 Gold Street
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

Here in the Metropolitan Theatre, where progressive Management recognizes good projection as a basic essential of efficient showmanship, the performance of the Simplex E-7 has earned for it recognition as one of the finest projectors ever produced.

Outstanding among the many fine features of the E-7 are the removable film trap, improved framing device, one-shot oiling system which insures positive lubrication while keeping oil off the film, shockproof gearing, heavier construction throughout, and above all, a precision intermittent movement which attains the highest degree of accuracy within my experience.



As a practical projectionist for almost thirty five years, I have always been a firm believer in the many advantages of using the newest and best projection equipment, kept in good condition at all times and operated by competent projectionists.

The E-7 represents a contribution to the advancement of the art of projection which, I am sure, is recognized and appreciated generally by the projection craft, the continuing welfare of which is so dependent upon the maintenance of the highest possible standards.

Very truly yours,
Thad. C. Barrows

PROMOTION OF UNITY AMONG AMERICAS PRAISED BY F. D. R.

Cooperation in Defense, Service of Newsreels Also Are Applauded

HOLLYWOOD—One of the most important contributions the motion picture can make to the national defense program is in the promotion of solidarity "among all the people of the Americas," President Franklin Delano Roosevelt told the industry and the nation Thursday night in a three-way network broadcast from Washington to open the 13th annual banquet of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The President expressed the government's appreciation for the cooperation of the industry in "helping the people of this hemisphere to come to know each other better."

Cites Newsreels

The newsreels, he said, have performed a "great service" in acquainting the public with the implications of the lend-lease bill.

Highlights of the President's address:

"The American motion picture as a national and international force is a phenomenon of our own generation. Within living memory we have seen it born and grow up into full maturity. We have seen the American motion picture become foremost throughout the world. We have seen it reflect our civilization throughout the rest of the world—the aims and aspirations and ideals of a free people and of freedom.

"That is the real reason that some governments do not want our American films exhibited in their countries. Dictators—those who enforce the totalitarian form of government—think it a dangerous thing for their unfortunate peoples to know that in our democracy officers of the government are the servants, never the masters, of the people.

"We have been seeking to affirm our faith in the western world through a wider exchange of culture, of education, of thought and of free expression among the various nations of this hemisphere. Your industry has utilized its vast resources of talent and facilities in a sincere effort to help the people of this hemisphere come to know each other.

"Our government has invited you to do your share of the job of interpreting the people of the western hemisphere to one another. And all of us in all the 21 American republics are grateful that your response is so immediate and so wholehearted.

"I do not minimize the importance of the motion picture industry as the most popular medium of mass entertainment. But tonight I want to place the chief emphasis on the service you can render in promoting solidarity among all the people of the Americas.

"For all this and for your splendid cooperation with all who are directing the expansion of our defense forces, I am glad to thank you. In the weeks and months that lie ahead, we in Washington know we shall have your continued aid and support."

Academy Chooses "Rebecca," James Stewart, Ginger Rogers

Meeting for the 13th consecutive year at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Science's annual Awards Banquet, Hollywood's creative workers acclaimed "Rebecca," produced by David O. Selznick for United Artists, the outstanding motion picture made during 1940.

The 12,000 members of the industry who participated in one of the film colony's most distinguished and significant yearly functions presented James Stewart the best-actor accolade for his performance in "The Philadelphia Story," produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Ginger Rogers was named best actress as a result of her work in "Kitty Foyle," produced by RKO Radio.

Occasion was further enhanced by an address of welcome and congratulation via radio from President Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking from the White House in Washington over the three major networks. Winners were announced, and the famous gold trophies were presented, at the Biltmore Bowl in the Biltmore Hotel on the evening of February 27. Presentations to the winning actors and actresses were made by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, and Bob Hope served as master of ceremonies. Stars, executives and other industry notables on hand to extend plaudits to the recipients of the coveted statuettes made the affair a sell-out.

Other winners included:

Walter Brennan, chosen as the best actor in a supporting role, for his work in "The Westerner," a Samuel Goldwyn production. Named as best actress in a supporting role was Jane Darwell as a result of her portrayal in "The Grapes of Wrath," a 20th Century-Fox production.

John Ford for Direction

For the best achievement in direction:

John Ford, pilot of "The Grapes of Wrath."

For the best original motion picture story:

Benjamin Glazer and John S. Toldy, authors of "Arise, My Love." Donald Ogden Stewart received the best screenplay award for "The Philadelphia Story." For the best original screenplay, the writer or writers of which are also the authors of the original story, the award went to Preston Sturges for "The Great McGinty."

For the art direction achievement in black-and-white films:

Cedric Gibbons and Paul Groesse for "Pride and Prejudice." Winner of the art direction award for color films was Vincent Korda, for "The Thief of Bagdad." Recognition for the best achievement in film editing went to Anne Bauchens for "North West Mounted Police."

His camera work on "Rebecca" won top honors for George Barnes in the black-and-white cinematography division. The color photography winner was George

Hollywood Tells How Films Can Aid Nat'l Defense

LOS ANGELES—The industry's answer to the question of "How Should the Movies Aid National Defense" was given Thursday night via America's Town Meeting of the Air broadcast from the Philharmonic Auditorium here over the NBC network. The reply included a defense of the trade against charges of "war-mongering" hurled recently by Senator Burton K. Wheeler.

Participating were Walter Wanger, producer, and president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences; Donald Ogden Stewart, writer; Rosalind Russell, actress, and Manchester Boddy, columnist and publisher of the Los Angeles News. George V. Denny jr., originator of the radio program, was moderator.

Should Make Them Think

Wanger, while urging that motion pictures should entertain, insisted that they also should make people think. He decried the belief he said was held in certain quarters that because a film had significant content it was automatically unfit for pure entertainment. The melding of the right kind of social responsibility and highest type of entertainment quality he construed the real purpose of the motion picture.

He would change the subject, "How Should Movies Aid National Defense" to "How CAN Movies Aid National Defense," pointing out there was no doubt but that the trade would exert itself to the utmost in that direction. He insisted that the industry must go "all-out" in its efforts, maintaining that there could be no pursuit of "Business As Usual" policy—that the effort would have to be a "100 per cent effort, or fail."

The producer cited four ways in which he considered the industry can best aid national defense:

1. Newsreels that present a realistic picture of things as they are, without glossing over or distorting—an uncompromising picture of world developments substantially as actually viewed by the camera.
2. Continued cooperation with the Army, Navy and defense commission in the production of films for training purposes.
3. More pictures about North and South America, their history, achievements, aspirations, etc. "Revive the past for those who have forgotten it."
4. Widen the scope and vision when pictures deal with contemporary life. Dramatize America for Americans. He asserted that in this country was occurring the greatest "revolution" in history, the most significant social changes within memory, contending that this should be pointed up. He said that if other countries could point to like achievements they would fill the screen with dramatic material about them.

Replying to Senator Wheeler's charge of "war-mongering," Wanger said that of 350 pictures produced by major studios during the past season less than ten were more than the usual boy-meets-girl plot. "How can anyone call that war-mongering?" he asked.

The issue presenting itself in the relation of films to national defense, Boddy declared, is whether the government should take over motion pictures, as has been done in totalitarian countries, or whether the films should remain free.

The publisher cited German and Italian experience with government-controlled films, asserting that after years of enforced feeding the results had been, from the desired goal of the dictators, disappointing. He said that German films had praised Mussolini and his nation as their real friends, and that Italian films had loudly and consistently insisted upon the German way of life as the successful and desirable way. The net result, he said, is that now the Italian people "despise and fear" the German leaders and the Germans "scorn" the Italian soldiers "who do not want to fight."

Censorship, said Boddy, would be a "colossal blunder." He argued that government restriction of films would vitiate their value as entertainment, and that films so produced would, by their impotency, destroy the very censorship that bore them.

"Senator Wheeler," the publisher asserted, is "pursuing the wrong course" in attacking motion pictures. He termed the Senator's attitude as "un-American."

One of the most important jobs, Boddy said, was for the motion picture to help restore the mental balance of a war weary world. If that could be done, he said, it would contribute more to national defense than anything else.

Rosalind Russell's Idea

Rosalind Russell would devote 80 per cent of film output, the features, to pure entertainment. The balance would be devoted to factual short subjects that would go all-out in an effort to give all the facts possible and present factual reasons as to why we must protect our possessions. They would show our various boundaries, possessions, etc., and emphasize their importance to us and to the world.

Stewart would portray the full American scene, concentrating on entertainment but not losing sight of the nation's problems. The question of national defense, he said, is one of a united, healthy and strong people. The films, he asserted, can unite the people as no other agency can do.

Denny announced at the conclusion of the program that a contract had been signed assuring the continuance of the feature on the air for the next five years.

"Oscars" to "Rebecca," Rogers, Stewart

Perinal, who handled the cameras on "The Thief of Bagdad."

In the music field, the best original score, with primary emphasis on original composition, was deemed that written by Ned Washington and Leigh Harline for "Pinocchio." Selected as the best musical score without regard to source was that done by Alfred Newman for "Tin Pan Alley." "When You Wish Upon a Star" in "Pinocchio," was chosen as the best song, the citation going to its authors, Ned Washington and Leigh Harline.

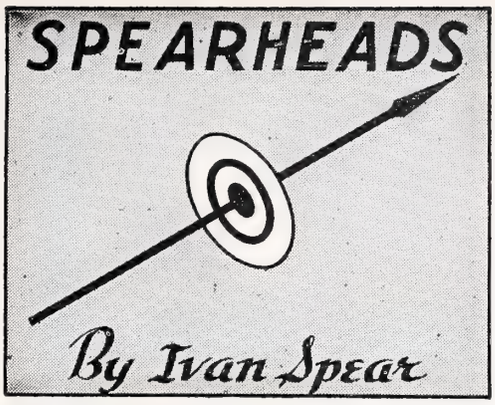
"Milky Way" was named the outstanding cartoon subject produced during the year. It was made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Winner of the award as best short subject of 1,000 feet or less in length was "Quicker'n a Wink," a Pete Smith production. Selected as the best short subject in the 1,000 to 3,000 feet division was "Teddy, the Rough Rider," a Warner Brothers release.

The sound recording in "Strike Up the Band" won top honors for Douglas Shearer. In the special effects classification the award went to Lawrence Butler and Jack Whitney for "The Thief of Bagdad."

Special Award to Bob Hope

Recipients of special awards, named as the result of conferences between the awards committee and the Academy's board of governors, were Bob Hope who received a special plaque for his many contributions to charitable undertakings for building goodwill for the industry; and to Col. Nathan Levinson for outstanding service to the industry and the army during the past nine years, which made possible the present efficient mobilization of the production of army training films.

No award was made of the Irving Thalberg memorial this year.



Coast Branches Fifth In Monogram Drive

LOS ANGELES—Monogram's Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle exchanges currently are occupying fifth place, as a group, in the company's "Lucky 7" playdate drive, according to Samuel "Steve" Broidy, sales manager. They are grouped as "Jack London's Forty-Niners."

In first place are "Tex Ritter's Rhythm Rangers," consisting of the Atlanta, Charlotte, Memphis and New Orleans branches. The Dallas, Oklahoma City, Denver and Salt Lake City exchanges, combined as "The Range Busters," are in second spot, while "Frankie Darro's Hell Raisers," the Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Washington offices, are third in the standings.

MacDonald and Brown Aid Malibu Players

Director Frank MacDonald and Bernard B. Brown, sound supervisor at Universal, are serving on the advisory board for the Malibu Players, a strawhat theatre organization headquartering at Malibu Beach. Harrison Slott is the managing director. Initial offering, beginning June 1, will be "Heaven Only Knows," musical fantasy.

A PUBLICITY release from Paramount shortly after the first of the year announced that the company "estimated net profits for the fourth quarter ended Jan. 4, 1941, at $2,807,000, after all charges, including federal income taxes, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $1.02 a share on the outstanding common stock.

"This compares with net profits of $1,030,000, or 29 cents a share on common stock in the corresponding quarter ended Dec. 30, 1939.

"The company estimated net profits for the 53 weeks ended Jan. 4, 1941, at $7,617,000 after all charges, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $2.63 a share on common stock compared with $3,874,000, or $1.08 a common share in the year ended Dec. 30, 1939 . . ."

The ink on that unusually rosy statement of increased earnings had hardly dried when the studio's executive and productional personnel was subjected to a precedental reorganization. William LeBaron relinquished his post as executive producer after holding the reins since 1936. Also departing was A. M. Botsford, a Paramount veteran and LeBaron's executive aide, and Jack Moss, an associate producer. LeBaron's place was taken by B. G. DeSylva, who promptly signed Rufus LeMaire to handle special assignments under his guidance; added Monta Bell as an associate producer, and promoted Richard Blumenthal, formerly Producer Arthur Hornblow jr.'s aide, to an associate producership.

Which contradictory situation should supply plenty of food for thought to the exponents of the leave-well-enough-alone theory.

Warner publicists are going off the deep end with a loud splash in broadcasting news concerning invitations from obscure and unlikely places which are allegedly being offered as the locales for premieres of their company's features. Witness the following pair:

Through the Ranee of Sarawak, it is asserted, negotiations have been launched for the world premiere of "Singapore Woman" in Sarawak, some 750 miles away from Singapore. The Ranee and Rajah, the release proclaims, own the island's only theatre.

The Burlington Liars Club of Burlington, Wis.—which organization sponsors an annual "tall story" contest—has, it is claimed, petitioned to have the world premiere of "The Great Lie" in that locality.

True or not, the invitation from Burlington might be worthy of consideration—especially for the publicity department.

And the general idea should serve as a suggestion to Perry Lieber. In view of the William Randolph Hearst-Orson Welles battle, Mars is probably the only safe and appropriate place for the debut of "Citizen Kane"—if any.

Add Tough-to-Sell Dept.:

Katherine DeMille will essay a screen comeback in her foster father's next picture, "Reap the Wild Wind." According to the stress agents, "she won her chance for the test by reading DeMille a scene from the script."

The Paramount Pharaohs of Praise would have it further known that Richard DeMille, "teen-age son of the great C. B.," will also have a part in the picture. One more DeMille and the projected epic will look like a remake of "Swiss Family Robinson."

BALLYHOODLUMS: Inasmuch as he is the newest major studio publicity director on the Hollywood scene, the election by his contemporary orchid cultivators of John Joseph to head the publicity directors' committee of the Hays office is singular recognition of a job well done . . . Of course, there are those who might suspect that the boys are trying to crucify, rather than glorify, him . . . And to ever-competent John LeRoy Johnston goes credit for having conceived the idea of having President Roosevelt address the annual Academy Dinner, which masterful bit of showmanship accomplished a great deal in reviving waning interest in l'affaire Oscar . . . Columbia's Lou Smith gets the nod for the most heavy-handed attempt to date to circumvent the no-theatre-preview agreement. The occasion was the press showing of "Blondie Goes Latin," which momentous incident was announced by a call, "We're having a sneak press preview of 'Blondie' tomorrow night. A bus will leave the studio at 8 o'clock or, if you prefer, we'll wire you tomorrow to tell you at what theatre it is being held."

Canaries, Crackers, Chapters

Four of the nine pictures which constituted an abnormally heavy preview week are of indisputable top-of-the-bill quality, with only personal tastes controlling which of the quartet should be designated as the best. Of the nine, five were of the series variety, probably indicating the ever-increasing popularity of this approach to production.

In the sophisticated, romantic comedy vein Paramount's "The Lady Eve" has seldom been equalled this season. It was written and directed by Preston "The Great McGinty" Sturges, who again distinguishes himself on both counts by turning out what should be a certain hit. Barbara Stanwyck, co-starred with Henry Fonda, benefits by a gay, sympathetic and sparkling role to which she does full justice; Fonda proves an able foil, and they are paced all the way by an able supporting cast headed by Charles Coburn in a delightful performance. Sturges worked under the intelligent production guidance of Paul Jones, and used a story by Monckton Hoffe as his pattern.

Departing rather sharply in story material and productional treatment from the immediately preceding Deanna Durbin features, there is, nevertheless, no apparent reason why Universal's "Nice Girl?" should not prove just as popular and profitable as its predecessors. The gifted Deanna, who has attained womanhood with such remarkable grace and development of her natural abilities as an actress, doesn't get much of a chance to display her vocal talents, having been given a part designed to accent her Thespic qualities. The remaining cast, topped by Franchot Tone and Walter Brennan, is, notably, more expensive and impressive that ever before assembled in Deanna's support—a factor that will help considerably in alleviating the disappointment of fans who might decry the scarcity of music. The script by Richard Connell and Gladys Lehman, from a play by Phyllis Duganne, is a wholesome comedy. Under Joe Pasternak's production supervision, William Seiter directed with an understanding that must be credited with contributing a large portion of the film's assets.

Twentieth Century-Fox's screen version of that record-shattering stage hit, "Tobacco Road," is expertly produced and magnificently enacted. Darryl F. Zanuck, who was in charge of its making, and Nunnally Johnson, who scripted, carefully eliminated the obscenity and objectionable sex sequences which were in the original, but at the same time retained its pathos and scattered humorous situations. As Jeeter Lester, the Georgia cracker, Charley Grapewin is nothing short of superb; while notable performances are delivered by the remainder of the cast. Worthy of wide patronage and praise, the picture's sordidness may prove a barrier among the more squeamish, however, while others may look askance at the manner in which re-

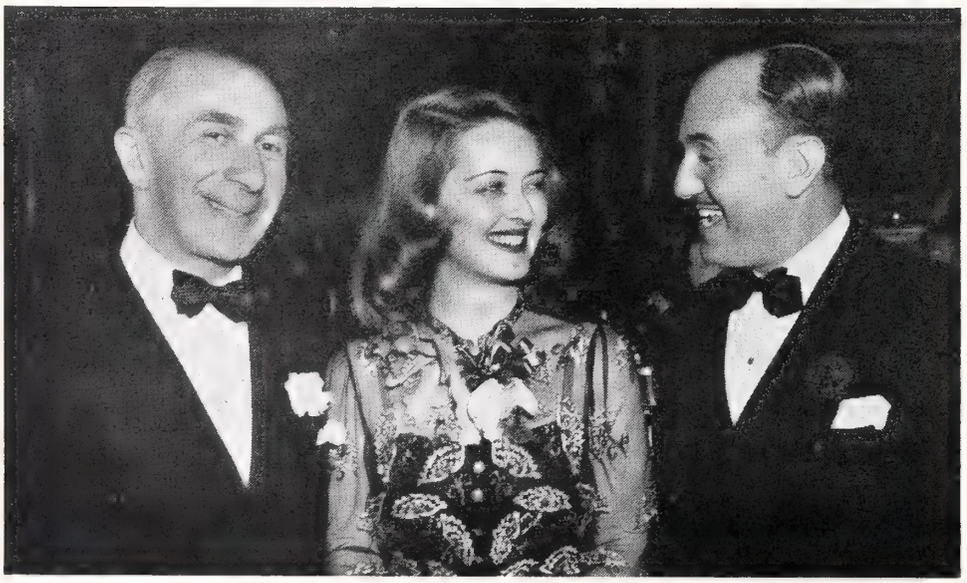
Think Decree Won't Alter "Sneak" Preview Practice

Although a strict interpretation might indicate that a comparatively obscure clause in the consent decree may have an effect upon the so-called "sneak" previews as employed by the Hollywood studios as a means of gaining an unbiased audience reaction to new product, the consensus among publicity directors and executive personnel holds that there will be no change in the system.



The clause in question rules that no motion picture is to be screened, for profit, before exhibitors have been given an opportunity to view it at a formal trade showing, in accordance with other consent decree regulations.

To date, those in authority who have studied the potentialities of the setup submit that the phrase, "for profit," automatically eliminates sneak previews from the ruling. They point out that, in the first place, the exhibitor is charged no rental for the film being previewed. Consequently, the distributor receives no profit from the showing. If any additional revenue accrues through increased patronage because of added audience interest in the preview, those extra receipts are pocketed by the theatre operator. No attempt is made to advertise the name of the sneak, but the showman may raise his admission prices if he desires.

Parenthetically, spokesmen add, there could be but one possible set of circumstances wherein the consent decree clause might be invoked, and then only by the most narrow reasoning. This would embrace a theatre in which an M-G-M film, for example, is playing on a percentage basis. Should M-G-M studio officials set in a sneak which would draw in an appreciably greater amount of business, the company's gross from the regularly-booked film would benefit accordingly. In such an instance, it is admitted, there might be some, but very little, justification for questioning the screening on the "for profit" provision.

Studio attaches point out further that the consent decree applies primarily to the relationship between exhibition and distribution, which again removes the sneak preview from the scene because sneak showings are arranged directly between studio representatives and theatre operators. In the majority of instances the distribution branch of the company involved is not even notified that such a screening has been scheduled. The studio's local exchange is never consulted. Further, sneaks are almost entirely a local practice, confined preponderantly to Hollywood and its environs.

One particular studio, for example, has four "favored" locations for its sneaks—Long Beach, Huntington Park, Inglewood and Pomona. The first three are within ten miles of Los Angeles and Pomona is approximately 40. When a sneak screening of any new picture is decided upon, a studio publicist checks with theatres in those towns to ascertain what program they may be running at that time. An effort is made to book the sneak with a picture which does not parallel it as to subject matter and type. Should the sneak be a comedy, for instance, the studio avoids setting it in with a program on which the main attraction is also a comedy. It does not even insist that the regular feature be one of its own pictures, so long as there is sufficient of a contrast between it and the sneak so that a fair and unprejudiced audience reaction can be obtained.

At the Dance—

PRC Starting Five Films This Month

Spurred by the consummation of a $1,000,000 trade deal whereby Consolidated Film Industries will finance and process its 1941-42 schedule, Producers Releasing Corp. is readying a picture-making boom which will find three features and two westerns rolling this month. The deal was set between President O. Henry Briggs of PRC and Joseph Aller of Consolidated. The latter company will handle the complete negative development, printing, titles and inserts on the PRC lineup of 63 films.

Other Activity

T. H. Richmond has been assigned to produce a second feature for PRC, "South to Panama," from a story by Sidney Sheldon and Ben Roberts. It rolls March 10.

A March 20 start has been set for "Murder by the Stars," which Sam Katzman will produce for Monogram with Bela Lugosi in the leading role. Al Martin scripted.

George W. Weeks, producer of the "Range Busters" westerns for Monogram, is planning to produce an additional series of eight pictures on Monogram's 1941-42 program, to be known as "The Four Horsemen." No cast has been lined up as yet for the new sagebrushers.

Edward Small's next for United Artists will be "Twin Beds," from the Margaret Mayo stage play. Walter DeLeon is doing the script and Ralph Murphy will direct.

Harry Sherman will launch a new "Hopalong Cassidy" western for Paramount, "Secret of the Wastelands," April 1, following "The Parson of Panamint." Five others are completed and awaiting release.

Second in Jerrold Brandt's "Scattergood Baines" series for RKO Radio release, starring Guy Kibbee, will roll March 10 under the direction of Christy Cabanne. Brandt is shooting at the RKO Pathe studios in Culver City.

LaBarba to Free-Lance

After four years at the 20th-Fox studio as a writer and story advisor, Fidel LaBarba has checked off the lot to freelance. During his stay he worked on more than 30 scripts.

Spearheads

ligion is treated. John Ford's direction is up to his usual competent standard.

Well up to par for this popular series is M-G-M's "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary." The ingredients which have made the Hardy Family top film favorites have been inculcated in the Jane Murfin-Harry Ruskin script, written from a Katharine Brush original. The film is noteworthy particularly for marking the screen debut of Kathryn Grayson, a youthful actress and singer, who looks like certain star material. In the title role, Mickey Rooney is as irrepressible as usual. George B. Seitz turned in a deft directorial chore.

Another foursome can be grouped as supporting fare, each with better-than-average possibilities in its respective classification. Paramount's "The Hard-Boiled Canary" can be classed as an experimental sally into cultural fields which, with a preponderantly juvenile cast, may possess a dramatic appeal to youngsters. It also has moments of rare entertainment to offer music lovers, but its maximum possibilities were lost somewhere in the maze of a naive, maudlin and over-length story. Scores of talented young amateur musicians from the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich., vie with Allan Jones and Susanna Foster in the toplines, all turning in acceptable performances. Andrew L. Stone produced, directed and collaborated on the original story with Robert Lively. They worked from an idea by Ann Ronell which was scripted by Frederick Jackson.

Hopalong Cassidy gets away from his usual stamping grounds, geographically, in his 38th film adventure—Harry Sherman's "In Old Colorado," made for Paramount release—but doesn't deviate a bit from his well-established system for delivering top-notch action entertainment to the sagebrush fans. William Boyd is, of course, the redoubtable Hopalong; while the humor content is stepped up through the casting of double-talking Cliff Nazarro in a supporting role. Sherman again demonstrates his flair for selecting scenically appropriate backgrounds. Howard Bretherton directed ably, using a script by Norton S. Parker and J. Benton Cheney.

Columbia injects added snap into its "Blondie" series by emphasizing the musical contributions, including three peppy Latin-American numbers, in "Blondie Goes Latin." The result is a fresh and humorous comedy which fans of the Bumsteads should welcome. Frank R. Strayer directed for Producer Robert Sparks, while Richard Flournoy and Karen DeWolf teamed on the script, for which Quinn Martin supplied the original story. Arthur Lake, Penny Singleton and Larry Simms share cast honors with such newcomers as Tito Guizar and Ruth Terry.

Also a Columbia release is the second in Larry Darmour's new series, "Ellery Queen's Penthouse Mystery." It incorporates suspense, intrigue, comedy and thrills in sufficient quantities to insure its popularity among action-seekers. Darmour, mounting it unstintingly, peopled it with a capable cast, with Ralph Bellamy repeating in the title role, and Margaret Lindsay and Charley Grapewin again portraying his secretary and the inspector of police respectively. Eric Taylor contributed a clean-cut and logical script from an original by "Ellery Queen." James Hogan's direction is brisk.

Bringing up the rear was Monogram's "Flying Wild," latest in Producer Sam Katzman's "East Side Kids" series. Probably because the general idea was too ambitious for its budget limitations, it is far less acceptable and entertaining than the average previously established. Al Martin's story and screenplay is fundamentally weak and the vehicle was roughly directed by William West.

SWG Seeking Data Before Dealing

For use in pending negotiations with producers concerning revisions in the current basic agreement, which expires in April, the Screen Writers Guild has distributed a questionnaire among film scriveners, seeking information on such items as:

Whether they favor a minimum wage scale; abolition of so-called "flat" deals where the sum involved is under $5,000; and a minimum employment guarantee. It also asks writers their present salaries and other information to be correlated for reference when the negotiation committee, headed by President Sheridan Gibney, meets with the producers. Items in the questionnaire were also discussed at an open SWG board meeting.

Being discussed by representatives of the IATSE studio locals is the question as to whether negotiations with the producers for revisions in their contracts should be handled by the individual locals or turned over to the IA international. Local negotiating committee is headed by Harold V. Smith, business representative of the sound technicians, and includes representatives from the projectionists, grips, utility workers, electricians, costumers and property men. Producers, through Pat Casey, labor contact, have indicated they will not consider opening negotiations until the matter of which shall be the bargaining agent has been settled.

Study Independent Casting Field

With its next move the elimination of those extra players who worked 20 days or less in 1939 from Screen Actors Guild membership, the SAG-producer standing committee has begun a probe of the independent casting field to amplify on the records of extra placements and earnings as tabulated through Central Casting.

Studio scenic artists have voted to accept the producers' offer of a wage increase of 50 cents per hour, boosting the scale to $2.75 per hour. The Screen Office Employes Guild has authorized its executive board to negotiate with producers for a uniform contract "in any way that they deem advisable." Studios have been insisting on conducting negotiations individually rather than as a group.

Here for conferences with local union leaders is Joseph Marshall, international vice-president of the Studio Utility Employes. He came out from Miami, where he attended a session of the American Federation of Labor's executive council.

In its open board meeting, the SWG decided to request a minimum weekly salary of $150 for film scriveners when negotiations with producers for a new basic agreement get under way. It will also demand that speculative writing, to which members declared themselves unanimously opposed, be abolished entirely.

Producers and the SAG have begun their long-delayed discussion of conditions affecting extra players, with a view to reclassifying them as to wage brackets and thus alleviating the current unemployment situation. Being discussed are proposals that the $11 and $8.25 calls be abolished in favor of a straight $10 call, while another suggestion being threshed out is that the $5.50 call also be eliminated except where 50 or more extras are requested, without special wardrobes, for mob scenes. Edward Arnold heads the SAG's negotiating committee.

Scheduled meeting of the producer-Screen Directors Guild conciliation committee has been postponed until March 5. SDG is seeking a minimum salary scale for directors on low-budget features, vacation clauses, guaranteed employment and a 90 per cent Guild shop.

Following a meeting of representatives of eight IATSE studio locals, it was decided to abandon the idea of enlisting the IA international in negotiating contract revisions with the producers. A meeting with Pat Casey, labor contact for the Hays office, was scheduled for February 27, at which the preliminaries toward negotiating new basic agreements with the individual unions were discussed.

A jurisdictional dispute between the Society of Motion Picture Artists and Illustrators and the Moving Picture Painters has arisen, each claiming jurisdiction over studio title artists. Averting a threatened strike, George Pal Productions has agreed to recognize the Screen Cartoonists Guild as exclusive bargaining agent for employes of the organization.

A Big Construction Program by Metro

One of the heaviest construction programs to be undertaken by M-G-M for more than a year is now under way, for which 1,500 men have been employed on three shifts, 18 hours a day. They are building sets for "Billy the Kid," "Lady Be Good," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and "Blossoms in the Dust."

March Production In Like a Lion

True to the old adage, March is coming in like a lion insofar as Hollywood production activity is concerned. A total of 34 features are already set for camera work this month—with nine more to follow in April, according to present schedules.

Far out in front in point of quantity is Paramount, which lists eight starters. These include "Aloma of the South Seas," "Two Bad Angels," "Buy Me That Town," "World Premiere," "Henry and Dizzy," "Nothing But the Truth," "Dildo Cay" and a Harry Sherman western, "The Parson of Panamint." In April it will film "Birth of the Blues" and "Secret of the Wastelands."

Columbia lists "Texas," "Senate Page Boys," "Show Business" and "Bedtime Story." Twentieth Century-Fox will roll "Miami," "Sun Valley" and "Sioux City." Universal is preparing "Mutiny in the Arctic" and "Almost an Angel" and will follow in April with "Men of the Timberlines" and "Ready for Romance."

The United Artists schedule includes "The Battle of Britain," Richard Rowland; "The Jungle Book," Alexander Korda, and "Strange Victory," Sol Lesser. In April David O. Selznick will roll "Jane Eyre" and Hal Roach will launch "Niagara Falls." M-G-M plans an untitled "Dr. Kildare," a "Tarzan" feature and "Smilin' Through," with "The Yearling" and "Babes on Broadway" to go in April. Monogram has "Murder by the Stars."

"Dive Bomber," "Hard to Get," "Bad Men of Missouri" and "Underground" will roll at Warner. Second in the "Scattergood Baines" series and "Parachute Battalion" are on RKO Radio's schedule, plus an April starter, "True to Form." Republic is readying an untitled "Three Mesquiteers" sagebrusher; "Puddin' Head," "Lady From New Orleans," and "Rookies on Parade."

Successful Concert Aids Greek War Relief Fund

Already enriched by a $50,000 contribution from the motion picture permanent charities committee, the Greek War Relief Fund was due for another increase as a result of the success of the concert at the Shrine Auditorium in which composers, song writers and film stars participated. Fifteen thousand dollars in admissions were sold in advance through purchase by various Greek organizations, as well as district and divisional managers of the Fox West Coast circuit, whose president, Charles P. Skouras, is handling the Greek relief drive for Southern California. The $50,000 check was presented to Skouras by Samuel Goldwyn, representing the film colony, and represented the proceeds from a radio broadcast at Grauman's Chinese Theatre some time ago.

James FitzPatrick, M-G-M shorts producer, has donated one of his Traveltalks, "Historic Athens," to be given showings for the Greek War Relief drive, the short to be screened in FWC houses throughout the area.

Appearing on the Shrine Auditorium program, which was not broadcast, were such players as Deanna Durbin, Jack Benny, Eddie Cantor, Judy Garland, Bob Hope, Francis Langford, Tony Martin, Mary Martin and composers including Sigmund Romberg, Jerome Kern, George M. Cohan and Victor Young.

To preview the first two army training films produced by the Academy Research Council for the War Department, and to confer with industry executives on the progress being made on other films being made for the national defense program, Maj.-Gen. J. O. Mauborgne, chief signal officer of the U. S. army, checked in from Washington, D. C., for a two-day stay February 26-27.

General Mauborgne was guest of honor at a dinner given in his honor by Lieut.-Col. Darryl F. Zanuck, Research Council chairman, at 20th Century-Fox, attended by Council members, officers and members of the Academy's board of governors, officers and members of the producers association, and the producers' defense coordination committee. Preview of the training films followed the dinner. Zanuck, Maj. Nathan Levinson of Warner and Capt. Gordon S. Mitchell, Council manager, have left for Washington to formally deliver the two training films to army officials.

Moulton Releasing Six Shorts Via Paramount

Herbert Moulton, former Paramount shorts and trailer producer, has set a releasing deal through that company for a quota of six short subjects per year, titled "Hedda Hopper's Hollywood," which he is producing independently.

Miss Hopper will furnish the commentary and will also appear in the subjects, which will be in the nature of "candid" shots of the stars at work and play. Moulton has leased office and shooting space at the Hal Roach studios in Culver City, and is rolling the first short immediately for a May release.

REVIEW FLASHES

FOOTSTEPS IN THE DARK (WB)—Errol Flynn forsakes swashbuckling and action to play the debonair amateur detective and solve a murder-mystery which specializes in comedy rather than suspense. His performance as a dilettante sleuth is noteworthy as are other elements of the feature, which sums up as an acceptable parcel of diverting entertainment. Robert Lord produced; Lloyd Bacon directed.

LADY EVE, THE (Para't)—In the sophisticated romantic-comedy vein, this has seldom been equalled this season. Written and directed by Preston Sturges, who was responsible for "The Great McGinty," it looks like a certain success wherever smart, sparkling entertainment is in demand. Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda are co-starred.

MELODY FOR THREE (RKO)—This can be recommended without reservation to fans of the "Dr. Christian" series starring Jean Hersholt, for it possesses the same blend of down-to-earth hokum and comedy which characterized its predecessors. Additionally it presents a promising juvenile player, by name Schuyler Standish, who performs miracles with a violin. William Stephens produced; Erle C. Kenton directed.

Schaefer Planes East On Personal Business

Interrupting his current extended stay at the studio, where he has assumed full charge for an indefinite period, President George J. Schaefer of RKO Radio planed east on personal business that took him to Chicago and New York for three days. The company head was expected to return to his local headquarters before the end of the week. The nature of his trip was not disclosed, but studio attaches asserted that as far as was known here it had nothing to do with company matters.

David L. Loew, partner of Albert Lewin in Loew-Lewin Productions, has returned from a lengthy stay in the east, during which he discussed production plans with United Artists homeoffice executives and attended the New York opening of Loew-Lewin's first UA production, "So Ends Our Night." Another UA producer, Alexander Korda, trained for New York to arrange for the eastern opening of his new film, "That Hamilton Woman."

Macgowan Directs Unity Committee

Kenneth Macgowan has resigned a $2,500 a week producership at 20th Century-Fox to become non-theatrical director for the South American Unity Committee at $8,000 yearly. He will headquarter in New York.

Busier Than Usual Week For Producers Ass'n

Busier than usual was the week's schedule for members of the Producers Association and Will H. Hays, president of the MPPDA, here on one of his periodic visits.

Association officers, and members of the board of directors, were among the guests when Darryl F. Zanuck entertained Maj. Gen. J. O. Mauborgne, chief signal officer of the U. S. army, at a dinner at 20th Century-Fox, which event culminated General Mauborgne's two-day stay here.

Earlier, Y. Frank Freeman, recently elected association president for a second term, was guest of honor at a banquet tendered him at M-G-M by Louis B. Mayer. Mayer paid tribute to Freeman for his past work in office and presented him with an ebony gavel. Mayer also complimented E. J. Mannix, re-named vice-president, and Cliff Work, named for another term as second vice-president. Speakers, aside from Mayer, included Hays, Samuel Goldwyn, Mannix, Mendel Silberberg, George Schaefer, Work and Harry M. Warner.

Those attending, in addition to the speakers, included Fred W. Beetson, Harry Brand, George Cohen, Zanuck, Pat Casey, Harry Cohn, Herbert Freston, William Goetz, Jacob Karp, B. B. Kahane, Jock Lawrence, E. J. Loeb, J. R. McDonough, Homer Mitchell, J. J. Nolan, Fred Pelton, Hal E. Roach, Howard Strickling and Alfred Wright.

Western representatives of a number of national magazines have formed an association for the purpose of contacting Jock Lawrence, Hays office public relations counsel, to bring about closer cooperation and better relations.

WB Works to Increase Quality of Trailers

Aiming to increase the entertainment qualities of trailers, Warner has assigned three top composers to write special music for a trio of trailers. Dmitri Tiomkin is doing a special score for "Meet John Doe," Max Steiner is scoring the trailer for "The Great Life" and Erich Wolfgang Korngold is assigned a similar job on the trailer for "The Sea Wolf." Edward Selzer is supervising.

LeMaire to Paramount

Continuing the realignment of production personnel which found B. G. DeSylva succeeding LeBaron as executive producer, Paramount has signed Rufus LeMaire to handle special assignments under DeSylva's guidance. LeMaire has been connected with Warner, M-G-M and RKO Radio in various executive capacities.

Blumenthal Upped

Richard Blumenthal has been promoted to an associate producership at Paramount after functioning for several years as an assistant to Producer Arthur Hornblow jr. Prior to his work at the studio, Blumenthal worked in Paramount's home office. His first assignment will be announced shortly by B. G. DeSylva, executive producer.

Lay Plans for Aiding Greek Relief Fund

LOS ANGELES—Plans whereby all Southern California exhibitors, both circuit and independent, will participate in the national "Greek Independence Week," which gets under way March 24 as a means of raising funds through the theatres for Greek War Relief, were laid at a mass meeting at the Ambassador Hotel here February 24.

Speakers included Robert H. Poole, executive secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners of So. Calif. and Ariz., who is representing all exhibitors on the committee in charge; Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin and Adamantios Th. Polyzoides, faculty member at the University of Southern California and himself a native of Greece.

350 Pledge Support

Exhibitors and distributors numbering approximately 350 were on hand to pledge unanimous support. The committee, of which W. E. Calloway, Warner branch manager, is chairman, will seek to have Gov. Culbert E. Olsen issue a proclamation making "Greek Independence Week" official throughout the state. A special trailer made by M-G-M and featuring Melvyn Douglas will be screened in theatres throughout the area. Collections will be handled by clubwomen and civic leaders in each community, who will turn the money directly over to the national Greek War Relief committee.

Poole and Calloway, assisted by Harry Nace of the Nace-Publix circuit in Arizona, are devoting all their available time to the undertaking. As a consequence Poole, who is also executive secretary of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, reports that further action is being tabled, for the time being, on the PCCITO's contemplated suit against Ascap. Albert J. Law, PCCITO counsel, is still working on a bill of complaint to be filed in federal court, and through which the organization will seek to kill the "dual scoring" charge which exhibitors must now pay for the privilege of screening films containing Ascap music.

"Rebecca" Playing Third Return Week

Hollywood—Benefiting by a strong publicity campaign, the return engagement of David O. Selznick's United Artists production, "Rebecca," at the Hawaii Theatre has been extended for a third week after an SRO first stanza and a strong second week. The film had been withdrawn from its last 10-cent runs and went immediately into the 55-cent-top Hollywood Theatre with a gala "critics' award premiere."

El Rey in Sacramento Destroyed by Fire

SAN FRANCISCO—A fire of unknown origin swept through the El Rey in downtown Sacramento causing $50,000 damage to the theatre and the building in which it was housed. The daytime blaze evidently began in the projection room and was well under way before it was discovered. The theatre, owned and operated by Irvin and Allen Lee, was completely destroyed.

Three other theatre fires occurred in this territory during this week. The Ideal in McFarland was slightly damaged and the Mendota in Mendota had a projection room blaze. Both of these houses belong to Tony Bou. The Quincy in Quincy, owned by Paul Sprague, was damaged by a fire apparently started by a careless smoker.

"Fantasia" Roadshows At Geary on March 5

SAN FRANCISCO—"Fantasia" opens at the Geary, March 5, on the roadshow basis of two-a-day. Opening night will be sponsored by the San Francisco Opera Guild and prices will range from $1 to $5. A sell-out is indicated by the advance sale.

Hal Neides, who will manage the theatre for this run, will be assisted by Fred Kislingbury, Gladys Mensh and Morrie O'Hern. Irving Ludwig came out from New York to handle technical details.

At a Birthday Party—

It was the occasion for a party at the Florentine Gardens in Hollywood when Mrs. Fred Mercy, wife of the northwest theatre operator, celebrated a birthday recently. She and her husband flew down from Yakima, Washington, to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Quinn, district credit manager for Altec Service. In this photo the Mercys are at the left, the Quinns on the right.

Arbitration Panel Named for Seattle

Seattle—While the number will probably be swelled in the future, the following have been named as members of the arbitration panel for the Seattle film tribunal by the American Arbitration Ass'n:

Frank S. Bayley sr., attorney, 759 Stuart Bldg.

G. H. Bucey, attorney; Hayden, Merritt, Summers & Bucey, 840 Central Bldg.

Henry Burd, professor; University of Washington, University of Washington.

Carl Dakan, professor, University of Washington, University of Washington.

Ford Q. Elvidge, attorney, 910 Dexter Horton Bldg.

William E. Froude, attorney, Northern Life Tower.

Tracy E. Griffin, attorney, 1107 American Bldg.

W. C. Morse, hydraulic engineer and superintendent of the Seattle Water Department, 323 County-City Bldg.

Robert Peel, secretary-manager, Intermountain Ass'n of Credit Men, Utah Oil Bldg.

O. B. Thorgrimson, attorney, 2000 Northern Life Tower.

Elliott Still Awaiting His First Complaint

LOS ANGELES—Admittedly one of the most perplexed individuals in this area is William H. Elliott, clerk of the Los Angeles tribunal of the American Arbitration Assn.

Opening offices a month ago and expecting a landslide of complaints to be filed with his organization by exhibitors seeking relief from real or fancied grievances under the consent decree, Elliott reports that thus far not a single complaint has come to his attention.

And his perplexity arises, principally, out of the fact that he had been informed the Southern California territory would, judging from its past record of exhibition-distribution disputes, be among the most active in the nation.

"Perhaps it's the 'unusual weather,'" Elliott told BOXOFFICE, referring to the two weeks of almost incessant rains with which the section has been pelted. "I can't think of any other explanation."

Members of the arbitration panel for the Los Angeles tribunal were announced from New York by the AAA last week. It comprises 18 names from various professions and local firms. Complete list was published in the February 22 issue of BOXOFFICE.

Bill Forman Quits Post With Sterling Chain

SEATTLE—John Danz, president of Sterling Theatres, announces that William R. "Bill" Forman has tendered his resignation as general manager of Sterling Theatres. Forman will soon announce new plans.

SAN FRANCISCO

TERRIFIC weekend business was experienced by all theatres in the territory. And the prosperity was not limited to film houses, the city's night spots being jammed with customers as well. Army leaves and a bit of pleasant weather had a lot to do with the biggest weekend business since New Year's. In fact, it was almost a repeat of the January 1 rush to the boxoffice. Strong product in all of the first run houses was certainly a stimulus to the increased patronage.

Columbia is spreading plenty of buttons around in connection with "Columbia's Good Will" campaign. The drive begins March 1 and continues until May 30 . . . Mrs. Helen Bennett, Monogram cashier, planed out for Canada for the funeral of her mother . . . Gordon P. Allen, Monogram salesman, checked out of the hospital after a three-week stay . . . "They Met on Skis" is doing a nice business at the Clay . . . Henning and Lippert to Los Angeles by plane for Pacific Premium.

"Fantasia" opens at the Geary, March 5 for an indefinite stay. Walt and Roy Disney have both been in town supervising the installation of necessary equipment . . . Jerome Safron in for a one-day visit at Columbia . . . Frank Noege, Warner assistant shipper, has moved over to Monogram replacing Ned McArthur who leaves the industry for other fields . . . Walter Reinhertz, Warner poster clerk, reports to Uncle Sam about March 15.

Four fires in the surrounding area this week. The largest in Sacramento where the El Rey was destroyed by a blaze that did $50,000 worth of damage. Tony Bou had two of his houses hit—the Ideal in McFarland and the Mendota in Mendota. The damage was slight at both. Paul Sprague's Quincy in Quincy was another casualty with fire damaging the interior, necessitating new fixtures and fittings.

Monogram started its "Lucky Seven" playdate drive on Feb. 22 and will campaign for dates until April 11 . . . Howard Butler has been re-employed at Monogram after a year's absence from the exchange. He checked out for the San Joaquin Valley on his first jaunt . . . "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" has been packing them in at the Gate and goes into a third week . . . Harry Hemington announces a March opening for his Fowler in Fowler . . . Dick Crosby, Embassy house manager, has bought a new home for himself and his mother.

Bob Schultz took over the managership of the National Theatre Supply office here replacing Lloyd Ownbey who goes to Los Angeles for a bigger and better position. Our best to both in their new spots . . . "Pride of the Bowery" is showing first run at the Esquire and looks good for a week at least. "Secrets of the French Police" is the companion film . . . Nick Laurice was installed as business agent of Local B-17 this week . . . Pat Patterson is moving back into his former quarters sometime after March 1 when Producers vacates to move to their new quarters.

The world premiere of "A Girl, a Guy, and a Gob" will be held Mar. 5 at the Golden Gate. An impressive list of Hollywood celebs will be on hand for personals. The list is incomplete at present but will include the stars of the picture, George Murphy and Lucille Ball. It is hoped Harold Lloyd, producer, will be able to make the trip for the one-day stand. President George Schaefer of RKO will represent the studio.

Leon Applestone, manager of the Marina Theatre, has been drafted and will report about the middle of March . . . "The Light Ahead," a Yiddish film, opened at the Clay . . . Booking: Ray Harper, Mariposa, Mariposa; Odillo Restano, Sonora, Sonora, and Lou Marks, Rialto, Sacramento.

NOW BOOKING the only original version on "THE LIFE OF OUR SAVIOR"

Complete from the manger to the cross. Adapted from Behold the Man. Descriptive talking version. 72 Brand New Prints Available. Positively a record-breaker! Only first-class theatres should apply. Beware of patched-up versions. Direct shipments everywhere. Western Feature Films, 1018 S. Wabash, Chicago.

'Mr. & Mrs. Smith' to Top Business in L. A.

LOS ANGELES—A steady siege of rain failed to dampen boxoffice grosses in the first-run houses here. With but one exception, a poor fifth week for "Cheers for Miss Bishop" at the Four Star, top business was reported right down the line. Outstanding hit was "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," coupled with "The Lone Wolf Keeps a Date," which doubled normal takes at the Pantages and came close to doing so in its day-date engagement at the RKO Hillstreet.

Low-Grossing Holdovers Feature Seattle Runs

SEATTLE—Most houses in town feature hold-overs but none can boast of doing "big" business. Beautiful sunshiny weather did not do the theatres any good over the Washington Birthday holiday. The golf courses did the biz. Liberty, after two weeks single bill on same feature, added a second picture.

Above-Average Week Is Maintained in Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY—Unusually fine early spring weather all week, and some attractive theatre attendance has been enjoyed here. "Philadelphia Story" carried into its third week at the Studio after the first week at the Centre. The Victory's new policy continues to be a big boxoffice attraction (one big second run and a first run). The Rialto switched to second runs for the week.

"GWTW" Doubles Par In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO—"Gone With the Wind" made a smash return to the Warfield and from the looks of the lines that have extended in front of the theatre each day, the picture appears to be set for a long run. The Gate had a fine week with "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" holding the film for a second week. The rest of the first runs were bunched around the average mark. The weather continued a big handicap, with rain every day.

"Wind" and "Virginia" Rate Denver Lead

DENVER—"Gone With the Wind" at the Orpheum easily walked off with high money honors, packing the house repeatedly and holding over.

However, "Virginia" was doing a similar feat at the Denham, and the money turned in rated second to the Orpheum gross.

SEATTLE

THIS neck-of-the-woods is sure enjoying grand weather for this time of the year. Reports from California tell of heavy rains. Here, in place of the usual rain, the sun is shining and the air very warm. Great for the outloor lovers, but tough on the show-shops . . . John James Sullivan, former Seattle manager for Fox Theatres, is dead. At the time of his death he was vice-president of the National Theatre Corp. . . . The "sneak" preview is getting to be quite the thing. Started by RKO some time ago, other companies have caught on. Paramount kept up the fad this week by presenting a new production at the Fifth Avenue. Event is just advertised as a "Sneak Hollywood Preview" in conjunction with the regular show.

Local gal makes good. Vivien Mason, formerly of a local department store, garnered a load of space in the dailies due to her getting a swell part in "Ziegfeld Girl." Her dad is in business in Seattle . . . Word to Eddie Lamb, local manager for RKO, tells that his company will hold the world premiere of "A Guy, a Girl and a Gob," March 14 at the Paramount here. Personal appearances have not yet been set but some stars will be on hand . . . Funeral services for Mrs. Tom Berry were attended by representatives from every theatre and exchange in this territory. The crowd was so large that many had to stand outside the church. Mrs. Berry was one of the most popular and highly regarded exhibitors in the northwest. Her theatre is in Edmonds, a few miles from Seattle . . . L. J. McGinley, branch manager for Universal, along with Les Theuerkauf and M. G. Whitman, salesmen, out for Hollywood to attend the sales convention.

Bill Shartin, recovering from an infected leg, back at his desk . . . Jack Flannery telling that Charlie Greime of Wenatchee is in Palm Springs and will be back home March 16. His wife is coming along in fine shape and wants to be remembered to everyone . . . J. T. Sheffield, president of Republic Pictures of the Northwest, has left for Hollywood to attend a convention of branch managers. Sheff took along his aides, Eddie Walton from Seattle; Harold Sheffield, Portland; Eddie Loy, Butte; Pat Pinnell, Salt Lake, and Gene Gerbase, Denver . . . W. B. McDonald and his wife of the Avalon, Olympia, off to Detroit where they will pick up a new car and tour the south. Quite a change for Mac who owns a couple of boats and spends most of his time on the water . . . A. J. "Sully" Sullivan of United Artists got a candy doll for Valentine's Day. It was addressed to "Harvey" and signed "Brenda and Cobina" who, in this case, were Virginia Collala and Juanita Eckert of the UA office.

Henry Turner, long identified with theatres in Missoula and recently operating one of the best dude ranches in the west, passed away a few days ago . . . H. S. He's AAA Man—

This is John Francis Sullivan, clerk of the Chicago arbitration tribunal. He has lived in Illinois and the Windy City 33 years, is married and is a cousin of Judge Philip L. Sullivan, sitting in the U. S. district court. A member of the Chicago Bar Ass'n and the press committee of the Holy Name Society, Chicago, Sullivan is a lawyer. He earned his degree in '36 at the John Marshall Law School. For 11 years he was with Orr, Sullivan & Richs, first as a legal stenographer, then a private secretary and for the last three years and a half assistant attorney. The law firm is headed by Judge W. H. Orr, formerly of the Illinois supreme bench. Sullivan maintains the AAA office in the Rookery Building.

Evansville, Wis., Clearance Issue to Arbitration

Chicago Ken Theatre Brings Up Clearance

CHICAGO—First suit regarding clearance in Chicago was filed with Clerk John F. Sullivan here by the Ken Theatre Corporation with three distributors—RKO, Paramount and 20th Century-Fox—named in the complaint. Chicago's initial complaint, filed by E. F. Van Derveer, operator of the State Theatre, Morris, Ill., on February 13 was in reference to nonability to obtain second-run Metro product. Landis & Landis, law firm at 33 N. La Salle St., Chicago, is handling the complaint for the Ken Theatre Corp.

The Ken Theatre, which now plays pictures the third week of general release (or 13 weeks after the opening of a film in the loop) is complaining that the Shakespeare and Pix theatres, both operated by the Schoenstadts and both located in the same neighborhood as the Ken, are playing second and third week run pictures respectively.

The Ken, in its complaint, asks that it be allowed to show 20th-Fox, RKO and Paramount films at the same time as the Shakespeare and ahead of the Pix. The Shakespeare is a 954-seat house, the Ken a 900-seat house and the Pix a 400-seat house. Ads in Chicago daily papers the day after the action was taken, quoted the following admission prices at the three theatres: Shakespeare—15 cents matinee and 20 cents evening; Ken, 15 cents from 6:00 to 6:30 p. m. and 25 cents after 6:30; Pix—10 cents all evening.

The Ken was opened by Ben Banowitz and John Landis on Sunday, February 16. It is reported that $80,000 was spent in remodeling. Formerly known as the Kenwood, the theatre was operated by the Schoenstadts until the latter part of 1939. The Kenwood was a second-week house when operated by the Schoenstadts and had 500 seats.

MILWAUKEE—The first arbitration action in this territory was filed Tuesday by the Evansville Theatre, Inc., operator of the Rex in Evansville, Wis., against Paramount.

The complaint alleges that Paramount is giving unreasonable clearance to the Jeffris Theatre in Janesville, Wis., operated by the Jeffris Theatre Co., and is improperly refusing to deliver prints of motion pictures contracted for said Rex until said pictures have been exhibited at the Jeffris.

The Evansville company claims that on the basis of admission price charged by the Jeffris it is entitled to no clearance over the Rex and seeks a finding that the said clearance is unreasonable and an award that the Jeffris is entitled to no clearance over the Rex.

The Rex is affiliated with the Eskin Theatres, Inc. and the Jeffris with the Saxe Amusement Management, Inc., both of Milwaukee. Lamfrom, Tighe, Engelhard & Peck, Milwaukee, is representing the Evansville Theatre, Inc., in the action.

Complaint Text

The complete complaint as filed with Clerk Sullivan read as follows:

"Ken Theatre, a corporation and an exhibitor within the meaning of the Consent Decree claims that the clearance granted to the Shakespeare Theatre by Paramount Pictures, Inc., 1306 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago; Paramount Film Distributing Corp., 1306 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago; 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., 1260 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago; Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp., 1023 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago; RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., 1023 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago; L. B. Keith Orpheum Corp., 1023 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago; RKO Proctor Corp., 1023 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, and RKO Midwest Corp., 1023 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, is unreasonable; and that the failure of (above-mentioned eight companies are here repeated) to grant to the Ken Theatre clearance over the Pix Theatre is unreasonable; and the Ken Theatre asks that the arbitrator shall find that the said clearance granted to the said Shakespeare Theatre by the above named distributors is unreasonable and that the failure of the above named distributors to grant to the Ken Theatre clearance over the Pix Theatre is unreasonable, and that the arbitrator enter an award fixing the clearance between the Shakespeare and Ken Theatre and the Shakespeare Theatre and the Pix Theatre."

Would Aid Members In Filing Plaints

CHICAGO—At the recent election-meeting of Allied Theatres of Illinois held at the Congress, President Jack Kirsch proposed that members take up contemplated complaints with Allied's board of directors before actually filing them. This plan was proposed so that members might be aided by the knowledge of the board members who are all veteran exhibitors.

All officers and directors were re-elected at the meeting. Jack Kirsch was not up for re-election since his 3-year term has two more years to go. Re-elected were: Van A. Nomikos, vice-president; Richard Salkin, secretary-treasurer, and Harry Nepo, sergeant-at-arms.

All officers are also automatically on the board which comprises a total of 16 members. Re-elected to the board were: Jack Rose, Indiana-Illinois circuit; Ben Bartelstein, Bartelstein circuit; Harry Rekas, Ramova, Milda and Wallace theatres; Ludwig Sussman, Adelphi; Verne Langdon, Hub and Alvin; Carl Goodman, Goodman-Harrison circuit; Charles Nelson, Lawndale; Benjamin Lasker, Jacob Lasker & Son circuit; Abe Gumbiner, Abe Gumbiner circuit; Nate Wolf, Lane Court; Richard Salkin, Jackson Park; Joseph Stern, Joseph Stern Theatres, and Sinuel Roberts, California, White Palace and Homan theatres.

The question of licensing dime-in-the-slot film machines was also discussed. It is understood that the city council may pass a resolution charging a $50 fee per machine to taverns, drugstores and other locations that might have the machines.

At the meeting it was announced that the janitors' union, which had asked for a 20 per cent increase in wages, had settled for a five per cent increase. This was retroactive from the first of the year. The minimum weekly wage for male employes, based on a 42-hour week, has been $27.50, while minimum wage for women employes has been $18 for a 42-hour week. Employes are paid time and a half for overtime.

All Allied members have signed pledges for cooperation with the industry's committee on national defense.

Narrow Gauge Films In Terre Haute Rile

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—A recent 16mm showing of "The Star Maker" by a local school, with tickets sold to parents as well as children, occasioned a letter of protest to the Paramount exchange here by A. H. Kaufman, head of the Terre Haute Theatres Ass'n and manager of the Fountain Theatre.

Requesting that the protest be forwarded to the Paramount home office, Kaufman stated in part:

"I don't know whether your company is aware of the seriousness of 16mm competition here. There are now six free merchants shows put on all summer within a radius of two to ten miles of our city . . . I cannot understand why film companies will continue to jeopardize the business of their customers by furnishing 16mm shows to free showings and schools in actual competition to theatres."

Barrett Injured

COLUMBIA, MO.—Mayor Rex P. Barrett, who is interested in local theatres, was injured slightly when his automobile collided with a truck on Highway No. 40.

Many Warner Employes Join Service Units

CHICAGO—More than a dozen Warner theatre employes have resigned in the past couple months to join various U. S. service branches.

Men who have enlisted, together with the theatre at which they were employed, and the branch of service they are now in follow:

George Walthers, Sheboygan, marines; Ben Sukis, Avalon, army; Michael Lengyel, Paramount, army; Martin Frain, Avalon, army; James Foster, Oakland, air corps; Jack Robertson, Paramount, Canadian air corps; Dean Malme, Rialto, national guard; Adolph Sugent, State, army; Robert Anderson, Avalon, marines; John Collopy, Rhodes, navy; Chris Kuris, Avalon, army; Douglas Majury, Avalon, army; Wayman Merrill, Ogden, national guard; James Holmquist, Cosmo, naval reserves; Robert Grogan, Highland, naval reserves; Donald Wright, Grove, navy, and Charles Dixon, Warner, conscripted.

Michael Nash Missing

ST. LOUIS—The wife of Michael Joseph Nash, veteran retired theatre operator, has asked St. Louis police to conduct a search for her husband who has been missing since he left last November for a Florida vacation. Nash opened a theatre of the nickelodeon type on Franklin Ave. about 1907 or 1908 and later had the King Bee. He retired several years ago and is now about 70 years of age.

Long Runs Causing Product Problem

By HAL TATE

CHICAGO—With "Fantasia" booked into the B&K Apollo for a long-time run and "Gone With the Wind" tying up the circuit's Roosevelt for some time to come, local exchange managers are tearing their hair trying to figure out some way of getting their product into downtown theatres.

RKO and Universal show their pictures at the Palace but all the other companies have a big batch of pictures ready and are scrambling to get their product into one of the other loop houses. Metro's top pictures usually open at the United Artists and oft-times stay there for a lengthy run.

Taking advantage of the situation is "Lucky" Mike Todd, who recently took over the management of the Oriental. Because of the current lack of loop outlets, Bennie Eisenberg, exchange manager for United Artists here, has sold Todd a first-run UA release, "Road Show." It is possible Todd may also have first run on another UA picture.

As a result of the loop situation, B&K is showing some first runs at their northside Riviera. Pictures playing there, however, are double-billed. Warner Bros.' "Honeymoon for Three" had its first Chicago showing last Friday at the ace Warner house, the south side Avalon.

"Fantasia" in Chicago—

Pre-Release—

Terre Haute Benefit Show for Greek Aid

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—A focal point for the Greek War Relief Fund campaign underway here will be the benefit show at the Gregory circuit's Orpheum and Fountain theatres on Saturday, March 1.

Abe Kaufman and Nat Blank, managers respectively of the Fountain and Orpheum, are active on the committee of civic leaders who are conducting the campaign.

The week of February 23 to March 1 has been proclaimed by the mayor as "Greek War Relief Week" and the newspapers are cooperating by printing the names of all contributors to the fund. Various women's clubs and the radio station too are aiding the project.

Kaufman and Blank have special tickets on sale for the benefit performance and have promoted a sound truck for ballyhoo. The operators and theatre staff are donating their services and the exchanges are furnishing films gratis.

To date some $600 has been contributed to the fund.

Guinan to PRC

ST. LOUIS—William A. Guinan has been added to the local sales staff of Producers Releasing Corp. by A. R. Dietz, branch manager. Guinan has been in the sales end of the industry for the past five years with Republic and the now defunct Grand National.

Experimental Telecasts Made by B&K Station

CHICAGO—Without ballyhoo or publicity of any sort, B&K's television station, W9XBK, made its first experimental telecasts last Friday. Tests were under the personal supervision of Bill Eddy, station manager. The initial telecast followed considerable field-tests which had been made to determine the station's coverage.

B&K's transmitter is located atop the State-Lake Theatre Bldg. in downtown Chicago. Studios are also located on the top floor of the building.

B&K's telecasts use a vertical antenna polarization. Their equipment is manufactured by the DuMont Laboratories, although some parts have been constructed by B&K engineers. Working with the B&K engineers on some special work have been two engineers from the American Television Laboratories, Chicago, Stanley Osterlund and Hudson Nall.

Below Zero Weather Milwaukee Barrier

MILWAUKEE — Prolonged below zero weather and snow held down all takes for the week except the Warner and Wisconsin where business was slightly above par. Leader was "Come Live With Me" and "The Wild Man of Borneo" at Fox's Wisconsin with "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" and "The Saint in Palm Springs" a close runner-up at the Warner.

'Virginia' Plus Stage Show Grosses Tops in Chicago

CHICAGO — Despite the zero weather which didn't help boxoffice attendance at loop theatres, the Chicago with Paramount's "Virginia" on the screen and Phil Spitalny's orchestra on stage, did top B&K business. The Palace started off big with Universal's "Back Street" and it looks like it'll be in there a few weeks. Universal's "San Francisco Docks" and Louis Armstrong's band on stage proved a fine exit march for Jones, Linick & Schaefer at the Oriental. Mike Todd took over management of the house on Friday, February 21. Initial "Fantasia" reports at the Apollo will appear in next week's BOXOFFICE.

Victory in Postponement Of Daylight Saving Bill

MADISON, WIS.—Recommendation by the committee on state and local government for an indefinite postponement of the Murray daylight saving bill, is viewed as a victory for exhibitors who have been opposing passage of the measure. Theatremen contend that passage of the bill would do great harm to their business.

The Westfahl bill, which would establish a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour for all non-farm workers in Wisconsin, was unopposed at a hearing before the assembly committee on labor. Another hearing is scheduled for this measure, which if passed, would affect the theatre industry.

A joint resolution engineered by Edward J. Benjii, manager of the Capitol here, inviting Fred MacMurray, Wisconsin-born film star, to come to Madison March 15 in connection with the opening of "Virginia" at the Capitol, boomeranged when the state assembly passed the measure but the senate shouted it down by voice vote. The invitation was to have been extended in connection with the Wisconsin premiere of the flicker, but the picture opened February 19 at Fox's Wisconsin in Milwaukee.

"Wind" at Roosevelt on Return to Windy City

CHICAGO—The first showing of "Gone With the Wind" at popular prices here started Thursday at the B&K Roosevelt on a continuous-run basis. It is being shown four times daily.

CHICAGO

Producers Visit—

Albert Lewin (left) and David Loew, producers of "So Ends Our Night," pause in Chicago en route to Hollywood. The pair, who release through UA, say their next picture will be "Landfall," adapted from Neville Shute's book of the same name. Production is planned to start this summer.

"Today," a Newsreeler, Debuts in Windy City

CHICAGO—The town's second newsreel theatre, Dick Beck's "Today," located at Madison and Dearborn Streets, is now going full blast following the gala premiere held there Friday night. The premiere was a benefit affair held by the Illinois chapter of the American Institute of Decorators.

Patrons and patronesses include Governor and Mrs. Dwight Green of Illinois and numerous prominent society people including Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Davis. The Davises were planning on having Walter Huston as their dinner guest and the stage and screen star was scheduled to make a personal appearance at the premiere.

Opening festivities started with a press cocktail party at the Morrison Hotel on Thursday. The premiere took place Friday night and following a press and trade showing scheduled for Saturday afternoon at 2:30, the new newsreel theatre was thrown open to the public.

Dick Beck said that he was informing all well-wishers not to send flowers. Instead, he suggested they turn over all "flower money" to the British War Relief.

"Today" was designed by David Chapman. A complete story of "Today" from a technical angle is scheduled for a forthcoming issue in THE MODERN THEATRE section of BOXOFFICE.

changes. Burial took place at Mount Olive Cemetery on Wednesday.

According to Producer Oscar Serlin, Lillian Gish will not leave "Life With Father" to accept a leading role in "Ladies in Retirement." Serlin issued the denial following publication of the report in a Hollywood trade paper and in a syndicated film gossip column. According to present plans, Miss Gish, Percy Waram and the rest of the Chicago cast will embark upon a year's transcontinental tour after "Life With Father" sets an all-time record in late May.

Charlie Ryan says Coca Cola vending machines have been installed in all 15 Warner houses . . . Working with Bob Montgomery now on "Fantasia" publicity is Frances Taylor who before her marriage was Frances Taylor of the Chicago Herald-American amusement page . . . Jim Levine, head of the Disney office here, went to Cleveland to look over the Hanna, "Fantasia" house there.

Art Catlin, United Artists publicity man here, met Producers David Loew and Albert Lewin when they came through here recently. Art conducted the pair to WGN where, with Bill Bacher, they discussed the idea of sending some "So Ends Our Night" stars here to star on the WGN-Mutual "In Chicago Tonight" program . . . Bennie Eisenberg, UA exchange manager, says Charlie Chaplin doesn't want his "Great Dictator" released here until Easter Sunday.

Al Dezel announces he has booked "Schubert's Serenade" into several B&K and Essaness houses . . . Irving Mack back from the Tri-Cities where he attended testimonial banquet for Joe Kinsky, district manager for Publix in Davenport, who was transferred to Omaha . . . Colleen Moore, who is now married to Chicagoan Homer P. Hargrave, recently starred in original dramatic sketch written by Nikki Kaye and Hal Tate and broadcast over WAAF on the BOXOFFICE-Joy Candy Shoppers' program.

Two Reel Fellows Club members recently celebrated wedding anniversaries. Mr. and Mrs. Percy Barr celebrated their silver anniversary on February 20 while Mr. and Mrs. Mike Gottschalk celebrated their 27th wedding anniversary on February 16. Next Reel Fellows meeting will be held at Sherman Hotel on Sunday, March 9.

Two Film Talks

MILWAUKEE—"Children and the Movies" was discussed by Josephine Maloney of the Milwaukee State Teachers College before the Garden Homes PTA here, and by Helen Nagle, superintendent of the Children's Home at Fond du Lac, Wis., before the Better Films Council in that city during the past week.

Fine Projectionist $250 For Contempt of Court

MILWAUKEE—Norman W. Habersat, a motion picture projectionist, was fined $250 by Circuit Judge William F. Shaughnessy for contempt of court. Habersat was charged with attempting to influence Eugene Goderski, manager of a south side theatre, who was serving as a juror in an assault and battery and slander action. Habersat denied any intent to influence Goderski and accused the juror of "framing" him because he had picketed the theatre operated by the juror's father seven years ago.

Plans are being made for a new theatre in Charlestown, Ind. This is the site of the DuPont powder plant for the government, which now has all the earmarks of a boomtown . . . Douglas Haney, operator of the Albion at Albion, reports his theatre is being remodeled . . . Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Crouch of the Palace, Fairmount, left for New Orleans and the Mardi Gras . . . Elissa Landi was guest artist at the Bundles-for-Britain benefit ball. She flew in from New York . . . A billboard tax measure was introduced proposing not only a license for each billboard within the state, but also a tax based on the square footage. It was killed.

Among other points in the bill to amend the present liquor laws of Indiana was a clause prohibiting the operation of a tavern within 50 feet of a motion picture theatre . . . A recent fire in Indianapolis may result in the change of the building code to not allow the erection of any building over one story with a modernistic, solid windowless front. The fire in question caused firemen to attack the fire from the rear of building, due to the fact that they could not get to the upper stories through the front . . . The Apollo cooperated in National Defense Week by showing "Wings of the Navy," with trainees at the local Naval Armory as guests.

Columbia Hall in Louisville was purchased by the City of Louisville to be used primarily as a soldier-civilian center. The hall contains a theatre, which has been used by independent groups to present special features, and traveling promoters with "special attractions." Acting Mayor Broaddus of Louisville is quoted as saying that the theatre will not be operated in competition with others, as the city is not in the theatrical business . . . Indianapolis is also considering the problem of taking care of the soldiers stationed at Fort Knox. However, there seems to be little likelihood of any theatrical competition, although present plans appear to be in the direction of greater use and facilities of the city parks.

The Variety Club staged a Gay Nineties party, with Fred Greenberg of Warner contributing a part of "Strawberry Blonde" toward the entertainment. Carl Niesse was chairman, assisted by Claude McKean, Ralph Iula, Harry Hayes and A. C. Zaring . . . Ted Nicholas, on leave from his position as manager of Orrin Tucker's band, announced the opening of an advertising agency in Indianapolis. He was formerly manager of the Lyric and also at one time was advertising manager of the Indiana and Circle theatres, Indianapolis, and publicity director for English Theatre . . . The Tacoma in Indianapolis was badly damaged by fire, and may be closed for 30 days. The fire started in the drug store next door, and was discovered by the theatre custodian. Damage to the building was expected to exceed $25,000.

Will Rock, magician, presented his show on the Lyric stage, and between times found himself with a sister-in-law. His brother, John Rock, married Miss Helen Welti of Salt Lake City, and a member of the cast. Both returned immediately to appear in the next show . . . As a publicity gag, the Indiana was picketed by three brunettes carrying a sign reading "Strawberry Blonde Is Unfair to Brunettes" . . . The salesroom of National Theatre Supply Co. is being remodeled . . . A card was received from Jack Dowd, former Warner booker, who is now at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich. . . . H. R. Wagner is now manager of the Playhouse, Edinburg, having resigned from the management of the Majestic in Seymour . . . Rosalind Lindley, secretary to J. H. Stevens, Paramount branch manager, has resigned . . . Carl Kemp, booker at Paramount, has been confined to his home by sickness.

A triple feature policy has been instituted by the Fountain by means of a "preview night." The principal feature on the ending program is coupled with the two shows scheduled to open the following day . . . Rud Lohrenz, Warner district manager, paid a visit at the local exchange . . . Fred Pride of 20th Century-Fox's home office legal staff explained the consent decree to the local sales force staff . . . The Esquire has run "Night Train" (Fox) for two consecutive weeks, using different supporting features. This is probably a record for local neighborhood houses.

A Jury Selected in La Crosse Action

MADISON, WIS.—The first week in the $1,476,000 anti-trust action of the La Crosse Theatres Co. in federal court here was primarily concerned with the selection of a jury and presentation of opening statements by attorneys.

Hearing in the action against Paramount, United Artists, 20th Century-Fox, Welworth Theatres and the Minnesota Amusement Co. was first started last October but was finally postponed to February 17 due to the illness of Robert A. Hess, Milwaukee, counsel for the plaintiff company.

Hess told the jury, which includes two women, that the defendants had sought to "freeze out" the La Crosse firm by refusing to make desirable films available.

D. V. W. Beckwith, counsel for the distributors, said he failed to see how the La Crosse Co. could expect to receive protection from the Sherman act when it had a monopoly in La Crosse from 1927 until 1936, when the Welworth company built its first house in that city.

La Crosse has seven theatres of which number five are operated by the La Crosse Theatres Co. and two by the Welworth company, a subsidiary of the Minnesota Amusement Co.

Taverns and Roadhouses Are Targets in Proposal

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.—Sen. William Quinn of Maywood has presented a bill to the senate to prohibit taverns and roadhouses from putting on floor shows or operating mechanical musical instruments. Quinn, a Democrat, said his measure is aimed primarily at rural sections where young people congregate in roadhouses and dime-a-dance taverns. The bill would permit the state liquor supervisor to issue special permits to hotels in larger cities where "entertainment is better regulated" to hire orchestras for dances.

BOWLING

CHICAGO — As the Filmrow Bowling League went into its 20th week, the race apparently centered into a battle for first place between three teams, with Paramount holding a two-game lead over Metro and 20th Century-Fox.

Metro is coming up fast, making a clean sweep of the three-game series with United Artists, while Fox was winning two out of three from Film Chauffeurs and the leading Paramount boys managed to take a single game from Republic.

Abe Fischer continued to lead the bowlers with a 174 average. Other leading scorers are: Johnny Knaffle, UA, 173; Max Dreifuss, Republic, 173; Jack Kirsch, Republic, 172, and Mike Fahey, Paramount, 172. Team standings:

Team—	Won	Lost
Paramount	36	24

Chicago Beaming on Prospects for 1941

CHICAGO—With general conditions expected to exceed those of 1940, circuit heads and independents alike when questioned by BOXOFFICE, expressed confidence 1941 would be a better theatre year.

Defense appropriations are expected to play a great part in increasing attendance. Most exhibitors felt it is too premature to comment on how the decree would affect business, but they, nevertheless feel it would not prove a hinderance insofar as grosses are concerned.

The mid-west particularly is expected to benefit by new defense appropriations. Two important military posts, one for the army at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and another one for the navy at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station near Waukegan, Ill., are both located within 40 miles of Chicago.

Defense Program a Boon

A new ammunition factory located at Lockport between Wilmington and Joliet is expected to prove beneficial. Factories located at Rockford, Harvey and Peoria, all manufacturing military supplies, have increased their personnel, which, in turn, is expected to prove profitable to theatres. Gary, great steel manufacturing center located 26 miles from the heart of the Loop, is another mid-western city into which government money has been poured and some of which, it is hoped, will eventually reach the coffers of picture houses.

John Balaban of B&K told BOXOFFICE he expected the new defense appropriations to aid business in some cities but, that to date the program had no effect insofar as increased attendance was concerned. He added he felt the decree would cause confusion to theatre owners until everyone became adjusted to it and that it was too premature at this time to predict the effect of the decree generally on 1941 business.

Foresees Product Improvement

An executive of the Warner circuit, who preferred to remain anonymous, feels the decree would improve the calibre of pictures, which, in turn, would result in increased attendance. He quoted the popular credo, proverb: "There is nothing wrong with this business that a good picture can't cure."

M. M. Rubens of Publix-Great States thinks this: "Business for 1941 looks very good. Starting with Christmas Day the mid-west had enjoyed unprecedented weather conditions which has been perfect for theatre owners with the result that there has been a decided upswing in profits."

Questioned on the effect of the decree Rubens said that at the present time he felt that the decree would result in increased production costs, which, in turn, would be passed along to exhibitors. For this reason he felt that the decree would not increase profits.

He also advanced the theory that the decree will not prove beneficial to business because exhibitors will spend more time in buying product than in the past and have less time to spend on exploiting the product.

He thinks the decree may open an entire new field in the business in that agents will do nothing but view films for both circuit and independent theatre owners and pass judgment on what they think will be their potential boxoffice appeal. In other words, since many exhibitors will be unable to view films when sold in blocks of five, they will have to appoint agents to do the buying for them.

Van Nomikos, head of his own circuit and vice-president of the Allied Theatres of Illinois, thinks the outlook is the best in years and that, if the defense program continues at the pace set for it, business in 1941 will break all previous records. Regarding the decree, he said it should be given a fair trial and will use his efforts to help make it work satisfactorily. He suggested distributors arrange showings in spots most accessible to theatre owners who book their own films and do not rely on booking combines.

Herb Elisburg, owner of the Studio, said the outlook is very good. He feels the decree will result in the abolishment of "B" pictures and that art and foreign language films would come into their own this year.

Joseph Vicedomini, manager of the World Playhouse, expressed confidence in business prospects.

The arbitration picture in the Chicago-Milwaukee area to date:

MORRIS, ILL.—
E. F. Van Derveer, operator of the State Theatre, complained against Metro, claiming non-ability to obtain second-run product from the distributor.

CHICAGO—
Ken Theatre Corp. demands right to show 20th-Fox, RKO and Paramount films at its Ken Theatre ahead of Schoenstadt's Pix, and an alteration of the clearance between the Ken and the Shakespeare Theatre, also a Schoenstadt house.

EVANSVILLE, WIS.—
Evansville Theatre, Inc., operator of the Rex, claims Paramount is giving unreasonable clearance to the Jeffris in Janesville, Wis., operated by the Jeffris Theatre Co.

Mrs. Breitenbach Names Council's Committees

FOND DU LAC, WIS.—Mrs. G. F. Breitenbach, newly installed president of the Better Films Council, recently named committees as follows:

Reviewing chairman, Mrs. D. E. Sullivan; program, Mrs. William Mobray; publicity, Mrs. H. J. Kenyon; visual education, Miss Vivian Gamble, Miss Veronica Balthazor; legislative, Miss Isabelle Rothbauer, Mrs. William Kremer; social chairmen, Mrs. Rublee Brown, Miss Ruth Barnett; telephone corps, Mrs. Herman Rhode, Mrs. H. L. Lepinski, Mrs. W. J. Vandervoort, Mrs. Manville Perry and advisory committee, all past presidents.

De Lorenzo President of Operators' Credit Union

MILWAUKEE—The Projectionists' Credit union of the Motion Picture Projectionists' union, Local 164, has elected officers as follows: John B. De Lorenzo, president; Karl Miller, vice-president; Robert Lucht, treasurer; George Brader, secretary; Otto Trampe, director; Spiro Methenitis, Samuel Serge and Walter Behr, members of the credit committee; Arthur Brock, Alfred Baumann and Herbert Paringer, members of the auditing committee.

Ambersley Re-elected IA Affiliate Agent

Two Tax Measures Dropped in Nebraska

LINCOLN—Two bills in Nebraska's legislature—a prospective menace of $600,000 to the state's amusement boxoffices—went tumbling into the wastebasket and oblivion for the 1941 session last week.

The bills:

A proposal to tax 10 per cent of every 10 cents or fraction of ticket cost, estimated to bring, from all amusement sources, largely film houses, a matter of $500,000 annually. This bill lumped cosmetics, gasoline, soft drinks, and cigarettes along with theatres, and was proposed for the purpose of relieving some of the tax pressure on property owners.

A proposal to license all exchanges in Nebraska for $1,000 annually, and $1 per reel for each one distributed in the state. The author of the bill thought $100,000 was safe expectancy from this source alone.

But, both the bills failed to survive the barrage of anti-talk which swept the hearing room.

R. R. Livingston, of the Capitol, an independent subsequent run here, can take credit for the bill killing, because he was the sole exhibitor, or representative of the film business, to go before the committee hearing the bill.

He said the average small town theatre was the poor man's only chance for relaxation, and that, as such, it could hardly be considered in the classification of a luxury. In addition, he said theatres were already paying a 10 per cent federal tax, and in case this tax proposal, or the licensing bill passed, the cost of the additional burden would have to be loaded onto the ultimate consumer.

"If these bills pass," he wound up, "every kid in Nebraska will be throwing rocks at every legislator he sees for taking his candy pennies away from him."

Divorcement Waits

Demise of the measures was written over protest of their backer, Sen. E. M. Neubauer, who said he saw in them the opportunity to take some of the back-breaking load off the Nebraska property owners, who were heavily laden with real estate taxes.

He still has two counts against the industry to be heard later—one of them direct, and the other indirect. His bill to divorce exhibition from producer-distributor affiliations is being held back, and no hearing date has been set. There's also the matter of his square-foot tax on billboard advertising, which can affect the cost of film banner advertising, if it passes.

This is the second year in a row for Neubauer to try for the measure of the film industry. His $1,000 licensing bill is a repeat from the session of 1939, and so is the divorcement proposal.

Rex Barrett Injured

COLUMBIA, MO.—Mayor Rex P. Barrett, in charge here for the Commonwealth circuit, was slightly injured in an automobile accident recently.

Anti-Consent Decree Bill Hearing in Minn. March 5

MINNEAPOLIS—The first public hearing on the Northwest Allied's anti-consent decree bill will be held by the Minnesota state senate committee on general legislation Wednesday, March 5. The general legislation committee of the legislature's lower house also has promised speedy action on the measure which requires film distributors in Minnesota to offer exhibitors for license their company's entire season's product output, the same as at present, in place of in groups of five, as the consent decree provides.

Confident of Passage

Northwest Allied leaders are confident of the passage of the bill which also requires film contracts to carry a minimum cancellation privilege clause and which outlaws the forced selling of shorts, newsreels, foreign films, westerns and trailers. However, it is admitted, that the degree of opposition aroused by the measure may be the determining factor. Whether there will be much, if any, opposition and its extent cannot be foreseen, according to Fred Strom, executive secretary.

It is known that at least one of the major film companies has informed Northwest Allied that it will not oppose the proposed law. On the other hand, the representative of another company declares he will fight the bill because it won't be practicable to have one selling plan for Minnesota and another—that of the consent decree—for North and South Dakota, western Wisconsin and the Michigan peninsula which also are part of the Minneapolis territory.

Opposition also may come from the federal government and from women's clubs and civic and religious organizations which "mistakenly" believe that the consent decree selling plan does away with block booking, Strom admits. However, he says, Northwest Allied is prepared to combat such opposition vigorously and refute every argument.

Constitutionality Questioned

There is still a question as to whether the law would be constitutional. It is known that Northwest Allied has had conflicting legal advice regarding this phase of the matter. Prominent attorneys here insisted that the measure could be upheld in the courts. The federal department of justice and some eastern lawyers, however, contend otherwise.

Harry Honnemacher, chairman of the house general legislation committee, is a co-author of the bill.

Northwest Allied leaders are pointing out that the law simply would give to independent exhibitors the things which the distributors offered them in a code of fair trade practices for the film industry two years ago. The code was submitted to national Allied States at its convention here by W. F. Rodgers, M-G-M sales head, representing the committee which formulated it. The independents, however, rejected it at that time.

Berger Refused Films For Day-Date Run

MINNEAPOLIS—Several exchanges already have replied in the negative to Bennie Berger's demand for major pictures to play day and date at his Esquire, loop sure-seater, with subsequent runs at 20-cent top. Now Berger is planning on taking the matter to the consent decree arbitration board.

Because of inability to obtain satisfactory screen product, the Esquire now is dark. But Berger insists that it isn't going to remain closed permanently even if he has to carry his fight for pictures to the U. S. supreme court.

Cooper Accounting Will Be Done in Lincoln

LINCOLN—Arrival of Leon Savell, of Paramount's home office in New York, to take over the J. H. Cooper Enterprises accounting department here, is expected shortly.

Savell, with Paramount for many years in New York and Atlanta, Ga., is taking over after Joe Philippson resigns to go to a new Paramount post. Plan is to have all the JHCE accounting done here, with offices in the Lincoln, and the present force, which includes Vincent J. DiFiore and Charlie Shire, expanded to about eight people.

This is in line with Cooper's plan to move to the middle-west from New York, probably to make his home in Oklahoma City. All booking will be done by Cooper personally in the future, it is understood.

Minneapolis Arbitrators Waiting for First Case

MINNEAPOLIS—The consent decree arbitration board here is still awaiting its first complaint. In view of the considerable squawking that has been in evidence in this territory, the delay, or failure, of independent exhibitors to avail themselves of arbitration is considered all the more surprising in trade circles.

Sentence Theatre Bandit

MINNEAPOLIS—W. F. Sexton, 20, was sentenced to serve up to 10 years in the state reformatory in district court here for the hold-up of the Franklin Theatre, local neighborhood house, last January 13. He told the court he would not have committed the robbery except for the urging of Louis R. Cowen, a projectionist at one of the other theatres in the circuit. Cowen goes to trial May 5.

Business Activity Flows Toward Remodeling

KANSAS CITY—Impetus of defense spending was felt during the past year in Western Missouri and Kansas more in expenditures for remodeling, new equipment, and new theatres than in gains at the boxoffice, survey discloses. Outlay was more in the nature of expectation, and 1941 should realize on new and old investment through better business created by reemployment.

Since the tendency in the past five years has been to modernize in spite of only fair receipts, and since modernization has been to some extent keeping up with obsolescence, 1941 probably will not be a great deal larger in total spent than 1940. In particular spots affected by defense (Junction City and Wichita, Kans.; Rolla, Waynesville and Lebanon, Mo., etc.) there will be more activity. While there seemed to be plenty of capital available the past five years for theatre investment, receipts so far don't justify a boom. The 1940 aggregate is somewhat over 1939.

Add 8,000 Seats in 1940

To date (including January) the last 12 months have seen erection of theatres with some 8,876 new seats, representing a capital investment of approximately $423,000. This is probably 15 per cent higher than the preceding year.

Analysis shows that defense accounted for considerably more than half the seats, 5,476; and for a good deal less than half the expenditures, $165,000. "Competition" was responsible for 1,550 seats for $150,000, and just plain "venture" prompted about 1,450 seats at $53,000.

In the same period there were 16 major remodelings running from $10,000 to $55,000 for a total of $455,000. In many cases these houses increased the number of seats during the process of modernization, probably at least 5 per cent for the total of 500, which, added to the new seats in new theatres, brings the total new seats for the year not in existence in 1939, to 9,376.

Added to this must be some 50 more theatres that did some remodeling, reequipping or refurbishing in the year. These theatres spent from $500 to $8,000 on new seats, fronts, projection equipment, air conditioning, heating, etc. Average expenditure for the group would run well over $1,500 apiece, but at that figure add a total of $75,000 to modernization layout.

Near Million Mark

The grand total for new theatres and modernization of old is $953,000, or almost $1,000,000. Impetus of remodeling is harder to analyze than for new houses, but the same factors were responsible: defense spending, competition, and for remodeling alone, the additional factor of obsolescence.

In theatres that included balconies, stadium predominates over the suspended type. However, the trend is toward theatres with all seats on one floor.

A "novelty" that probably always will be good in theatres serving residential type patronage is the cry-room for mothers with babies. These are miniature balconies with a dozen or more seats, and a glass partition to prevent noise from reaching the main audience. Sound from the picture is "piped" into the cry-room.

Impact of defense on the general economic picture is seen in a return here and there, of a stage larger than just enough to accommodate screen and sound equipment. For five years till mid-1940 few new houses except the very largest had more than an "apron" stage.

Another "novelty" that has made its appearance is the "love seat" for two, which has a definite appeal to the younger showgoer who is supposed to be the best customer of pictures.

Names Are Shorter

Interesting changes have taken place in the naming and re-naming (when a new front goes up) of theatres. Names are apt to be shorter. There are fewer Majestics and Orpheums and Paramounts, more Times and Vogues and Plazas.

Cost of neon tubing and uprights (to say nothing of the additional ink in heralds over a period) has something to do with this trend. Shorter, more compact names are easier seen by the public, more easily remembered.

Among the new houses in the past year (completed and projected) are H. J. Griffith's Paola, Paola, Kas.; Fox Midwest's Fox at Sedalia, Mo.; Commonwealth's new one at Waynesville, Mo.; R. E. Conrad's Roxy at Wichita; E. Van Hyning's house at Ottawa, Kas.; Don Phillips' new one at Colby, Kas.

Among major remodelings are Associated Theatres' Granada, Independence, Mo.; Friendly Theatres' Vogue, Lees Summit, Mo.; Midwest Theatres, Inc., Oklahoma City, remodeling of the old Opera House at Junction City, Kas. for a cost of $45,000; Commonwealth's new Melba, Batesville, Ark.; H. J. Griffith's Kansan, Fredonia, Kas.; Vox, H. F. Pautz and C. W. Rohde, Kansas City, Kas.; Fox Midwest's DeGraw, Brookfield, Mo.; Nick Kotsis' Oswego, Oswego, Kas.; Frank Cassil's Uptown, St. Joseph, Mo.

This should be a good year, even if it isn't a boom, for theatre supplymen.

See March Trial of Frank Cassil Suit

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—The suit in which Eugenia and Frank Cassil seek $452,775 damages from Dubinsky Brothers' Enterprises and major distributors probably will be tried at the term of federal court beginning here March 10, Judge Merrill E. Otis has indicated.

The Cassils, operators of the Rialto in the South Side, contend in the suit that the Dubinskys and others entered into a conspiracy to prevent the Cassils from obtaining first-run product and in so doing violated the anti-trust laws.

Club "Get Together" Kaycee High Spot

KANSAS CITY—Excellent attendance and high interest were chalked up for the first of the Variety Club "Get Together" parties staged in club quarters Friday night. Kings and Queens for the evening were C. A. and Lila Schultz, O. K. and Inez Mason and Robert F. and Helen Withers.

A buffet supper was served at 7:00 o'clock, and shortly thereafter the crowd participated in games and other forms of entertainment especially arranged for the evening.

Among those attending, in addition to the hosts and their ladies, were:

E. C. and Mrs. Rhoden, Frank and Mrs. Hensler, R. R. Biechele, Rex Barrett, Doctor and Mrs. Zoglin, Reube and Mrs. Finkelstein, C. M. and Mrs. Parkhurst, Charles Gregory, Norris and Mrs. Cresswell, Collins and Mrs. Riley, Roy Dunnuck, Harold and Mrs. Harris, W. G. McKinney, Jim and Mrs. States, Finton and Mrs. Jones, Arthur and Mrs. Cole, Larry and Mrs. Klein, Sam and Mrs. Sosna, Leo and Mrs. Finkelstein, Grover and Mrs. Parsons, Mrs. Roscoe Thompson, E. L. and Mrs. Harris, Walt and Mrs. Feist, Jim and Mrs. Lewis, Charles Schaefer, Clifford and Mrs. Gilles, Lester and Mrs. Durland, Leo McCarthy, Mrs. Burtus Bishop, Claude and Mrs. Morris, George and Mrs. Baker.

Several Withholding Payment to Ascap

MINNEAPOLIS—Numerous theatres in the territory have quit paying the Ascap music tax. In so doing, they're taking the advice given by S. P. Halpern, local theatrical attorney, at the recent Northwest Allied convention.

Halpern declares the tax isn't collectible because, he holds, Ascap can't legally license the reproduction rights of a tune after first licensing its recording rights. Moreover, he points out, Ascap has been adjudged a monopoly in a suit brought by it in the state of Washington and therefore hasn't any standing in court.

Halpern has been retained by some of the non-paying exhibitors to defend them in case Ascap sues.

Greek War Relief Aid Committee Convenes

KANSAS CITY—Committees to handle the motion picture industry's part in the Greek War Relief campaign have been set up, and held their first general meeting, February 25, under the co-chairmanship of E. C. Rhoden, for exhibitors, and T. R. Thompson, for distributors. Rhoden is president of Fox Midwest, Thompson branch manager of RKO Radio. A mass of data and suggestions had been prepared in advance, to facilitate discussion of ways and means to go about the project; these were discussed, others proposed. A meeting of the distributors' branch of the general committee will be held shortly, when plans will be made for presenting the project to the exhibitors of the area, together with the details of cooperation with exhibitors from the Kansas City exchanges. Thompson will act as chairman of this distributors' committee.

A local committee, with Jerry Zigmond, manager of the Newman, will also meet, to work out plans for the campaign in Kansas City.

Rhoden is also one of 12 division chairmen for the national campaign, his territory including Des Moines, Omaha, St. Louis as well as Kansas City. He reported that the plans are well under way in the other areas of this territory.

The Kansas City area comprises the following general and local committees:

General

Exhibitors—E. C. Rhoden, Co-Chairman; Jerry Zigmond, Jay Means, John McManus, Barney Joffee, Ed Durwood, Senn Lawler, H. J. Griffith, O. A. Schultz, A. R. Zimmer, Hardy Hendren, and R. R. Biechele, president, Kansas Missouri Theatres Ass'n.

Distributors: T. R. Thompson, co-chairman; Frank Hensler, Grover Parsons, George Fuller, Ben Marcus, R. M. Copeland, Ollie Williamson, W. E. Truog, R. F. Withers, A. H. Cole.

Local

(For Kansas City)

Jerry Zigmond, chairman; John McManus, Barney Joffee, Landon Laird, James Long, Don Davis, Harry Kauffman, James McConnell, Eugene Zachman, Lawrence Lehman.

A publicity committee for the local group includes Landon Laird as chairman, Kenneth Force, Wm. Lausberg, Karl Koerper, Lowell Lawrance, Charles Gregory.

Every member appointed to these committees was present at the initial meeting, except those who were out of town—and they sent representatives, or expressed their willingness to serve, in most cases.

The local committees include representatives of theatres, newspapers, broadcasting stations and Municipal Auditorium.

MINNEAPOLIS—Minors will be permitted to enter bowling alleys—from which they're now barred—if the state legislature passes a bill which has been approved by the senate general legislation committee.

A Fourth Holdover Helps to a Record

OMAHA—Brandeis Theatre set some sort of record here when the house held over "Santa Fe Trail" and "Let's Make Music" for a second stanza after swell business for the first week. The Singer house has had four consecutive holdovers starting January 1 of this year and has used eight pictures where ordinarily the theatre would have consumed 16 pictures in the two-month period. This fact will have little or no effect on the product situation here, however.

Manager Will Singer told BOXOFFICE he believes an extended run of ten days or two weeks of superior pictures is preferable to the regular seven-day schedule for less desirable product. The present holdover situation has proved Manager Singer right, as compared with some unsatisfactory weeks in 1940.

The two Tri-States theatres greeted their new boss, District Manager Joe Kinsky, with "not so hot" grosses. "Victory" and "The Bank Dick" were pulled at the Orpheum after five days. "Come Live With Me" and "Dispatch From Reuter's" had a mediocre week at the Omaha.

Kansas City Honors "Philadelphia Story"

KANSAS CITY—A drama and a laugh-provoker pulled in the attendance at two first run houses during the week for business much above average—and far ahead of other first run houses. "Philadelphia Story" seemed to have won for the Midland the top ranking for the week; but the Orpheum, with "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," was not far behind. Bob Crosby in "Let's make Music" brought the Tower a good week. "Back Street" held over at the Esquire and Uptown, was replaced after six days, but it had done a good business, considering that it was the feature at two theatres for the holdover engagement.

Pay Streak Is Thin in Lincoln First Runs

LINCOLN—New films were mostly disappointments here, with "Invisible Woman," on a dual with "Ride, Kelly, Ride," providing the only money spark. "Gone With the Wind," held over a second week, was still accounting for good money.

Brodies were "High Sierra" at the Varsity, and "Buck Privates" at the Lincoln.

Stage Show a Bolster for "High Sierra" in Minny

MINNEAPOLIS — Unseasonably sub-zero weather—a considerable stretch of it—and ice-coated streets and roads have combined to damage the boxoffice here substantially. However, three theatres—the Orpheum, Century and State—did particularly good business the past week. A first-rate stage show, headed by Clyde McCoy and his orchestra, was the principal magnet at the Orpheum and "This Thing Called Love," in its second week, brought 'em into the Century. The State's offering was "Virginia."

Stage Show a Magnet Among DM First Runs

DES MOINES—Farmers unfolded folding money in Des Moines last week and all first run theatres pocketed a share. Count Berni Vici's Pan American Follies pulled 'em in from miles around for the Orpheum, but "Virginia" at the Des Moines did better than average business despite stage show opposition and Deanna Durbin wasn't warbling in a vacant house at the Paramount, either. Statisticians observed that 70 per cent of the cars in the Orpheum parking lot Saturday had out-of-the-county licenses.

Seven-League Boots In Patent Leather

New Orleans—Joe Stark of Paramount in Kansas City can hear all about a Mardi Gras Carnival ball from his shoes! All this, because some time ago the Joe Starks spent a weekend with the Bev Millers and Joe left his tux shoes there. Currently, Miller, delayed in New Orleans, asked the Mrs. to join him and bring along his "soup and fish." This she did and Joe Stark's shoes. Miller reports that an extra pair of socks and some paper judiciously stuffed in the toes made Stark's shoes fit and so their presence at a carnival ball.

DES MOINES

FRANTICALLY, Lou Levy dug the following items out of his desk drawers to avoid parting with a Sandy Doll for Mitzi: One package of sewing needles with threader; one telephone-address book (blank); one cardboard "Death Valley" six-shooter; one after dinner mint; six miniature Japanese umbrellas (free with a Tom Collins at the Pastime Club); one Sky Raider pin . . . now where's the doll, Lou?

For Stan Mayer's call-up file about November 1, 1941 when we'll be around again about Christmas ads: Both DM filmrowers and exhibs around the territory are saying you ought to take space for Chappy if you can't sell your salesmen and yourself on taking it for Fox . . . Hi there, Chick, hope you're feeling better now.

At that "Land of Liberty" screening, Mrs. Stan Mayer remarked that seeing filmrowers en masse like that made her wish that the DM Variety Club would be rejuvenated again . . . seeing the same bunch at the Greek relief luncheon made us wonder why with so much good material, the club apparently falls flat on its nose every time it gets up on its hind legs . . . by the way, we must apologize for showing up at the luncheon like Banquo's ghost . . . if we weren't one of these what-the-hades sort of people, we'd have felt like Banquo's ghost, too . . . well, Jack Kennedy was nice . . . and Iles, McKinney & Wolf left when we did.

Bob Friedley and Theresa Sandler were planning on making a record of themselves singing a quartette as a duet (we didn't say from "Rigaletta," Theresa, because we didn't know how to spell Verdi's "Rigoletto.") The reason Theresa is what she is: She has Nate Sandler and Joe Ancher both for her uncle! What a haul of relatives for one little girl . . . and if we're going into relatives, Bob Bernau of the Iowa at Lake City is Bob's uncle . . . guess that'll make you holler "Uncle!"

After the Minnie Simp performance for the DM Civic Music and Ray Blank the other evening, we saw Lou Elman's girl, Gretchen Kelleher, resplendent in a black and mostly-white hat in the Fort coffee shop. Jerry Banta's little Gloria is doing a most remarkable job of walking now, in fact, no child ever did a smarter job of walking (Jerry's version).

Variety Puts Radios In Hospital

Minneapolis—Twelve children's wards in the Minneapolis General hospital, now without radio sets, are being equipped with them by the Twin City Variety Club. Funds raised at a "Gold Rush Days of '49" show March 15 will defray the cost and whatever is left over will go into the Milk Fund, the club's principal charity project, and to a pool for members who will attend the national convention in Atlantic City next May.

Jean Post and Francis Kappler are not mad at each other, they're just too busy to speak . . . Jean still sticks to it that there's no lullabies among the records he and Dot have collected to date . . . maybe you ought to start shopping around, Jean, there's nothing like being prepared. Bud Moran was in Kaycee last week on business . . . Bud has an idea that Roy Rogers ought to be the cowboy on parade for the R&T carriers' convention.

Sy Harlan claims it's a stye that makes his eye look like that . . . well, that's a variation of the old door-knob explanation, Sy. Lou Levy says what's the use, nobody cares what I do, my district manager, Joe Garrison, is in Florida and my division manager, Bill Heineman, is in Los Angeles. Jimmy Wynn was in to see Elmer Tilton . . . Nickey Goldhammer was here to gab with Lou Elman. Lou says if the corn percentage doesn't pick up on his farm which he has rented out pretty soon, he's gonna hire a Ross checker.

Madge Ward told us a good story about how to make a hat wear two years, but she made us promise to keep it under our hat . . . Hazel and Howard Dunn are having trouble with Patty . . . she runs off every time they let her out . . . Patty considers them very unreasonable, since the nearest fire plug is at least one-half block away. Lou Levy claims he's been so busy he hasn't had time to find out what the new girl's name is.

Dave Dewey was in town and attended the Greek Relief Luncheon . . . Faye West was there accompanied by the most unusual hat . . . a turban with a braided rug motif . . . very stunning, as are most of Faye's hats . . . DD wore the usual career-girl uniform plus a smile for Harry Gottlieb . . . Burton Jerrell was wearing a no-profit look . . . G. Ralph wore his best Chief Barker's swagger . . . Leo Wolcott wore last summer's coat of tan . . . and who cares what Brenda Joyce wore?

G. Ralph Branton was puzzled by the Orpheum schedule Sunday, but not so puzzled that he failed to observe the jammed foyer and the crowded outer lobby . . . He borrowed Manager Franke's office for conference purposes and Count Berni Vici's stage show wound up with Waterloo and Omaha bookings . . . The count gave Signmaster Hildreth a literary aspect while remodeling the show's scenery here . . . The local artiste dug through the entire reference department of the city library for 15 minutes looking for a picture of G. Washington suitable for backdrop purposes . . . When last seen he was surveying a Liberty cover with a critical eye.

Tom Gorman came in from Chicago to gloat over Orpheum business and wound up at the Paramount with Emil Franke watching Deanna Durbin in "Nice Girl?" Regardless of what the weather man's charts chart for the months of lambs and lions, Harry Hiersteiner has spring fever . . . Pussy willows, all done up in a pink bowl decorated his Family Theatre cashier's cage . . . And the cashier was dressed to match.

Overseating and Free Shows Are Targets

Minneapolis—New theatre construction and free shows are targets of a bill just introduced in the Minnesota legislature under Northwest Allied sponsorship.

Under the measure's terms, a new theatre cannot be built unless there is a sufficient showing that public interest, convenience and necessity call for it. However, first-class cities, including Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, and those with home-rule charters, are excluded from its provisions. The bill is designed to prevent further over-seating, according to Fred Strom, Northwest Allied executive secretary.

Stiff conditions in the matter of seating arrangements, aisles, electrical connections, exits, operation of film machines, etc., are prescribed in the act before free shows can be given or 16mm films shown in night clubs or other such establishments.

Patron and Product Lack Again Closes Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS—The future of the 4,000-seat Minnesota Theatre again is a matter of speculation, the house being dark once more and with no tenant in prospect. Tossing in the sponge, the Middle-States Corp. of Milwaukee, after seven weeks' operation with a policy of stage shows and independent feature pictures at low admission prices, turned the house back to the trustees in bankruptcy.

The operators blamed the closing on insufficient patronage and inability to obtain pictures. Middle-States' heads had threatened either a resort to consent decree arbitration or a court action in an effort to obtain major screen product practically all of which is sewed up in the local loop by the Minnesota Amusement Co.—Mort H. Singer pool.

Baer Circuit's Admission Cut May Start Others

MINNEAPOLIS—Action of the Baer circuit in cutting admission prices to a 20-cent maximum in all of its situations, including non-competitive spots, may precipitate general scale reductions throughout the territory, according to fears expressed in trade circles.

The only reason advanced for the slashes is poor business and a belief that lower admissions will revive the boxoffices in the 28-cent towns where it has been off the most.

Rob Majestic Exchange

MINNEAPOLIS—Burglars broke into the Majestic film exchange, owned by J. L. Stern, rifled the safe and took valuable papers along with the receipts of the Mohawk Theatre, St. Paul, recently acquired by Stern. The loot comprised several hundred dollars.

MINNEAPOLIS

AS BEN SPEWAK, theatrical financier, put it, the boys dined and wined the girls of Earl Carroll's "Vanities" at a Variety Club fete only to learn that there IS such a thing as platonic friendship . . . C. B. Stiff, head of Twin City theatre operations for the Minnesota Amusement company, representing all Minneapolis theatres on a committee, appeared before the city council to protest against the recently enacted anti sign-hanging ordinance.

It's rumored hereabouts that Michael Todd, the Chicago boy wonder, is flirting with an entertainment-cafe idea for the much closed Minnesota Theatre . . . "Hy" Chapman, the Columbia flash, beaming about his forthcoming picture, "The Penny Serenade." "Hy's" comments on the attraction came to us via the tailor who fitted him for tails and silk hat, which he'll wear at his daughter's wedding, March 22.

Bob Holcomb, graduate of the Pantages' staff, appointed by J. L. Stern as manager of his recently acquired Mohawk Theatre, St. Paul . . . Billy Evidon, Columbia head booker, showing up with a new car . . . Listen to Jay McFarland, National Screen's hustling manager, rave about his dinner at the Sol Lebedoff domicile the other Friday night. In praising Mrs. Lebedoff's cooking, Mac said top billing must go to the two varieties of gefilte fish served, but Sol, independent exhibitor and Northwest Allied officer, insists that the National Screen representative exerted his greatest oomph in tackling the borscht.

John Friedl, Minnesota Amusement company president, back from Florida and very much on the job again . . . Bess Crane, Eddie Ruben's secretary, extending her Miami Beach vacation due to the bitter weather up here . . . Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Lott Campion, Chatfield, Minn.; Jack Wright, Red Wing, Minn.; Clarence Kaake, West Duluth, Minn.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis.; A. L. Troseth, Winthrop, Minn.; W. H. McIntire, Blooming Prairie, Minn.; Charlie Lyons, Aitkins, Minn.; Harvey Thorpe, Crosby, Minn.; E. P. Parsons, Renville, Minn.; E. Dilley, Northfield, Minn., and H. Steeg, Sanborn, Minn.

Mickey Coen, veteran M-G-M salesman, laid low by the flu during his South Dakota trips and confined to hotel at Aberdeen . . . "Hy" Chapman, Columbia branch manager, visited Duluth accounts . . . Moe Levy, 20th-Fox district manager, at the prompting of that incorrigible jokester, Bill Elson, ordered "Chad Hanna" for his luncheon at the Twin City Variety Club the other day and he actually had the waiter and kitchen in a dither trying to get it for him.

Archie Zacherl, veteran Universal salesman, up and around again, having recovered from his heart attack, and hopes to be back on the job soon . . . After several weeks' illness, Marion Langeness back at her 20th-Fox desk again . . . Harold Johnson, Universal salesman, delivered the principal address at the Windom, Minn., community club's annual dinner . . . M-G-M helped Bill Cameron, city salesman, celebrate his birthday.

After 12 years with Columbia—much of the time as the branch manager's personal secretary—Bess Popkins is resigning to devote herself to her domestic duties. Dinah Satz of the office staff has been promoted to succeed her . . . Fred Banto, Paramount's new district exploiteer, in from Chicago . . . Gilbert Nathanson, Republic branch manager, visited North Dakota accounts . . . Muriel Bronneche a new addition to the RKO office staff, succeeding Francis Brock who resigned.

They're having a "Nickey" Goldhammer week April 12 to 18 for the RKO district manager as part of the Ned Depinet drive. Dates already have started coming in . . . When they learned that Bill Scholl, RKO exploiteer, was being transferred to Cleveland, Emil Franke, Mrs. Franke and Ken and Rene Clayton sent him a blue bath towel with the admonition "Oh, Dry Those Tears." Emil manages the Paramount in Des Moines and the Claytons are, respectively, the film editor on the Des Moines Register, and the Des Moines BOXOFFICER.

Bill Cameron, M-G-M city salesman, put in a lot of good and effective work for the "Bundles for Britain" benefit concert at the Auditorium . . . Richard Arlen, the film star, here from Hollywood for his dad's funeral.

Jack Flynn, M-G-M district manager, a visitor . . . Rud Lohrenz, Warner district manager, dropped into town . . . Cedric Adams, Star-Journal columnist and radio newscaster, accompanied Harry Dickerman, independent circuit owner, to Florida. Dickerman has opened new offices for his chain of five theatres in the Walker Bldg. . . . Bonnie and Billie Benfield, Morris and Gracefield, Minn., exhibitors, respectively, stopped over en route to Hot Springs, Ark., where they'll vacation.

So many gals hereabouts were pining for Harold Lyons, 20th-Fox salesman, that he graciously came back from Des Moines for the weekend. He's stationed now in the Iowa metropolis . . . 20th-Fox staff held its annual dinner party in the Hotel Nicollet.

LINCOLN

THE WEEK'S craziest publicity stunt: Paul Anderson had all his Lincoln usher staff entering the theatre via the alley stage door. The movie playing, can't you guess, was "Back Street."

The first year: One-time hamburger wolfing Gene Shanahan, manager of the Nebraska, has changed since his marriage. A 15-minute dinner allotment in the single days, has now lengthened to a 3-hour office exodus for supper . . . Harvey Traylor says the callouses he grew on his mitts from counting "GWTW" tickets with the M-G-M checker every night have just about disappeared. He has been resting so long from the two-week overwork, he says the callouses have now slipped to the back of his lap.

To Ted Mendenhall (for passing along to the censors) and Otto Siegel: Mae West, who used to make pictures for you two guys, is now thinking about doing a streamlined version of "Carmen" for the stage. Streamlining has to do with deletion of the Carmen-sung songs, not Mae. She is still slated to get by with innuendo —and deep breathing!

It's a lie! Joe Scott did not go to Postal Telegraph in Omaha and send all the exhibitors in Nebraska a wire telling them about a movie of his called "Western Union."

Evert Cummings, passing through here after winding up his district manager affairs for Tri-States, prior to leaving for Oregon, said he had been mightily embarrassed by reports that he was going to take over a northwest circuit of theatres. "I'm dickering for two theatres in Oregon," he said, "and they're both in the same town, and they're small houses." He said he would be back to Nebraska in the middle of March.

Bob Huffman has never cut any salaries since he's been in Lincoln, but does what amounts to the same thing. He plays poker with his help—and nearly always wins.

Nifty present: J. H. Cooper, who has the Lincoln Theatres Corp., and Sidney Kent, prexy of 20th-Fox, gave a can of film of the Rose Bowl whoop-te-do this year, to the University of Nebraska. Kent, who lived in Lincoln for 15 years and went to school at the University, saw them play this year against Missouri for the first time since he left Lincoln in 1906. He and Cooper, as they sat together at that game, decided, if they made the Rose Bowl, the film present would be made.

Nebraska's legislature adjourned Saturday to see "The Great Dictator." Howard Federer, general manager of Nebraska Theatres, Inc., had all 43 of the solons down to the Varsity for a look at the Chaplin flicker, and it's the first time such a wholesale migration was made to a film by the lawmakers.

Alvin Hendricks will be wearing derbies from now until he's 40. He bought a dozen of the iron-cranial-capsules for his ushers and cashiers to ballyhoo the imminent playing of Charlie Chaplin's picture, and will probably have to wear them out himself.

NOW BOOKING the only original version on "THE LIFE OF OUR SAVIOR"

.....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

WE don't know how we do it, but "That Jane" is now a "Queen" . . . yeah, of that little "beehive of industry" belonging to Ed Mason up in Osage . . . all joking aside, Ed, BOXOFFICE & Co. will feel very offended if you hit DM again and fail to give us a ring . . . we want you to drop around at 1705 Pleasant and take a look at that redheaded gal of yours whose hide is nailed to the clothes closet door.

And now Frank Shipley of the State in Lenox goes Ed Mason's "that Jane" one better . . . on being introduced to BOXOFFICE & Co. in Lou Levy's office one evening last week, Frank points at BOXOFFICE's brown tresses and ejaculates: "Gosh, and I had you pictured as a sort of blonde hussey!" (Humph, a plain, ordinary blonde hussey wouldn't stand a chance . . . ask & Co. . . . and he'd better answer right).

You exhibitors who get so stuck up lugging thumb tacks in your pockets on those billing tours might find an idea in Shipley's lost and found department. He did. He commandeered a little unclaimed leather purse and carries his tacks safely inside. Wouldn't that surprise a pickpocket —but not the kind you meet in business.

PERSONAL—Lou Levy reports that he'll welcome pictures of exhibitors (ladies preferred) to decorate the nearly-barren walls of his office.

Why shouldn't Bob Snyder room at the home of the local ballroom manager? . . . After all, the Varsity commander-in-chief looks enough like Fred Astaire to make all his customers stare . . . You'll have to cross the Thirteenth Street viaduct to find out about Bob's dancing, though. The gal who's helping him save up two bucks for the license is teaching school down at Carlisle.

What with Joe, Morrie, Carey and the Corydon boys around, it's no wonder we had such trouble getting the front name of the Garden manager listed. It's Edwin . . . Yeah, Edwin Smith.

Cliff Niles over at Anamosa wants a dozen of those Baby Sandy dolls. Heck, Cliff, we haven't even been able to get Lou to hand over one!

Angling along the Row last week was Joe Jacobson, the fisherman from Davenport and Dubuque. He handles the State Theatres, too.

Bob Ringler is around seeing Iowa exhibitors with "Souls in Pawn" in his satchel. The former Storm Laker is booking the film.

When Bob Lester quit as chief of service at the Orpheum, Jennings Peterson stepped into the job and "We-didn't-get-the-name Matheny checked in as assistant. Then Peterson swapped RKO blue for U. S. khaki so Matheny took over and Bill Souers, who ushered there last summer, returned to assist.

Sure, we've heard that Graceland College operates the Coliseum Theatre at Lamoni. But what we've never determined is whether that makes A. N. Deaver a professor. As manager, he dishes out more drama than any other drama department in the state.

H. H. Hall is the only exhibitor we've heard about who followed through on Columbia's "flying press squadron" to publicize "Arizona." Hall, manager of the Rivola Theatre at Elkader, hired his own luftwaffe in the person of Willis Hall, his nephew, from Cedar Rapids. Willis dropped 4,000 "Arizona" advertising sheets in 17 towns. In an hour and a half he covered St. Olaf, Farmersburg, McGregor, Marquette, Monona, Luana, Gunder, Egin, Wadena, Volga City, Arlington, Strawberry Point, Edgewood, Littleport, Elkport, Garber, Garnaville and Elkader. The stunt would have taken a day's time or more by car.

It's high time we started pumping Bob Bernau's new organ in the Iowa at Lake City. We heard about the purchase more'n a month ago, but forgot to mention it. Now all we've got to do is hear the organ.

H. A. Sodini of the Strand at Cedar Rapids is reported . . . "Quiet, please! ! !" (But he's expected to be news soon).

A. B. Pettit of the Iowa at Winterset is looking for southern fries and a winter tan.

John Marshall, who manages the new Center Theatre at Grundy Center, is one guy who won't hole up in a hospital and howl when ill fortune strikes. Along the Row they still talk about the time Marshall's theatre in Grundy Center burned and a safe fell on John's foot. Marshall showed up with the rescued film next day and tackled the unloading chore himself, even though his foot was in a cast.

OMAHA

J ROBERT ERICKSON is the new exhibitor at Alta, Ia., according to our scouts. Erickson was on Filmrow the other day and he's a young fellow with a cute wife, according to the description given BOXOFFICE. Hope we can get acquainted the next time you are on Davenport street, Exhibitor Erickson. Dewey Kisor formerly had the theatre at Alta.

A comedy of errors was enacted on Filmrow the other day. Principal actors were Lynn White of Quality Theatre Supply and Bill Voss, mechanic for Film Transport. The scene was the parking lot between the two buildings. Bill was imitating a racing car driver, we're told, and backed into Lynn, who was just driving out of the lot. Bill felt like two cents when Lynn asked him for his driver's license and there was a friendly argument about a very small dent in a fender.

Harry Levy, Fox salesman, has learned that policemen are not exhibitors. Harry has always been known as a good salesman, well able to take care of himself when arguing with exhibitors. A cop tagged Harry's car for overtime parking on Filmrow and the Fox salesman did a lot of fast talking but it didn't work. He paid the $1.50.

Eddie Shafton, Sol Francis and Sol Yeager heard there was a demand in Hollywood for western stars, so they have taken up horseback riding. So far, all three are afraid to ride a horse faster than a walk, we're told . . . Ed Stengel, former RKO salesman here, was in town for a visit. The tall, lanky lad is now in Los Angeles where he is interested in a firm making and selling feeds and remedies for stock. Stengel will find time to play golf, wherever he is, we'll bet.

Ted Mendenhall, Paramount boss, says he'll be able to announce the committee lineup for Omaha Variety Club for 1941 one of these days. It's a little early yet to talk about a spring golf tournament, or is it? . . . Ben Harding of Council Bluffs, Ia., was in town. Also the Mel Smiths, Akron, Ia.; Francis McNickle, Elm Creek, Neb.; Harry Lankhorst, Hawarden, Ia.; Melvin Kruse, Tilden, Neb., and Phil Lannon, West Point, Neb.

L. E. Burkey, Ritz, Deshler, Neb., was on Filmrow trying to swipe some pencils at the Warner exchange, according to a story given us by Bill Wink. It seems Burkey is up to his old tricks, reported here before, of borrowing and not returning pencils, for his collection . . . Charlie Lieb, Metro peddler, celebrates his second wedding anniversary on March 5, which is also BOXOFFICE'S birthday. How about an exchange of gifts, Charlie?

Brycerson Bros., exhibitors at Moorhead, Ia., have taken over the theatre at Danbury, Ia., and remodeled it with equipment from Frank Van Husan's layout . . . Warner's Nell Johnson has a birthday soon . . . Wally Johnson, Friend, Neb., has kept pretty well under cover since he was seen shopping for household goods . . . Omaha police have started a check-up on outstate license plates and they seem to be concentrating on Filmrow, which has some of the film peddlers worried . . . Don McLucas went to Des Moines on business.

Harold Bowers, exhibitor at Weeping Water, Neb., is a proud father. It's a boy, promptly nicknamed "Butch." The Bowers' already have a fine daughter . . . Evert Cummings, who resigned as district manager of Tri-States, has left, accompanied by Mrs. Cummings, for the west coast. He will own and operate two and possibly three theatres in the Pacific northwest. The locations have not been announced . . . Some exhibitors are wondering if anything will be done to carry on MPTO of Nebraska and western Iowa.

Julius London Files Two With Arbiters

DETROIT—Detroit's first complaints under the arbitration setup have both been filed by Julius D. London, circuit operator. One is for the Booth Theatre and the other for the month-old Midtown Theatre.

The action for the Booth Theatre is against Vitagraph and Paramount and affects the entire lower east side setup of subsequent runs. Cooperative Theatres of Michigan is named in the action because of its function in booking some of the houses involved.

London claims that the companies refuse "reasonable clearance" to the Booth over the Whittier, operated by Komer and Goldberg; and the East End, operated by the DeLodder circuit. He also contends that the companies are granting unreasonable clearance to DeLodder's Delthe over the Booth; that Vitagraph is not granting reasonable clearance on First National product over the DeLuxe Theatre, operated by the Steffes estate; and that the companies are charging arbitrary rentals—in effect, refusing a run.

Enters Downtown Situation

The action for the second house, the Midtown, enters into the most complicated booking situation in Detroit, that on lower Woodward Avenue, although located three blocks off Woodward itself.

The houses involved are the Coliseum, operated by London's brother-in-law, Jack Krass; the Mayfair, operated by the Cohen brothers; the Majestic, operated by Schreiber circuit, and the Globe, operated by William Schuttenhelm. The Schreiber and Cohen clearance situation is now the subject of a protracted lawsuit in federal court, filed by Schreiber against Cooperative Theatres. Cooperative and also Mutual Theatres, the other local booking organization, are both named by London as affecting this second case.

London names Paramount, Loew's, RKO and Vitagraph in the Midtown case, and claims that they are giving the Coliseum unreasonable clearance over the Midtown, in effect refusing a run, contrary to Section 6 of the consent decree. Also he contends that the distributors grant the Mayfair, Globe and Majestic unreasonable clearance over the Midtown, contrary to Section 8, and asks for an order granting relief on both counts.

The Midtown case is further unusual in that it is probably the first filed for a brand new theatre and seeks relief right away, although the house opened in January, after other contracts for opposition houses for the season were closed.

Impartiality Marks Detroit Arbitrators

DETROIT—The careful attention to impartiality of arbitrators under the new AAA setup is attested by a careful study of the list of 15 men named for Detroit.

None of these men has, according to the best informed sources in the industry, any interest, past or present, in the motion picture field. In fact, only one man, J. Lee Barrett, has any past connection with show business through the shows at Convention Hall sponsored through the Detroit Convention and Tourist Bureau, which he heads. Notable among these were the Detroit and Michigan Expositions.

Law Firm to Represent Isreal in Ellet Case

CLEVELAND—Louis Israel, owner of the Ellet Theatre now under construction in Akron, and the first exhibitor to file a case under the new arbitration system, will be represented at the hearing by the law firm of Benesch, Marsteller, Friedlander and Morris, Citizens Bldg. Jerome Friedlander of this firm served the industry as impartial representative on arbitration under the NRA.

"Fantasia" Tickets on Sale in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH—Tickets went on sale Monday for the local premiere and "all performances thereafter" of Walt Disney's "Fantasia," which opens in the Fulton, March 5. Initial showing is a benefit for the Greek War Relief and prices are $2 and $3. Thereafter the twice daily admissions, with all seats reserved, are: Matinees, Monday-Friday, 75 cents, $1.10; evenings, Saturday, Sunday and holiday matinees, $1.10, $1.65, with federal tax included.

Newspapers have revealed the story of "multiple sound" and the engineering required in recording, mixing, and finally the installation of special RCA sound reproducing equipment for this special engagement of "Fantasia." Radio tieups and outdoor advertising together with the regular Walt Disney outlets through merchandising channels have made the area conscious of this unusual cartoon which features great music, conducted by Leopold Stokowski. The Fulton closed at midweek for final preparations and renovations in connection with the premiere. "Fantasia" cannot be shown in any other theatre within 100 miles of Pittsburgh, states the advertising copy.

New One Open

CYNTHIANA, KY.—Carl Rohs has opened his new 666-seat New Opera House here.

The arbitration picture in the Detroit and Cleveland districts to date:

DETROIT—

Demands for reasonable clearance for the Booth and the Midtown theatres have been made by Julius D. London, circuit operator. In the former action the complaint names Vitagraph and Paramount. In the case of the second house, Paramount, Loew's, RKO and Vitagraph are named.

AKRON—

Louis Isreal, building the Ellet Theatre, is seeking some run and an end to the seven-day protection at present afforded the Norka and Rialto, owned by W. L. Hart.

Pa. Censors to View Juke Box Pictures

HARRISBURG—Jurisdiction over "nickel-in-the-slot" films has been given to the Pennsylvania state board of censors by the justice department.

The opinion or ruling was made after the department had been asked whether it was obligated to view and approve 16mm films made for use in small machines which could be scattered around commercial places like candy and cigaret vending machines.

A "fair fee" to charge for viewing a reel of less than 1,200 lineal feet of film regardless of the number of separate subjects it contains is $2. The opinion also held that a similar fee should be expected for each duplicate film or reel or print thereof.

Greensburg Vote Recount Approves Sunday Shows

GREENSBURG, PA.—Although an official recount disclosed that Sunday motion pictures were approved by a dozen votes, Judge J. Hilary Keenan has withheld the "go" signal to local theatres. A technicality is involved, it is understood. Meanwhile, religious groups have threatened to take the matter to the state's highest court to prevent the opening of theatres here on Sunday. The issue was defeated last November 5 but the entire referendum was challenged and several weeks ago the recount, under Judge Keenan, was completed, and announcement was made that Sunday exhibitions had been legalized.

Two-Men-in-Booth Bill Before Pa. Legislators

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania Representative Adie S. Rush, Delaware county, has introduced into the legislature a bill which calls for the employment of two men in a projection booth at all times. This measure comes before the body each session. The new Rush act is known as House Bill No. 496.

The Sunday motion picture law of 1935 would be amended under term of a bill introduced by Rep. Joseph M. O'Brien of Philadelphia. This measure is known as House Bill No. 510.

Both bills are now before assembly committees.

Ordinance a Block

YOUNGSTOWN—Because of a pending ordinance requiring large parking lots adjacent to theatres, Warner Bros. has abandoned plans for a $100,000 theatre here on the northside.

Flesh on Saturdays

COLUMBUS—The Main, subsequent run, has inaugurated a new weekend policy, offering in addition to the regular film program, stage shows every Saturday night.

Managers' Union Signs With Broder

By H. F. REVES

DETROIT—Formal unionization in the theatre managerial field became a reality here this week with signing of what is believed to be the first contract of a circuit with a managers' union. Principals in the case are Jack Broder, owner of five theatres, and Theatre Managers and Assistant Managers' Local 22312, holding a federal local charter from the AFL. The union has been understood to be active for over a year, as previously reported in BOXOFFICE, but has not hitherto disclosed any of its actual membership, with one exception, and has now signed its first contract.

Broder's Town Theatre, which he operates under a short-term lease arrangement, and may close later, and his Rainbo, where his brother, Abe Broder, about to be called for service in the National Guard, has been manager, have been exempted, so that the contract applies only to the Seville, Time and Times Square. Public announcement was issued by Arthur F. Brock, president of the union, who is manager of the Seville.

What the Pact Provides

Details of the contract, which covers four typewritten pages with inked additions, were given to BOXOFFICE by Clayton Bordner, attorney for the union, and confirmed by Broder. They are:

The management will employ only union managers. In addition, one manager who was not a union manager, is joining.

Managers will receive one night off every two weeks, partly through the use of what is termed a "swing" man to relieve them. Bordner added that Broder has verbally agreed to make this one night every week in a short time after personnel problems affecting the Rainbo and Town managerships have been settled.

Wages are increased by $7.50 to $12.00, or $15.00 per man per week. Actual wage scales were not disclosed.

Definite working schedule is to be made under the contract, and managers and assistants will work shorter hours than in the past.

Further Points

Bordner summarized the further points of the contract as:

Working week will be six days of eight hours each, with overtime at 50 cents for each half hour or fraction thereof after midnight. In addition, $5.00 extra must be paid for each matinee in addition to regular house policy, such as occasional midweek or holiday matinees.

New managers may be employed who are not union members, but they must become members within 30 days.

All men employed for one year or more will receive one week's vacation with pay each year.

Managers and assistants "shall be required to perform only such duties as have been generally accepted and recognized by managers and assistants in the past." This clause is intended to stop the use of managers for firing furnaces, making repairs to seats, doing electrical work, and other repair and maintenance work which is not considered to be in the manager's jurisdiction.

Assistants will be directly under the control of the house manager. This clause is intended to prevent such an incident as direct firing of an assistant by a superior circuit officer, according to Bordner, particularly with a view to avoiding favoritism.

Managers shall be deemed "competent" after 30 days' employment by the very fact that they are employed for the length of time. They may be discharged for intoxication, dishonesty, or incompetence, but the latter cause is thus ruled out after one month's employment.

An arbitration clause to settle disputes under the contract is provided, with an elaborate mechanism, including ultimate appointment of an arbitrator by the Wayne County circuit court if no other agreement is possible, and an arbitration process for grievances within the union itself is also provided.

Browne's Arrival Lifts Hopes for Settlement

DETROIT—A settlement was hoped for this week in the two-month-old picketing by the Building Service Employes International against local theatres, chiefly the United Detroit circuit, with the arrival of George E. Browne, IATSE president, who became interested in the case when it was presented to the AFL executive council at its recent session in Miami.

The dispute does not involve a strike since no UDT employes are out. Earl J. Hudson, UDT president, told BOXOFFICE that "None of our employes have quit or gone on strike, and none have appeared on the picket line. As far as we know, all pickets are non-employes."

Ray Carroll, Building Service International representative, giving his side of the dispute, said "We believe we can make better progress by notifying the public that the management is 'unfair' than by calling our men out. Our men will be called out when the operators, electricians and other crafts come out with us. Janitors could easily be replaced, and it would not be very difficult to operate the houses if only our men came out."

John Andrews President Employes Local B-25

DETROIT—New officers elected by the Film Exchange Employes' Union, Local B-25, include John Andrews, Vitagraph shipper, president; Madalene Massey, Vitagraph inspectress, vice-president; William Hanmer, 20th-Fox shipper, business representative; Mary Schaumberg, Vitagraph inspectress, financial secretary; Ruth Taylor, UA inspectress, recording secretary; Amy Burgin, Vitagraph inspectress, treasurer; Marietta Feaser, Paramount inspectress, seventh board member; Violet Demerest and Bette Iller, Republic inspectresses, delegates to International.

Andrews issued a statement on the connection of Exhibitors' Service with the union, denying reports circulating on Filmrow that Howard Craven of Exhibitors' Service is in any way connected with the union.

B-5 Dinner-Dance Draws Over 125

CLEVELAND — Film Exchange Employes Local B-5 celebrated its fourth anniversary with an elaborate dinner-dance attended by more than 125 members and guests who assembled in the Rainbow Room of the Carter Hotel.

Victor Wellman, secretary of Local 160, IATSE, filled the master of ceremony's chair and not only confined his introductory remarks to as few words as possible, but laughingly admonished the speakers to do likewise.

Harland Holmden, first vice-president of International IATSE and business manager of Local 160, brought greetings from International President George E. Browne and Assistant President Lou Krause, who could not attend because of pressure of business. Keynote of Holmden's speech was to emphasize the spirit of harmony existing in Cleveland between the operators and exhibitors and between the film exchange employes and exchanges. Much of this harmony he credited to George W. Erdmann, secretary of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, and to John Kalafat, chairman of the association's labor committee.

Out-of-town union men who responded with short speeches were Richard Walsh, third International vice-president, and director of film exchange locals, who reported that there are 33 locals throughout the country, each of them with 100 per cent membership; Harold Rundell, president of the Buffalo local; John J. Rubach, business agent, Buffalo; Ted Talley, president Pittsburgh local; and Ben Bein, John Shelton, Louis Lightner and Arthur Fix, all of Cincinnati.

Distributors were represented by Lester Zucker, Columbia branch manager; I. J. Schmertz, 20th Century-Fox branch manager; Bernard Rubin, PRC office manager; Guy Holman, of RKO; Alexander Newman of Universal, and Charles Rich, Vitagraph branch manager.

Three presentations were the highlights of the banquet. Ira Becksted, organizer of Local B-5 and business manager until recently, was presented with a gold life membership card. Becksted, in accepting this honor, said that he has held a union operators' card for 45 years. His first card was issued in 1896. Belle Lyons and Jerry Krupka were singled out for having served the industry over a longer period of time than any other exchange members in Cleveland. Miss Lyons of Warner Bros. has been an inspectress for 32 years. She received as a token a piece of jewelry. Krupka of Paramount has served 32 years as a shipper. A pencil and pen set was presented to him.

John C. Wein, president of Local B-5 and acting business manager, received special mention for having served 25 years with one company, namely RKO and its predecessor, Pathe. J. R. Johnson, first B-5 president, got special mention for outstanding contributions to the local.

Charles Rice, chairman of the entertainment committee, was complimented on the arrangements.

CLEVELAND

JACK WATTS of the local National Theatre Supply branch has been appointed salesman out of the Cincinnati office. He was guest of honor Monday night at a farewell dinner, the Cleveland NTS personnel being hosts. They presented him with a Gladstone bag. Mrs. Watts and the baby will follow as soon as Jack finds suitable quarters . . . "Fantasia" is scheduled to bow at the Hanna some time in March. RCA engineers are now measuring up the house for the necessary new sound equipment.

Lester Dowdell's son, Dick, who has been working in the Warner poster department, leaves March 7 for military training . . . Joe Kauffman, Universal branch manager, back in harness after an eight-week illness, is looking better than he did before the Strep germ got him. Says he is feeling as well as he looks . . . I. J. Schmertz, 20th Century-Fox branch manager, announces that "Tobacco Road," fortified with one of the biggest advertising and publicity campaigns of the year, opens March 8 at the local Hippodrome; March 6 at the Paramount, Toledo; March 6 at the Palace, Canton.

James Scoville of the Scoville, Essick & Reif circuit, disgusted with the weather, is now in Miami Beach . . . Nat L. Lefton, Republic franchise owner, is enthusiastic over the announcement that his company will produce "Ice-Capades" with the original troupe of 75 people.

Frank Drew, M-G-M branch manager, was kept at home last week by a bad cold . . . Mr. Exhibitor, have you received your "Sis Hopkins" desk pad from Republic Pictures? If not, you'd better ask for one because they are very tricky.

Joe Minsky, former Vitagraph city salesman whose present address is 112th U. S. Engineers, Camp Shelby, Miss., writes that the weather is cold where he is and that he is busy collecting new experiences.

Facing a Lottery Charge in Akron

Akron—It took Akron authorities four days to make up their minds, apparently, but John Wagner, 22, assistant manager of the Palace here, is to appear in municipal court on charges of promoting a lottery in connection with the appearance at the theatre of Horace Heidt and his band and his "Pot O' Gold" scheme of entertainment. Heidt, after a four-day appearance at the theatre, moved on to Youngstown.

Contention of the prosecution is that giving away money on the turn of a wheel to members of the audience constitutes a lottery because possible recipients paid admission to the theatre. The charge has no connection with Heidt's radio show in which his sponsor gives money away.

Demanding Action On Bank Night

PITTSBURGH — The Better Business Bureau is demanding action on the part of local theatre owners and managers who have failed to reply to a request of the bureau to voluntarily abolish Bank Nights.

However, G. H. Dennison, BBB's manager, said his organization is "still hopeful that this form of lottery can be stopped here by voluntary action and that theatres operating Bank Night will abandon this lottery as a public nuisance and as a growing threat to the orderly conduct of business."

The AMPTO of W. Pa., in session last Thursday in the Hotel Roosevelt, took no action on BBB's request that theatres discontinue Bank Night and other such cash games. The subject was ignored while the membership, comprised of many exhibitors who do not offer these games, engaged in other matters.

Fred J. Herrington, AMPTO secretary, stated that BBB's charge that theatre games had forwarded and increased the many other types of games being played elsewhere, and away from theatres, needed no answer. He denied such charges and promptly dismissed the subject.

Dennison then replied through the newspapers that he was demanding a showdown on Bank Nights. He said:

"That is immaterial. We asked that theatre owners take voluntary action to end a scheme which has been outlawed in Pennsylvania by superior court action. There is no sense trying to fool ourselves. Motion picture theatres are not charitable enterprises. In making Bank Night awards, they are not moved by any spirit of brotherly love or sympathy with the poor. To them it is a coldblooded business device to fill their theatres with paying patrons. They actually give away nothing, since the prizes are supported by the mass contributions of thousands of losers."

Bank Night's Status Into Deeper Fog

LOUISVILLE—The clouded status of Bingo and Bank Night here came under a lower ceiling in the statement by Safety Director H. Watson Lindsey that he did not see any point in altering the city's attitude toward either promotion scheme. His view was expressed in responses to an opinion by Jesse K. Lewis, assistant attorney general, to the effect that Bingo and Bank Night were illegal, regardless of the identity of the sponsors.

A bill legalizing Bank Night was passed by a special session of the general assembly in 1938 after a similar bill had been vetoed by Governor Chandler. In 1940, the legislature put a 15 per cent tax on the awards, but took the position the tax did not legalize them.

Louisville at present permits Bingo games by charitable and fraternal institutions. Bank Nights are allowed under certain restrictions.

LOUISVILLE

WHAT might have been a tragic accident was experienced by the Universal sales crew en route from Indianapolis to their Chicago convention. Carl F. Mock, Kentucky representative; William Sherman, city salesman; Don Hammer, North Indiana salesman; and Milton Ettinger, head booker, left Indianapolis by automobile early Wednesday, and upon nearing Kentland, Ind., hit an icy road that caused the car to leave the road and turn over. The car was completely demolished but the occupants got away with bruises and shock.

"Philly Story" Gives Weather a Battle

CLEVELAND—A week of heavy snowfall, high winds and icy roads was reflected by a drop in boxoffice receipts in all classes of houses. "The Philadelphia Story," playing a second week downtown, made the best showing of the week, with "The Virgin Bride" and "School for Husbands" on a double bill leading in popular favor. "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," also a move-over for a second week, made a good showing. The other first runs got by with fair grosses, and subsequents reported the poorest week since the first of the year.

Detail for week ending February 21:

(Average is 100)

Allen—Mr. and Mrs. Smith (RKO).....130
A second week downtown, moving over from the Hippodrome.

Stillman—The Philadelphia Story (M-G-M)...190
Second week downtown. Moved over from the State and being held for a third week.

Holdovers Fade Before Severe Pitt Weather

PITTSBURGH—Holdover pictures, petering out, and severe winter weather, put the skids under the Golden Triangle's boxoffices. "The Philadelphia Story," in its second week at Loew's Penn, was the strongest attraction, and was moved over to the Warner. "GWTW" turned in the second best percentage gross at the Warner in its second week there and for its fifth and final week downtown was moved over to the Ritz. "The Son of Monte Cristo" and a South American stage revue, "La Conga," managed to hit the average mark, and other theatres found the going rather rough although the Senator's take was very good on "This Thing Called Love," which closed after its fourth week at the Liberty avenue house. "Hellzapoppin" did capacity business at the Nixon on a fortnight engagement.

Details to February 15:

'GWTW' Sole Exception in Mediocre Detroit Week

DETROIT—Local first runs suffered from prevailing cold weather and discouraging show-going for most of the week. Worry over effects of theatre crowds on flu-incidence evidently keep many away despite the decrease of the near-epidemic here.

Outstanding this week was "GWTW" in its return to the United Artists. Actual grosses here were kept somewhat down by the length of the picture, but the house is running four shows a day—opening at 8 a. m., and starting the show at 9 a. m., so patrons get the maximum chance—and there is a good crowd on hand for the early show.

Opening of "Fantasia" at the Wilson, which has long been dark, in midweek looked good, at least for the class audience attending the earlier shows. The picture has not hit its popular stride here yet, and film wiseacres gave it about two weeks for this town. Handicap of opening of Lent is against this film as well as other local shows.

Holdovers marked the weekend otherwise, with the Fox and UA holding shows intact, while "Kitty Foyle" and "Back Street" stay on at their houses.

Detail for week ending February 20:

(Average is 100)

Adams—Back Street (Univ), after wk. at the Fox; Ride, Kelly, Ride (20th-Fox).....125
Cinema—Schubert's Serenade (SR) 60
Fox—Western Union (20th-Fox); Blondie Goes Latin (Col) 110
Michigan—High Sierra (FN); No, No, Nanette (RKO) 90
Palms-State—Kitty Foyle (RKO), after wk. at Michigan; Phantom of Chinatown (Mono)...115
United Artists—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M).170
Wilson—Fantasia (Disney) 100

Buermele Praises Recent Product

Detroit — "Pictures have shown a marked increase in boxoffice value in recent weeks," Carl R. Buermele, general manager of Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan, informs BOXOFFICE.

"Bookings set by our own office have been of much higher drawing power, particularly for the neighborhood theatres which constitute the bulk of our membership," he adds.

"Tugboat Annie" Plus Stage Chugs in First

CINCINNATI—"Folies Bergere of 1941" combined with "Tugboat Annie Sails Again" took top grosses in the Queen City. Business in general was rather sluggish and unusually cold weather undoubtedly took its toll at the boxoffice. However, two films, "Western Union" and "Back Street" in a second week ran 10 per cent above average.

Detail for week ending February 20:

(Average is 100)

Albee—Western Union (20th-Fox), held.....110
Capitol—Back Street (Univ), held 3rd wk.....110
Grand—Land of Liberty (M-G-M) 90
Keith's—High Sierra (FN) 90
Lyric—Mr. and Mrs. Smith (RKO), held 3rd wk. 90
Palace—Come Live With Me (M-G-M).....100
Shubert—Tugboat Annie Sails Again (WB), plus stage show 115

Constants Vacation

WHEELING, W. VA.—Shea Theatrical Enterprises has acquired the Colonial here from Laskey & Harris. The house will be closed temporarily for complete modernization.

Must Wait Until 1945 To Operate Carmen

DETROIT—In the final court order issued by Circuit Judge Guy A. Miller in the suit of Joseph Stoia vs. Joseph Miskinis, the defendants, including Miskinis and Gorelic and Marshall, were restrained from transferring ownership of the Carmen Theatre structure in any form for the period of the injunction—or until February 16, 1945.

The case was described at length in last week's BOXOFFICE, and this further addition to the issuing injunction is said to cover up the last remaining chance for operation of the building as a theatre. It may, however, be converted to other uses such as for stores or a bowling alley.

Informal Weekly Sessions Tried by AMPTO of W. Pa.

PITTSBURGH—Informal membership get-togethers on a weekly basis has been inaugurated by the AMPTO of W. Pa., according to Fred A. Beedle, president, and Fred J. Herrington, secretary.

The decision to try out this new idea in the way of meetings was made at a meeting in Hotel Roosevelt on February 20. The informal sessions will be held in the assembly room at exhibitor headquarters on Filmrow. Mondays are the days for these get-togethers and they will begin promptly at 2 o'clock and be adjourned at 3 p. m.

Purpose of these weekly meetings is to discuss any questions that have come up during the week on matters that might affect the independent theatre owners.

New Theatre Under Way at Dayton Housing Project

DAYTON, OHIO—Work has started on the new McCook Theatre, adjacent to the Parkside development on the site of old McCook field. The 950-seat house will represent an investment of $100,000 and is being built for the Keowee Development Co. by F. & Y. of Columbus.

Operations of the new theatre, which will open around July 1, will be directed by the Central States circuit (Virgil Jackson-John Murphy) of Columbus.

New Urban Makes Bow In East McKeesport

PITTSBURGH—One of the finest suburban theatres in the area was opened on Washington's birthday anniversary when the new Urban bowed in East McKeesport.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas A. Malanos, owner-managers, staged an invitational inspection-reception the evening prior to the opening for members of the trade, community leaders and friends.

Acquires Sally Rand Film

CLEVELAND—Lee Chapman, operating Exploitation Pictures of Ohio, has acquired the Sally Rand picture, "The Dance of the Peacock" for state distribution.

DETROIT

Greek War Relief Aid Asked of Trade

Pittsburgh—Exhibitors are urged to sign a pledge to cooperate with the Greek War Relief in a message from M. A. Rosenberg, former AMPTO president and associate chairman, exhibitor organization, for this worthy cause. He stated:

"We are depending on your assistance in a campaign to help alleviate suffering among civilians and the wounded. Please sign the pledge to cooperate.

"Exhibitors have always been noted for their charity and kindliness. In such a time and for such a cause, let us excel."

Cleveland Committee to Aid Cause of Greece

CLEVELAND—The co-chairmen of the local Greek Relief Fund—I. J. Schmertz, 20th Century-Fox branch manager, and John D. Kalafat of Associated circuit—have appointed the following committee to assist in raising money for relief of Greek war victims:

Frank D. Drew, M-G-M branch manager; Charles Raymond, division manager in charge of Loew theatres; Nat Holt, RKO Great Lakes division manager; Nat Wolf, Warner zone manager; Nat Barach, NSS manager; Bert Stearn, United Artists district manager; Charles Rich, Vitagraph branch manager; M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington circuit, and Henry Greenberger of Community circuit.

United Motion Theatre Company Incorporated

DETROIT—The United Motion Theatre Co., formed two years ago by Saul W. Sloan, builder of the Television Theatre—now under construction—has been formally incorporated. Offices are at 733 Penobscot Building, and capitalization is listed at $25,000. Sole listed stockholder is Sidney W. Foreman, well known in the theatre field here.

The Riviera Arcade Theatre Co. has decreased its capitalization from $300,000 preferred and $60,000 common to $260,000 preferred and $60,000 common. This company is a Munz circuit affiliate. The Munz interests, however, have leased the Riviera Theatre to the United Detroit Circuit, and now directly operate only the Century.

Stage Shows, Dual Bills At Town for 20 Cents

DETROIT—The Town Theatre, operated by Jack Broder, went to a stage show policy plus double features on a full-week basis Friday. The house is operating at 20 cents admission, setting a new bargain rate for stage shows here. Variable prices on stage shows are being discussed, however, with possibility that the house would go as high as 50 cents for major show names.

Beatrice Mattingly Is Chosen "Film Queen"

DETROIT—A "Queen of the Motion Picture Industry" who will take her due rank with the beauty queens of other industries, was selected by Detroit Variety at an industry "Get -Acquainted" night. The new queen is Beatrice Mattingly, secretary to John Howard, Paramount branch manager. Bess Moses of 20th-Fox was selected as her maid of honor.

That the film queen has intelligence as well as good looks, was evidenced earlier in the evening when an old-fashioned spelldown to pick the most efficient secretary in local exchange and theatre offices, was won by Miss Mattingly.

Judges for the beauty contest were Jack Keegan, new film buyer, and assistant to the president of United Detroit Theatres; Dave Flayer, owner of the Amo Theatre, and H. F. Reves of BOXOFFICE. The evening was, incidentally, the best attended Variety Frolic in the past year, and the unusual contest attracted much attention in local newspaper and radio reports.

PITTSBURGH

BILL FINKEL, south side's pride and joy, will be King at the March 3 dinner at the Variety Club. Maurice Spitalny, music maker, has the March 10 spotlight. Mr. and Mrs. Ira H. CINCINNATI

FILMROW with few exceptions, celebrated Washington's Birthday with a holiday, only the perennial bookers being on hand.

The second annual stag dinner of the Cincinnati Cinema Club drew over 300 members and exhibitors from all over the territory and was voted a huge success. Among the out-of-towners gracing the occasion were Universal's Jack Stewart, Detroit; William Keyes, Freddy Krimm, Paul Banker, Herb Byrd and Ev Bennett of Dayton, Phil Bobys, Metro office, Washington, D. C., carried off the $100 drawing. Rudy Knoepfle, president, was much congratulated on the success of the affair and Jack Stewart of Detroit announced a similar organization was on the way in Detroit.

Ike Libson, RKO theatres chief, departed for a rest in Florida . . . Joe Alexander, manager of RKO Albee, announces the Albee will be redecorated and painted, including the balcony, main floor and all lobbies . . . The Viv, Corbin, Ky., suffered damages by fire February 18, when a house adjoining burned. The roof, stage, seats and carpets were burned and the screen destroyed. The house, operated by Schine's, is managed by Louis Merenbloom and will be remodeled and opened within 60 days.

Louis Wiethe has closed his recently acquired Roselawn, Bond Hill, Cincinnati, temporarily. Wiethe also operated the Bond, in the same radius . . . Midwest Theatre Supplies equipped the Ideal, recently acquired and reopened by Mrs. J. C. Crone on Columbia Parkway.

Jim Stallings jr. has been added to the personnel at Midwest Theatre Supplies, assisting his dad, J. Stallings, in operating the business . . . Although Uncle Sam's army has taken many of the team, the Filmrow bowling tournament goes merrily forward, with Al Hobt of Metro leading the single high scores, and Warner team topping the tournament to date, in games won.

Visitors to the Row included L. J. Kraft, Columbus, and B. P. Schroeder, engineers with Altec service. Schroeder stopped off to survey the Esquire Theatre. B. F. Thomas, credit manager from Detroit, was also here and toured the territory with W. Conner, local manager.

Alvin Rebuilding Is Becoming Certainty

PITTSBURGH—Since the night of last November 14 when the Alvin's roof collapsed there have been stories, published and rumored, that the theatre would be rebuilt. Tips of "definite" information regarding "inside" knowledge that a new modern theatre would be erected to replace the old structure was brought to our attention—but there was no announcement forthcoming. Now, an agreement has been reached between the Harris Amusements and Harvard University, owner of the building.

Details are to be released at once and work on the rebuilding will be started at an early date, with expectations that the theatre will be ready for opening in early summer.

Pittsburgh Pro Football Will Be "Dressed Up"

PITTSBURGH—Alex Thompson, young millionaire owner of the Pittsburgh Ironmen, pro football team, will bring showmanship into the game here for the fall and winter season. From New York comes word that he plans to dress up the Forbes Field goal posts with neon lights for night contests and that he will have a 110-piece band on hand at all games.

Construction Bids for Two at Fort Custer

DETROIT—Authorities at Fort Custer, near Battle Creek, are opening bids on construction of two new theatres there in addition to the 1,000 seat house opened a week ago. One contract calls for enlargement of a present structure to 1,000 seats, and the other is for a new theatre for Negroes to seat 638.

BOWLING

DETROIT—Lorenzen Flower Shop climbed to the top of the Nightingale Club last week, nosing out National Carbon. Jack Lindenthal's 211 and 209 for a net of 598, were largely responsible for the Lorenzen push. Other high scores were: W. Rickens, 200, total 533; and S. J. Lambly, 219, total 556. Standings:

Team—	Won	Lost
Lorenzen Flower Shop	47	33
National Carbon Co.	46	34

Move to Double Tax On Racing in Mass.

BOSTON—Massachusetts theatre owners, hard hit financially by the legalization of pari-mutuel horse and dog racing in the Bay State several years ago, have been taking particular interest in the present legislative demand that the state double its $2,000,000 annual tax at local tracks by increasing levies on pari-mutuel betting.

The Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers Association went on record as favoring tax increase on dog racing to get Massachusetts $750,000 more yearly. The organization declared that a poll conducted among the residents of the state showed 97 per cent of them in favor of increasing dog racing taxes.

John L. Feeney of Cambridge, sponsor of a flat 10 per cent tax on dog racing and five per cent tax on horse racing, said that under New York's five per cent tax, Suffolk Downs would have had to pay $462,000 more to the state on the basis of the $22,000,000 handled in the 1940 racing season.

Sees Decree Demanding Strong Organization

Boston—"Independent theatre owners must adjust themselves to a new way of doing business now that the consent decree is in effect," Shep Epstein, field representative of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., opined this week.

"The problem involved," Epstein continued, "is so great that few exhibitors realize how much has been done and even fewer realize how much remains to be done. When they do realize these essentials, one factor remains increasingly clear: An impregnable organization capable of forcing all reasonable demands will stand out as a necessity."

Garbose Takes Date Plea to Arbitrators

BOSTON—Abe Garbose, operator of the York in Athol, filed New England's second arbitration case Tuesday, with the local clerk, Henry de la Morandiere, at the Chamber of Commerce Building quarters in Boston.

Garbose is seeking national release dates for the York Theatre in Athol, Mass. He alleges that national release dates formerly were granted the house.

George S. Ryan, the anti-trust lawyer, was retained by Garbose as counsel. Ryan also is attorney for Ben Gold, operator of the Park in Nashua and the first theatreman in this territory to enter a complaint under the AAA setup.

The Independent Exhibitors, Inc., of which Garbose is a member, assisted the theatre owner in laying the groundwork for the case. This same organization is also backing Gold in his proceedings. In these instances, Business Manager Arthur K. Howard is representative for Allied States Association.

Complaint Filing Aid Offered to Members

BOSTON—"This office stands ready to prepare complaints for presentation to the arbitration tribunal and to represent all members who wish it," Arthur K. Howard, business manager of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., advised members this week.

"The importance of filing complaints with the arbitration board should not be overlooked by anyone," Howard continued. "In order to get a true picture of the effectiveness of the consent decree, the department of justice must, at the end of the three-year trial period, have a complete picture of the relief gained by independent exhibitors under the setup."

Howard advised members not to conciliate privately, averring that in most instances "you will settle for less than you will get from arbitration."

The arbitration picture in New England to date:

NASHUA, N. H.—
Ben Gold, Nashua independent, charges 20th-Fox, Paramount, Warner and RKO with refusing to license some run in the Park Theatre in Nashua.

ATHOL, MASS.—
Abe Garbose, operator of the York in Athol, is seeking national release dates for the house. He alleges such dates formerly were granted the house.

Quick to Contest New Booth Bill

HARTFORD—Exhibitors descended on the state capital 50 strong to oppose the two-men-in-a-booth bill, which was before the judiciary committee for the seventh consecutive session of the legislature.

Since hearing was scheduled with very little advance notice, the delegation gathered first at the Bond Hotel to discuss the line of opposition to this bill from the "safety" angle in which it had been presented. Arthur H. Lockwood, president of Connecticut MPTO, and A. M. Schuman, president of Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut, presided.

In a crowded hearing room, Arthur Lockwood, down from Boston; Irving C. Jacocks, Branford exhibitor who is a representative in the legislature; C. Hess of Groton and Moosup, and Joseph F. Reed of Washington Depot and Bantam, brought out facts concerning actual fire records of the past several years, revealing that no theatre fires had originated in booths, and that in the only two fires of any consequence, the booth had remained standing although the remainder of the buildings was demolished.

Stressing the angle that no operator should leave the operating side of the machine at any time, and indicating that two men are necessary in a booth, were Thomas Fitzsimmons, lobbyist for operators and stage employes in the current session, George Brazil, president of the Connecticut Association of Motion Picture Operators and Stage Employes; John Egan, secretary of the Connecticut branch of the AFL; and James Finn, editor and publisher of The Projectionist.

Meanwhile, two blank bills on installation of safety control devices on cinematograph apparatus were ruled out because full texts of the bills were not inserted by February 18. Exhibitors are anxiously hoping for a similar fate for tax bills filed in blank, which have not yet come to light.

Independent Exhibitors' Committee Nominating

BOSTON—A special nominating committee for the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., is considering a report to be made at the annual meeting of the organization, March 11. Indications are that the only changes in the officers will be replacements for William H. McLaughlin and Irving Isaacs, both resigned.

The nominating committee is composed of Frank Perry, Tom McNulty, Richard Rubin, and Wilbur Peterson. Elections will be held on the same day.

Interstate Dismissal Motion Is Denied

BOSTON—A motion of the Interstate Theatre Corp. that the U. S. district court of Vermont dismiss the anti-trust suit brought against it by Tegu's Palace Theatre, Inc., on the ground that Interstate does not transact business in Vermont was denied by Federal Judge Harland B. Howe. Mortin E. Fain, Interstate general manager, was the only witness.

"Interstate 'services' four theatres located in Vermont (many in other places) owned or leased by Rockingham Operating Company, a Massachusetts Corporation," decided Judge Howe. "Fain is also its general manager. He spends all his time at the Massachusetts offices of Rockingham and Interstate and goes to and from the theatres.

"Servicing" as Evidence

"In 'servicing' the theatre, Interstate selects their local manager, their equipment, such as seats, rugs, curtains, drapes, etc. It is their purchasing agent and their booking agent, too. He selects what pictures they show and designates when to show them. Fain has been going to St. Johnsbury where the Interstate Starr Theatre is located, about five times a year. He does auditing at this theatre by checking tickets and petty cash. He says he always goes there as manager of Rockingham (it always pays his traveling expenses), he never goes there as the manager of Interstate (it never pays his traveling expenses). Whenever he has come into Vermont he has come as manager of Rockingham, never as manager of Interstate . . .

"This 'servicing' is valuable to obtain and keep public patronage. It's name, Interstate, is displayed as a theatre sign at each of the Vermont theatres. It is printed in the Vermont newspaper advertisements, urging the public to come to the picture shows. It is printed on the program of the shows which are given to the persons attending . . .

Denial to Graves Theatres

"This," Federal Judge Howe ruled, "is transacting business in Vermont. Much is necessarily done by divers persons for Interstate in Vermont. Whether it is done by Fain as its general manager or by others, for or without compensation, is unimportant. This makes it unnecessary to consider Fain's credibility. Motion denied."

Judge Howe also denied the Graves Theatres, Inc., a motion to dismiss finding that the defendant in the anti-trust action had answered April 9, 1940, and had, therefore, waived its motion to dismiss filed June 27, 1939.

Judge Howe further denied a motion brought by the Rockingham Operating Company seeking what His Honor termed, "particulars of unnecessary prolixity." The court stated, however, that the motion might be renewed "in obedience to the rules."

Jack Carson to Metro

HOLLYWOOD—Metro has borrowed Jack Carson from Warner for a topline in "Love Crazy," the Myrna Loy-William Powell co-starrer.

"Buck Privates" Benefits By a Heavy Campaign

Kibbee Humbled By Politicians

Concord, N. H.—During a personal appearance at a local theatre, Guy Kibbee was a guest of the state legislature.

Applauded loudly as he was introduced by Gov. Robert O. Blood, the film star told the world's largest legislative body that "I never thought I would live to see the day when a Democrat could get that much applause in New Hampshire. But all the members of my golf club at home are Republicans, outside of myself and Bing Crosby."

Theatre Building Spurt in Spring

NEW HAVEN—Theatre improvement activity is receiving a spring spurt.

Joe Faith, operator in Collinsville, Unionville and Terryville, is due to open his 700-seat house in Bristol, formerly a lodge hall, early in March.

Reports have it excavating has definitely started for a 1,000-seat Perakos-Quittner theatre in East Hartford.

Fred Quatrano of the Lido, Waterbury, will build a 700-seat house in Newington, which has no theatre.

Philip Schwartz will improve and enlarge his 400-seat Parkway, Bridgeport, this spring.

Strand Amusement's Strand-Palace will get 700 new seats, a new heating system, marquee, and new front of modernistic blue glass.

Bids are out for remodeling and enlarging the Michael Daly 700-seat Plainfield.

The Roger Sherman, New Haven, and other Warner "A" houses are testing new type lamps which promise to create an improved lighting effect.

Al Herman Day-and-Dates "Flying Wild" for Eight

BOSTON—Setting what is probably a new record in this territory for independent day-and-date first-run bookings, Al Herman, Monogram district manager, has concluded deals for eight simultaneous unveilings of "Flying Wild."

The contracts, which will count in the present Monogram sales drive, are with the RKO Boston, Ralph Snider's Metropolitan in Providence, Harris Bros.' State in Hartford, Giles' Garden in Laconia, Morse & Rothenberg's Arcadia in Portsmouth and Colonial in Nashua, and Warner's Capitol in Danbury and Palace in Torrington.

Nathan Press Managing Uptown in Bath, Me.

PORTLAND, ME.—Nathan Press, for several years assistant manager of the local State, is now in Bath, Me., as manager of the Uptown, an M&P house. The Uptown was formerly managed by Francis Gooch, who has been transferred to the new Houlton at Houlton, Me. CAPITOL THEATRE SUPPLY CO.
28-30 Piedmont Street
BOSTON, MASS.

NEW HAVEN

RECENT New Haven quilt factory fire with shocking loss of life has prompted a wave of state police checking on all establishments, including theatres. A few were charged with overcrowding . . . Exhibitors had to toe the mark for Sunday night closing at 11, a rule hard to follow to the letter with long duals . . . No activity yet in the arbitration office . . . Exhibitor attention is focused on the legislature where two-men-in-a-booth has already been opposed . . . Charity Bingo, exhibitors' chief beef, cannot even be strenuously opposed, since neighborhoods depend on church and neighborhood organization goodwill . . . A bill previously filed in blank has been filled in to set up the post of Bingo commissioner and deputy in each of six congressional districts of the state at a salary of $5,500 per commissioner. These men would issue licenses now granted by towns. Bill also increases maximum prize allowance from $250 to $500 for each series of games.

Dr. J. B. Fishman and family were guests at several parties before leaving for a five-week vacation in Miami Beach . . . Leo Bonoff of Madison and Saybrook is planning a March trip to Miami with Mrs. Bonoff . . . The Harry F. Shaws sail March 6 for Panama where they will shoot pictures, do deep-sea fishing and relax generally . . . Maurice Bailey of the "W" theatres, Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Jack Halprin, wife of the theatre contractor, started off on their motor trip to New Orleans and the Mardi Gras without Jack, who was detained by a last-minute job. However, Jack joined the party a few days later in Charlotte, N. C., whence he flew by plane . . . Ben Lourie of Columbia is spending part of his two-week leave in Buffalo, visiting with Phil Fox, Columbia manager . . . James Bracken, head of the Warner Theatre department contact office, is off for two weeks in Miami . . . Tim O'Toole, Columbia manager, and Mrs. O'Toole best dancers on the floor at the annual Columbian Club Ball at the Waldorf in New York . . . Ben Simon of 20th-Fox in New York for a few days on business.

Billy Nutile, Paramount shipper, is off for a year of camp life . . . So is Jack O'Connell, Roger Sherman assistant manager. Ray Hughes, assistant to chief usher at the theatre, and with the house for the past three years, steps into the assistantship . . . Sal Popolizio, 20th-Fox booker, who's rarin' to go and be a soldier, missed by a bad tooth . . . Andy Calavolpe, Exhibitor representative here, is off with the National Guard after a farewell party at the Hotel Bishop . . . After numerous delays because of holdovers, Sam Badamo is playing "The Land of Liberty," with a Motion Picture Council tieup in the way of an essay contest . . . Paramount's two-reeler, "Men of the Light Ship," also gives its film rental proceeds to British War Relief . . . World premiere of "Americans All," March of Time, given big fanfare and drew tremendous crowd at the Majestic, Bridgeport, where Morris Rosenthal gathered the mayor, prominent members of the clergy, chamber of commerce and other local celebs for the opening night.

Morey Goldstein has traded in his Packard convertible coupe, known throughout his former territory, for a nifty red Buick sedan . . . Larry Caplan is driving a new black Pontiac sedan . . . Al Zalis of Globe Poster Co. of Baltimore is making a tour of the New England territory on the lookout for new business and old acquaintances . . . Fred Greenway, for the past four years manager of the State, Boston, is the new manager at the Palace, Hartford, replacing Lou Cohen, who has been moved to the Loew-Poli. Greenway was previously at the Century, Baltimore, for over ten years, and worked at one time with Lou Brown, then doing publicity for the three Baltimore houses. The Greenways have taken up a Hartford residence . . . Hymie Schwartz of the Hillcrest, Taftville, recuperating from flu . . . Mrs. Lee Malcarni of Essex Square, Essex, is confined to bed . . . A. McInerney, 20th-Fox cashier, back at her desk after a siege of grippe . . . William Cook, veteran employe of the Capitol, Meriden, is in Meriden Hospital with the flu . . . Pete LaFlamme is celebrating his 16th year with Steve Panora at the 20th Century, New Milford.

Edward Ruff, Henry Germaine and Lou Schaefer were at the station with flowers and photographers to meet charming 16-year-old Susanna Foster, who made a p. a. at the Paramount, then proceeded to Hartford, Worcester and Boston . . . "The Dictator" comes back to the Loew-Poli at regular prices late in March . . . State did a big business with Bill Robinson, followed by Tommy Dorsey . . . The Majestic capitalized to the hilt the fact that Joan Bennett of "Son of Monte Cristo" was educated in a Waterbury school . . . Tony Massella, assistant at the Globe, Bridgeport, took a local child (and photographers) to see the new fire chief and fire equipment, as a stunt for "Sandy Gets Her Man" . . . Matt Saunders landed a half page of co-op ads in the Times-Star, and two-column story and art on the same page, as well as story on a "Strange Experience" contest for "So Ends Our Night."

George Rabbott is playing "GWTW" for the second time at the Alcazar, Naugatuck, and putting in an extra 10 a. m. show for the 4,000 who go to the factories for a 3 to 11 shift . . . George Freeman rescued a new radio show from the City Auditorium for his theatre, the Poli, Springfield. Show is staged Tuesdays, 8:30 to 8:55, and called "Fines or Fortunes." Sponsored by local oil dealer with no cost to the theatre . . . Members of the audience come up on the stage and are quizzed. If they answer correctly, they are allowed a certain time to dig into a fish bowl for all the coins they can take out. If incorrect, they are allowed a short time to dig and are called on to do some stunt as a fine. This provides the comedy angle, in addition to the prize appeal.

BRIDGEPORT

SAMUEL HADDLEMAN and his wife are back from a trip to New York where they saw "Fantasia" and Ed Wynn's "Boys and Girls" . . . Harold Engle, student assistant manager at the Globe, tied up with the Bridgeport Flying Service for "Give Us Wings." Students pilots were invited to attend the theatre and stunt won picture space in the Post . . . Saul Rapaport is the new doorman at Loew's Majestic.

Lou Anger, Barnum exhibitor, was talking about his first day at a race track. "When I got to the track," said Lou, "I felt like a million. At the end of the fifth race I felt like and had about two cents" . . . Phil Schwartz has launched a dinnerware deal at his Parkway . . . A soft drink machine has been installed at the Warner.

Majestic Manager Morris Rosenthal made the Loew Dollar Club . . . The Horace MacMahons have returned to Hollywood . . . A. M. Schuman, Black Rock theatre owner, has dropped plans to build a de luxe neighborhood theatre, and will erect an apartment house instead . . . Several scenes were shot in Bridgeport . . . George Shearer of United Artists was in town in the interest of "So Ends Our Night."

Mrs. A. M. Schuman of the Black Rock is entertaining her nephew and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. Jarad Wiggins, of Montgomery, Ala. Mrs. Schuman was in New York recently . . . All New London theatres cooperated with the Army when Long Island sound became so rough that the transport could not make the night crossing to Forts Wright and Terry. The theatres informed the many men on furlough in the audience that they were to spend the night in New London.

Otto Esposito of the Loew-Poli made the Sunday Post with a story when he discovered that Stanley Clements of the "Tall, Dark and Handsome" cast, used to haunt the theatres here on amateur nights and cop many first prizes . . . Jack Schwartz ran "Bergslagsfolk," Swedish language picture, at his West End . . . The first neighborhood theatre to show "GWTW" here will be Sam Haddleman's Colonial. March 2 is the opening date.

Pearl Rosen is the new relief cashier at the Majestic . . . Manager Matt L. Saunders of the Loew's Poli took two projectors to the Fairfield home of George C. Waldo, editor-in-chief of the Post and Telegram, and ran a full-length show. The occasion was the birthday of one of Mr. Waldo's daughters . . . Robert Wheyland has resigned as usher at the Globe . . . The State, Waterbury, has raised Sunday admissions from 35 to 50 cents . . . Nick Marlemes, owner of the Roxy, New Britain, is due back from Florida early in March . . . The State, New Britain, is now opening at 10:45 a. m. daily . . . Ernie Gracula has started a dinnerware deal at the State, Torrington.

Film Feeder Patent Is Granted P. Edward Comi

BOSTON—P. Edward Comi, head of the Theatre Service & Supply Company, has been allowed a patent by the U. S. Patent Office involving the feeding of sound films through motion picture projectors. Comi was granted seven out of ten claims on the procedure.

The new patent involves a roller arrangement for use in projectors, eliminating one sprocket. Comi, who already has installed the device on a number of special repair and rebuilt jobs, claims that the innovation affords greater quiet and reduces wear on film.

Comi has several other proposed motion picture devices before the U. S. Patent Office for consideration. To date, he has been awarded some six patents connected with sound projection. He was the inventor of the Simplex rear-shutter.

Capitol on Job

BOSTON—Capitol Theatre Supply has been acting as architects' consultants in the drawing up of plans for the new Julius Meyer theatre in Concord. The house, the community's first regular motion picture place, is expected to be ready for opening in the fall.

Seventh Week for "Ireland"

BOSTON—George Kraska, operator of the Fine Arts, has held "Here Is Ireland" for a seventh consecutive week. Unusual angle is that the picture is 16mm.

PROVIDENCE

TRIO of employes of RKO-Albee left Saturday as "Buck Privates" with the 118th Company, R. I. National Guard, mustered into service as part of 43rd division. The lads were Thomas Mooney, chief of service; Alex Sagatt, usher, and James Wall, doorman.

John Sullivan has been promoted from usher to chief of service at RKO-Albee and Joe Giblin, former usher captain, becomes assistant chief of service in staff changes effective this week.

M&P's Strand, Pawtucket, had 700 students of the city's West high school in the audience last Thursday for a theatre party in which students presented a stage program.

Don Pardo, former chief of service at the Albee, now employed in a Providence factory turning out war materials, was passing out cigars last Wednesday—reason, a daughter. Kenneth McKinnon, Albee's porter, also is boasting about the new daughter at his house these days.

94,727 New Englanders Placed by Government

NEW HAVEN—New Englanders placed by government employment services during the past year include 53,762 placements in Connecticut and 40,965 in Massachusetts.

Parking Rules Unchanged, Says Hub Commissioner

BOSTON—Boston theatre owners were assured last week by William P. Hickey, Boston traffic commissioner, that no new parking prohibitions had been set up in the theatre district. The streets opened to parking in the past, Hickey said, are still unaffected despite the present tagging drive.

Hickey advised local managers that they could assure their patrons that automobiles parked in any area not definitely prohibited by signs would not be tagged. Practically everyone of the night-time prohibitions, the commissioner declared, may be attributed to the lack of roadway for the passage of fire apparatus.

SMPE Will Hear Paper on Panic-Prevention Device

NEW HAVEN—Earl Morin of the state police of Connecticut will present to the Society of Motion Picture Engineers' convention a paper on a new automatic damper release, of interest to theatres having air-conditioning systems as a panic-prevention device. The state has been active in developing this idea of preventing smoke of any origin, whether internal or from adjoining property, from being blown into the interior of a theatre, trying at all times, Morin states, to keep the device simple and free from mechanical and electrical defects, as well as inexpensive.

MOREY GOLDSTEIN

NEW HAVEN—There's no one like the little boy who sold newspapers after school and grew up to ride in Packards and Buicks to make a model subject for a 100 per cent American success story.

Oil magnates have been known to invent the newsboy myth to gain popular appeal with the man in the street. They needed it; Morey Goldstein, new Metro manager, New Haven, is a natural for popular appeal anyhow. Witness the fact that he has been in New Haven for almost two months, and the whole Film Building, and even the customers, label him "a regular fellow" without reservation. It's too soon to tell, you say? Well, in Boston they felt that way after 18 years.

Morey came as a Xmas present to his parents in a little Russian village some 39 years ago, but by the time he was three, he had wisely exchanged beans for borscht and was on his way to fame. Not that Dame Fortune just smiled and Morey took it easy. He was a conscientious student in Chelsea elementary and high schools, and took care of the business of selling papers right after school, so that as a young boy he had no time for the usual sports and pastimes. Nevertheless, he was popular and recognized, and in both his junior and senior years of high he became president of his class. Having delivered the president's address with poise, confidence, and even eloquence, the family decided Morey would also be impressive before a jury, and urged him to study law.

Accordingly, he entered the Northeastern Law School in 1921. By 1922 he knew as much about contracts as school was destined to teach him. Then he tackled the Bentley School of Accounting, but already he had an inkling that figures of stars and film rentals would interest him more. So he left the portals of learning from books in favor of learning from cans. His first real job was as assistant shipper for the old Goldwyn Company in Boston, of which Maurice N. Wolf, now Metro district manager at Boston, was then to become branch manager. His rise upward was practically dizzy. In no time at all he became poster clerk; then he was promoted to the Metro booking department and shortly after to head booker. In this post he learned the works in a thoroughgoing experience of ten years.

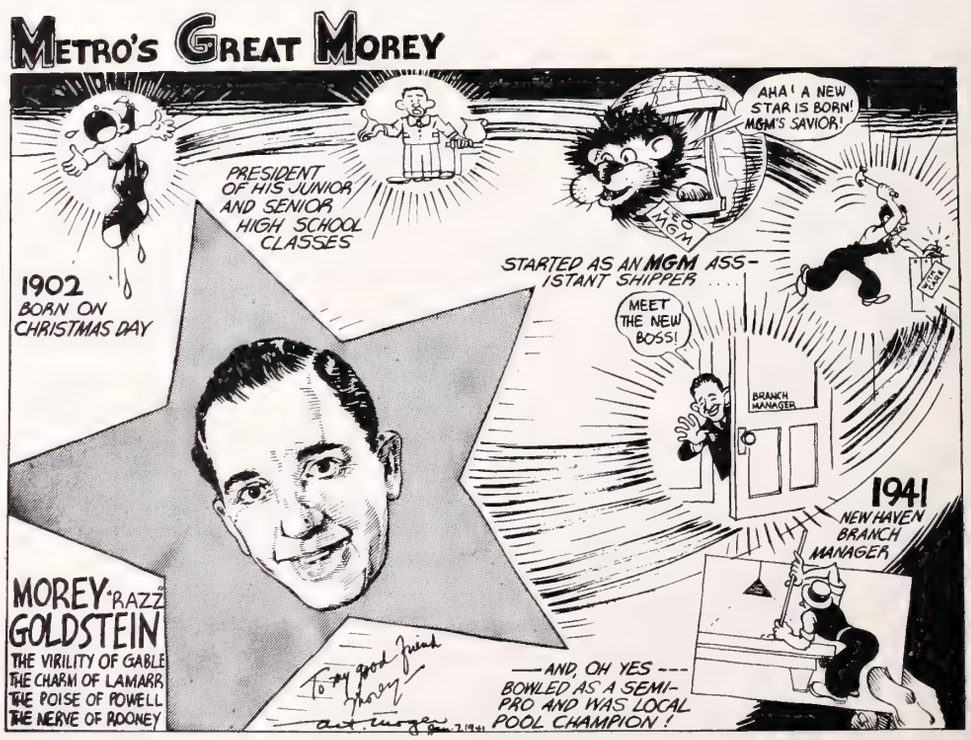
His knowledge of the business and successful personal contacts made him the logical man for the sales department when a vacancy occurred. He handled first the Rhode Island territory, and was subsequently sent to every state in New England, to Delaware, Maryland and Virginia on special assignments. In 1938 he was promoted to the important city salesman's job and remained city salesman until the bells rang 1941 and Morey Goldstein into New Haven where he has since sat in the coveted and well-upholstered Metro manager's chair. As far back as 1930 he was offered a fine foreign post with his company, but his family connections were too close for severance and he remained to the benefit of the industry here, like a few of the other Goldstein boys.

Morey's older brother, Harry, was district manager of the old Netoco circuit and later became associated with Publix, for whom he now works in a managerial capacity in Matapan. His younger brother, Jack, has been associated in the publicity field with Shubert's, Keith's and United Artists, and is now handling "Fantasia" openings throughout the country for Walt Disney. A third brother, Aaron, is manager of the Metropolitan Life office in Boston.

In between times, our hero developed in several directions outside of business. From being a pool champ in high school, he turned to squash tennis and baseball with such good records that he became tournament timber. Like all good film men, he was also bitten by the golf bug, and attained the distinction of playing consistently in the 80's. More recently, he has lost a little ground, but Morey is hoping that the New Haven air and the keen competition in these parts will improve his game. So much for athletics.

That his love life has been successful is attested by the beautiful pictures of Mrs. Goldstein and the two young 'uns in his office. In addition to all this, evidence that Morey has not neglected the humorous side of life is found in the affectionate nickname, "Razz," acquired in Boston many years ago and still sticking to the extent that many of his friends know him by no other. Also, he has been very prominently identified with all Boston Friars Club activities. As chairman of the entertainment committee, he sponsored and was in charge of memorable dinners for Maurice Wolf, Steve Broidy, Abe Spitz, of the Boston film district, and Judge James E. Dooley of Narragansett Park. For this latter event, he even managed to have the front and back pages of the Daily Record devoted to the judge and the dinner, and to inveigle 250 Bostonians in to Providence for the time of their lives.

Goldstein has worked closely with Tom Donaldson, former New Haven manager, now promoted to Boston Metro, for the past 14 years. When Donaldson came to work for Metro as salesman, Goldstein was making strides in the booking department, and it was a pleasant coincidence that Donaldson's recent promotion to Boston meant Morey's managership in the Elm City.



How about first impressions? "Despite the handicap of a bad eye infection," Morey says, "and the fact that my entire family was laid up with the flu on my arrival here, I could not help being pleasantly impressed with the friendly spirit manifested by everyone with whom I came in contact. It's a grand industry, with an intimacy and sociability not found in any other business. I've always been fascinated by it, and so far my experience in New Haven has served to strengthen that feeling."

Appeals Tax Valuations

HARTFORD—Ernest M. Buck of East Hartford has appealed to the state superior court here from valuations set by the board of tax review on property at 625-653 Main St., this city.

"Somewhere" for Trumbo

HOLLYWOOD—Dalton Trumbo is scripting "Somewhere I'll Find You," from Charles Hoffman's original, for Metro. Pandro Berman will produce.

State Supervision for Bingo Is Proposed

HARTFORD—Bingo, which was legalized two years ago by the state legislature, would be supervised by state commissioners under a measure introduced in the house last week.

The proposal, presented by Rep. Fred Faulkner, a Democrat of New Haven, to replace a skeleton bill, provides for the appointment of a Bingo commissioner, and a deputy in each of the five congressional districts. They would take over from the towns the duties of issuing licenses and collecting fees and would turn back half of the fees to the towns.

The measure would also increase from $250 to $500 the limit on Bingo prizes in Connecticut. The commissioners, under this measure, would be paid $5,500 annually. No salaries were suggested for the deputies.

Would Legalize Benefit Bingo, Beano Games

AUGUSTA, ME.—A bill to permit benefit Beano or Bingo games with an annual license fee of $25 on them has been introduced in the Maine legislature by Rep. Frank M. Pierce (R) of Bucksport.

The measure would allow the operation of Beano or Bingo when "sponsored exclusively by and for the sole benefit of a charitable, educational, fraternal, patriotic, religious, or veteran organization."

Delays a Fine

WETHERSFIELD, CONN.—Execution of a $25 fine against the Webster Company, Hartford theatrical firm, for failure to remove construction sheds from a proposed theatre site, was delayed by the court on condition the buildings be removed within four days.

: NEW HAMPSHIRE :

GUY KIBBEE made his first personal appearance in New Hampshire at the premiere of "Scattergood Baines," in which he is featured, in Claremont. Later, admirers caught a glimpse of the star in Laconia, where he stopped for breakfast.

Spencer Tracy was second only to Wendell L. Willkie when the former presidential candidate was chosen in a straw vote at Colby Junior College in New London as honorary king of that town's winter carnival. Katharine Hepburn was voted as honorary queen.

Speaking on various forms of gambling at a Manchester Rotary Club meeting, Bancroft Brown, Dartmouth College professor, urged a continuation of New Hampshire's pari-mutuel horse racing as "the lesser of two evils." He said if parimutuels were eliminated, strong pressure undoubtedly would be exerted for a state lottery.

Elaborate Opening for New Tulsa Theatre

TULSA, OKLA.—The Griffith's newest theatre, the Tulsa, was opened here with elaborate ceremonies attended by company executives and theatre people from all over the state. An unscheduled sidelight was the calling of a strike by operators as related elsewhere in this issue.

H. J. Griffith, president of the H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., L. C. Griffith, president of the Griffith Amusement Co.; R. E. Griffith, president of R. E. Griffith Theatres and Westex, Inc., were executives attending.

The Griffiths dined and entertained 300 guests at the Hotel Tulsa prior to the new house dedication and followed the premiere showing with a dance and floor show at the hotel.

Closing of the old Main Street Theatre and opening of the new Tulsa across the street is just one item in a considerable expansion program by Griffith Southwestern. A lease has been signed and work will start soon on the old Palace toward eventual re-opening; the Circle has recently been remodeled; the Plaza recently rebuilt.

Plans already have been announced for the Pines Theatre, between Pine Street and Pine Place on Cincinnati Ave., and for the Will Rogers, on Eleventh Street at Toledo.

On the dinner and dedication program were Lew Chatham, division manager for Griffith Southwestern; C. B. Akers, assistant general manager; Mayor C. H. Veale; L. C. Griffith; Clyde A. King, Tulsa Chamber of Commerce president; B. J. McKenna, Griffith Southwestern general manager.

Out-of-town guests included Harold Harris, Kansas City; James E. Hammett, Claremore; Sol Davis, Oklahoma City; Claude Fulgum, Oklahoma City; E. R. Slocum, El Reno; William Wagner, Independence, Kas.; Bob Morley, Fredonia, Kas.; Morris Loewenstein, Oklahoma City; Abe Rosewald, Springfield, Mo.; Clarence Poos, Kansas City; Kenneth Blackledge, Bartlesville; Chester Daugherty, mayor of Bartlesville; Ward Scott, Kansas City, and W. J. Kupper, New York City.

Tulsa notables present included Ralph Talbot, head of Talbot Theatres, Inc., and General Alva J. Niles.

Griffith Operators Willing to Arbitrate

TULSA, OKLA.—The moion picture machine operators local union has voted to submit its controversy with Griffith-Southwestern Theatres, Inc., to the NLRB, Charles Hathaway, business representative of the union, has announced.

The strike has been directed against seven theatres in Tulsa operated by Griffith, and now has spread to Springfield, Mo., where operators of two of the company's theatres have walked out.

Hathaway complained that the company has refused to bargain collectively with his union, although he admitted that he and company representatives had had several talks.

"It's all a question of what you call collective bargaining," explained Lew Chatham, manager in Tulsa for Griffith Southwestern. "If they mean that we failed to accept their terms, then we're guilty."

The union men say they are demanding no increase in wages or improvement in working conditions but are merely asking for a five-year contract.

In Springfield, where the union men walked out Saturday, the company had employed union men but under no contract. Pickets were pacing in front of the Circle, Tower, Plaza, Delman, Rita, Tulsa and Lyric in Tulsa.

Chatham said the company was given no notice of the strike and has expressed its willingness to carry on with the union employes on present hours and wages.

Sixteen operators from other theatres of the Griffith organization over the state were called in to man the Tulsa houses after the strike broke.

Hathaway maintains that Griffith officials had flatly refused to bargain collectively.

"The Griffith representative told us," Hathaway states, "that the company has never held a contract with any labor union and didn't intend to establish any precedents in Tulsa."

He said that the inauguration of the new Tulsa Theatre last week was the "first time in 24 years that a theatre has been opened without first signing a contract with our union."

Pickens, Griffith Deal in Making

DALLAS — While definite confirmation could not be obtained here, it is reliably reported that Jack Pickens and the Griffith interests are in the midst of an important theatre deal.

Pickens, it was said, would take Uvalde and its two theatres, while Consolidated Theatres, a subsidiary of Griffith, would take New Braunfels, Cuero and Refugio.

The four towns are booked by the R. E. Griffith offices here.

A New Robbinsville House For Burgins and Talley

CHARLOTTE—The Burgin Brothers and J. D. Talley are building a new theatre in Robbinsville, N. C., which is expected to be ready for opening in the spring. The novel house, being built on the side of a mountain, will be made entirely of native stone.

The Burgins and Talley presently operate a theatre in Robbinsville and others in Andrews, Hayesville and Murphy.

Biggers Building

ATLANTA—C. M. Biggers has started construction of his new theatre at Winter Garden, Fla., which will seat 500, including orchestra and colored balcony.

Changes Threatened In Theatre Taxes

COLUMBIA, S. C.—Changes in existing theatre tax sources are recommended by a legislative sub-committee in a measure providing for a graduated license tax based on population ranging from 3 per cent of the gross amount paid for admissions in towns up to 5,000, 5 per cent from 5,000 to 10,000, 7 per cent from 10,000 to 12,000 and 10 per cent over that figure. The present levy is a seat tax governed by population.

In 1926 a 10 per cent admission tax was enacted by the South Carolina legislature which proved a heavy burden on exhibitors, causing many of them to close. At the time the old bill became a law, there were 126 theatres operating. When the existing seat tax replaced it, there were only 86 theatres left, and during the time the 1926 law was in effect not one new theatre was constructed and only minor repairs were made on a few. Today South Carolina has 151 operating theatres, with seven in the course of construction or ready to open.

Two Theatres Rising at Camp Forrest, Tenn.

TULLAHOMA, TENN.—With the first of 35,000 drafted men scheduled to arrive in March and the entire cantonments nearing completion, contractors now are building two theatres and other recreational interests at Camp Forrest (formerly known as Camp Peay). These should be ready for opening by March 15. One theatre already has been opened in Tullahoma and another is planned as a result of the sudden rise in population.

Chickasaw Amusement To Build in Humboldt

HUMBOLDT, TENN. — The Chickasaw Amusement Co., Inc., operators of the Rex, will begin the construction immediately of a new house to be called the Humboldt. The building will include rental space for a store and offices. The house is planned to seat 1,000 and there will be a separate balcony and entrance for Negroes. A big government shell-loading plant is being built at Milan, not far from Humboldt.

Two Drive-Ins for M. A. Lightman

Memphis—M. A. Lightman, president of Malco Theatres, announces that, effective immediately, he is taking over operation of the drive-in theatres in Memphis and North Little Rock, Ark., from Barney Woolner.

He's planning on an early March opening.

Concerning Florida

By A. JULES BENEDIC

LAKELAND—We leap to Lakeland, famous, among other things, for being headquarters for the Sparks enterprises and the home of retired railroad folk.

F. L. ALIG

FRED CASE

FRANK BELL

DREW EBERSON

Above are the likenesses, somewhat blurred by this non-professional cameraman, of F. L. Alig, Florida State Theatres executive, headquartering at Lakeland; Freddy Case of the Pompano Theatre at Pompano; Frank Bell, Sparks city manager at Fort Myers, with too much sun in his eyes, and Drew Eberson (his scalp reduced by this Indian photographer), of the New York firm of theatre architects bearing his name. He is the son of John Eberson.

The girls of Florida State came downstairs in two batches. We seem to get a better perspective and draw a finer bead on "The Gals," as this homeoffice contingent is dubbed. Sorry we can't give you their names; we're sort of new at this photogenic pastime, but we'll learn.

We did, however, manage to identify the above trio. Tired of the usual procedure, we name them in reverse order. Therefore, from RIGHT to left: Miss Lucille Seed, Mrs. Robert Pearce and Mrs. David Payne. Mrs. Pearce is right-hand bower to B. B. Garner, head of theatre operations. The other two are in the film rental department.

At the Floyd Stein circuit headquarters in Haines City, we induce Gene Stone (left, above) local manager, to line up with George Hoffman of National Screen Service, from Atlanta. George, incidentally, is said to be one of the oldest film men, from the point of service, still active on the road.

And we conclude this pictorial putsch with the trio of showmen who collectively and/or individually run the Bradenton-Palmetto setup for Mr. Sparks. Left to right, then: H. F. Prince, Harry Botto and O. C. Minor. Harry is senior executive, a member of the "old-school" fraternity, with film experience dating back virtually to the birth of the cinema.

Benedic Struck by Car On Pensacola Street

A. Jules Benedic, roving representative of BOXOFFICE, was struck by an automobile in Pensacola, Fla., while en route to a theatre Wednesday. He was taken to the Pensacola Hospital where initial diagnosis indicated shock and concussions. He wired his home office Thursday that he did not believe his condition to be serious.

ATLANTA

H E. MARSHALL, assistant manager of the Rhodes Theatre, left for duty at Camp Blanding this week. He will be attached to the 179th Field Artillery, and will run the camp theatre.

H. J. Yates, J. R. Grainger and A. C. Bromberg, Republic Pictures Corp., will conduct a regional sales meeting on March 3-4.

Visitors: W. A. Bowers, Warrior, Warrior, Ala.; W. H. Karr, Dixie Amusement Co., Swainsboro, Ga.; Leon H. Robbins, Lincoln, Gainesville, Fla.; Grover Wise, West End, Birmingham, Ala.; Curtis Ware, Royce, Royston, Ga.; Roth and A. J. Hook jr., Aliceville, Ala.; Mrs. Ethel Blanton, Zebulon, Cairo, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Smith, Gem, Barnesville, Ga.; Mrs. M. M. Osman, Strand, Covington, Ga., and city managers for L&J Theatres, Moon Corker, Athens, and Art Barry, Macon, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bromberg, Republic Pictures, have returned from several weeks' vacation at Miami . . . L. C. Worthington, Auto Movies Company, Bessemer, Ala., was a visitor for several days and reports his Drive-In Theatre, at Montgomery, will reopen March 5.

Q. A. Cook and W. F. Hamilton, of Oak Dale, Tenn., were newcomers to the Row this week, making plans to open their new Oak Dale within a very short time . . . B. P. Neal, has started construction on a new theatre at Villa Rica, Ga., replacing the one destroyed by fire some time back. The theatre will have a seating capacity of 1,000, and a contest will be held to select a name.

"Ash" Yarbrough, manager of the Sylvan Theatre, is enjoying a four-day hunting trip in Florida . . . Solomon Miller, Miller Theatres, lost his wife February 24.

S. G. Tos, who operates theatres in Claxton and Reidsville, Ga., has acquired the theatre at Collins, Ga., which he will remodel . . . Nat Williams, Interstate Enterprises, Thomasville, Ga., in town booking and getting things in order to open his new theatre at Boston, Ga.

Miss Ruflyn Bachelor has been promoted from the Metro accounting department to boxoffice clerk replacing Mrs. Hilda Simmons, resigned. Mrs. Evelyn McElroy takes over Miss Bachelor's job in the accounting department . . . Lamar Swift, city manager for L&J Theatres in Waycross, Ga., paid his first visit to Atlanta since being placed in his present position.

The Pal Theatre, Lyons, Ga., was completely destroyed by fire the past week and according to H. S. Johnson, general manager for Pal Amusements, Inc., work will begin immediately on a new house.

Charles Sumner, head booker for Universal, and Lieutenant in the Army Reserves, will leave for the army camp at Hinesville, Ga., March 7 . . . Gus King, Capitol City Supply, is spending some time in Florida hunting.

Fred Geisler has joined the booking staff of Paramount . . . Mrs. Pearl Bach of the Bach Theatres is back from a visit to New Orleans where she attended the Mardi Gras . . . Claire Sharpe has joined the Warner cashier department.

Earle M. Holden, manager of the Capitol, announces the recent booking of two special stage units. The first, "Oomph in Swingtime," will star Fifi D'Orsay, and the second, George McCall and his Hollywood Review.

Lionel Keene, Kirkwood Theatre, has made a tiein with the Kirkwood Civitan Club, in a coloring contest for school children and will give away 50 free tickets to the best colorings on the serial "Terry and the Pirates" which begins its run Saturday, March 8.

Make Contact Trips Throughout Florida

JACKSONVILLE—M. C. Moore, president of the SETOA and manager of the Riverside Theatre here, has returned to Jacksonville for a short breathing spell after a 1,500-mile journey of the state in company with J. L. Cartwright, public relations counsel for the Sparks interests. The two will make several additional trips, having the unenviable task of contacting every exhibitor in the state, in the interest of legislative matters.

At Pensacola, Messrs. Moore and Cartwright were met by representatives of the Saenger circuit, as well as independents, in a closed meeting that lasted many hours.

In view of the fact several revenue-raising bills are expected at the coming session of the legislature in Tallahassee, the present trips, taken in the interest of theatres generally, are deemed important junkets.

MIAMI

NO ONE in the Greater Miami area has a tougher assignment right now than Mrs. Warren Copps, mother of that incredible young show stealer, Carolyn Lee. She and Carolyn are attempting to stage a very quiet visit here with the latter's grandparents. Most urgent of the requests, of course, come from Paramount theatre managers, all of whom cherish very fond hopes of being able to secure precious "Pretty" (whose unforgettable portrayal of that role in "Virginia" puts that feature on everybody's MUST list) for at least a momentary personal appearance when they show "Virginia."

Since BOXOFFICE'S Miami correspondent has recovered from brief, but awful, attack of throat infection (probably engendered by the terrific wind created as Jules Benedic sped through this area in that new Plymouth), she's working extra hard to get another new tire for Jeep II, the incredible Austin, so she can negotiate the Overseas highway down to Key West to do a personal inspection job on Jose Carbonel's new Strand, which we understand is a 1,000-seat house, equipped with new sound and projection. Ygnacio Carbonel is the Strand's manager.

Paul Robinson—up Hollywood way—is beaming with pride these days as the result of the election for King of that resort, oceanfront city's big annual Fiesta Tropicale, an event of last weekend. Leading his nearest competitor by some 500 votes was 17-year-old Jack Schell, an after-school usher at all three Hollywood houses, the Florida, Ritz and Hollywood Beach hotel. And just to make the contest a complete theatrical triumph, that runnerup was Jimmy Painton, who works in a similar capacity at the Florida and the Ritz. Two other theatre lads made creditable showings in the contest.

Impressive Quarters For Dallas Operators

By V. W. CRISP

DALLAS—Downpour of rain failed to dampen the formal opening last week of the Motion Picture Machine Operators Local 249 new club rooms and union headquarters at 1916½ Elm Street.

The party, to which a number of friends and film and theatre executives were invited, got under way at 9 o'clock. It was not until later, however, when all others operators closed their booths, that the party got into full sway.

There were no speeches and no set program. It was just a friendly get-together where friends rubbed shoulders and made new friends, J. J. Schaefer, president of the union pointed out. Harvey Hill, business agent, was active in the arrangements.

Music and dancing was the chief entertainment. Refreshments and food were served the guests, and this went on until an early hour.

The new union headquarters is attractive. The downstairs entrance has a tiled floor with an IATSE emblem in colors. A bulletin board gives the names of the MPMO and also the IATSE and Film Exchange Employes Union, local B-53, which use these quarters for their meetings.

The hall occupies the entire second floor of the building. To the front is a large room around the walls of which are chairs for members while in session and this space is appropriately used on occasions for dancing. The other part of the club, to the rear, is separated into an emporium with a number of tables and chairs, and a refreshment bar.

Organized in 1912

The Dallas MPMO was organized in 1912 with about a dozen members. The body has grown to 52 now. The first contract was signed in 1914 when such well known exhibitors as P. G. Cameron, Lou Bissinger, Billy Nevils and H. N. Jorgenson were on Elm Street.

Charter members of the union who still are active in the organization are J. H. Hardin, J. J. Schaefer, Guy Luther, R. R. Pengilly, C. E. (Red) Rupard, Joe Brewer, W. E. Kennemer, C. J. Moore and A. H. Gentry.

Present officers are J. J. Schaefer, president; C. C. Holt, vice-president; N. E. Hoylman, treasurer; H. D. Hilll, business agent; Paul Humphreys, financial secretary, and A. C. Harper, recording secretary.

Trustees are James Patrick, L. C. Clark and Julius Simms.

More than 200 persons attended the clubroom opening. Among them were visiting union projectionists from Houston, San Antonio, Wichita Falls, Waco, Beaumont, Denison, Denton, Tyler, Ft. Worth, and in attendance were the following:

BEAUMONT—Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Bellar.

DALLAS

H S. USRY of the Majestic at Decatur and his daughter, Margaret, were here to attend the funeral of his brother, Daniel W. Usry, a local real estate man. Services were held Thursday . . . Paul Short, National Screen Service district manager, was to conduct a sales meeting Saturday in the interests of the "Beat Par Drive" at the Adolphus Hotel. The following managers and salesmen under him were to be present: Oklahoma City—Gilbert Clark, Tom Harris, Johnny Fagin, Harold Wilson; from Memphis, B. H. Conway, Milton Lindner, Bailey Prichard and W. J. Bryan; from New Orleans, J. L. Boyer, Al Lavender, Doyl Maynard, Ralph Reid; and the Dallas contingent, Wallace Walthall, Harry Harris, R. H. Helms, Leo Smith, Joe Estes, F. W. "Doc" Allen, E. G. Detweiler, Earl Harrington and Victor Maxwell. There will be $14,000 in cash prizes.

H. B. Robb has purchased the unoccupied telephone building at Harwood and Jackson on Filmrow. It is a three-story brick and concrete structure . . . L. J. Dean, owner of the Dixie at Camp Wood and a newspaperman there, was in booking for two houses, his and the O&S at Rock Springs, operated by C. F. Lee.

Burt King, first assistant chief barker of the Variety Club of Texas, left late in the week for Atlantic City to meet with John Harris, national chief barker, and a committee on final plans for the coming national convention there.

L. G. and Mrs. Tomlinson of the Palace at Timpson were here Monday on a booking trip. He expects a draft call from Uncle Sam soon . . . C. H. Jones, who opened the Plaza at Weatherford recently, was another booker.

Jack L. Garrison, formerly with the M-G-M exchange, has joined the U. S. Army Motion Picture Service as booker and office manager . . . A mild flu wave at Camp Bowie near Brownwood closed down Army theatres there as a precautionary measure.

The H. H. Covingtons of Teague who retired from show business several months ago with the sale of their two theatres there to J. G. Long, were here last week. Since selling out, the couple has been seeing much of America. Their last trip took them up to Canada . . . Lee Scarborough, who recently built and opened the Van at Van, has been in on a deal with W. H. Frye.

Beaumont's new Ritz for colored will open March 11, according to Alfred N. Sack . . . Rubin Frels of Victoria was in town booking . . . Maj. H. S. Cole of the American, Bonham, sans chapeau as usual, seen walking along exchange avenue.

Name of the Joy on lower Elm Street has been changed to the Wade. It is owned by Percy Wade of Oklahoma City, and is managed by his son, Gene . . . The Metropolitan Opera Co. appears here again this year under auspices of the Dallas Grand Opera Ass'n. Four operas will be presented at Fair Park Auditorium, afternoon and night . . . Cold and rain put the damper on show business last week.

The A. V. (Tony) Philbins were hosts last Saturday night at the Variety Bingo setto. Their invitation was headed, "Irish Relief," saying it would be a great relief to the Irish couple if friends attended. Harry Harris and his wife were the hosts March 1 and the L. W. McClintocks will be on duty March 8.

Jorgenson Settles With Interstate

DALLAS—The H. N. Jorgenson case against the Interstate circuit alleging price-fixing, which has been hanging fire in Judge Atwell's federal court for several weeks, has been settled out of court.

Following a trial hearing recently the jury rendered a verdict of $1,500 damages in favor of Jorgenson. It was thought at the time that this award was automatically tripled to $4,500, which, eventually did not prove to be so. Instead, Judge Atwell left the case open to defense motions to set aside the jury verdict in favor of an instructed verdict for Interstate or the granting of a new trial. Whereupon Interstate attorneys presented a lengthy motion on details of the case and testimony offered, which was believed to have had an effect on Judge Atwell and counsel for Jorgenson. Thereafter, attorneys for both sides got together in a settlement, details of which were not disclosed.

The settlement winds up all pending actions against the circuit.

"Sis"—Did you, Sis?—Where were you Friday, Sis?—Not for that money, Sis?—and many more "Sis's" you'll hear if you happen to drop in at the local Republic office. Cy Dillon explains this was started by Salesman Jack London to keep exhibitors conscious of the forthcoming "Sis Hopkins" . . . Quite unknown but to few, J. I. Sims, who has the Reliance and Carolina in Orangeburg, S. C., has the walls and roof on his new theatre, which is unnamed as yet. No opening date has been set. J. I. always was a fast worker.

Roy P. Rosser has returned from a trip to Hot Springs, Memphis and points in Texas. Mrs. Rosser remained at home to look after the operation of their theatres in Sanford and Clinton, N. C. . . . Bill Talley, booker at Monogram, accompanied by the Mrs., spent the weekend with Mrs. Talley's parents in Whiteville, N. C. . . . Tom B. Kehoe of the Show Shop in New Bern, N. Watt Parker, Atlantic Pictures distributor and exhibitor, spent the weekend inspecting his State in Durham, N. C. . . . Sam W. Craver has returned from an inspection visit to his theatres in Columbia, S. C.; Danville, Roanoke, Lynchburg and Norfolk, Va. He also spent several days in the various exchanges at Washington, D. C., arranging his bookings.

Ellis Blumenthal, president of B&B Amusements, who has been spending some time in Florida, flashes that he had planned to return home before this, but on seeing a local paper carrying a prediction for snow, changed his mind . . . Carpenters, electricians, plumbers, etc., are in great demand in the Carolinas due to defense construction work. We are not informed as to how Exhibitor E. B. Bowman of Maxton, N. C., qualifies, but anyway he is on the job for Uncle Sam at Fort Bragg, N. C. Mrs. Bowman is taking care of the theatre.

Ray Ervin, Metro salesman, is vacationing with his wife, Caroline, in Florida for two weeks . . . William Mick, southern and eastern division manager for the Jam Handy Detroit, spent some time with Jack Lamont, local Monogram manager, last week . . . Lt. Don Killmer, now located at Camp Stewart in Georgia, spent a day visiting local friends. Don was a South Carolina salesman for National Theatre Supply before being called to the colors.

Howard Marx of National Theatre Supply, on his return from New York where he attended the company's national convention of branch managers, announced the appointment of W. G. Milwain to assume the duties of Don Killmer who has been called to service. Milwain has been connected with National in the Memphis office for several years. He will be joined by his family later . . . Verne Davis of the Mimosa and Alva in Morganton, N. C., and also the Marion and Oasis in Marion, N. C., who only recently returned from Florida, has again gone to the sunshine state, this time accompanied by Mrs. Davis. They plan to be away for a month.

Mrs. Runa E. Curtis, who operates the Curtis in Liberty, N. C., has an unusual hobby: Collecting novelty shoes from the different states. She is also considered one of the leading morticians of North Carolina. Mrs. Curtis entered the industry in 1930 when she opened the Curtis. In 1936 she became associated with T. C. Frazier and purchased the Gem in Siler City, N. C., which they operated until 1939 when the new Elder, which they built, was opened.

PRC Convention in Chicago March 22

DALLAS—Producers Releasing Corp. will hold its annual sales convention March 22-24 at the Stevens Hotel in Chicago, it was announced Wednesday by O. Henry Briggs, president. Briggs was here for conferences with Jack K. Adams of the Adams Film Exchanges and E. L. Walker of Oklahoma City, both territorial franchise holders. The PRC head was en route from the coast to New York on business. Mrs. Briggs was with him.

A new finance deal has just been effected by PRC, Briggs pointed out, whereby $1,000,000 has been made available by Consolidated Film Industries for completion of PRC's present program and for its '41-'42 lineup, which will total 63 productions including 26 westerns. As part of the deal, Consolidated will do PRC's laboratory work and RCA will handle their recording.

Adams, of course, will handle PRC product in Texas, Walker in Oklahoma and Ike Katz of Atlanta will distribute it in the southeast.

AUSTIN

ALMOST anything can happen among Austin's golf-playing theatremen—and it usually does. Take the case of Jesse Melinger, rotund skipper of the Varsity, who traded in his old clubs to a local dealer. Along came Capitol Manager Bill Hellums then who cashed in his clubs as a down payment on Jesse's. Payoff of the story occurred when Dick Waite, Paramount foreman, bought Bill's cast-offs.

And speaking of the fairways, Bill says that the Austin Interstate mob will join the San Antonio bunch in the annual Variety Club golf tournament in the Alamo City, instead of the usual separate tourneys this spring . . . Earl and Lena Podolnick have bought themselves a new nest in Bryker Woods . . . And Francis Vickers & Co. have moved into a new apartment . . . Dick Westbrook, now in Uncle Sam's army, was in town to see the old Varsity gang.

Recent oldies to play the Texas include "Hell's Angels," "Of Human Bondage," "Winterset," "Wuthering Heights," "The Old Dark House" and "Holiday" . . . A sneak preview of "Buck Privates" at the Paramount bagged terrific audience reaction. As a result, the film will be shown at the State instead of at the Queen . . . Julius Kubala of the Texas service staff passed his Randolph Field physical exam with flying colors.

Dallas Plaint Error Causes Filing Delay

DALLAS—The first arbitration case to come before the motion picture tribunal here is in the immediate offing. It is understood that C. C. Williams, clerk of the tribunal, received a case Wednesday, but returned the complaint because an error had been made in drafting it.

It is expected to be several days before the corrected form is received by Williams.

"Premiere for Britain" Shapes Up in Dallas

DALLAS—The "Premiere for Britain" billed for Fair Park Auditorium, March 8, is taking form as the biggest theatrical event ever to be held here. It will feature the first southwestern showing of "Hard-Boiled Canary." Allan Jones, Susanna Foster and Gracie Fields will make personal appearances as well as Maureen O'Sullivan, Margaret Lindsay and others.

Tickets are going at $2 for matinee and $2.50 at night. If all seats are sold, which is very likely, $20,000 will be raised for the British cause, R. J. O'Donnell, one of the movers behind the project, said. Tickets are on sale at all Interstate theatres and at all Skillern Drug Stores.

New Interstate Unit in Caruth Development

DALLAS—With development of the W. W. Caruth properties at Greenville and Mockingbird Lane, a new neighborhood theatre at that point for the Interstate circuit has been announced. The Caruth interests are planning a large shopping center for the area in which the theatre will be located. The theatre will seat over 1,000 and its name will be the Lane.

DeStafeno Returning

DALLAS—Arthur DeStafeno, Los Angeles branch manager for National Theatre Supply, is due back home early in the week to take over the managership of the company's Dallas branch. He started years ago in the equipment business here. DeStafeno succeeds Acting Manager A. G. Smith and the late J. I. Roberts.

Sunday Show Proposal Reconsidered in Ga.

ATLANTA—The senate voted, 29 to 14, at a recent session, to reconsider the preceding day's adverse action on a bill to permit Sunday shows under a local option plan in Georgia.

The bill returns to the calendar to await later action.

Carnival Competition Diverts N. O. Grosses

NEW ORLEANS—Carnival and a slight increase in the flu is taking its toll of grosses both in the city and the New Orleans area, despite the fact that many excellent bills are on the screen. At Loew's State, "The Philadelphia Story" is doing excellent business. At the Saenger "Honeymoon for Three" drew heavily while at the Orpheum "Back Street," produced by an ex-newspaper man, Bruce Manning, received oddles of publicity from the local scribes as well as from the patrons who witnessed it. "High Sierra," moved from the Orpheum to the Liberty, is receiving its share of patronage.

OKLA. CITY

IN LINE with a custom started some years ago, J. H. Cooper, general manager of Standard Theatres, Inc., was host to Oklahoma City youngsters last Saturday at a birthday party in honor of his son, Joe Cooper jr. There were free shows and candy at the Criterion, Tower, Liberty and Circle theatres.

Earl Ford, doorman of the State, now has a sweet time of it what between keeping busy at the door and keeping his eye on the "sweet young thing" spotted at the State's new candy bar just behind him.

Griffith's have opened the old Blue Moon in Packingtown under a new name, The Rodeo, and auspiciously enough with Bob Wills' picture.

Nearly all of the "big shots" were out of town last week attending the opening of the new Griffith Theatre in Tulsa.

Recognize Calgary's War Contributions

CALGARY—Well-deserved recognition of the Calgary theatres' contribution to the Canadian War Savings Campaign was given over the CBC Dominion networks on a recent broadcast. Mention was made of the early completion of their contribution to the war fund of 100 per cent pledges from executives and the staffs of Calgary's theatres and film exchanges.

With 186 employes in eight local film offices and 11 motion picture theatres, monthly subscription pledges totaled $1,098.98.

In addition to the financial aid, the local industry worked at general publicity. So well did it perform this labor, that it was asked to supply speakers to address gatherings in the smaller towns of southern Alberta.

Committee in charge of publicity was composed of: F. H. Kershaw, supervisor, Famous Players Canadian Corp., chairman; K. M. Leach, Strand and Variety theatres, Calgary, vice-chairman; Harvey Harnick, manager of Columbia Pictures of Canada, Calgary; Vern Skorey, manager of 20th Century-Fox Films, Calgary; Pete Egan, manager of Palace, Calgary, and Al Gold, manager of Tivoli, Calgary.

Labor Seeks Admission of Juveniles to Theatres

MONTREAL—Amendment of the law so that children under 16 years of age could be admitted to certain theatres, providing they are accompanied by an adult, was urged upon the provincial government by a delegation from organized labor, which has returned to the city from Quebec.

"We suggested," said Marcel Francq, secretary of the Provincial Federation of Labor, which organized the delegation, "that certain shows remain closed to the children, while others could be open to all, providing, however, that children under 16 years of age be accompanied by their parents or some other responsible person. In countries which have adopted this system the theatres are required to advertise well in view, at the door and in the newspapers where they usually advertise, that this or that show may be seen by children. The law also provides penalties all the way up to cancellation of permits for violation of this rule." Consideration of the proposal was promised by the government.

Bickell Pays $4,450 for Churchill's Photograph

TORONTO—Word is received in Toronto that J. P. Bickell, Canadian financier now in London on war production work, paid $4,450 for an autographed photograph of Prime Minister Churchill at a patriotic auction in aid of the Royal Air Force. Bickell has been associated with N. L. Nathanson in Canadian theatre developments and is the principal stockholder of a company operating several theatres in Ontario which is linked with the Famous Players' chain.

WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG'S rag matinee at which children were admitted to local houses at special showing on presentation of bundles of rags, went well over the top with 29 tons of rags collected. Houses, staffs and projectionists donated their services in this endeavor. Proceeds from the sale of the rags went towards a fund to purchase mobile kitchen units to be used in England. Of all local houses, R. Bessler's Park made the best showing with over two tons collected.

A new idea in exploitation has been introduced by Syl Gunn of the Metropolitan and seems headed for permanency, judging by its reception. This is the replacing of window cards with painted mirrors carrying his house name and current attraction . . . I. H. Allen, local manager of Grand National, when asked about his company's releasing of Producers Releasing Corp., stated that any words on the subject would have to come from the home office at Toronto.

At the Paris, Claire Fallis has introduced a Saturday night novelty in the form of double dozen vocal ensemble singing French folk songs and other numbers. This type of stage attraction seems particularly well suited to the location of the Paris in the heart of the French-speaking section of this neck of the woods, and may possibly win support beyond those confines.

George Formby's "It's in the Air" is rolling along unabated at Garnet Wright's Bijou where it is now in its fifth week . . . Syl Gunn's private screening of "Flight Command" reaped a rich harvest for him when the OC of the district voluntarily publicized his film in daily orders. In addition to individual attendance on the part of the soldiers and small party groups, Syl got a group of 600 men in a batch . . . Last week's tail-end of winter cold cut into boxoffice takes.

Jack Fitzgibbons, until recently assistant manager at the Metropolitan, has resigned his post and left for the United States where he will take up a commission in the army. Changes in staff personnel at the Metropolitan include moving Kirk McComb up to assistant manager and Jack Heaps to head usher . . . Its message apparently ideally suited to the temper of the times, Grand National's "Mein Kampf" has been having highly successful runs.

At the Tivoli, Harold Gray is settling back in anticipation of his specialty British films when he plays "One Night in Paris" next week. Harold's house organ, a miniature bulletin in which he plugs current and coming attractions to a select mailing list, is getting favorable mention . . . "Gone With the Wind," after doing holdover business at Harold Bishop's Capitol, has settled down for a run at Bill Novak's Gaiety.

In spite of one of the coldest nights of the season and with a counter-attraction downtown in the way of a hockey game, a fine crowd packed E. A. Retalick's Uptown for one of Don Gauld's sneak previews. The film, "The Philadelphia Story," got wonderful reaction and should garner heaps of word-of-mouth advance publicity . . . Eddie Newman's teaser campaign in connection with his current playing of "Dulcy" brought results as testified by his excellent opening night house.

Nate Rothstein is again heading the campaign for the Lord Mayor's fund . . . Bill Margot is back at the screen room after his layoff due to illness . . . Earl Pash of Grand National was featured in the University of Manitoba presentation of "The Mikado" . . . Neil Leroy, formerly with radio station CJRC and originator of Public Opinion, quiz show which had a successful run at the Metropolitan, is now in Toronto, where he is reported to be doing very well.

Recent visitors to the city were H. Bercovich of Regina and A. E. Mellon of Portage la Prairie . . . "Hitler—Beast of Berlin" is again showing in this territory and is doing even better business than when it was first released last summer . . . Syl Gunn is acting as host on four occasions to Saturday morning theatre parties of children attending his house as guests of the T. Eaton Co.

Fast Time Mandatory In Two Provinces

TORONTO—Despite complaints and criticism, the Dominion government has announced that it proposes to extend the scope of daylight saving time on a permanent basis throughout the provinces of Ontario and Quebec by ordering the adoption of advanced time as a war measure in municipalities where it has not been observed and the possible provision of changing the clocks in provinces of western Canada and the Maritimes for the conservation of electric power. Cities and towns which had voluntarily adopted daylight saving for the summer months in the past will continue to forget standard time throughout the year under the order which has been in effect since last September.

There is a further intimation, which is expected to be acted upon in the near future, that consumers of electricity for large display signs, billboards and other illumination will be required to restrict the use of juice to provide further power which is said to be necessary for war industries. This will bring about a partial blackout at least of theatre fronts which are usually the one bright spot in a business block.

Exhibitors have boxoffice figures to prove that, in past years, the moment daylight saving went into effect in April or May, theatre receipts took a dive which, of course, was accentuated when patrons started to go away for vacations at the end of June.

With Nathanson 23 Years

TORONTO—Ted Gee, known to thousands of Torontonians as the ticket-taker at the Uptown, big unit of the Famous Players chain, is observing the opening of the 23rd year of his continuous employment under N. L. Nathanson, president of the Canadian circuit.

TORONTO

GEORGE J. TUSTIN, member of the Dominion Parliament for Prince Edward-Lennox, renewed acquaintanceships among the personnel of Toronto film exchanges during a short visit. He was the proprietor of the Granada at Napanee, Ont., when he was elected to the House of Commons, and sold the theatre to Hanson Theatres Corp., Ltd. He intimated that he planned to return to the theatre business even though his parliamentary seat appeared to be secure . . . Miss Jane Edmonds, proprietor of the Kent at Lindsay, Ont., for many years, visited the Toronto film offices accompanied by her sister, Miss Mabel Edmonds, who is also actively associated with the theatre.

On his semi-annual business trip to Toronto was L. S. Hodnett, manager of the Community at Kapuskasing, way up in the far north country and center of the timber limits and pulp industry owned by the New York Times. Hodnett took over the theatre more than a year ago when he succeeded Capt. H. J. Sweatman who is in charge of the Beaver Hut, for Canadian soldiers, in London, England. Another trade visitor from the Far North was Dan Korman, proprietor of the Palace at Englehart.

Jack Allen, owner of the Tivoli, Thorold, was busy with the bookers in the vicinity of Dundas and Victoria streets in the lining up of a string of pictures for his new theatre which he has opened at Niagara-on-the-Lake . . . Two ladies, prominent in the theatre world of western Ontario, were noted on the Filmrow. One was Mrs. H. J. Sutherland of St. Mary's who, with her husband, operate theatres at St. Mary's, Goderich, Clinton, Seaforth and Mitchell. The other was Miss A. E. Elliott of Hamilton, representing Fred Guest's theatres, the Empire, Queen's and Delta, in that city.

Alf Perry, general manager of Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., was at the Montreal branch of the company for several days. Frank Fisher of Empire headoffice spent several days in western Ontario . . . Walter Kennedy has been very busy lining up the Canadian campaign on "Back Street" and will shortly be on the road to sell the picture for first-run situations . . . J. G. Strathy and W. G. Goodman, veteran partners of the Brock at Whitby, made the joint rounds of the Toronto film offices, as did Lou Rosefield and Harry Goldhar of the Palace, Galt.

Rumor has it that M. H. Yudin, manager of the Centre at St. Catharines, will be transferred to the management of the Circle in North Toronto. Yudin is the son-in-law of H. Freedman, owner of both theatres and former president of the Independent Theatres Ass'n of Ontario . . . Jack Delaney has taken over sole management of the Delaney at Gananoque, owned for many years by his father, Sanford Delaney, who died a few weeks ago. Delaney is an experienced airplane pilot, having many flying hours to his credit.

Exhibitors from various parts of Ontario descended upon the film exchanges to keep the staffs on the hustle for several days. The callers included Ben Borlak, proprietor of the College, Brantford; Sam Fingold of the Roxy, Mt. Forest, and the Roxy at Chesley; Milton Fallick, owner of the Lyceum, Hamilton; W. J. Adams, proprietor of the Lyceum, Wingham; Abe Rappaport, colorful manager of the Hollywood at Campbellford, and Simon Meretsky of Windsor who makes his presence known in unmistakable manner, as well as W. Hobberlin, new owner of the Holland at Bradford who recently sponsored a patriotic performance for the War Victims' Fund.

Ben Freedman of the Royal, Long Branch, lined up a string of bookings in anticipation of good business following the re-opening of the military training camp . . . Manager Charles F. Ingram of the Bayview, Leaside, was busy with arrangements for the third annual midnight show under the auspices of the Bayview Business Men's Ass'n which featured a screen and stage performance with a lucky draw for many prizes in aid of patriotic causes.

Manager A. C. Simpson of the Toronto Hollywood is pursuing the policy of granting a reduced admission price to soldiers, airmen and sailors in uniform to help the boys along with their somewhat restricted budgets . . . M. Weiss, proprietor of the Colony in the northwest section of Toronto, organized a special Sunday show to boost the sale of War Savings Stamps. A Sunday performance to assist Canada's war effort was also conducted by H. Freedman at the Circle in the north end.

The Belsize, Bayview and Hudson theatres are working together in a quiz advertising contest of a community newspaper in cooperation with neighborhood merchants each week by providing the complimentaries as prizes. The Hudson is an independent, owned by Max Starkman, while the other two are chain units. The Brock, in Toronto's west end, put on a second concert last Sunday night in aid of the British War Victims' Fund under the auspices of the Dundas-Brockton Businessmen's Ass'n, Joe Austin having direction of the program.

During the midst of the second long run of "Gone With the Wind" at Toronto Loew's, Manager Jules Bernstein received a cable from London, England, telling of the success of the year-long premiere of the picture in the Empire Capitol despite air raids and tumult . . . Stirling Hayden, latest screen heart-throb, packed the Toronto Uptown for two personal appearances in conjunction with the opening of "Virginia," arranged by Manager Fred Trebilcock. Hayden also officiated at the City Hall in a ceremony in connection with the war savings drive.

Joan Leslie, former Toronto school girl when she was known as Joan Brodel, received reams of publicity for her screen debut in "High Sierra" at Toronto Shea's where Walter Graydon was busy answering questions from fans. A few years ago Miss Leslie was a student at Our Lady of Lourdes School here . . . M-G-M received the official credit over the Canadian network for the broadcast of a dramatization of "The Mortal Storm" with the star role taken by Karen Glahn, formerly of the Royal Theatre, Copenhagen, and now a refugee. Her son is now in the Canadian army.

Manager Joe Paul of the Community, Welland, Ont., was the happy victim of a surprise party by his staff on the occasion of his birthday when he was presented with a wallet case, followed by suitable refreshments.

OTTAWA

JOHN FARROW, former Hollywood director and husband of Maureen O'Sullivan, has retired as press agent for the Royal Canadian Navy after holding the position for more than a year and has been succeeded by W. J. Gilhooley, a local sports writer, who has been appointed as a civilian . . . T. R. Tubman, manager of the Ottawa Capitol, organized a second rally Sunday night at the theatre as a committee chairman of the local war savings campaign, the speaker between stage presentations being Sir Norman Angell.

Donat Paquin, owner of the Francais and Victoria in Ottawa and the Laurier in Hull, and Manager Bill O'Regan journeyed to Toronto to arrange a flock of bookings. . . . Miss Maryan Nolan, proprietor of the Rexy and Nola and sole executrix of the estate of P. J. Nolan who died recently, was also in Toronto during the past week.

Finley McRae, who was elected an officer of the Ottawa Board of Trade, has now been elected vice-president of the Ottawa West Liberal Ass'n, a political organization. Son-in-law of the late Harry Brouse, McRae holds numerous public and community offices.

Manager Isser Singerman has closed the extra run of "Gone With the Wind" at the Imperial where it played more than one week . . . Manager L. M. Mills of the Elgin had the ladies of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire serving tea in the lounge daily for patriotic purposes during "This Thing Called Love" which was held over for a second week as a single attraction. Mills emphasized the laugh angle as an antidote for war worry.

The Ottawa Capitol is making a break in its continuous film policy in the presentation of the opera baritone, John Charles Thomas, in one concert on the evening of March 6 . . . Donat Paquin, who has long been a leader in the French-Canadian community of the Ottawa district, has been doing community work as a chairman of the war savings campaign for the City of Hull.

MONTREAL

RETURN of "Gone With the Wind" to Loew's is an attractive March event. At the first showing, despite the high prices, the theatre was filled to overflowing during every performance for several weeks . . . A comparatively rare visitor to Filmrow was A. Beaumont, who owns the Francais in Quebec and the Academie and the Cinema at Levis, which is on the south shore facing the provincial capital. More regular visitors were George Gray of Wonderland, Magog; C. Brook of Princess, Cowansville, and Ambrose Nolan of the Pix, Aylmer.

Canadian Dorothy Spitfire Fund announces that Dorothy Lamour's celebrated sarong will be auctioned at Vancouver in aid of the fund, as will an autographed copy of Dorothy Thompson's famous "Let's Face the Facts" radio address. Dorothy Dix sent $10 from New Orleans . . . Dionne Quintuplets made their first try at skating on ice the other day and slid, skidded and sprawled all over the rink, so that small chairs had to be given them to push.

Canadian Geographical Society has undertaken an educational film which will be completed this year. The Society witnessed the national premiere a showing of the National Film Board picture, "Peoples of Canada," which John Grierson, who heads the board, remarked was based on the "live and let live" outlook of the Canadian people. It shows Canadians of various origins at work all over the Dominion. Gordon Sparling of ASN directed the picture . . . The newsreel division of Associated Screen News included a special clip in recent reels entitled "Britain Faces Invasion Threat," prepared to aid the War Savings Campaign.

"Islands of the St. Lawrence" is a tourist travel picture completed by Associated Screen Studios for the Tourist Bureau of the Province of Quebec, which has also ordered a French version of the film. Narration was handled by Corey Thompson and the film was directed by Phil Taylor . . . Roy Tash of ASN went to Stratford, Ont., to film the visit of Princess Juliana . . . Lucien Roy, of the same organization, pictured activities on the Pacific coast of a trade school for enlisted men.

George Ganetakos, managing director of United Amusement Corp., who is national chairman of the Greek War Relief Fund, advises that $300,000 has now been distributed for Greek civilian relief by the fund. He received a cable from Premier Korysis, reading: "Being deeply touched by your patriotic work, I herewith express my highest admiration."

It is announced that Britain has lifted the ban on Sunday theatres and music halls in order, as Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, commented, "to give servicemen and industrial workers some pleasure from their scant leisure." He also mentioned that it would assist "the financially pressed members of the theatrical profession." Later shows are also being given week nights in London.

The recent showing of "Hudson's Bay" at Loew's brought from Armour Landry of Le Flambeau Society of Arts, Science and Letters at Three Rivers, Que., the information that Pierre Radisson, the hero (played by Paul Muni) and his friend Des Groseilliers (Gooseberry), lived in Three Rivers and a marker indicates the house of the latter. Translated, it reads: "Medard Chouart Des Groseilliers (1625-1698), brother-in-law to Radisson, had his home here. The Hudson's Bay Company owes its existence to these fearless explorers."

War Cuts Estimates For Propaganda

OTTAWA—The effect of the war was reflected in the estimates of the Dominion government for the coming fiscal year of the branches engaged in motion picture and trade propaganda activities because of the shutting off of European and other markets through hostilities. One exception in the downward trend is the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau, the appropriation for which has been raised by $49,810 to $159,810 to take care of the production of propaganda films for theatrical release.

The appropriation for the National Film Board of the department of trade and commerce, of which John Grierson of London, England, is the film commissioner, has been reduced to $39,100, this total being lower by $20,900 from the previous apportionment. This indicates that the work of the National Film Board is of less importance than was regarded during its first year of operations.

The estimate of the department for exhibitions and publicity, which include moving pictures and advertising displays in foreign countries for trade and tourist purposes, has been reduced from $237,960 to $112,900. The amount earmarked for exploitation work in the British Isles was cut from $85,000 to $45,020 while the sum made available for such features in countries other than the United Kingdom has been slashed from $105,000 to $54,360.

It has also been brought out that the branch of the director of information brought an outlay of $202,672 up to December 1 last. The purpose of this new bureau is to coordinate moving picture and radio services as well as existing publicity methods of the different departments and to provide for the production of Canadian government war films for theatrical and non-theatrical distribution "and the encouragement of independent newsreel operations." No details have been provided regarding the results attained thus far.

CALGARY

IT TOOK a film sales manager of Calgary to solve a technical problem that puzzled the projectionist and house manager of an ace theatre in Edmonton. Also gathered at the conference was the theatre inspector of the Alberta provincial government. Film offices were being blamed for sending out scratched negatives to the theatre. Doubt arose when scratches appeared on film from other offices. Projection machine was dismantled and wise heads consulted. In fact everything was looked over but the house seats. In walked the film salesman, sat through a screening . . . and pointed out four seams in the new screen. In certain fully-lighted scenes they looked like four scratches running through the film as it unfolded.

Sadly depleting staffs of theatres and Filmrow, flu and other sickness have been prevalent during February. Measles among adults has also been a common ailment.

TORONTO—According to advance information, gross operating profits af Famous Players Canadian Corp. for the year ending December 31 will be approximately $800,000 which is higher than the preceding 12 months. However, it is pointed out that the amount reserved for the payment of various taxes will absorb a considerable portion of this sum. During the year there was a retirement of bond obligations totaling $700,000, it is understood. Earnings will figure out at $2.09 for each common share outstanding, dividends paid on which amounted to $1.00 per share.

The fact that taxes will consume a large share of earnings bears out the recent comment in BOXOFFICE regarding current war conditions in Canada that theatre patronage is appreciably heavy but that much of the increase is being consumed in greater taxation by the Dominion and other governments. The official financial statement is expected to be released in the near future.

EDMONTON

HUNDRED per cent participation was pledged by Edmonton theatre employes in the Canadian government's payroll savings plan at a meeting at the Capitol. With each of Edmonton's 11 theatres fully represented, those attending heard an address on the scheme for raising money for Canada's war effort by F. Harrison, member of the Edmonton War Savings committee. Walter Wilson acted as chairman.

"Gone With the Wind" will make its second appearance in Edmonton at the Capitol beginning March 8, Manager Walter Wilson announces . . . H. Harnicke, Calgary branch manager for Columbia, was a recent visitor.

Mrs. Fred Tickell, formerly of Calgary, has arrived in Edmonton to join her husband, newly appointed manager of the Princess. She was accompanied by her son.

Nat Taylor Circuit Enters Belleville

TORONTO—Twentieth Century Theatres, Ltd., Toronto, headed by Nat Taylor, has entered Belleville, Ont., in the acquiring of the McCarthy Theatre from J. C. McCarthy. It is intimated that the McCarthy, which seats 829 persons, will continue under the management of Vince Freeman who has been identified with the house for many years.

The three theatres in Belleville, which is adjacent to the Trenton air station of the Royal Canadian Air Force and has a number of war industries of its own, are now under chain jurisdiction. The Belle, seating 958 and managed by G. J. Forhan, is operated by Famous Players while the Capitol, with 829 seats, is a unit of Hanson Theatres Corp., Toronto, with Tom Mascaro as manager.

Announcement is made by Midtown Theatres, Ltd., that the Midtown, formerly the Madison, at Bloor and Bathurst Streets, will open March 15 after complete remodeling. The company is a subsidiary of 20th Century Theatres, Ltd.

S. Dolcourt has applied to the municipality of Midland, Ont., for the purchase of a property owned by the town on which to erect a theatre which would compete with the Capitol in that center. The decision has not been announced.

ST. JOHN

WHEN Operator Wallie Humby was incapacitated with a crushed hand while working in the Mayfair booth here, Herman Kerwin, doorman, stepped into the breach and continued the program to an SRO house without a second's interruption, and until the arrival of a relief operator. In the hospital, one finger on Humby's injured hand was amputated.

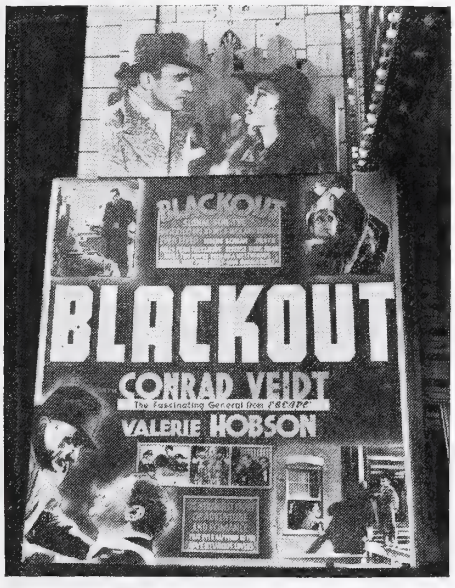
The Savoy, Fort Kent, Me., recently added to the B&L theatre circuit of St. John, seats 400, and is the second house on the Maine side of the border for M. S. Bernstein and J. Lieberman. This firm is the first in the eastern provinces to penetrate over the international line, their debut being at Madawaska, Me., south of Fort Kent.

The Film Girls' Patriotic Club, composed of feminine workers in St. John film exchanges, has developed into a leading war welfare group of the eastern provinces. They are now sponsoring entertainments for soldiers, sailors, air forcemen and mercantile seamen, on their own. Previously, they assisted other groups. The club is the mass mother of the crew of a naval patrol boat guarding against submarines, surface raiders and enemy bombers on the Atlantic coast. It also supplies the crew with sweaters, sox, mufflers, caps and cigarettes and delicacies.

Sunday shows at the Capitol, Halifax, N. S., are out of the trial stage, and hereafter will be presented indefinitely. But, apparently, only at the Capitol. The 1,980 seats there are filled within ten minutes after the doors are open at 8:30 p. m., and about 500 have been unable to gain admittance on recent Sundays . . . Al Clarke of Kentville, N. S., a retired pioneer exhibitor, has been raising money for Red Cross war work by touring Nova Scotia, presenting concerts in theatres and halls.

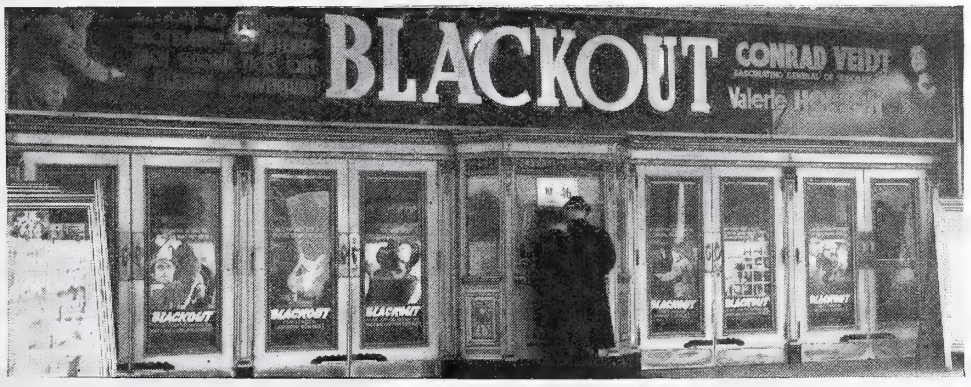
Alice Fairweather, secretary of the Maritime branch of the Canadian Distributors' Ass'n, St. John, N. B., and secretary of the Navy League of Canada for New Brunswick, has been touring the province delivering addresses in quest of new league members. She has signed up all exchange managers in St. John, this action being agreed on by the CDA branch officially . . . Employes of St. John exchanges have been organized into a bowling league. There are six teams, all chosen on the basis of ability or lack of it, and sex. None of the exchange managers is eligible.

Johnny March of St. John is following his father into film distribution, but not in the same groove. Reg March, a veteran distributor, is manager of 20th Century-Fox, while the son, 20, is on the staff of Empire-Universal, which is in the same film center as 20th-Fox, but with no other affiliation. Johnny yearns to join the Royal Canadian Air Force, and paid his own expenses to Moncton, N. B., the RCAF base. The examiners found him under weight, and now he's eating starchy and sugary foods aplenty in the effort to add enough poundage to be accepted within a few months on another try he is planning.



Musical Counters Radio Fight

Chicago—Alert to the times, Richard Barry, manager of the Capitol, Chicago neighborhood house, is tying in the fact of the recent ban of Ascap tunes on the radio in his advertising. Barry, in an effort to reach the radio audience, is distributing a house-to-house plugger which reads: "Have you missed the hit tunes on your radio lately? If so a visit to the Capitol Theatre will make you feel right at home when you see and hear 'Hit Parade of 1941' (copy and playdate.)" Cards in music store windows read: "No trouble with Ascap at the Capitol. Hear Kenny Baker sing these hit tunes in 'Hit Parade of 1941.'"



A Chilling Send-Off—

For the Monogram horror combination—"The Ape" and "Chamber of Horrors"—was arranged at the Ritz Theatre in Albany, New York, via this sensational front.

Not in the Dark—

An outside bally-view of Elmer Hollander's striking display on "Blackout" at the Stanton Theatre in Philadelphia which brought much comment from transients. Note that the war angle was omitted and mystery highlighted.

Double Bill Showing Has Mayor's Proclamation

ALBANY—Mayor Herman F. Hoogkamp issued a proclamation designating February 6-12 as "Patriotic Days" and urging Albanians to attend a showing, at Fabian's Palace during that period, of "Land of Liberty" and "Flight Command." The Knickerbocker News ran on a news page, a two-column facsimile of the proclamation, with a story on it and on the two films. The manager described the industry feature as "a stirring and dramatic film which tells the story of our country's patriotic progress during the past 150 years."

Airplane Model Contest

ERIE, PA.—J. V. Minton and his assistant, Wendell Proctor, at the Shea's, Erie, Pa., tied in with the Dispatch-Herald there on the Air Cadets model competition for "Flight Command" exploitation, with passes and tickets distributed to winners.

Charles Baron, M-G-M exploiteer, placed copy on the same picture within a large orange disc, which is the trademark of Gulf gasoline, for display at half-a-hundred Gulf gas stations.

Saturday Morning Shows Have Film Council's Aid

WORCESTER, MASS.—An experiment in special presentations for children has been inaugurated at the local Loew's Poli Elm Street by Joseph Anstead, manager, in conjunction with the Worcester Better Films Council.

Every Saturday morning, members of the "Nine-Thirty Club" pay their admissions and attend film programs, which are especially selected for the kiddies. The club has already arranged several promising angles, including free tickets on birthdays.

Hosts Boy Scouts

ALBANY—Bill Barber, manager of Charles Wilson's Bijou, Troy, was to host 200 Boy Scouts at an afternoon show. Throughout Boy Scout week, a display of handicraft of the various troops was on exhibition in theatre lobby.

Award to Robert Sidman

HARRISBURG, PA.—An Honor Roll Button has been awarded Robert Sidman, manager of the Senate Theatre, for his outstanding campaign for "Land of Liberty," industry-sponsored feature film which M-G-M is releasing.

Paper Helps Campaign

SPOKANE, WASH.—Manager W. R. Howes of the Granada brought about a newspaper smash for his engagement of "L'il Abner" through the local paper using the comics. The paper, in a seven-column display, described both the comic and the screen vehicle. Street ballyhoo and several tie-ins completed the bally.

PHILADELPHIA STORY—Amplifiers on the roof of the theatre played the "Philadelphia Story" transcription several times a day.

STRAWBERRY BLONDE—The Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity at Northwestern University voted the "Strawberry Blonde" as the type of girl they would prefer taking to the Junior Prom or Spring Dance. Immediately a group of brunettes on the campus began to picket the fraternity house. Pictures made the national news services.

MR. AND MRS. SMITH—Special literature to all the Smiths in the community. A question on marriage over a humorous radio program offered passes for the best answers.

YOU'LL FIND OUT—Doormen, usherettes and cashier were placarded as pickets a week in advance. Canvas banners, worn front and back, read: "Kay Kyser is Unfair to Gloom. 'You'll Find Out.'"

WHO KILLED AUNT MAGGIE?—A teaser campaign of one inch by one column ads a week in advance asked:

"1. Did Mussolini do it? Definitely Not! 'Who Killed Aunt Maggie?'

"2. Hitler did not do it! 'Who Killed Aunt Maggie?'

"3. Churchill would not do it! 'Who Killed Aunt Maggie?'

"4. Iron Whiskers couldn't do it! 'Who Killed Aunt Maggie?'"

During the week the cashier would whisper the title in giving out tickets or change; the doorman would whisper after his 'Thank You'; and in the middle of the newsreel a silent trailer popped out word by word "Who Killed Aunt Maggie?"

KEEPING COMPANY—A giant board in the lobby read: "If you are 'Keeping Company' be the guest of this theatre for the great picture (playdate)." Under this sign were cutout hearts with the names of couples who are keeping company in the town. They were required to pluck the heart from the board and present it at the boxoffice for the free pass. Hearts with new names were added to the board as the others were claimed by couples. A reader in the paper advertised the stunt.

IT'S IN THE AIR—Coop ad. A scrambled word contest which formed the name of the star and picture. Recordings of the music in the film over radio station. Distribution of 2,000 novelties consisting of a small cardboard airplane, the fuselage of which was a real cigarette, with the advertising of the cooperating restaurant and taxi company on the wings. Another taxi firm paid for 2,000 lucky number business cards, the winning numbers for free admissions being posted in the lobby. A cleaning company gave free theatre ticket with orders of $5, and paid for heralds enclosed in every parcel for one week.

LAND OF LIBERTY—Mayor's proclamation urged public support. Five-minute Legion band concert outside of theatre before its start. Legion post sponsored a contest with 25 pairs of guest tickets for winning letters on "Who Is the Greatest American Patriot?" Personal letters to heads of 200 patriotic and civic organizations. 10,000 tabloid heralds, the back carrying paid ads of seven neighborhood merchants.

Also a tieup with Citizens' Bureau which conducts Americanization classes for some 2,000 adults. Bureau issued cards to each student on which was place for name, address and date on which the film was seen. These cards were presented at the theatre along with admission ticket and later used as basis for class discussion.

NO, NO NANETTE—Shoe store cooperated with window display of beautiful pair of dancing shoes and several stills. Copy on a 22x28: "You too will want to dance after you have seen Anna Neagle in (picture and playdate)."

ANDY HARDY'S PRIVATE SECRETARY—Secretarial schools placed notices on their bulletin boards concerning the picture.

KITTY FOYLE—Pages from several copies of the popular priced edition of the book were overprinted and distributed as a herald. People read the part of the story on the page they got and a checkup of book stores revealed sales had boomed.

KITTY FOYLE—Heralds were made up by imprinting pages from a stenographer's notebook. "Kitty Foyle" sundaes and "white collar luncheons" were featured by merchants who tied-in.

KITTY FOYLE—Dressed like "Kitty," a girl typist in a downtown store window typed and handed out short notices about the film. Blotters printed in shorthand were distributed in business places.

KITTY FOYLE—Twenty RKO houses in the New York area are conducting a contest to select the young business woman most resembling Ginger Rogers in the picture. Photos submitted to the theatres are mounted on a giant board inside each house. Below each is a slot in which patrons cast their ballot. Cash prize of $650 and other prizes will go to the final winner. Girls getting the greatest number of votes will appear at each theatre and compete in the finals.

CONVOY—Special showing for officers and enlisted men of local navy yard. A letter of endorsement from the captain urged citizens to see the picture. Front made over to carry out navy atmosphere.

FLIGHT COMMAND — Two anti-aircraft searchlights were used as opening night ballyhoo. A boys' parade in a tie-up with the Aviation Club.

GONE WITH THE WIND—A birthday cake in the lobby celebrated the anniversary showing. Also a year old baby, born on January 31 of last year, was posed with the cake and pictures made the dailies.

A NIGHT AT EARL CARROLL'S—Two thousand cards, simulating legit theatre tickets were distributed to restaurants, taverns, fraternities and sororities around the nearby university. The tickets read: "It would cost you $3.30 for 'A Night at Earl Carroll's'—Enjoy it for less—(Playdate and theatre)." The ticket was complete with stub.

LADY WITH RED HAIR—A red wig, placed on a stand similar to those used by milliners, made a lobby display. Card below it announced "'The Lady With Red Hair' will be here on (playdates)."

"Hams" in Lobby Let Patrons Broadcast

Detroit—David M. Idzal of the Fox has arranged a lobby display for "hams"—amateur telegraph and radio operators—in connection with opening of "Western Union." The hams have been grabbing plenty of newspaper attention because of their importance in national defense activities, so the tieup has unusual timely value.

Amateurs stationed in the lobby for the week receive messages from patrons and transmit them to any part of the country as a part of the tieup.

Distinctive Lobby

ALLENTOWN, PA.—Nick Todorov, advertising director for Wilmer & Vincent's Colonial, utilized distinctive lobby pieces in selling "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." The motif of the stars phoning one another marked the displays.

A "Flytalk" Contest

CLEVELAND—A "flytalk" contest, asking readers to translate aviation slang into everyday language, created much comment among Press readers as part of the "Flight Command" campaign put over by Joe Longo, Loew's publicist.

—Metropolitan Photo Service

Books and Picture Displayed—

The Pennsylvania Drug Stores in Radio City featured an elaborate "Kitty Foyle" window display arranged by Manager James Dunn of the Rivoli with the cooperation of Donald Reid of Grosset and Dunlap Publishing Co. The display featured a blown-up shot of Ginger Rogers and Dennis Morgan and the popular dollar edition of the Christopher Morley best-seller.

New Advertising Outlet—

Through the efforts of Lloyd Cohen, assistant to Charles Schlaifer of the United Artists Theatre in San Francisco, an exclusive store, hitherto uncooperative, came across with the above window display for "Thief of Bagdad." Copy in the corner reads: "Magic as a floating carpet (Royal Abustan)."

Assembles Plane in Lobby For "Flight Command"

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—When "Flight Command" played Loew's Rochester, Lester Pollock, manager, had a full-sized, two-seater cabin plane brought into the theatre and set up on the promenade. The plane, through a tieup with a local plane service, was flown in from Detroit, dismantled and then taken to the theatre where it was reassembled.

Effective also, as part of the exhibit which included model airplanes, engines, and pictures, was a large parachute hanging over the lobby suspended from the ceiling.

On the morning the film opened, 36 planes took off from the airport, flew over the city and dipped over the theatre—as a "lofty" plug for the picture.

On the marquee, Pollock arranged for a cracked-up plane, nosed into the marquee. Red lights and rising steam simulated fire.

In another tieup with the Democrat and Chronicle, a model plane contest was held with a trophy going to the winner.

Competing Pictures Sold Via "Feuding" Ads

SHEBOYGAN, WIS.—A friendly feud that expressed itself in newspaper ads provided a novel departure for competing Jack Ebersberger of the Sheboygan and Marlow Conner of the Rex in advertising their respective offerings.

Read Conner's ad:

"Dear (Neighbor) Jack Ebersberger: 'Hudson's Bay' with Paul Muni . . . which I understand you are playing next Saturday . . . is a great picture for those who like lots of snow. Personally I've had all the snow this winter that I care for. If you want to have a good time, come over to the Sheboygan and see Jack Benny and Fred Allen in 'Love Thy Neighbor.'"

Responded Ebersberger:

"Dear Neighbor M. Conner: It was so nice to hear from you, especially through the pages of the Press, about your week-end attraction 'Love Thy Neighbor' which starts Sunday. I don't like to dampen your enthusiasm, but even you must admit that Paul Muni starring in a picturization of the 'Hudson's Bay' Company can't be topped in motion picture entertainment. 'Hudson's Bay' starring Paul Muni and featuring a host of new faces and new personalities starts Saturday at the Rex, and you owe it to yourself not to miss it."

Plug "Topper Returns"

NEW YORK—UA is ballyhooing the forthcoming "Topper Returns" trade shows with over a million stickers which will go out on all mail. Forty by sixty boards heralding the event have been sent the exchanges and special invitations will shortly be forwarded exhibitors.

IT MAKES A BIG DIFFERENCE!

Take a walk past your theatre. Regardless of the picture you're playing . . . does it look inviting as a place to spend an evening?

That's a test of showmanship.

Because your lobby . . . your marquee . . . your theatre front is your first appeal to the public to come in.

And it makes a big difference to your box office how you make that first appeal. They'll never reach your box office unless you can make them believe you've got something more desirable inside than the price of admission.

And we claim that the combined product of THE THREE BEST SEAT SELLERS . . . Trailers . . . Lobby Displays . . . General Accessories from the Prize Baby of the Industry—will give your theatre that "gee-I-must-see-that" look.

The Pulse of the Motion Picture Industry

Move Over, You Giants

ANY OCCASION on which a President directs his remarks to this industry at once becomes important. The occasion, separated by a long period of years, is the more so.

It is an essential and a welcome obligation, therefore, to explore the significance of Mr. Roosevelt's address, delivered from The White House to the Academy dinner and broadcast to millions through the joint facilities of the three national networks.

At that very moment when the President signified his willingness to talk, this business automatically assumed a larger stature in the consciousness of official Washington; that, too, we feel safe to assume, must have prevailed in the consciousness of the nation.

The Chief Executive employed the occasion to stress the importance of national defense, to reiterate his stand on his policy of Western Hemisphere cooperation and to publicly acknowledge the assistance extended by this industry in that direction. "Our government has invited you to do your share of the job of interpreting the people of the Western Hemisphere to one another. And all of us in all of the twenty-one American republics are grateful that your response is so immediate and so wholehearted," thereafter followed.

"National, International Force"

BUT, note if you will the first specific approach to the film on this occasion. Clearly in the President's mind must be the realization of its tremendous influence, for no other explanation for the expression, "the American motion picture as a national and international force," seems reasonable. "We have seen the American motion picture become the foremost in the world. We have seen it reflect our civilization throughout the rest of the world—the aims and aspirations and ideals of a free people and of freedom," he said.
